ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Following the final showings of Ramon Novarro's romantic drama of the Napoleonic wars "Devil-May-Care," at the Broadway tonight, the patrons are offered an appetizing Lenten treat in the big double feature which opens tomorrow. The bill includes Bebe Daniels, the darling of "Rio Rita," in her latest musical drama "Love Comes Along," and that sterling couple, Clive Brooke and Evelyn Brent in a tense "upperworld" drama, "Slightly Scarlet." Fresh from her triumphs in "Rio Rita" Miss Daniels is more superb than ever as the stranded cafe singer on the Spanish-ruled islet of Caparajo, off the South American coast. Desperate and almost forced to accept the attentions of a swaggering "sheik," she is saved by the timely arrival of a husky young American sailor, mate on a windjammer, who is played by Lloyd Hughes, and his inseparable pal "Happy" as played by the gloomy Ned Sparks. Action is fast and furious as the sailors carry out their rescue plans, and the loud mouthed "Spig" is left to nurse his shattered nerves and outraged feelings. A gay fiesta is one of the many highlights of the production which is touted as "Rio Rita's" only rival.

In the companion picture, which is highly dramatic with some deft touches of comedy relief, "Slightly Scarlet" tells the absorbing story of two internationally known jewel thieves, played by Evelyn Brent and Clive Brooke, each representing actively opposing wings of the great jewel syndicate, which systematically robs collections and dealers' stocks with impartiality. The paths of the two crooks cross, with dire results. Paul Lukas is a sinister and threatening power in the "jewel trust" and Eugene Pallette steps from his famous detective roles to play a newly rich American, full of brag and bluster, and carelessly flaunting his wealth in the very faces of the wolves of the ring. Old Doctor Cupid takes a hand in matters, and succeeds in not only gumming up the works for the expectant "headquarters" of the jewel ring, but engineers a delightful romance between the two crooks. Helen Ware, Virginia Bruce and Morgan Farley are also in the cast. The latest Fox movietone news with up-to-the-minute news from the baseball camps is an accompanying featurette.

St. Mary's Players.

St. Mary's Players are ready. After weeks of preparation everything is in order, and one of the best amateur performances ever given will be seen tonight. If you have not as yet a ticket get one today. As this is going to press there are a few seats left. Owing to the length of the play the curtain will rise at 8.15 sharp.

Connecticut College Concert.

Born in Odessa in 1899, Toscha Seidel made his debut at the age of sixteen. Even then he played with a maturity seldom heard in so young an artist, and with an authority and dignity which were exceptional. His American debut in 1918 was as successful as his European one three years previously, and since then Toscha Seidel has held a niche auspiciously high among the violinists of the world. In 1922 he made a world tour from England and France, to America, Australia, New Zealand and Honolulu. Everywhere he attained remarkable success. There is a brilliance and abandon about his playing, a fine musical intelligence and sense of proportion. He plays, as a critic once said, "with the artlessness of a child, and the skill of a virtuoso. He has a rare command of the difficult intricacies of violin management, and his technique quickly disposes of any complications. To again quote a famous critic, "Toscha Seidel was kissed by the gods as he came through the clouds," which is rare praise indeed.

His appearance at Bulkeley auditorium March 20, under the auspices of Connecticut college is part of the transcontinental tour which now engages the artist. It will reveal to this public the most brilliant of all the Auer pupils, as he has many times been called, at the height of his career.

Slightly under ripe fruits make the best fruit pickles, Cornell home economics experts advise.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

As has been previously announced, St. Mary's church will give its annual show at the Palace theatre tonight, and in consequence, there will be only a matinee showing of "The Song of the West." Those who desire to see this mighty technicolor talking and singing romance should make it a point to get to the Palace this afternoon for seldom does any theatre have the pleasure of showing such a marvelous picture. Starred in the "Song of the West" are John Boles, lyric-voiced and handsome, Vivienne Segal of the beautiful voice, Joe E. Brown, the great comedian, and hard-faced Sam Hardy, in addition to other bright stars.

feature bills such as the management has been presenting in recent weeks. This program includes that mighty underworld romance, "The Racketeer," starring Robert Armstrong in the part of a suave tenderloin king, and Carol Lombard, a society girl who gets into his company through an accident of fate. The other picture on the bill is the hilarious Vitaphone sensation, "Loose Ankles," starring the screen's most romantic love team, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young.

In other theatres throughout the country each of these attractions has played as a single feature, and has won the acclaim of packed houses. The Palace presents them together because they are the finest combination of the day. In one we get tragedy, adventure and a sinister atmosphere: in the other a breath of tinkling comedy as refreshing as the sweet romance in which the plot revolves.

Grotto-Eastern Star Minstrels.

After weeks of training the selected company of 30 voices are prepared to offer the public of Norwich what promises to be as nearly a professional performance as has been presented by local talent in many years. The songs are new and catchy, the jokes many of which are original, of local color, are entirely without offense. The opening overture is composed of ladies and gentlemen in black and white, the gentlemen in tuxedoes and black face. This is an extremely delicate situation as great care must be taken in make-up. The ladies appear in costumes made for the occasion. The opening chorus is composed of tambourines and the end men, with Mr. Prother, play ebony professional bones. The orchestra of eight pieces with Mr. Thumm are seated on the stage in back of the circle!

The minstrel overture is to be followed by an olio of local and professional talent. Then the style show. Truly a wonderful offering.

Henry Brynan, Violinist

A varied program has been arranged for the concert to be given this evening in Slater Memorial hall by Henry Brynan, violinist, who will appear here under the auspices of Workmen's circle, No. 128. Mr. Brynan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Brynan of Ward street, this city. He has attained wide notice in musical circles. His program, to be given this evening, follows:

COMPRESSED ICE WELLS REVEALED IN OIL FIELDS

SALT LAKE CITY—(AP)—Dry ice wells capable of producing a trainload of ice a day are the oil fields latest freaks.

Instead of fuel gas, these wells produce carbon dioxide, the substance from which dry ice of commerce is made. The gas is compressed until it becomes a white solid at 109 degrees below zero.

In the oil fields nature supplies carbon dioxide already compressed.

The discovery was made by the Continental Oil company in Colorado and reported to the American Institute of mining and Metallurgical engineers by Prof. F. Hintze of the University of Utah's geology department.

"In North Park, Jackson county," he reports, "oil has been produced on a small scale along with a large volume of gas that is chiefly carbon dioxide. This gas expands when it comes from the well and produces such low temperatures that the oil is frozen and appears as a snow.

"It is recovered when the temperature rises and the frozen carbon dioxide evaporates. If contemplated tests of the refrigerating properties are succesful, the wells are sufficiently large to produce a trainload of dry ice per day."

The New London police continued the drive Saturday night on resorts where liquor is sold, but the raiders were not rewarded with success. At both places raided as a result of evidence being supplied by stool pigeons, not a semblance of whiskey, beer or alcohol was found. The officers first visited the premises at 142 Shaw street, the warrant being of the "John Doe" type and issued for the purpose of finding liquor in the building owned by a resident known as "Chris." The searchers scoured the building from basement to attic, but were not rewarded with success. The raiding force then went to the club room on Main street conducted by Joseph Connolly and made a thorough and diligent search, but with the same success. The raiders were in charge of Captain Charles A. Pinney and Desk Sergeant William T. Babcock.

LOITERED ABOUT STREETS— GOLDBERG SENT TO NORWICH

William Goldberg, about 23, of Tilley street, who has caused the police much anoyance because of his loitering about the street throughout the early morning hours, was arrested as a suspicious person last night by Patrolman Edward Skoczylas. Today, after being examined to determine his mentality, he was committed to the Norwich State hospital for observation. He was taken to the hospital this afternoon by Captain Charles A. Pinney and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty. Goldberg has persisted for over a year in loitering on the business streets or in doorways and with numerous burglaries occurring, officers were compelled to give attention to Goldberg's movements. While it was not believed that the young man was the perpetrator of any of the robberies, his actions caused the officers on the beats where he loitered much work. Three weeks ago, Goldberg was observed loitering late at night and was taken to headquarters by Officer Skoczylas and at that time the youth was advised to keep off the streets late at night. Last night when Officer Scokzylas observed Goldberg again loitering, he ordered him home and when Goldberg persisted in his loitering he was arrested.

FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE— —CESARINA APPEALED

Giordani Cesarina, 27 Summer street, employed as a weaver by the Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue, was in the police court today, charged with theft. Cesarina pleaded not guilty, but the evidence introduced convinced Judge Daniel M. Cronin of the guilt of the weaver. Cesarina was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the jail sentence was suspended. Cesarina, through counsel, filed notice of an appeal to the next term of the court of common pleas and furnished a surety on his bond of $200. Cesarina was arrested two weeks ago. For several weeks the officials of the silk company were missing many fillers, and when they started an investigation suspicion pointed to Cesarina as the thief. Complaint was made to the police and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to the silk mill and when Cesarina was about to go to his home he was intercepted. A search of his lunch box disclosed many of the fillers, a form of silk. He was arrested. It is understood that the silk was being sold to a Norwich purchaser. On the witness stand today Cesarina denied all knowledge of the theft, disclaiming stealing and stating that the fillers were not placed in the lunch box by him, and intimating that they were placed there by another worker, whether by mistake or intent was not stated.

Rolfe entered the auto and when he experienced difficulty in starting the engine, Officer Wells went to the car and questioned Rolfe who was arrested. COUNCIL MEMBERS HOT OVER THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 17.—The city council held a three-hour meeting this evening at which antagonism to the School of Commerce, manifested some weeks ago, developed intensely. A communication was received from the board of school visitors stating that the board had appointed a committee to meet with a committee of the council to consider educational matters.

The matter was tabled temporarily but very soon afterwards was taken up. The council adjourned in an executive session to consider it and when it reported, declared that the School of Commerce was too expensive for the city to continue. Councilors Fox, Miner and May were the chief disputants. The committee requested the board of education to make no more contracts for the School of Commerce that would require appropriations in the city budget during 1930-1931. That report was adopted by the council. Councilor May claimed that this action was an insult to the school board. He talked of personal antagonism and alluded to politics.

Both Councilors Fox and Miner resented this. They asked that the School of Commerce be consolidated with the other high schools and thus effect a large saving for the city. Fox declared that the action of the council in previous meetings in objecting to the School of Commerce was applauded by competent judges. It is the duty of the council to recommend economy in the conduct of the schools. He said the city was paying a superintendent for the School of Commerce $2,750 for a position requiring one-half day's work. There are 104 pupils, while the superintendent for all the schools receives but $500 more.

The School of Commerce could be abolished and the pupils accommodated in other high schools. The city could avoid the construction of other school buildings by occupying that now occupied by the School of Commerce.

Councilor Miner declared that the cost of maintaining the School of Commerce was out of all proportion to that of maintaining all the other schools. He pointed out that the provision of better schools in other towns had not decreased the number of pupils coming to New London high schools but had increased them. The School of Commerce had no increase. The council voted to appoint a committee to meet the committee from the board of education and the trustees of the high school, to seek to economize.

An addition is to be made to the supply of water of the city to accommodate the proposed Coast Guard academy. Some $30,000 will be involved in the expenditure. A report from City Engineer Waters recommended that the work be done by the city's employes, but the council voted to ask for bids from private contractors. It was questioned whether the city could do the work cheaper than private contractors could do it. J. Benvenuti & Son asked to bid for the contract.

City Engineer Waters claimed that the work could be done cheaper by the city. Councilor Fox represented that two or three years ago the question came up as to whether a contractor or the city could do the work cheaper. That information now, he said, would be a very great benefit to the council. He said the city at times had too many men; that no work could be found for them.

This view was adopted by the council and the city manager was authorized to ask for bids.

The council voted to request the public utilities commission to give a hearing on the application of the New Haven railroad for a spur track in Nameaug street.

Some time ago the council authorized the city manager to procure medals for heroic work by the firemen, policemen or other employes. Policeman Edward Riordan will receive the first of these medals and it will be presented to him at the adjourned meeting next Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock. Officer Riordan was shot by a crook whom he had apprehended on Broad street after the latter had robbed a lunch wagon.

Ward T. Alling was appointed a member of the zoning board of appeals, to fill a vacancy. His term is five years.

The Mohican hotel management petitioned for permission to erect a building in the rear of the hotel to be used by watchmen. Referred to city manager and building inspector. A petition to make Green street between Golden and Pearl a two-way highway was referred to the city manager.

There were nine applications for building permits and all were granted.

C. D. Carrol was awarded a contract to furnish gasoline to the city to the extent of $3,100.

The Pequot Laundry company was awarded the contract to furnish laundry to the fire department for $275 and the City Laundry to Hillside home for $250.

WESTERLY

GRASS AND BRUSH FIRE AT THE JOSEPH MURRAY PLACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 17.—The most threatening grass and brush fire with which Westerly firemen have had to battle so far this season was that for which a telephone call was received at 1:30 p. m. Monday from the home of Joseph Murray, on the Old South road near the junction of the Noose Neck Hill state highway. Before the flames were finally extinguished the old frame farmhouse, formerly on the O. B. Norman farm, owned and occupied by Mrs. Andrew Holmes had caught fire in several places and was saved with difficulty.

In response to alarm No. 33, the Seagraves motor pumper, Fire Chief George E. Egger in charge, speeded to the place, which is outside the Westerly fire district. It was found that John Burdick headed a force of fire-fighters who had kept down the flames with buckets of water, although the advancing wall of fire in the dead grass had licked up the wooden side walls in a number of places and burned under the wooden fence in front of the farmhouse. While the attention of the fire-fighters was given to the front of the house and a side ell, a corner of which had to be torn off to get at the blaze eating its way inside, danger from roof sparks was lessened by the non-combustible shingle roof. On the kitchen ell the fire actually got inside the house before it was noticed and the corner cut away permitted a line of hose from the booster tank on the pumper driven to the rear of the farmhouse to play upon the blaze. The line was then carried around to the front of the house and the fire there was put out.

Chief George E. Egger investigated the cause of the fire when he learned that someone had started to burn grass without a permit and he threatened to have the matter turned over to state police officers for investigation. During the fire-fighting about the farmhouse volunteers prevented the flames from jumping either the Old South road and the Noose Neck Hill road. It appeared that the fire must have started from a match or cigarette carelessly dropped by some motorist one the Noose Neck Hill road. The path of the blaze could be followed as it passed over the hill top to threaten the old farmhouse.

HOPKINTON FARMER ENDS WHOOPEE TIME IN A CELL

A Hopkinton farmer and woodchopper who came to town Monday, as he claimed, to collect for last year's vegetables delivered in the Pierce street section, fell into the clutches of the police. His most successful (or unfortunate) collection was a pint bottle of moonshine gin, found upon him by Patrolman Robert M. Kessel, who had observed his entering and departure from a house in the section where sounds of a drunken brawl engaged in between up and down stairs occupants of the tenements wafted out on the street. The suspicions of Officer Kessel were confirmed when an inebriated individual came out upon the porch and the officer heard the words, "O, why did I kiss that girl?" As the farmer-woodchopper came upon the street in a joyful frame of mind he was questioned by the officer and taken to Westerly police station.

When the half pint was found Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown ordered him locked in a cell on the charge of possession of intoxicating liquors, to await the action of Third District court. The woodchopper declared, in reply to questioning as to where he was carrying liquor, that any charge but that of bootlegger could be made against him and that he would take his punishment.

A total of 342 persons filed their income reports this year in Westerly through Internal Revenue Officer Russell Dower, who for several days, was located in the Third District court rooms on Union street. Mr. Dower reports that there were 40 more returns filed in his office this year than in 1928. All of these returns go to the head office in Providence.

In addition to the 342 persons who filed income tax returns with Officer Dower there were scores of other persons who werce assisted by him in giving information as to how to make returns. Many forwarded their returns after receiving this information to Providence and others from the Connecticut side of the river, who were also aided by Mr. Dower, filed their returns in Hartford. No record of these cases is kept by the revenue officer working in Rhode Island.

WANT WESTERLY FAVORED, WITH FULLY 1,400 OUT OF WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 17—Representatives of the Westerly Central Labor Union bodies attended a meeting of the building committee on the new Westerly Junior high school, Monday evening, in the office of Supt. of Schools Willard H. Baker, to call the attention of the school and building committees to the overlooking of a vote passed at the annual financial town meeting of Jan. 1923, to favor Westerly contractors and Westerly labor in future building operations in the town. President Cornelius Illey of Westerly Central Labor union, stated that there are 1400 laborers out of work in Westerly. Solicitor Ferguson has informed the building committee, it is said, that the financial town meeting vote passed is illegal.

At the close of Monday evening's meeting Committeeman Clifford W. Campbell stated that the general contract would not be let, in all probability, until day after next. There have been rumors in Westerly that this contract would be let to the Rowley Construction Co. of Pawtucket, R. I., third lowest bidder and the builders of the South County Public Service building, High street. This construction company, the Westerly labor leaders declare, has been very fair in their employment of Westerly labor in their Westerly construction work.

PIERCE FILLING STATION DECISION DEFERRED A MONTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 17—Members of Westerly town council met Monday evening for a zoning hearing on the petition of Paul W. Pierce to have a residential district at the junction of the Boston Post road and the Woody Hill road near Dunn's Corners changed so that he might be permitted to erect a gas filling station. He stated that he owned all the adjoining land on both sides of both highways.

A previous application had been filed with the Westerly zoning board and was returned to the town council, with the recommendation that the council members vote to refuse to change the character of the section, since authority is granted to the council only under Westerly zoning laws, to make such changes.

President Burdick stated that the council, all members being present, with the exception of Councilman Broughton, were met to consider the petition of Mr. Pierce. Town Solicitor Ferguson, legal advisor for Westerly zoning board, asked that the proponents of the petition be heard first and then the objectors. Mr. Pierce outlined his request for a business section of an area on one side of the highways.

Charles Henry Crandall, a resident of the Pond road, District No. 3, stated that he was not in favor of granting the petition or of laying it on the table, and on the whole it might prove a personal benefit to him as he might get shy of gas at that point.

Archibald M. Sanders, owner of property to the eastward, had no objection and stated that Mr. Pierce's dad had a sawmill there once and thought a good-looking business block would be preferable to an unsightly lot of shacks.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson read to the council the formal vote passed at the zoning board meeting against the petition for a business area on the north side of the Post road and the east side of the Woody Hill road. He added that the petition was absolutely in opposition to all rules of zoning, also that there could not be a business section on one side of a street and a residential section on the other.

All the land at the point was owned by Mr. Pierce and other property owners had not the necessary land within the area, under the zoning law with which to base their objections. He said the council's duty was to determine the public weal. The present business districts on the Post road had been established by experts and until a public demand was shown the council should not change the area.

"This is a very wrong position for you to take, Mr. Ferguson," said Council President Burdick.

"If the time comes when this council body can dictate to me than I would violate my oath of office," replied Solicitor Ferguson.

"You are supposed to sit there and give us the law," rejoined Mr. Burdick, "not make speeches against petitions which come before the council." "I'm going to be fair," said President Burdick. "I asked the zoning board to appoint a member to come before us and state this case and not send a letter. It's not the duty of the town solicitor to take sides."

"Mr. Ferguson represents all departments of the town," said Council Clerk Whipple.

Solicitor Ferguson said that he felt sympathetic for Mr. Pierce, but only a gas station could exist on the site and no retail store could live there. He closed by declaring, "If the town council changes the area it might just as well repeal the entire zoning law."

The business areas on the Boston Post road were reviewed by Mr. Ferguson to show that there were nine areas between East avenue and the Charlestown town line. "You are not going to pick out one man and not grant his petition just because he isn't good looking?" interrupted Charles Henry Crandall.

"It don't look so clear to me now as when I asked you about the petition and you told me to ask for as small an area as possible; now you say an area on both sides of the road should have been sought," declared Mr. Pierce. Mr. Ferguson said he did not recall the conversation.

Bertram Earl, adjoining property owner, stated that he had no objections to the granting of this petition. When Sheffield Green said that the business area at Dunn's Corners was sufficiently large, Mr. Pierce said that much filling would be required to make Mr. Green's property adjoining available for residential building sites because of the swampy nature of the land.

Arguments followed relative to bill board advertising signs when it was claimed one was willing to pay $15 a year to avoid a sign location, since zoning would not pay a cent.

The hearing closed and consideration will be given the matter President Burdick said. When the many in attendance had left the chamber the council decided to continue the matter for action until the April council meeting Monday, April 7.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Gilbert & Bennett Manufacturing Co., Georgetown.

Benjamin Gilbert started this business in 1818, manufacturing Horse Hair Sieves; later Sturges Bennett, William J. Gilbert and Edwin Gilbert became associated with him and the partnership of Gilbert, Bennett & Co. was formed.

Finding that horse hair was not satisfactory, they wove the first fine wire cloth on a carpet loom and used this for making sieves.

Later they utilized surplus stock of the wire cloth to make window screens, thus originating another use for wire cloth.

Improving on the painted wire cloth, they perfected the secret process for making The Gilbert & Bennett pearl wire cloth of today.

The firm also made glue which had to be spread out on cotton netting to dry. This method being unsatisfactory, they twisted wire netting by hand and dried the glue on the wire netting. From that time wire netting has been universally used for this purpose.

The glue business was disposed of in 1887 owing to increase of wire production.

In 1865 they installed the first power machinery ever used in the United States for making wire poultry netting and for many years this firm manufactured all the poultry netting made in this country.

In 1874 the firm was the pioneer maker of galvanized wire cloth.

In 1887 a branch plant was opened in Chicago, later moving to Wireton, Illinois.

Selling offices are maintained in New York city, Chicago and San Francisco, and a warehouse at Kansas City, Mo., thus providing a country wide distribution of the company's products, consisting of: galvanized poultry netting, galvanized wire cloth, Gilbert & Bennett pearl wire cloth, copper wire cloth and bronze wire cloth.

CLAIM DEAD YOUTH WAS DRIVER IN CRASH AT NEWENT ROAD UNDERPASS

Leo Labby of Taftville, driver of one of the machines that figured in the fatal accident at the narrow underpass on the Newent road in the town of Lisbon, Feb. 14, was ordered held on a technical charge of manslaughter by Coroner Edward G. McKay pending the completion of testimony, at a hearing conducted at his office Monday. Labby, who was later released under bonds of $1,500, which were furnished, will be presented before Judge Walter Drew in the Lisbon town court.

It developed at the hearing, at which seven witnesses were heard including Labby, that the claim was made that Raymond Bernard, 16, of North Grosvenordale, who was killed, was driving the Over-the-Top bread truck at the time of the accident. Navo Faucher and Alfred Durand, both of North Grosvenordale, riding in the truck, testified that the former had driven the truck as far as Jewett City, where Bernard took the wheel. It was stated by Durand on the night of the accident that the dead man was riding on the extreme right hand side of the front seat of the bakery truck and that Faucher was the driver. The claim that Bernard was the driver was a surprise as this is the first time such a claim was advanced.

Labby, who was driving a Cadillac car owned by John Paradis of Taftville, was discharged from the W. W. Backus hospital Wednesday, having been detained there since the night of the accident. He received a severe scalp wound. Six other passengers in the machines were also injured.

The two machines came together a short distance just north of the underpass. The Paradis machine was travelling in a northerly direction, while the Over-the-Top bread truck was proceeding in the opposite direction.

DISCUSSES WHAT FUTURE HISTORIANS WILL NOTE

The present day happenings that are most likely to receive mention by the historians in the year 2,000 were discussed in an able address on current events by Mrs. Marion Gaylord Atwell of New York city at the Wauregan hotel Monday evening under the auspices of the current events committee of the Woman's City club.

Mrs. Atwell headed her list of subjects with the scientific achievements. Under this head she made mention of the discovery of the Planet X, one of the most thrilling and greatest achievements in science, she said. For the past 25 years scientists have seached for this unknown planet, have described and now have found it.

Historians will speak of the marvelous movements of equality of women in political and economic realms, and in this connection she referred to activity of the women at The Hague conference, where the nationality of women, territorial waters and other matters of practical economic interest are being discussed.

The widespread movement in democracy since the World war, Mrs. Atwell felt, would be mentioned, and under this head she cited several examples including the desire of the Haitians, Filipinos and Indians for self-government. She classed the situation between India and Egypt as tremendous and delved into this topic at great length, not failing to allude to Gandhi and his extremists.

Mrs. Atwell attributed this craving for independence as directly responsible to the United States, as the countries were only following in their footsteps. She said that we are the very heart of a great economic empire, which does not only include the states themselves, but also the whole world, with the capital not at Washington, but at New York city.

"No one is satisfied with the goings on at the Naval conference," the speaker said," because of the conflicting aims of the various nations, which have served to make an agreement almost impossible." On this topic Mrs. Atwell waxed warm and in few, but forceful terms, aired her disappointment on the conduct of the delegates and the results so far. "Boldness at London is the thing that is needed at the conference. There is a dark cloud over London," she said, "the reason for which is because they are following the lower ideals and not the higher ideals."

DEPLORES CHILD NEGLECT BY MODERN PARENTS

One of the worst features of modern life is that thing which makes parents neglect their children, said Rev. Charles H. Stull, Ph. D., Monday evening in the second of his series of sermons in the "new life" services at the Central Baptist church. It was father and son night in the series of services which was held at Bushnell chapel. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, was the leader of the devotional period.

The meetings are held in two sections, the first section being from 7:45 o'clock until 8:45 o'clock for the general public, and the second section from 8:45 o'clock until 9 o'clock for a service for instruction in the work of friendly visitation, which is to be carried on by the church during the next two or three months.

Rev. Dr. Stull is recognized as one of the outstanding evangelists and has had a wide experience with church groups in the teaching and training field of Christian endeavor. Men and boys predominated at Monday' night's meeting. This (Tuesday) evening is to be mother and daughter night.

At the service Monday night, Rev. Dr. Stull spoke on the topic "Bringing the Lad Along." The evangelist pointed out the fact that the Protestant churches are more and more recognizing the importance of adequate training of youth. He claimed that the problem of youth is always the supreme problem in every generation.

One of the great present day tragedies in religion is the lack of moral and religious training. The preacher said that the church today is charged with bringing the lad along as her most sacred trust, a trust which is infinitely higher and nobler than any other in human life. A man may reach success in industry, education, society, he said, but, if he fails at home with his own son, he sustains a loss which has no compensation in material things.

The preacher said that any pastor who could discover and develop just one boy, or any teacher who could hand over to the world one noble lad, could never be considered a failure. The church must bring the lad along also as her highest opportunity. One of the worst features of modern life, he declared, is the pulling, pushing, crowding of parents to such an extent that child life is neglected.

Fathers might well become big brothers to their sons, for a man's own boy will never have more confidence in others than in his own father, if rightly trained at home. If you do not bring the boy along as your trust or opportunity, you will bring him along as a peril and a menace to society. Nobody can put the gray in a man's hair quicker than his own son.

There are four things the lad has a right to have: Adequate education in moral, religious and social life; a good home and family safeguards; a place to play and reasonable security against standing idle all day after his school days are over. We should study more tactfulness towards our boys.

Parents, what are you doing for the religious development of your boy? You are his father. You spend most of your time at lodges, clubs and societies. The boy is wondering why dad isn't home. Men, you are losing out on that. What are you doing for the boy? Get out with him and play.

Boys, what are you doing for your father? One of these days father will not sit opposite you at the breakfast table. One of these days your dad is not coming home. You will be older then. Boys and girls, obey today. What you are going to do, do it now.

Miss Mildred Cass presided at the piano for the service. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The subject for the service this (Tuesday) evening will be Christian Womanhood.

SPEAKER SAYS WAR IS AGAINST HUMAN NATURE

Preceded by a supper at 6:30 at which an excellent menu was served under the direction of William A. Lund for the 30 attending, the Men's club of Park Congregational church held its March meeting Monday evening in the Osgood Memorial parish house.

At a brief business meeting which was called to order by President Lyle H. Fillmore after the supper, report was made that the proceeds of the minstrel show recently conducted by the club amounted to $106.58. Several spoke in advocating the proposal that the club back the Boy Scout troop of the church, Troop 12, and this was voted. It was mentioned that one of the first activities in this line might be to make the next meeting of the club a father and son meeting.

Ignatius McNulty, of Boston, a special agent of the American Woolen company, was introduced by President Fillmore as speaker of the evening with "War and Human Nature" as his subject.

Speaking of the claim that war never can be stopped till human nature has been changed, Mr. McNulty went on in an interesting way to demonstrate that war is inhuman and that throughout the whole of history human nature has resisted war. He declared that war has always been a privilege of the aristocracy and does not belong to a democracy. It was the aristocracies of Greece and Rome that waged war and it was the same in the countries of Europe. It is military autocracies that have the upper hand now in Italy, Spain and France. If human nature is so prone to war, why do governments go to such lengths to get men to join their armies? he queried. Why do they need fancy uniforms, and decorations and medals and national slogans to call men into the ranks? Thank God this country keeps its soldiers in drab clothes that do not lure for their attractiveness. In short, human nature as found among the rank and file of humanity, has to be lured into war, which has always been in the hands of the aristocracy.

BISHOP WALLS SPOKE BEFORE CHURCH MEETING

Bishop William J. Walls, presiding bishop of the New England conference of A. M. E. Zion church, addressed a large and appreciative congregation Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at a meeting held at McKinley avenue A. M. E. Zion church, with pastors and members of Mt. Calvary Baptist and Grace Memorial Baptist churches present.

The bishop was at his best, and delivered a masterful sermon from the 10th verse of the third chapter of 1st. Corinthians: "According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon."

Much of the material which Bishop Walls used in his sermon was the results of his travels abroad, especially in Great Britain, and in his own country—America. It was while visiting in England that he visited most of the magnificent buildings in London, whose greatness of architecture made a lasting impression upon him—especially the great substantial foundations upon which they were built. He also spoke of the great foundations upon which the lofty skyscrapers of New York and Chicago were built, stating that in Chicago the builders had to dig a great deal deeper below the surface to find a solid base for the foundation than in New York. From the material foundations which supported the great buildings which rested upon them, the bishop made a very fine spiritual application; stating that if it were so important to have immovable and substantial foundations for material buildings, it was still more important to have a sure and eternal foundation, upon which to build our Christian hope and character. This, stated the bishop, is the foundation upon which the early church was built, and upon which the church today stands, and upon which it shall forever stand.

The pastor, Rev. Edward W. Gantt, was assisted in this service by, Rev. S. F. Dickson, D. D., pastor of Grace Memorial Baptist church, Rev. Henry B. Harris, pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church, and Rev. H. R. Jackson, D. D., presiding elder of the New England conference, who presented the bishop. The choir furnished splendid music. Mr. Thornton, the organist of the Jewett City Methodist Episcopal church, sang a fine solo.

NOTED CRITIC PRAISES DR. J. H. PENNIMAN'S BOOK

Concerning a very clever and amusing little book by a former Norwich Free Academy student, the famous critic, Prof. William Lyon Phelps writes: "The Alley Rabbit deserves to become a cat classic. It is the story of a feline personality, told with a delicacy and grace worthy of the subject; and cats have these two qualities to a high degree. Doctor James Hosmer Penniman has studied cathood patiently, sympathetically, scientifically; and while it is the character and habits of Raoul that he is mainly concerned with, the book is a valuable contribution to cattist literature. All persons who sincerely love cats, from Montaigne to Thomas Hardy, know that he lends the last touch of perfection to domestic life. What is home without a cat? Those who suppose that cats have no affection for men and women are usually deficient in affection for the cat.

There can be no deep and true understanding of a living personality without sympathy and love. Though I bestow all my goods to feed the cat, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing. One must give something more than milk and fish; one must have intellectual respect for the cat, the charity that comes from mental sympathy, from an appreciation of the nerves and moods of the most mysterious of all domestic animals.

It is clear that Doctor Penniman enjoyed the society of Raoul; their friendship was founded neither on toleration nor on condescension, but on that mutual understanding that preserves dignity while annihilating formality. Raoul is worth knowing for his own sake, also because we obtain glimpses into the feline soul."

MOULTHROPE-LALONE CASE WILL GO TO THE JURY TODAY

Chief Defense Counsel, In Closing Summation, Made a Four Hour and Fifty Minute Plea For the Lives of the Two Escaped Connecticut Convicts — Charge Will Be Delivered When Court Opens This Morning.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—A four hour and 50 minute plea for the lives of Watson Moulthrope and Roland Lalone, in the closing summation by Ion L. Farris, chief of defense counsel, took up all of today's session in circuit court and postponed until tomorrow beginning of the jury's deliberations.

The two escaped convicts from Connecticut are on trial for the murder of Detective W. D. Smith, shot to death in a gun battle after he and Detective Willie Jones stopped the men last January to question them.

The case had been expected to go to the jury today but Judge Daniel A. Simmons announced he wanted the jury to rest from the closing arguments before receiving his charge, which will be delivered when court opens tomorrow.

Farris told the jury his clients fired in self-defense, not knowing the men who stopped them were officers.

He bitterly arraigned the testimony of Leo Landry, third member of the bandit trio, who turned state's evidence, and will be tried later. Landry had testified Moulthrope was the actual slayer. He said he was unarmed, and hid under a house when the shooting started.

Farris referred to him usually as "Poor old Landry" who "sought to convict his former pals who stole for him, fed and clothed him after allowing him to escape with them from jail."

PROGRESS OF BRIBERY TRIAL OF E. L. DOHENY

WASHINGTON, March 18.—(AP)—Through two hours of sharp cross examination, Edward L. Doheny maintained today that the $100,000 he advanced to Albert B. Fall in 1921, was a loan and not a bribe to the cabinet officer to induce him to award Doheny's company a lease to the Elks Hills naval oil reserve.

The oil man opened the way, however, for the government to get before the jury the statement that civil courts had returned the leases to the government on the ground of fraud and that he himself had refused to testify in those suits on the ground that to do so might incriminate him. This was the first time the government has succeeded in getting this evidence introduced in any criminal trial growing out of the notorious oil leases.

Doheny wept when he testified concerning his son who was killed by his secretary a year ago. He showed spirit, however, during the cross examination.

He evaded the question of his refusal to testify in the civil trial which resulted in the Elks Hills lease being returned to the government until Justice William Hitz instructed him to answer.

Finally, Owen J. Roberts, special government prosecutor, read to the jury a statement that Doheny had read to the court in the civil trial, which wound up with the assertion that he declined to testify on the grounds that anything he might say might tend to incriminate him in the subsequent criminal trial.

KIDNAPER SUSPECT ELUDED THE POLICE

EVERETT, Mass., March 18.—(AP)—Police of Boston, Somerville and Everett were unsuccessful tonight in their efforts to apprehend three men who were believed to have kidnaped a young woman in a sedan automobile in South Everett tonight.

Alfred Gorshell of Malden reported to police headquarters that he saw three men drive up to a woman on Broadway. Two of the men forced her into the automobile, Gorshell said, one of them holding his hand over her mouth.

Gorshell took the registration of the machine, which police said was in the name of an Everett man. The latter denied using the car but furnished a Somerville address where he said the automobile was kept. Police went to that city and saw the car in question go away from the house. They gave chase but were outdistanced.

DRY LAW DENOUNCED BY BISHOP GAILOR

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 18.—(AP)—The Journal tomorrow will quote the Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Tennessee, as saying "nation-wide indignation and resentment has been provoked by the passage and attempted enforcement of the 18th amendment."

"This indignation and resentment have been aroused not only in those who wish to drink whiskey, but in innumerable intelligent, high minded persons who believe the constitution should never have been loaded with such an amendment.

"It is not probable that the eighteenth amendment will be either modified or repealed. Bootleggers are making too much money under 'prohibition' to permit any interference."

Bishop Gailor is conducting Lenten services here.

FIRM PROHIBITED FROM FURTHER STOCK DEALINGS

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—The offices of the Stock Industrial Plan, Inc., at 250 West 57th street, were closed by a temporary injunction today following a raid by deputy attorney generals of the state bureau of securities.

Al Heller, president of the firm, also was named in the injunction which prohibits the company from further stock dealings and closes its bank account.

David Wohl, deputy attorney general, charges that the firm sold listed securities on a partial payment plan but never delivered them. Heller, he said, prior to the raid appeared at the bureau of securities and testified that the company was insolvent and unable to make deliveries.

According to Wohl, Heller has disappeared.

Mrs. Woodwell lived here all her life and was the widow of David T. Woodwell, whom she married in 1842. She was the mother of eight children, four of whom are living. PILOT AND RADIO OPERATOR KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

KINGSTON, Ont., March 18—(AP)—A mail plane flying high over Long Lake, en route from Toronto to Montreal, crashed today, killing its pilot and its radio operator. The impact was so great that the ship broke through a 19 inch layer of ice and buried its nose in the water.

W. F. Good, a resident of the district, which is 30 miles north of here, heard the ship fall and found it 250 feet from shore with its engine submerged and its twisted framework lying on top of the ice. Henry Simoneau, of Montreal, the pilot, and P. Robinson, radio operator, also believed to have resided in Montreal, were dead, trapped in the cabin.

The bodies were mangled so badly that it was some time before identification was established.

The cause of the wreck was not determined. The plane took off from Toronto this morning. Bad weather forced it down near Napanee, but it resumed its trip shortly afterward.

CENSORSHIP RESTORED ON FOREIGN LITERATURE

WASHINGTON, March 18—(AP)—Provisions for censorship of imports of foreign literature were restored to the tariff bill tonight by the senate.

The action, on which no record vote was taken, ended two days of debate fraught with vigorous and picturesque attacks upon the principle and the application of censorship.

It came on adoption of a modified amendment sponsored by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, who was the center of a day-long debate amid cries of "intolerance" and calls for protection against influences termed "corrupting." This amendment restores that section of the tariff bill eliminated by an amendment by Senator Cutting, republican, New Mexico, but with modifications accepted by Smoot in course of the debate.

As it now stands, the section would provide for seizure of literature held to be "obscene, immoral or treasonable."

ANOTHER HEARING IN THE EDEL CASE DENIED

ALBANY, N. Y., March 18—(AP)—Gov. Roosevelt will not grant another hearing in the case of Fred W. Edel sentenced to death for murder and awaiting execution the week of March 31, because at a hearing in December, the entire case was reviewed and all papers were before the executive then. It was announced at the executive office here today.

Edel's attorney, Alexander Roorke, had asked a hearing Thursday afternoon.

Edel has been four times reprieved following sentence to death for the murder of Mrs. Guy B. Harrington, actress, of Binghamton, N. Y., in New York city.

BRAND NEW EXCUSE FOR NIGHTHAWK HUSBANDS

CHICAGO, March 18—There is a brand new excuse for the errant husband who checks in after 1 a. m. He may now explain to his protesting spouse that traffic is so much safer in the early morning hours.

Coroner Herman N. Bundesen provided the fresh alibi in an address before the annual mid-west safety conference today. Analyzing the accident reports for Cook county in 1929, he found the smallest number of fatal crashes occurred between 1 and 6 a. m.

"The so-called 'night club hours' showed only 101 fatalities for the five hour stretch." Dr. Bundesen said "The bad hour was between 5 and 6 p. m. with 117 deaths, and the next between 6 and 7 with 107 deaths."

COP'S WHISTLES AND MACHINE GUN FIRE DISTURB CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 18—(AP)—The health department is upset over the traffic policemen's whistles.

They are too harsh, too shrill, too raucous, Commissioner Arnold Kegel told the Chicago Medical society today. He suggested a musical tooting of some kind as a boon to the city's sound-wracked nerves.

The rattle of machine gun fire also is recognized as a nuisance to the nerves, but it has not, from the ear angle, become a health problem as yet.

DECREASE REPORTED IN REV. FREIGHT LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, March 18.—(AP)—Revenue freight loadings for the week ended March 8, were reported today by the American Railway association as 873,548 cars, 25,641 cars below the preceding week, and 73,991 cars under the week a year ago.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED IN COLLISION OF TRAINS

LONDON, March 18—(AP)—The Jewish Telegraphic agency reports that protests against alleged persecution of Judaism in soviet Russia were voiced in a resolution adopted by the Anglo-Jewish association and in the report of the joint foreign committee of the board of deputies and the Anglo-Jewish association.

MANILA, March 18.—(AP)—Rufo Casiong, one of the three Filipinos arrested Sunday during a riot in which five American sailors were injured, was fined twenty pesos (about $10,) today for breach of the peace. The two others were acquitted because the sailors could not positively state the defendants attacked them.

VATICAN CITY, March 18.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI will descend tomorrow morning into St. Peter's basilica and there, at the altar just above the crypt of the first apostle, will say a mass of "expiation, propitiation and reparation" for all offenses against religion committed by the rulers of soviet Russia. Similar masses will be said in most Catholic centers over the world.

TO PROBE PATRONAGE CONDITIONS IN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, March 18.—(AP)—Asserting that by action taken last year, he had stopped "reprehensible practices" in the distribution of patronage, President Hoover announced today he had asked the department of justice to consider the findings of the senate committee condemning conditions in the south.

Almost coincident with the chief executive's comment upon the report of the Brookhart committee on federal patronage, Senator Blease of South Carolina and Senator McKellar of Tennessee, both democrats, again attacked appointments in the south.

Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, replied that the president "does not approve but condemns any sale of patronage."

The president said all federal officials known to have engaged in reprehensible practices have either resigned or have been removed.

MAN GOT JOB AND $150 CASH FOR BRAVERY

FAIRFIELD, March 18.—(AP)—Richard Weston, who has been out of work for five months, got a job today. He will start to work tomorrow morning for the F. T. Ley company, of Springfield, Mass., contracting firm which is building the underground conduit line across Fairfield county for the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Weston got the job because of his bravery. While other bystanders hesitated to take the risk, he volunteered to climb down into a gas-filled manhole and, at the risk of his life, dragged to safety two workmen of the Ley company, Salvatore Palumbo and Allen Gerald, of Bridgeport, who had been overcome. As an immediate reward he received $150 and because he demonstrated his fitness and capacity for work, he received employment.

MOVEMENT FOR FARM RELIEF IN GERMANY

BERLIN, March 18.—(AP)—President Von Hindenburg again departed from his traditional reserve in matters political by seizing the occasion of signing the hotly contested German-Polish liquidation agreement to advance a proposal for farm relief.

Realizing that Germany's eastern provinces are fighting for their very lives and that they stand or fall by agricultural relief, he proposed in a message to Chancellor Mueller, accompanying his signature, that industry should turn over part of its revenue for farm relief—thereby establishing a certain equilibrium between industry and agriculture.

BANDITS HAVE MASSACRED 2,000 PERSONS IN FUAN, CHINA

SHANGHAI, March 18.—(AP)—Organized bandits have massacred 2,000 persons in Fuan, Kiangsi province, said reports here today, and other robbers are said to be planning to renew attacks upon American and other foreign shipping in the middle section of the Yangtse river.

The massacre in Kiangsi province was reported in Chinese press dispatches to have taken place early this month. The magistrate at Kiangfu appealed to the nationalist government officials at Nanking to send troops against the gangs of bandits who were overrunning Kiangsi, robbing and slaying thousands.

Their engagement was announced some time ago.

Mrs. Zuckerman is a daughter of Norman Taylor and a native of Grand Rapids, Mich.

SPANIARDS PAY HOMAGE TO FORMER DICTATOR

MADRID, March 18.—(AP)—From the town of Irun on the Franco-Spanish frontier to the capital of Spain crowds gathered today at railroad stations along the route taken by the funeral train bearing the body of General Miguel Primo De Rivera back for a state funeral in the city he ruled as a dictator for more than six years.

OSSINING, N. Y., March 18.—(AP)—There are 200 applications on file at Sing Sing prison from men who would like the job of state executioner, at $150 per execution.

Many of these were filed after false reports circulated that the present executioner, Robert Elliott, was to resign.

Senate Com. Hearing On Unemployment

Senator Wagner Described Conditions Throughout the Country As Most Serious—Conditions In Chicago Are Acute.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—[illegible] Unemployment conditions were [illegible] tured to the senate commerce [illegible] tee today as it began hearing[illegible] legislation.

Senator Wagner, de[illegible] New York, author of the em[illegible] measures, opened the hear[illegible] describing conditions in [illegible] York and throughout the cou[illegible] st serious "in spite of what [illegible] hear to the contrary."

Dr. B. M. Squires, [illegible] rector of Illinois state unemployment agencies, and a professor at the University of Chicago, asserted conditions in Chicago during the last two months had been the "most acute in ten years."

Organizers of an "unemployment conference" here, led by J. Eads Howe, so-called millionaire hobo, and a committee of nine, appeared at the committee room at the start of the hearing to demand an opportunity to testify. The senate committee decided to keep to its regular program of witnesses and suggested that the men present their story in writing.

Chairman Johnson of the senate commerce committee later said its chief interest was to determine whether the Wagner bills could afford a measure of relief.

The bills of Senator Wagner would establish a federal employment stabilization board with a $150,000,000 fund to expand public construction in periods of depression and would set up federal employment agencies in cooperation with the states.

There was much discussion before the committee today in regard to the business conferences sponsored by President Hoover last fall after the stock market crash. Squires said the administration's program resulting from those conferences had the "weakness" of being "in the nature of a longer time program than industries could put into effect immediately."

"Much distress and unemployment in the past months would have been avoided," he said, "if there had been available immediately a fund for construction."

On Friday, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and some New York state authorities, will be heard.

Questioned by newspapermen today, Secretary Davis said the recent prediction of President Hoover that the effects of the stock market crash on employment would be dissipated within 30 or 60 days would be borne out.

In the statement referred to by the labor secretary, the president noted also that employers had kept their promises to maintain wage scales as before the crash, and said business in general was stimulated.

PASTOR INDICTED FOR USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—The Rev. Fenwick L. Holmes, pastor of the First Church of Divine Science, was indicted for mail fraud today by a federal grand jury in connection with the promotion of alleged worthless mining stock. The Rev. Mr. Holmes, who was alleged to have sold his stock among the members of his New Thought Congregation, which meets at the Biltmore hotel, has been under investigation by both state and federal authorities since last April.

Lowell Wadmond, assistant U. S. attorney, said that the stock had to do with mining properties in part of California where the gold rush of 1849 centered.

Five other men, including William H. Holmes, a brother of the clergyman and William C. Carr, a broker, were named in the indictment.

A supreme court order issued last May prohibited the Rev. Mr. Holmes from engaging further in the sale of the stock. The securities were alleged to have been obtained from the firm of Fremont Grant, Inc.

Mr. Wadmond said the defendants were believed to have obtained between $100,000 and $150,000 through the alleged fraud.

ACCUSED OF POISONING HIS 37-YEAR-OLD WIFE

DENVER, Colo., March 18.—(AP)—Stripped of his army uniform, Major Charles A. Shepard, 59, of Fitzsimons General hospital, Denver, was held incommunicado today in the county jail while government authorities continued their widespread investigation to link him with the alleged murder last June of his 37-year-old wife at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Major Shepard, formerly head of a California sanitarium and a World war veteran, who served in France, is accused of killing his wife by administering poison. Miss Grace Braddon, stenographer at Brooks field, San Antonio, Texas, was said by local authorities to have divulged that Major Shepard proposed marriage to her prior to the death of the army officer's wife. She was questioned today in Texas at approximately the same time Major Shepard was quizzed here.

Major Shepard emphatically denied poisoning his wife. He was held in jail after he failed to raise $25,000 bond set at the request of U. S. District Attorney R. R. Brewster of Topeka, Kansas.

CANADIAN GOVT.'S REQUEST FOR EXTRADITION DENIED

GALVESTON, Tex., March 18.—(AP)—The Canadian government's request for extradition of Fred Mertz, United States narcotic agent charged with killing Amade Billadeau, Canadian citizen on the Canadian border near Canaan Village, Vt., in May, 1925, was denied late today by U. S. Commissioner Brantley Harris.

The commissioner ruled that evidence was not sufficient to hold Mertz. There is no appeal from the commissioner's ruling, Charles G. Stubbs, attorney representing the Canadian government, stated.

Canadian authorities presented evidence at the hearing before the commissioner designed to show that Billadeau was shot and killed a short distance from the border on the Canadian side. Mertz, now assigned to this district, was on duty in northern New England in 1925 to prevent smuggling of narcotics from Canada.

New York City To Have World's Largest Bank

Result of Merger of Chase National and Equitable Trust and Interstate Trust—Resources About $2,800,000,000.

NEW YORK, March 18—Creation of the world's largest bank with resources approximating $2,800,000,000, to be known as the Chase National bank of the City of New York, was announced today.

The institution is to be formed, subject to routine approval of stockholders, through the merger of the Chase National bank, now the third largest bank in the country, with the Equitable Trust company, which in turn is absorbing the Interstate Trust company.

Directors of the Chase and trustees of the Equitable approved the consolidation at meetings this afternoon and stockholders will vote on ratification at special sessions April 24.

Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National, will be the senior executive officer of the new bank which gives the United States the largest financial institution in the world for the first time in history. Mr. Wiggin will be chairman of a newly created governing board, with Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of Equitable and a brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as the president of the bank.

The new Chase National will be capitalized at $148,000,000, with an equal amount in surplus, and a reserve of $72,000,000. Its capital assets will be increased to a total of $493,000,000 through associated securities companies. Combined deposits will total $2,078,644,646, and resources $2,514,535,635.

This will make the new bank larger than the National City Bank of New York, which has been the nation's greatest for 33 years, and the Midland Bank of London, for many years regarded as the largest in the world. The Chase has been the sixth largest in the world and the third largest in the United States, and the Equitable was ranked 12th in the world. The combined bank will have 52 offices in greater New York and seven foreign offices.

Under the proposed plan of consolidation, the capital stock of Chase will be increased from $105,000,000 to $148,000,000. The 5,250,000 shares outstanding will continue in the hands of the present shareholders. An additional 2,000,000 shares are to be allotted pro rata to the shareholders of the Equitable on the basis of four shares of Chase for five of Equitable. A total of 115,010 shares are to be allotted pro rata to shareholders of Interstate on the basis of 32-100ths of a share of Chase for each share of Interstate.

In addition to those of Mr. Wiggin and Mr. Winthrop, other important executive positions will be held by John McHugh, Charles S. McCain, and Robert L. Clarkson. Mr. McCain, president of Chase will succeed Mr. Wiggin as chairman of the board of directors. Mr. McHugh, chairman of the Chase executive committee and Mr. Clarksson, vice chairman of the Chase board will continue in their respective capacities.

TWO NEW ENGLAND MEN DIRECTORS CHASE BANK

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Two sons of New England and a native of Arkansas will join in directing the affairs of the Chase National bank which becomes the world's largest through a triple merger effected today.

Albert H. Wiggin, who as chairman of the governing board will be the senior executive officer of the consolidated bank, is a native of Medfield, Mass. Winthrop W. Aldrich, the president, is a native of Providence, R. I.

Pine Bluff, Ark., was the birthplace of Charles S. McCain, the new chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Aldrich is but 45 years old. He is the son of the late Nelson W. Aldrich, the famous United States senator from Rhode Island who for years was chairman of the national monetary commission. A graduate of Harvard, the law was his chosen profession and he only turned to an active banking career Dec. 17, 1929 when he was made president of the Equitable on the sudden death of Chellis A. Austin.

SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS RECOUP NOVEMBER LOSSES

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Savings deposits, which showed a $48,424,000 decrease in the 60 days during the following the stock market break last November, have made tremendous gains during the past two months, a survey of New York banks today revealed.

The deposits of 30 representative savings banks in the New York Federal Reserve district totaled $2,553,721,000 on February 10, compared with $2,531,037,000 a year ago.

On October 10, or just before the market crash, the deposits of the same 30 institutions totaled $2,594,265,000. They decreased $42,159,000 during the next 30 days and dropped $6,265,000 more during the following month.

Deposits have recouped the November losses to such an extent, bankers say, that they have reentered the mortgage market. The gains, bankers announced are phenomenally larger than seasonal.

FRANCE AND ITALY REMAIN IN NAVAL PARITY DEADLOCK

Neither Side Shows Any Indication of Yielding—If the Present Situation Lasts Through Sunday a Limited Five Power Treaty May Result, With Complete Agreement Among the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

LONDON, March 18.—(AP)—As the endurance deadlock between France and Italy over naval parity wore on today, the opinion grew in naval conference circles that neither side is prepared to yield.

If the present situation lasts through Sunday, when Premier Tardieu of France will return for another conference with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, authoritative quarters see the end of negotiations within two weeks.

A limited five-power treaty may be the result in that case, and within its scope will be complete agreement among the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

That this treaty would be what Mr. MacDonald has called a "good" agreement, fulfilling the expectations of those who have fully realized the difficulties of the five-power negotiations since their inception two months ago, is the belief of the responsible sources from which this information is derived.

The limited five-power treaty would include a five-year battleship holiday for all powers represented here, the humanization of submarine warfare, and agreement on important and far-reaching technical problems. The three-power concord would cover all classes of American, British and Japanese warships.

The Franco-Italian problem would be referred to the preparatory disarmament commission of the league of nations, and as the next meeting of that body will be held early in the summer, efforts towards its solution would continue almost without interruption upon adjournment of the London conference.

The French delegation tonight considered the situation too delicate to discuss in the press. At the same time, Paris reports state that the French position remains as it was, with France unable to accept even apparent parity with Italy.

Thus the situation remains in a stalemate, with as much secrecy surrounding it as has covered all conference proceedings the last few days. Beyond the fact that Premier Tardieu's Sunday talks with Mr. MacDonald were concerned wholly with figures rather than political aspects of disarmament, no authoritative information has been forthcoming.

"SCARFACE" AL CAPONE REMAINS IN HIDING

CHICAGO, March 18.—(AP)—"Scarface" Al Capone may be here, he may be there, he may be riding the billowy waves to Shanghai or he may be picking daisies in Florida—nobody seems to know.

At any rate he had not checked in today at the Southside home where his mother and sister and squads of police waited with various sorts of welcome.

The gang chief has remained successfully non-apparent since he eluded newspapermen and crowds on his release from prison at Philadelphia yesterday. The release ended ten months of incarceration—his first—for carrying a gun.

Chicago police, although they have nothing except hearsay evidence against Capone's character, deployed at railroad stations and airports today to arrest him on sight.

"He is not a desirable citizen," said a police official, "and he is no different than the other hoodlums we are pushing around to get out of town."

Twenty-eight witnesses, brought from Detroit, testified that Handel and Fleisch were in Detroit on the night Price was abducted from the yard of his New Haven home.

Handel and Fleisch, who also testified, both denied taking part in the kidnaping. Handel said he was part owner of a Detroit night club and Fleisch said he was in the waste paper business with his father.

On receipt of the word from the captain of his tip, customs authorities sent two patrol boats to quarantine to convoy the France to her pier yesterday afternoon.

Turning the light of Truth on false and misleading statements in recent cigarette advertising

WHAT ANOTHER MANUFACTURER of cigarettes chooses to say about his product is not our affair. Even when he sees fit to misrepresent his product and leave false impressions concerning it, that still is his business—not ours.

But—when, in his advertising, he goes beyond his own product and makes false statements or leaves misleading impressions about other cigarettes—then it is time that the truth be told.

> "The extra secret heating process removes from (————) harmful irritants, corrosive acrids, which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way, and which cause throat irritation and coughing."
> "No matter how much or how little you pay for cigarettes you have a choice of only two general classes, and not more than two. In one class you have the billions of cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way and in the other class you have (————), the toasted cigarette, a product of modern science, a cigarette from which harmful irritants have been removed by that extra secret process described by the phrase 'It's Toasted'."

WHEN THESE STATEMENTS were first made, we assumed that they were a casual phase of that manufacturer's advertising and did not represent a deliberate and calculated policy. After making a few such statements, he abandoned this particular form of advertising. However, other statements used in his advertising came to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission on a question of their truthfulness.

As a result of the action of the Federal Trade Commission he was ordered to stop his admitted practice of using in his advertising false testimonials of non-smokers to the effect that they kept slender by smoking his brand of cigarettes, and was further ordered to stop using other fake testimonials and the specious argument that all can keep slender by smoking that brand of cigarettes. He then began to use again the form of statement quoted above or variations of it.

IF ANY MANUFACTURER chooses to say that the tobaccos he uses contain "harmful irritants, corrosive acrids, that are injurious to the throat," and then to claim that these things are removed by the heat-treating process, that is his own affair. But when he tries to create the impression that it is general practice to use in cigarettes such rank tobaccos as he describes, we object to the attempted reflection on the industry.

We have never used in our blend those rank tobaccos which can be properly described as containing "harmful irritants, corrosive acrids," nor do we believe that they are used by some of the other manufacturers.

If that manufacturer wishes to advertise heat treatment, calling it toasting or what-not, that is his right. But when, in so doing, he tries to create the impression that he is the only maker of cigarettes who treats tobaccos with heat, the truth again needs to be told.

The publication of a fake testimonial is no greater perversion of the truth than to imply that the heat treatment of tobaccos is an exclusive process with any single manufacturer.

THE FACT is that the use of heat treatment in the manufacture of tobacco is about the most commonplace and universally practiced method in the industry. It has long been standard practice.

We use heat treatment in its most modern and scientific application, both in the preparation and in the manufacture of those mild, fragrant, ripe tobaccos that carry their natural goodness into CAMELS.

The first CAMEL Cigarette we ever made was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of CAMELS produced since has been manufactured under heat treatment. We rely upon heat to the limits of its possibilities to make our good tobaccos better. It cannot make inferior tobaccos good.

WHETHER OR NOT a manufacturer, to have something to talk to the public about, attaches a contrivance to his heat-treating machines to catch, condense and bottle the vapors that come from them can have no more effect toward improving the tobacco than your catching and bottling the vapors that come from your teapot would have toward improving the tea in the pot.

Our own brand, CAMEL, continues to grow, but we are, nevertheless, unwilling to let these far-reaching false statements or impressions regarding the cigarette industry go uncorrected.

"To the motion picture star beautiful skin is an absolute necessity," he goes on. "The glaring lights magnify the slightest defect, and only the girl with exquisite skin can hope to win success."

New Planet of Style Appears in the Sky

PERHAPS the newly-discovered planet "X" may solve the riddle of where Sttyle originates and where it goes to after "going out of style"—but it will take a century to find out much about the new celestial wonder that takes two hundred years, as the ninth and "outside" planet of the solar system, to make one revolution around the sun.

Anyway, we can rejoice and be happy over the fact that a New England optical expert—Mr. Lundin of Watertown, Mass.—produced lenses (ground to the accuracy of one-millionth of an inch) that discovered the new planet.

Also it is satisfactory to know that the Reid & Hughes Co. has its binoculars and lenses constantly trained on the skyline of style in New York and elswhere for fashion's newest and most authentic trends. The Boston store takes pride in being fashion-first and fashion-right.

CONNECTICUT'S ILLITERACY

When Secretary Wilbur of the interior department asks the Connecticut board of education to act with the national advisory committee on illiteracy and by so doing work for the eradication of illiteracy in Connecticut, there ought to be no hesitancy and nothing but an affirmative answer.

As a matter of fact, Connecticut is one of those states, because of its foreign population, which ought to be bending every effort toward such a goal regardless of what other states are doing, but when the opportunity presents itself to join hands in a nationwide effort it should most certainly be improved.

In the natural course of events it might be expected that Connecticut was putting forth such educational efforts that illiteracy would take care of itself, that in a few decades it would disappear. While that might be thought possible, it is contrary to the facts. According to the 1910 census there were 53,665 illiterates in the state. Ten years later the number had increased, not decreased, so that there were 62,265 ten years old and over who could not read and write.

Immigration has made its large contribution to this total, for the foreign-born white illiterates total 63,131, of which about three-quarters are to be found in the cities, and yet the native-born white illiterates are just under 3,000.

When it is found that Connecticut is 22nd from the top in the illiteracy list, when it is ninth from the top in the native white illiterates, when it is showing an increase in illiterates in the last census and when it has more illiterates than the combined total in the states of South Dakota, Delaware, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Wyoming and Idaho, it is time to sit up and take notice. Our attention has been called to a situation which ought not to exist, but inasmuch as it does there should be a determined effort made to change it. Because there are states where conditions are worse doesn't mean that we should sit idly by and let illiteracy go on increasing until we get nearer the bottom of the list.

We have been reminded of a situation in a manner which should open our eyes to our duty under the circumstances. Getting the adult illiterate to help himself out of that classification is not always the easiest thing to do, however much it may be desired, but as long as the need exists every effort should be made to accomplish it. What the census about to be taken will show in regard to Connecticut illiteracy is uncertain, but it is to be sincerely hoped that before the 1940 census there will be such methods adopted that a decrease will be assured at that time.

MEETING UNEMPLOYMENT

In connection with the number who are out of work throughout the country the suggestion has been advanced, or the question has been asked, Why can't something be done to connect the man who wants work with the work that needs to be done? It seems a fair question and in keeping with the plea that was made weeks ago by the president to have the situation met by having work done whenever possible.

In keeping with the above sentiment, it has been pointed out that "This is the season of the year when a great many householders find a number of jobs that ought to be done, and do not know where to turn for the men to do them. There are yards and gardens to be cleaned up; there are screens and porch furniture to be repaired, cleaned and painted; there is a great deal of preparation to be made for spring and summer, that everything may be made shipshape."

There is a certain amount of this work that will be done by those who are regularly employed for it. There will be some instances where various jobs will have to wait for the lack of someone to do them, but the idea of getting the jobs and the idle men together is a good one, if it will work. It will be found that some are ready to do anything. Others will insist upon work in their line or nothing, and upon their own time and method of doing it. At such times as this it is always possible to dig up interesting instances where the willingness to work is dependent upon many things and the search for a job of any kind may or may not be seriously made.

Still, the idea of a clearing house for those wanting help and those seeking work could not go far wrong for all those who are in need of either.

THE STATE'S RESPONSIBILITY

Over in the state of Rhode Island, where road building comes in for some serious consideration, attention is being called to the wretched condition of the road to Point Judith, the large number who use it during the summer season and the importance of having it taken care of by the state as it should be.

In such a reminder there is voiced much the same sentiment that is being expressed in Connecticut by rural residents. There are not many of the country roads in this state which can look forward to the volume of traffic that will be attracted to the Point Judith road, but emphasis can be placed, nevertheless, upon the need of providing a decent road during the worst part of the year for those who are obliged to use them in their daily activities and not solely those who are out for pleasure.

It makes little difference where the road is located, if it can be shown that improvement is needed to satisfy the pleasure seekers, to take care of the traffic coming from and going to other states or to divert traffic into other channels, consideration is invariably given. There are problems that have had to be taken care of in those directions but the time has come when the state should give heed to the situation that is presented by the country road, the relief that improvement would be to residents and other users, the opportunity that would be afforded in diverting traffic from the main arteries and the justice that would be extended to those who have long and patiently been building the roads for others without getting any attention themselves.

Country roads present their own problems. It isn't the costliest construction that is sought. It is the building of decent, usable roads that will make it possible to get to some of the sections which are often inaccessible because of road conditions. It is a fair consideration for important country roads which small towns are unable to provide in addition to their contributions for the highway system of the state.

SLOW PROGRESS, BUT FORWARD

Every move that is made in the right direction cannot fail to have a beneficial effect upon any undertaking. It is often the case that while it may be desired to accomplish a definite task in one way and at one time, certain difficulties arise which make it impossible, but it is eventually done in succeeding efforts.

Thus it is impossible to look otherwise than with satisfaction upon the reported agreement between the representatives of this country and Japan concerning the question of tonnage, which has long been under discussion.

Japan has wanted 70 per cent of the cruiser tonnage of this country. The United States has not favored it. The two delegations have put in some serious study on the matter, deliberated conscientiously and come to an understanding which indicates a compromise. That is, Japan is to have 60 per cent of the cruiser tonnage and 70 per cent of the other auxiliary vessels. It is a basis which made agreement possible and because of the getting together on that arrangement it removes one of the recognized obstacles to the successful outcome of the conference.

That was not the only similar obstacle to the successful termination of the naval conference. Other countries have their differences, but the United States and Japan have done their best to show them the way to overcome them. It is only through coming to an understanding and sticking to it that any progress can be made toward the disarmament goal. This is only one of the several indications revealed by the conference. There was the preliminary understanding between the United States and Great Britain and since the opening of the conference it has been shown that a three-power agreement, involving the United States, Great Britain and Japan, would probably be possible if the five-power pact should fail. With the ironing out of various minor differences between other powers the way can be cleared for the desired five-power treaty.

OLD, BUT NEW

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again is golden advice which is recalled upon the announcement that has been made concerning the discovery of the new planet.

For years it has been the belief of astronomers that there were planets outside the orbit of Neptune. In support of that belief, Percival Lowell figured out back in 1912 about where such a planet should be found. He didn't locate it but his mathematics have been closely followed by the observers at the observatory in Arizona and through persistent search it has been found.

Comets are of rather frequent discovery but planets are not located every day. It was not until the middle of last century that Neptune itself was discovered and it has even taken many years after it was claimed that the new planet existed before the proof could be established. Time and scientific development are disclosing more of the astronomical mysteries and with the production of the promised telescopic enlargements and improvements still more finds may reasonably be expected.

With the discovery of the new planet there is need for a name. It may never know what it is called, may never respond to its name, but it needs an appropriate name for identification purposes, and now that it has been found there will be an eagerness to know more about it, if that is possible.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With illiteracy increasing instead of decreasing in Connecticut, isn't it time the problem got more real attention?

The discovery of a new planet comes just in time for those seeking a different place to go on their vacation this summer.

It seems a bit strange with all the unemployment that there should be such a willingness to rush into strikes.

When it is shown that a New York magistrate made $165,000 in four years, it may indicate why he was willing to take the job.

In Washington it has been discovered that there are business men who do not take a drink. Furthermore, it might be found that there are those who drink who are not business men.

Straw votes may not accomplish anything, but they furnish a lot to talk about.

Old Ironsides is afloat once more but the tonnage of the United States navy has not been increased.

CORN IS KING

"Look at this one!" Doris pulled down the soft green leaves and exhibited the golden ear of corn within. "Isn't it a beauty? How many have you found, Dick?"

"Six luscious ears already," answered her husband. "Hardly enough for me. How many can you eat?"

"Oh, four or five. Hurry, dear. I can hardly wait to eat them."

Dick and Doris were out in the midst of their little cornfield. The first year in their own small house in the suburbs, their garden was, of course, a source of great pride and satisfaction. Best of all, the corn had turned out better than all expectations and they had it every night for supper, as much as they could eat. And Dick's capacity for home grown corn seemed, to Doris unlimited. Once he had eaten a dozen ears at one sitting.

"What shall I plan for our dinner party Friday?" asked Doris later that evening.

"Well, I'm sure Mr. Harding could eat a dozen ears, and maybe his wife——"

"Dick!" said Doris in a shocked voice, "you don't mean to say you could seriously suggest corn for a formal dinner party—for your employer and his wife!" She laughed. "Silly boy! Now, let's get down to common sense. We'll begin with avocado salad and cheese wafers, followed by filet mignon, new peas, spiced crabapples, orange rolls and coffee with raspberry ice and opera cakes for dessert."

"No corn?" asked Dick in disappointment.

"No corn," responded his wife with finality.

While Mrs. Harding, next Friday evening, chatted with Doris in the living room, Dick proudly escorted Mr. Harding about his property. They strolled through the flower garden and past the teahouse. Then, behind a high wall of hollyhocks, they came upon the vegetable garden.

"What!" exclaimed Dick's guest, "don't tell me you actually have your own cornfield!" Dick glowed.

"This cornfield is my special hobby," he confided. "I've dug and hoed and weeded and sweated out here two or three hours after work each night. And the result is worth the effort. You never tasted such corn, if I do say so myself."

"Ummmm," said Mr. Harding. "I can hardly wait for dinner. How many ears do you suppose I could eat, with propriety?" Dick shook his head.

"I'm sorry," he murmured, "we aren't having corn. You see, Doris——"

"Not having corn," repeated Mr. Harding sadly. He pulled off an ear and looked upon the yellow kernels within. "Doesn't your wife like corn?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," Dick assured him. "But she doesn't think—that is, she hasn't planned any—for tonight."

"Of course, doesn't want the bother," said Mr. Harding. "I wonder," he mused, "if she'd mind if we picked it and fixed some ourselves?" He looked so hopeful that Dick resolved to brave the stern countenances of Doris and Mrs. Grundy and allow his guest this treat. They picked two huge armfuls, husked the golden ears and, taking them to the kitchen asked Nora, the maid, to cook them for dinner.

Dick and Doris, somewhat abashed in their capacity as host and hostess to two such distinguished guests as Mr. and Mrs. Harding, were not quite at ease as dinner began. Although the first course went smoothly enough, Nora acting most capably, Doris felt self-conscious and made what she considered one inane remark after another. Conversation proceeded by skips and bumps. Finally she tried the garden topic.

"Did Dick show you the gladioli and the hollyhock garden?" she asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Harding. "And your wonderful cornfield." Mrs. Harding's eyes brightened.

"Corn!" she exclaimed and smiled at her husband. "This is a rare treat for John. He simply adores fresh corn. His biggest regret in living in the city is that he cannot have a garden where he can raise it." A rare treat! Doris grew weak. Sickeningly she opened her mouth to answer.

"I'm so——" She was about to say "so very sorry" when the kitchen door opened and Nora appeared carrying a huge tray piled high with steaming ears of corn. Nora had made a mistake—a gorgeous, life-saving mistake. Doris would reward her next day.

"I'm so very glad," Doris finished happily, "that you are fond of corn, Mr. Harding. Help yourself to as much as you can eat. Dick and I have it for dinner every night!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 18—What must it mean to a man who has walked more than twenty years "in the forest of perpetual darkness" he entered with loss of his sight, to go to a talking movie?

And particularly to sit there, in the dim light of a theater with the stir and rustle of those about him who could both see and hear and mark by sound alone their reception of his own words, coming from the silver screen?

Such was the experience of Thomas Schall, the blind senator from Minnesota, who is nearing the end of six years' service in that body after five terms in the house. An electric shock bereft him of sight twenty-one years ago. Yet he still can write himself down "practicing lawyer."

Wife Gave Courage

The courage that led him to move on undaunted by his great calamity Senator Schall ascribes wholly to his wife, to the woman who faced that blow head up and unafraid, who made herself his eyes for the years ahead, who fought aside the black cloud of despair and bitter repining that gripped him and led him to years of inner sunshine that would warm his soul in place of illuminating his lost vision.

It was so Schall told his story for a news talking film, a gripping human story that touches the heart. He recounted the anger at fate that had overwhelmed him with darkness, facing the clicking eye of the camera, making a record such as he would not see, had never seen, for the whole motion picture industry has come since he passed into that eternal forest. And at the end, he said, solemnly, that even for the blessing of restored sight he would not today surrender the peace and understanding that has come to him in his blindness.

The record made, both the senator and his wife were eager to learn of its first presentation. So accustomed has he grown to his affliction that he asked over the telephone when he could "see" the picture.

Waiting

And when the first showing of that particular news reel came in a Washington theater, the senator was the first man through the doors. He sat there waiting, waiting in his solitary darkness for the first sound of his own voice. When it came, he listened in painful attention to each word, straining forward in his seat.

It was a brave story, and so the audience read it. With no knowledge that Schall sat among them, men and women broke into generous handclapping at his final words.

Perhaps as nothing in his life before that moment thrilled the blind man. Those who saw and knew him say his face was radiant.

And who could wonder that it was so? He has won high political place over terrible handicaps; but here was a tribute to his greater victory of the spirit.

"Bringing the Hidden Self to Light"

SCRIPTURE Memory Verse: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto myself" (John 12.32).

Read: John 11:32-44.

MEDITATION: Jesus does not only draw men up, but He draws them out. Freudianism talks much about our buried selves. There are dark worlds within us; but there are also bright worlds there. Buried in every man is an artist and a hero, longing for self expression. The key to these hidden selves is the imagination. With unerring spiritual calls forth to meet him that one of all our manifold selves that most corresponds to him in rank and splendour. Long John remembered who he was when he heard the sound of Robin Hood's horn. When Christ stands before us, the best that is in us rises and comes forth to meet him. Standing before the tomb of habit and convention in which our truest selves lie imprisoned, He calls as He did to Lazarus—"Come forth," and the best within us hears the call and answers it.

PRAYER: O Thou, who hast written Thy law in men's hearts, we thank Thee for the image of our better selves that sweetly haunts us. Stand before us that our truer, finer nature may see Thee and come forth to dwell among men. In Christ's name. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Keeping The Well Baby Well

Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Baltimore, Md.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Digestive troubles and colds are two dangers from which babies should be safeguarded. The best ways to build up a baby's resistance to disease are these:

1. Through regular medical supervision. Have your doctor see the aby at regular and frequent intervals. Remember, we are talking about the well baby. Don't wait until the baby is sick. Let the doctor advise you how to keep the well baby well. It pays better in every way.

2. Through proper feeding. Mother's milk is the right of every baby. At the end of six months, your doctor may advise mixed feedings, supplementing the mother's milk by one or more bottle feedings. Cow's milk when given to the baby should always be boiled one or two minutes before the feedings are prepared. By the time the baby is two or three months old, you can begin giviing him a teaspoonful of orange juice every day, gradually increasing to three or four teaspoonfuls daily. You can begin giving from one-half to one teaspoonful of cod-liver oil at this time, also.

3. By care in bathing. The best time for the well baby's bath is in the morning before the second feeding. The bath water should have a temperature of 95 degrees at first, decreasing gradually to 80 degrees by the time a baby is a year old.

4. By letting the baby have plenty of sunshine and fresh air.

5. By seeing that the baby has plenty of sleep in a quiet place. A baby should have a regular bed-time and nap-time, and should sleep in a well ventilated room, but protected from drafts.

6. By dressing the baby according to the weather. The baby's feet should always be kept warm. The extra clothing put on when the baby is taken out should be determined by the temperature, not by the season.

Seventh and very important. By keeping the well baby away from people who are sick. Neither the well nor the sick baby should be exposed to other people's colds, or to other children's illnesses, because these diseases are especially dangerous to young babies.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Dipper Has a Good Meal

The whole world has a new appeal
When you've enjoyed a hearty meal.
—Dipper the Grebe.

When Dipper the Grebe came down on the Green Meadows, because he simply couldn't make those wings of his take another stroke, he was in despair. Had Mrs. Quack been in his place, or Mr. Quack either for that matter, the case would not have seemed so hopeless. You see, Ducks can waddle. They can travel quite a distance on those webbed feet of theirs. But a Grebe's legs are so short that he can go only a few feet and then pitch forward. A Grebe wasn't intended for traveling on land.

"Dear me!" thought Dipper. "Whatever shall I do now? If my poor wings had only held out just a little longer, I should have reached the Big River. Now I'll starve to death before I can get there. Indeed, I doubt if I could get there even if I didn't starve. I guess it is all up with me. Some hungry person will surely find me and that will be the end of me."

Dipper lay right where he fell for a long time. In fact, he was right there when Flip the Terrier discovered him. Of course, Flip was tremendously excited and he barked as if he would bark his head off. Dipper didn't like that barking. He was afraid. Oh, yes, Dipper was afraid. He didn't know what sort of a creature Flip was, but he did know that he was big enough to be dangerous. But, even though he were afraid, Dipper had no intention of giving up without a fight. He would fight for his life just as long as there was any life to fight for. And then came that two-legged creature, which you know was Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy picked Dipper up. Dipper struck at him two or three times. Then he was quiet. Somehow, there was something very soothing about the touch of Farmer Brown's Boy's hand. Dipper was terribly frightened. Of course. Wouldn't you be terribly frightened if a great giant picked you and carried you off? Just the same, Dipper couldn't help but feel that he might be a whole lot worse off. In fact, he suspected that, had he remained unfound on the Green Meadows, it would have been a lot worse for him than being carried off by Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy whistled as he carried Dipper up to the house. He took him inside and showed him to Mother Brown. Then he put some water in a tub and in this he put Dipper. Right away Dipper began to feel better. Yes, sir, he began to feel better. He felt quite at home in the water. But he couldn't get out of that tub. He was just as much a prisoner in that tub of water as if he had been locked in a cage. You see, he couldn't fly out, becase he couldn't get going enough to rise out of the water. He couldn't jump out, because his legs were too short.

Farmer Brown's Boy took a net and went back to the Smiling Pool. There was a certain open place there where Farmer Brown's Boy was certain he could catch some minnows. He knew that Dipper needed food and that nothing would taste as good to him as fish. When he returned he had a pailful of minnows. He dropped one in the tub where Dipper was. There was an exciting minute and then that minnow disappeared headfirst down the throat of Dipper. Two more followed. Dipper's eyes had brightened. H elooked almost happy. As a matter of fact, he was almost happy.

"I guess matters are not so bad as I thought they were," said Dipper to himself. "This is the first time I ever had fish without the trouble of catching them."

Stories That Recall Others

Interpretation.

Georgie, irrepressible lad of six, had been confined to the house for the day because of a slight injury. It happened to be the day of his mother's bridge club. Georgie's interest in affairs of this kind had always been slight, but today he was compelled to stay in the house, so he became interested. His mother made a bid.

"Did you say 'no trucks,' mother?" said he.

Matter of Spelling.

Joe, although of the fourth grade had not yet mastered the art of spelling. Recently, while visiting his aunt, he made a tour of her extensive library. Joe paused before several books bearing the inscription: "The sacred works of John X". He studied them seriously for a few minutes then asked abruptly, "Aunt Jane, was this man frightened when he wrote these books?"

"Not that I know of. Why?" she asked, puzzled.

TAX COMMISSIONER SAYS MONTHLY BILLS FROM COLLECTORS IDEAL WAY

The ideal way for tax collectors in the state of Connecticut to work would be to send out monthly statements to those owing for taxes. This is what State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett said to the eastern Connecticut conference of tax collectors and others, which was held here Tuesday afternoon in the council chamber at the court house. This monthly statement plan is what is followed by the Norfolk tax collector, who for years has been making the record of collecting over 99 per cent of the tax. By the end of nine months, the Norfolk tax collector gets out an alias tax warrant for one or two persons who still owe their taxes and as soon as this becomes known, other delinquents quickly pay up.

Commissioner Blodgett said that 70 millions in taxes are to be collected annually and there are 18 millions in back taxes on the books. Many of those who cry about paying are just as well able to pay as those who pay willingly. If the town doesn't meet its budget with the tax money, the town is going to borrow and easy borrowing is the way to accumulating debt.

The commissioner said that the tax collector in the small towns often is not paid enough and that selectmen in such towns ought to make them allowances for postage. In case of disputes on tax law, Mr. Blodgett advised the tax collectors to take the advice of the town counsel. On the point of tax collection he gave the percentage of collection by counties, as follows: Hartford 87 per cent, New Haven 82, New London 85, Fairfield 79, Windham 90.6, Litchfield 94.6, Middlesex 93.2, Tolland 87.9.

This was the sixth session in a series of conferences held around the state and Commissioner Blodgett was assisted in explaining the points brought before the meeting by Arthur F. Potter, John Donohue and Charles Russell, who are attached to his office.

Mayor Robbins Speaks

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, who attended the conference, was invited to speak and responded along a line in which he expressed his approval of the way taxes are collected in Norwich.

In opening his remarks the mayor made the facetious observation that probably there was not another city in the state where the situation is the same as here, where the tax collector is the son of the mayor, since the mayor is Robbins and the tax collector is Robinson. The city's experience makes this situation seem desirable. Over 90 per cent of the city tax is collected in the first 20 days, over 94 per cent in the first year, and 99 per cent plus, before the rate book is closed.

Mayor Robbins referred to the revaluation of the grand list which has been accomplished in Norwich, and said that taxation could be looked upon as a family affair, a necessary price to be paid by all as their share of maintaining local government and securing local benefits. If it can be shown that there is economy, integrity, honesty and value received for every dollar spent, the mayor said this would result in an increase of the number who walk up and pay their tax in the first 30 days.

Commissioner Blodgett commended the Norwich assessment system in which he said that the beauty of it was that you could prove you were giving the taxpayer fair treatment.

The tax collectors' conference had the following in attendance: Harold T. Robinson, Nellie V. Harrington, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Norwich; Theodore A. Boule, Griswold; J. Hull Manwaring, New London; Alwin Kaempffe, Lisbon; Susie M. Wood, Montville; Charles C. Zabriskie, Preston; D. Everett Hoxie, Stonington; George B. Sheldon, Voluntown; F. I. Date, Franklin; Lloyd P. STORES' WINDOW DISPLAY OPENS SPRING SEASON

Following the practice of previous years the merchants of Norwich will celebrate the spring opening season starting Thursday, and continuing through Friday and Saturday of this week with a competitive window display. The store windows will be opened to public view at 6 o'clock Thursday evening and will continue on view through the rest of the week.

A contest between the merchants for the most attractive window will be staged and prizes awarded by a committee of judges to be announced at a later date. With the spring season at hand, this event will lend itself to the most artistic efforts of the window dressers of the stores of Norwich and it is expected that this array of window display will prove to be an outstanding event so far as window merchandising is concerned.

To the public this event will bring before them an array of merchandise of the latest in styles and fabrics and will embrace practically every line, as indicated by the following classifications under which the windows of the different types of stores will be judged. Class A, hardware and auto accessories; B, millinery; C, shoes; D, women's wear; E, men's clothing and furnishings; F, drugs and toilet articles; G, groceries, candy stores and restaurants; H, jewelry and novelties; I, furniture and home furnishings J, electrical and florists; K, general, and L, department stores. Cards showing the classification of the stores will be displayed in the store windows and will be furnished by the merchants bureau of the chamber of commerce. Back of this event will be found the best efforts of the stores participating and an array of artistic window dressing will greet the patrons of Norwich as they gaze upon the hundreds of pretty things which will adorn the windows of the local merchants on this occasion.

COLLISION IN UNDERPASS ON THE NEWENT ROAD

Late Tuesday afternoon, a DeSoto sedan, Massachusetts registration, collided directly under the railroad tracks at the narrow underpass on the Newent road. The latter machine bore the brunt of the damage, having its left front wheel ripped off, its left running board damaged and left front and rear mudguards bent.

The accident was investigated by State Police Officer Scranton of the Danielson barracks. About thirty feet north of the scene a North Grosvenordale youth was killed and seven other persons were injured when two cars came together, several weeks ago.

ST. MARY'S PLAYERS SCORE IN COMEDY PRESENTATION

Twelve hundred persons, a capacity audience, applauded St. Mary's Players in their 1930 presentation, Seven Chances, at the Palace theatre Tuesday night. Amateur in fact, but professional in technique, the players, who annually volunteer their services for the benefit of St Mary's parish, once again scored a 100 per cent. success. Highly complimentary remarks were heard on all sides from the delighted audience. Seven Chances, a comedy, staged in three acts, under the personal direction of James E. Murphy, met with instant approval on the part of the large audience. Applause, hearty, frequent, and well merited, was showered on the players throughout the three and a quarter hour show.

Between the second and third acts, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, general chairman, briefly addressed the large gathering. He expressed his deep appreciation of the splendid patronage and publicly thanked all who contributed to the success of the evening. He especially mentioned Robert B. Hamilton, manager of the Palace theatre, for courtesies extended the general committee and the cast.

It was noticeable that there was a marked improvement in the acoustics this year. This is due to the changes made by Warner Bros. early last fall when they took over the theatre. The seating arrangement was also remarked upon most favorably.

The cast follows:

Earl Goddard, lawyer and happily married, John P. Keenan; Joe Spence, Arthur B. Breen; Ralph Denby, the club drunkard, James F. Barry; Henry Garrison, lawyer, John J. Barry; George, club steward, John J. Shea; Billy Meekin, club man Robert L. Enright; Jimmie Shannon, confirmed bachelor, Dr. Andrew J Sullivan; Mrs. Garrison, Lawyer Garrison's wife, Marguerite J. Foley; Anne Windsor, in love with Jimmie, Teresa R. Portelance; Irene Trevor, Anna A. Enright; Georgianna Garrison, Veronica M. Roberts; Lilly Trevor, Parmelia O. Derosier; Peggy Wood Mary R. Derosier; Florence Jones, Mary R. Keenan; Betty Willoughby, Catherine M. Bergin.

The Lotus club was the scene of the comedy. Jimmie, the plot revealed, while not exactly a woman hater, was a bachelor by choice. Act one showed Jimmie in conversation with several members of his club. Stock investments finally gave way to matrimony and during the conversation Jimmie emphatically stated that he was adverse to marriage. Announcement of the tragic death of his eccentric grandfather, leaving him sole heir to $12,000,000, eventually changed Jimmie's ideas of marriage and he finally agreed in order to fulfill the provisions of the will, to seek a bride. According to the will, he had to be married before his 30th birthday, in order to inherit the millions, and it developed that he had but 24 hours in which to find a bride.

Ladies' day at the club brought him numerous prospects, and, urged on by club friends, he proposed to every girl at the club supper. One finally accepted his proposal but suddenly changed her mind. As things turned out, however, he just as suddenly realized that he was in love with Anne, towards whom he had previously paid but little or scant attention. Her acceptance brought him a bride, happiness and the millions left by his grandfather.

Dr. Sullivan, as the leading man, carried his difficult role in professional style, as did Miss Portelance, who played opposite, in the role of Anne Windsor.

John B. Keenan, as Earl Goddard, and John J. Barry, as Henry Garrison, partners at law, were excellent selections. James F. Barry scored a decided hit in the role of Ralph Denby, the club drunkard. All of the players, in fact, were well cast, and are to be complimented on their splendid appearance.

The committees in charge of the show were as follows:

Business manager, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan; stage manager, Cornelius L. Crowley; prompter, Miss Isabella W. Leonard.

Program committee, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, chairman; John J. Sheehy, secretary; Mrs. Lucien R. Bissonette, Mrs. James J. Brady, Mrs. Joseph D. Burke, Mrs. William W. Carrigan, Mrs. Francois C. Cote, Mrs. William J. Kelly, Mrs. Gelose F. Lord, Mrs. Laurence E. Milles, Miss Margaret C. Counihan, Miss May C. Nolan, John F. Carroll, James J. Brady, Joseph A. Donnelly.

Courtesies were extended by Robert B. Hamilton, manager of The Palace theatre; the Palace theatre staff of employes, Elijah S. Burdsall, M. D., superintendent of the Norwich state hospital; The Plaut-Cadden Co., Mara's Pharmacy, The Porteous and Mitchell Co., Patrick F. Sweeney, The Connecticut Co., and the O'Neil Electric Co.

The altar boys of the parish, numbering a dozen, were theatre guests of Rev. Father Coholan, for the evening's entertainment. The program boys were Cornelius J. Downes, John J. Leary, Thomas W. Kirby, Charles W. Lacavera. The Connecticut Co. provided splendid trolley service in handling the large crowd after the performance.

The souvenir program carried a tribute by Rev. Father Coholan to the late Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's parish, whose death occurred recently. The orchestra was under the direction of William J. Malone.

EXCELLENT PRESENTATION OF "THE JADE DOLL"

Before an audience that filled the Masonic temple auditorium on Tuesday evening, the music department of the Woman's City club set a new standard for amateur musical comedy productions in the city in presenting "The Jade Doll," a Japanese musical comedy in three acts.

Beautifully costumed, admirably staged, its music spirited and tuneful, with pretty dance numbers and colorful stage pictures, good solo work and melodious chorus numbers, the comedy had an interesting story running through it that was capably presented by the principals, as they unfolded the story of the search of the lost jade doll, the discovery of which was the price of the hand of Sakusu, daughter of Wutsu, a Japanese nobleman.

Miss Susanne Higgins, as the Japanese maiden, was admirably cast, giving a sweet and convincing characterization, and the part of the Japanese nobleman was well played by J. Todd Hynd. Walter LaFontaine, as Neekimo, young physician and aide to Watsu and suitor for the daughter's hand, carried the part in finished style and was heard very acceptably in the solo, Love Is All, while the three suitors for the hand of Sakusu were well played by William Mitchell as O-Tush, of few ideas; Robert A. Gray as Chinero, of much gold, and Flint Brayton as Yamosan, of long words. Esther Gilbert made a pretty attendant to Sakusu.

The first scene, The Lost Jade Doll, had the following musical numbers: Tell Me Which One Would You Choose, We're the Lord's Legal Advisers, Don't You Ever Tell, The Lost Jade Doll. The choruses appearing were as follow:

Japanese maids — Esther Evans, Margaret Leith, Elizabeth Smith, Em Beth Bennett, Muriel Hynd, Evelyn Wheeler, Katherine Hempstead, Carol McGregory, Helen Risley, Marion Royce, Beatrice Spicer; and Japanese boys—Stuart Hynd, Joseph Burns, Mervin Leffingwell, William Leonard, Earl Swan, Hartwell Zuerner, James Dutton, Robert Burke, Raymond Johnson, Herbert McNeely, Nicholas Tarrant and Peter Lukoff.

In the second act, entitled The Treasures, the following musical numbers were given: Dance of the Figurines, Fans and Fans, Dancing Dolls, Best of Friends Polka, From a Wedgwood Vase, Orientale and Dance of the Moonstones, Love is All.

They were interpreted by the following choruses:

Figurines— Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins, Mrs. Edward Rich, Mrs. Willard Haugh, Mrs. Charles M. Olson, Mrs. Walter T. Clark, Mrs. Albert Reise, Mrs. Andrew Crowe, Miss Rose Driscoll.

Peacock Feather Fans — Mrs. Charles Schwenck, Mrs. Dominick Bailey, Miss Lois Leffingwell, Miss Lucille Howard, Miss Flossie Meyer, Miss Helen Tourtelotte, Mrs. David Disco, Mrs. Harold Hull, Miss Anna Stockdale, Miss Doris Myott, Miss Frances Ksaizek, Miss Violet Disco.

Dancing Dolls—Betty McCord, Helene Crawford, Estella Mell, Olive McCune, Doris Cote, Mildred Orr, Peggy Shugrue, Mary E. Woods, Edna Hastedt, Abby Witmarth.

Jewel Bearers—William S. Spencer, Arnold Smith, Eugene Smith, Benedict Pullen, William M. Wyman; Jewels—Doris Racine, Ruth Genter, Lucille Hayden, Alice Nutter, Marion Wightman, Eunice Ingalls, Helen Pendleton, Barbara Taylor, Ruth LaPierre, Rose Schwenk, Virginia Robbins, Dorothy Prentice.

Every chorus was an encore number, the audience giving spontaneous and enthusiastic applause. A very effective interlude was provided by "The Tintypes," with Dr. Edward G. Rowland as The Fountain Pen and Margaret Sullivan as The Cologne Bottle, who bring out the tintypes as follows: Olga, Bernice Willey; Rose, Mildred Fox; Lionel, Edward Rich; St. John, Harold Robbins.

In the last act the fortune teller ends the story happily for Sakusu and the curtain goes down with the entire cast grouped effectively on the stage.

The ushers, who wore kimonos, were: Miss Rosalie A. Bennett, chairman; Miss Villa Bussey, Miss Helen Clapp, Miss Nancy Colberg, Miss Margaret C. Driscoll, Mrs. Frank S. Greve, Miss Ruth Hamilton, Miss Vilette Peck, Miss Constance Raymond and Miss Ruby E. Vaughn.

The play was produced by its author, Miss Leila M. Church, who wrote the words and music, and designed the scenery and costumes. She has produced many large pageants in New England. Handkerchiefs for all the ladies of the cast were presented with the compliments of the Buckingham shop, and the flowers were from Ernst.

DON'T be misled into thinking this is "just a habit". Often it is not a habit at all, but is due to worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

Among other symptoms are grinding the teeth, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, uneasy or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present. Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

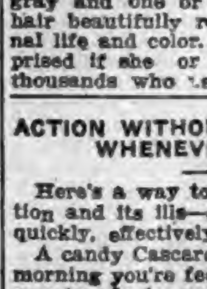
No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink good water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark
By RUTH WAITE



Every woman with gray, faded or streaked hair is entitled to do something about it, for it is every woman's birthright to retain her youthfulness and charm as long as she can. When a woman mentions gray hair to me, I don't hesitate to advise the use of a restorer and I recommend sage tea and sulphur.

A brew of common garden sage, when properly combined with sulphur, restores gray hair to its original color, lustre and beauty. So perfectly does it do the work that its use is undetectable. You may either prepare the mixture at home or buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the prepared article and it costs only 75c a bottle at druggists. Hence there's no need of your bothering to prepare the mixture yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one strand at a time. The very first application banishes the gray and one or two more sees the hair beautifully restored to its original life and color. One would be surprised if she or he knew of the thousands who use this preparation.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLOSE SEASON AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT AGAINST L. I. PROS

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS

Long Island Pros.	Plainfield Pros.
Peterson, rf	Kasper, rf
Yerkes, lf	Brusso, lf
Lopchick, c	Conway, c
Bowden, rg	Williams, rg
Carey, lg	Bernot, lg

Professional basketball closes its season at the Plainfield Community house this evening when the Plainfield Pros clash with the Long Island Pros in the third and deciding game of the series between these two clubs. The Long Island professionals hold a victory over the Plainfield team and likewise the Plainfield club has emerged a victor in one contest. These clubs are very evenly matched and a fast game is expected.

Included in the Long Island lineup is Lopchick, whose famous brother Joe Lopchick, formerly with the Original Celtics is a member of the Cleveland Rosenblooms. The younger Lopchick is following close in the footsteps of his more famous brother. Another player of national repute is Baldy Yerkes, one of the fastest forwards in the game and his work against the Plainfield club has been exceptionally brilliant. Bowden and Peterson are two other players who play fast and hard basketball.

Plainfield will use the regular lineup with Kasper and Brusso at forwards and Williams and Bernot at guards with Conway in the pivot position. Kasper and Bernot are going strong and both have been heavy scorers against visiting teams. Conway is playing an exceptionally good game at center and is rated as one of the best pivot men in the state.

In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies will meet the Westerly Collegians. This game will start at 8 o'clock followed by the main game at 9. Dancing as usual after game.

Y SENIORS PLAY THIRD GAME WITH BASE TONIGHT

The Y Seniors, whom everybody thought had finished with basketball for this season when they nosed out Torrington Y last Saturday, are still alive and kicking and tonight at the New London Y will play the third and deciding game of their series with the Sub Base five for the championship of New London county.

Each city will have its strongest representatives, no doubt about that. The Sailors swept through the New London City league to the championship while the Seniors are without a doubt the strongest in the northern part of the county.

Coach Demarest will present his regular lineup to uphold the honor of the Rose City, which sees Tommy Lynch and Aubrey Brown at forwards, Capt. Roland Harris at center and Les Pingree and Enos Eccleston at guards, with Manager Zeke Leffingwell, Gink Barber, Hoyle Ludlow and Ray Yerrington in reserve.

Three of the leading scorers in the City league, Wee Willie Dittmer, center, Jack Reeves and Ray Poquette, each of whom scored 100 points or over in addition to Doc Wilcoxson and Willie Hambach or Jack Demling will make up the Base team.

In previous games the locals won an overtime thriller in this city and then were beaten by a wider margin in New London. The Seniors, when in form are reputedly the equal of anything in the state and their chances tonight seem to hinge on whether the Base catches them in one of their "when they're bad they're rotten" or when "they're good they're very good" spells.

In the preliminary the Williams Memorial Institute girls team will play the New London Y. W. C. A. for a game that will go a long ways to settle the Girls title in the Whaling City. This will also be a third and deciding tilt of a series.

COLUMBUS CLUB POUNDS OUT WIN OVER ATHLETICS

The score was knotted at one run each when Columbus fell upon the spit ball pitching of Jack Quinn.

Centerfielder Mule Haas, of the A's, sprained his right ankle while rounding first in the third inning and Doc Cramer finished the game. Score:

WOOD CUTS YALE BALL SQUAD TO 23 PLAYERS

NEW HAVEN, March 18—(AP)—Yale's baseball squad was cut to 23 players today by Coach Joe Wood. Of those who were retained nine are 1929 veterans and seven are sophomores, who played on the freshman team last year.

Wood has nine pitchers available for duty when the season opens April 3 against the Navy at Anapolis. Tom Taylor, sophomore southpaw, is expected to be his mainstay with Wen Thompson, Ed Jennison and Rudd alternating in the box. The latter was outstanding two years ago as a freshman, but has been ineligible since.

Albie Booth, football star, seems likely to win a regular place at shortstop. Other football men who are promising are Captain Fay Vincent, Linehan, Snead and Walker.

BRAVES RALLY IN 5TH TO BEAT OUT YANKEES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 18—(AP)—One bad inning cost the New York Yankees a ball game with the Boston Braves today, the final score being 7 to 5.

With Bill Henderson in the box the Braves put together three walks and a like number of doubles to score five runs in the sixth inning. The Yankees outhit their National league rivals, 13 to 8, but their blows were kept scattered by Seibold, Jones and Smith. Waite Hoyt, making his first appearance of the season with the Yankees, was scored on twice in four innings. Following his failure to get a hit yesterday, Babe Ruth had to be content with a single today. Score:

A's Claim Correct

Fancy Corner Inquirer: In the cribbage play described, the count of six is correct. A played a six spot; B played an eight; A played a seven spot for a run of three. B played a four spot; A played a five spot for a run of five. The count then was 30. B was without an ace to complete the count of 31, therefore giving A a "go." A's claim of six points is correct. B's claim that the count was broken by his four spot is incorrect.—Sports Ed.

N. F. A. TEAM AT NEW HAVEN TONIGHT

The Academy indoor track season comes to an end this evening when the Wildcat's mile relay team goes against Roxbury prep of Cheshire in an invitation run at the Firemen's meet in New Haven. There may also be one or two sprint men of the local squad entered in special events in this meet.

The relay team, which is composed of Bill Agnew, Johnny Lyons, Johnny Lenkiewwicz or Hank Mahoney and Capt. Sam Berkman has done especially well in its first season on the boards. In the opening meet against Suffield prep, the locals triumphed in convincing fashion, they next ran an exhibition race with the Holy Cross varsity quartet in the second and concluding indoor meet sponsored by the local school. Following this Coach Murphy took his boys to the Boston A. A. games at Boston where they finished in fourth place in the college freshman event, then went to Hartford where they were nosed out by New Haven Evening high in a race where there would have been grounds for protest on the parts of the Wildcats. Their next appearance was in the Kacey games in Madison Square Garden where they came in fifth in a field of the stiffest kind of competition.

Outdoor practice has already started at the school with the first call sounded on Monday of this week. Track has staged a remarkable comeback at the Academy in the last two or three years after being in the doldrums for quite some time and it is with such enthusiasm that the boys move from the boards to the cinders, hopeful of continued success.

The Academy will be defending champions in outdoor track this year, having won the league title last spring. The annual meet will be held at Storrs college in May and should be one of the major scholastic activities in the state this school year.

The gentle cow, grazing in the meadow, is a creature as docile as can be, but the cow being led to slaughter is quite another thing you'll see.

That may sound like a jingle but it's not and it's truth can be vouched for by at least three Fancy Corner young men.

It seems that the other afternoon several heads of beef were due to be dispatched to provide the piece de resistance for many a Taftville table.

All had gone well and the last creature was due to pass to the happy grazing grounds of all good cattle or wherever good cattle go after departing this earth.

This creature was fully endowed with a feminine trait, she had a mind of her own. She decided that she was going to depart this terrestial sphere with her boots on, so to speak.

Her executioner approached and it was then that she asserted herself. She was a buxom lady and she was bound to argue the matter with the gentleman. She lowered her head and carried the battle to the enemy.

And like all good men the man decided that it was ungentlemanly to give battle to an infuriated lady. He turned and ran. And in fact his assistants followed suit with alacrity. It was a complete rout, one lone female had put three good men to flight.

One climbed through the bars of the fence, another disappeared in another direction while a third took the fence like a high hurdler. It was toward this third man that the ruffled lady took distinct dislike.

Being something of a modern cow and very athletic she took the fence like a colt in a steeplechase. It was a race well worth seeing while it lasted. That is until it went out of sight. The athletic cow possessing a vindictive nature was out to revenge her sisters.

Whether she did or not is not known at this writing as neither Joe nor the docile cow have made any report of the outcome.

PLAYERS TO SHARE GATE RECEIPTS OF FOUR GAMES

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Sixty percent of the net gate receipts from the first four games of the basketball world series starting Thursday between the Cleveland and Rochester clubs of the American professional league will go to the players, John J. O'Brien, league president, said today in outlining the financial arrangements.

Twenty percent is to go to the American league and ten percent each to the managers of the contesting clubs.

Play is scheduled in Rochester, March 20 and 22, and in Cleveland, March 21 and 23. The remaining games, if necessary, will be held in Cleveland, March 24, and Rochester March 26 and 27. Dopesters find that of ten games in which the rival clubs have met during the league season, Rochester, the second half winner, won six. On the other hand, Cleveland, first half winner, and 1929 champion, won two more games than Rochester in general league competition.

BROOKLYN PITCHERS HAVE BETTER OF DUEL WITH BROWN

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 18—(AP)—Brooklyn hurlers had the better of a pitching duel with two St. Louis Browns moundsmen today and the Dodgers won, 2 to 1.

Luque, Dudley and Moss scattered the six hits made by the American leaguers while Stewart and Holshouser held the Dodgers to five safeties. Harvey Hendricks drove in both of the Brooklyn tallies in the eighth with a single. The Browns scored their lone run in the sixth on two singles and an infield out. Score:

Brooklyn	000 000 020—2	5 3
St. Louis	000 001 000—1	6 1

Luque, Dudley, Moss and Deberry; Stewart, Holshouser and Ferrell, Manion.

Dissatisfied With Referee

I am a business man in Norwich but I am also a basketball fan and I would like to say a few things which I think are of interest to a great many fans of Eastern Conn. in regard to the way the games are being refereed in Plainfield.

There is nothing more disgusting to a real fan than to go there week after week and witness such an exhibition. This Mr. Harper, the referee, can be very good if he wants to. At the beginning of the season he was. But now he is terrible and this is doing more to hurt patronage than any other thing I know of. I know of a great many fans who have stopped attending these games because of it.

Plainfield is allowed to do most anything—commit any kind of a foul and it is O. K. Once in a while it is called but not very often. But when the visiting team makes the least little foul, maybe that isn't called.

I think it is about time that the management snapped out of it and gave the fans who support the games a fair break. I think that the fault lies there and that it is not Harper's fault but I suppose he is working on his orders. If the fans were given a break, I think that the patronage would pick up considerably. What do you think of it, Manager?

NEW YORK BOXING COMMISSION TAKES DRASTIC MEASURES AGAINST FOULS

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—The New York State Athletic commission turned loose a murderous body barrage today on the evil of fouls and foul fighters.

Stirred to bitterness by the epidemic of low blows, both real and imaginary, that have tainted recent important matches here, Commissioners James A. Farley, John J. Phelan, and the aged William Muldoon set up a punative code for the treatment of "Swooning Swans" and decided to battle for new state legislation on the subject if the present reliefs proved inadequate.

Beginning today, the commissioners decided that every puncher who loses here on a foul in the future will be automatically suspended for two months for his first offense, four months for the second and six for the third. A fourth offender will receive punishment analagous to the famous Baumes law for New York criminals—a life sentence.

Furthermore, gladiators who foul will be paid in the future only for the completed rounds before the disqualification. For the time being the remainder of the purses will be turned over to the promoters of the matches. A bill [illegible] before the New York state legislature, which the commissioners expect will soon become law, will provide for the payment of these forfeited purses into the state treasury. It was further decided that during a boxer's term of punishment for fouling, any other boxer licensed here who competes against him outside of the jurisdiction of the New York commission will be indefinitely suspended.

"This thing has gone far enough," Chairman Farley said. "Fouls and unsatisfactory endings of bouts are choking the boxing game to death. Boxing patrons are entitled to a full run for their money and when that cannot be given them because of an incapacitating foul, then they should have the satisfaction of knowing proper punishment will be meted out to those who are to blame.

"There will be no hilly shallying, no rests for a minute, a blow is a foul or it isn't and waiting around doesn't change the situation. Our referees will decide instantly, call the foul, or count the man on the floor out."

Although the subject was not mentioned, Farley's attitude was considered a rebuke of Referee Magnolia's action in the famous fiasco of Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, at Miami, where the New York arbiter called a halt for a full minute in the third round after Scott had claimed foul.

The commission acted as drastically as possible in the only holdover foul cases before it today, suspending Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, Henry Lamar, of Washington, 30 days apiece for fouls. Johnson, who sank Maxey Rosenbloom March 10 with a low blow, forfeited $3,868.80 of his $9,672.00 purse on the round basis and Lamar, who fouled Joe Banovic in the first round on the same card, received only $125.00 of a $1,250.00 guarantee.

The commission approved a welterweight match between Jimmy McLarnin and Young Jack Thompson, of San Francisco, at Madison Square Garden March 28. Leo P. Flynn, a manager, and Steve Halaiko, of Buffalo, former national amateur lightweight champion, were re-instated when evidence that they had participated in "bootleg" bouts up-state was branded "hearsay" by the commission.

TAYLOR QUITS QUEST OF GOLFING TITLES

LONDON, March 18—(AP)—John Henry Taylor, one of Great Britain's golfing immortals, has had enough of championship competition.

On the eve of his 59th birthday, Taylor today announced that he has retired from championship golf and would not play in the 1930 British Open at Hoylake.

Taylor has been a dominating figure in British golf for 35 years. With Harry Vardon and James Braid he formed a famous triumvirate that swept all before it in the latter years of the 19th century and the early part of the 20th. The three won 16 open championships, Vardon accounting for six and Braid and Taylor for five each.

Taylor, who was born at Northam, North Devon, March 19, 1871, first won the open title at Sandwich in 1894. He successfully defended the title at St. Andrews in 1895 and repeated at St. Andrews in 1900. His fourth open victory was scored at Deal in 1909 and his last at Hoylake in 1913.

Although he has not won the title since he has been a formidable contender virtually every year. He finished fifth in 1924, tenth in 1925 and 11th in 1926.

Taylor won the French Open in 1908 and 1909 and the German Open in 1912. He was second in the American Open of 1900.

SEATTLE SWIMMING STAR BETTERS SIX RECORDS

LACKAWANNA POOL, Jacksonville, Fla., March 18—(AP)—Helene Madison, 16-year-old Seattle star, knocked down six short course American swimming records here today before she climbed out of the pool.

Not since Gertrude Ederle, first woman to conquer the English channel, smashed six world's records in 500 yard race against time in September, 1922, has a gallery seen such swimming.

Nine records in all fell at today's meeting.

With the exception of the 220-yard mark, of Gertrude Ederle, all the former records Miss Madison smashed had been held by Martha Norelius.

Distance	Old Record	Miss Madison
200 yards	2:25 2-5	2:23
220 yards	2:41 1-5	2:39
300 yards	3:47 2-5	3:41
400 yards	5:15	5:00
440 yards	5:43	5:31 2-5
500 yards	6:36	6:17

Eleanor Holm, today clipped four-fifths of a second from the 100 meter back stroke mark.

Her time was 1:22 3-5.

The Metropolitan team of Misses Holm, Lindstrom, Adelaide Lambert, Dorothea Dickinson, Catherine Ames and Agnes Geraghty today set new time for the 400 yard relay, 4:27 2-5, exactly one second faster than the old standard, while the 500 yard time was set back to 5:36 2-5, as compared with the former best of 5:38.9.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Chapman Tech's baseball, track and tennis squads reported for the first workouts this week. The pitching staff on the baseball team will be built around Capt. Hewitt, last year one of the best in the state. He gave the Academy one of their stiffest tests and this year should furnish the Wildcats with two mighty interesting afternoons.

The Bulkeley batterymen had their first workout last week at the Y gym in New London. 'Tis said that prospects are none too bright for the Orange and Black this year but they usually bob up with a respectable looking lineup by the time they tackle the Academy.

Naugatuck high, in winning the state basketball title for Class A and B at New Haven, pulled a real Merriwell stunt. They were ranked as tied for eighth place with Windham before the tourney but went out and beat Windham in a special game, then trimmed Bristol, West Haven and finally, Central of Bridgeport. Naugy had lost four games this year and had made a poor showing in the Penn tourney the previous week.

The next three weeks furnish the second and concluding "dead spot" for high school athletics. This lull between basketball and track and baseball is rivalled only by that between football and basketball the first couple of weeks of every December.

Laskevitch Takes Lead

WATERBURY, March 18—(AP)—J. Laskevitch, New Haven, took the lead in the men's singles of the national duckpin bowling congress here tonight by rolling 414, the highest score of the tournament to date. The Norton-Lynch team of Bristol, moved into the men's doubles leadership with a score of 700 earlier in the day. No other changes were recorded in the other divisions.

The Jolly Three would like to hear from Danielson for a match Thursday at Danielson. Answer through this paper.

Colonial Club Eliminated

In a scheduled game at the Recreation billiards last night the H. D. H.'s eliminated the Colonial club from the first prize by the score of 100-86. Capt. Harris of the winners featured with several difficult shots. Capt. Grover and Farrell of the Colonial club shot a very nice game but tough breaks robbed them of the game.

The lineup of the H. D. H.'s was Capt. Harris, F. Higgins, F. Donovan. Colonial club, Capt. E. Grover, W. Farrell, F. Panek.

A noisy divorce is sometimes the outcome of a quiet home wedding.

NORWICH BOXERS LOSE BOUTS AT DANIELSON BOXING SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 18—Al Koziol of Norwich lost a hard and close battle to Ero Peterson of Worcester at the town hall here tonight, Vic Darr of Norwich took a trouncing from Alex Touraine, of New Haven, and Sheik Leonard of Norwich and Art O'Day of Holyoke were figuratively tossed out of the ring by Referee Frank Portell of Hartford because, he later declared, they were not trying. To add up a total loss for the night for Norwich battlers Curley Reta lost an interesting bout to Benny Novak of New London, who also beat him here last month.

Leonard-O-Day Bout a Farce

Sheik Leonard may be facing a suspension as the result of temporary loss of control of his good judgment, after the referee stopped the bout with O'Day just a few seconds before the end of the second round. The Sheik and O'Day had been petting each other around and the crowd booed them. The Sheik started to argue with the referee over stopping the bout and was told by the official to leave the ring peacefully. Instead of doing this Leonard followed Portell to a neutral corner and attempted to discus the situation at greater length. Portell waved him away. The Sheik then pranced over to the corner where O'Day was sitting on a stool and after a brief exchange of comment between them the Sheik took a sock at O'Day and an unofficial and unlisted battle was on. They fought better during that half-minute than they had at any time during the two rounds of the farce. Sheik told a Bulletin representative that he had hit O'Day in the latter's corner because the Holyoke boy had called him a name that wouldn't look well in a family newspaper. Portell will report the matter to the boxing commissioner and the net result of it all may be a suspension for Leonard.

Koziol Loses by Point

The Koziol-Peterson bout went the full six rounds for which it was scheduled. Koziol weighed 138 1-2 and Peterson 136. These boys are both hard punchers, Peterson possessing the superior science. They delt out plenty of punishment from bell to bell. How close the fight was is indicated by Referee Portell's card which gave Peterson 28 points and Koziol 27.

Touraine Trounces Darr

Alex Touraine of New Haven weighing in at 137 1-2 proved considerably too strong tonight for Vic Darr of Norwich, who weighed 140 for the bout, a six rounder that went the limit. Darr absorbed a wealth of punishment in the early stages of the fight and appeared punch-drunk in the fourth and fifth but he came back in fairly good shape in the final round. Touraine was a very clever boxer and a terrific puncher. Darr fought very well during the first three rounds and was game as they make them throughout the entire battle. He was cheered as he left the ring.

Novak Wins Again

The Novak-Reta go was fast and interesting but hardly up to the pace these boys set on their appearance against each other here in February. Novak weighed 140 1-2 tonight, Reta 142. Novak did most of the leading being the aggressor practically all of the time. The referee's card scored 30 points for Novak and 22 for Reta.

Peloquin Kayoes Menard

Rene Peloquin of Danielson chalking up his eighth straight victory beat a tough boy in Spike Menard of Holyoke. Peloquin weighed 123 3-4 and Menard 122 1-2. This affair scheduled for six rounds produced the most furious battling of the evening. It was stopped by the referee after 2 minutes and a half of the third round when Menard was so battered and groggy that he appeared incapable of continuing. In the brief cyclone between this pair of ponies Menard went shooting through the ropes and out on the floor. At the count of nine he climbed back only to be knocked down for another nine count. They fought it out toe to toe to the bell. Peloquin went down for a nine-count in the third round but got up battling hard and had Menard ready for the showers in another minute.

Rodman Flattens Lizzio

Al Rodman of Goodyear beat Young Lizzio of Westerly to the canvas for a full count after 2 minutes and 40 seconds of the second round. Lizzio had taken a nine-count in the first round. This was a fast fight while it lasted.

Sidney P. Marland made the announcements tonight and Lucien Lambert was timekeeper. A capacity audience saw the bouts.

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The New Haven Dairy Company, New Haven.

The New Haven Dairy company is today the trade name for an operating unit of General Ice Cream corporation, as the result of a series of margers within the last few years.

In 1906 a group of citizens, headed by General Edward E. Bradley, formed the New England Dairy company. It was wound up in bankruptcy in 1906. Mr. L Wheeler Beecher, who was a pioneer in the match industry of the country, had been the largest loser in the old New England Dairy company. Mr. Beecher then formed The New Haven Dairy company with Charles G. Morris as its head. Within two years this company was on a sound earning basis and rapidly advanced to the point where it was much the largest ice cream manufacturer in Connecticut and probably the second in New England. Its fundamental business policy was to manufacture the best possible article of food in the cleanest possible factory (or factories) and to sell at the standard market price without rebates or favoritism. The public apparently approved of that policy, for The New Haven Dairy company grew between 1906 and 1925, when it merged with other ice cream concerns to form Eastern Dairies, Inc., from a single factory producing under 60,000 gallons of ice cream to an organization having nine ice cream factories at strategic points in Connecticut, and manufacturing 1,500,000 gallons of ice cream a year. It was the first ice cream manufacturer in Connecticut to use artificial refrigeration in ice cream making; the first to use artificial refrigeration for storing ice cream; teh first to use an auto truck for delivering and the first to realize the value of homoginization. This process improves the quality of ice cream and modifies, it it does not solve, the problem of obtaining supplies of raw materials to meet the peaks and valleys of the demand for a product which is so dependent upon weather conditions for its sales.

The New Haven Dairy company in its milk department was also a pioneer, keeping abreast of the latest and most sanitary methods of production and handling for city supplies of milk. In 1913 it installed the first complete in-bottle milk pasteurizing system in the United States. That system is still pre-eminent in actual operation. The following year it installed the first really efficient milk bottle washer of the type which all the most progressive dairies are using today.

The New Haven Dairy company was merged with three other ice cream organizations to form Eastern Dairies, Inc., in the year 1925 and four years later Eastern Dairies, Inc., merged with General Ice Cream corporation which now is the operating company, carrying on this notable business.

The present officers are: Vernon F. Hovey, president; Charles G. Morris, vice president; L. C. Andersen, secretary; George B. Platt, general manager.

POETRY

Old Ironsides

Must this famed ship, that once was all our anxious nation's pride,
Be doomed no more to sail restored, and breast the ocean tide?
Must all the faith, the prayers, the hopes
  be wasted; this the end,
Because in all our country great she lacks the needed friend?

What, shall her all-victorious flag n'er reach a mast-head high?
Shall she, the ship that always lived, be left undone to die?
Shall this great frigate, once well called,
  "A Navy in herself"
Be left unfinished since our land has less of pride than pelf?

She once spread widely o'er the seas a fear of Yankee power,
To sight her sails caused craven foes to dread the fatal hour.
She swept the seas, a victor ship, the queen of ocean wave;
And must she now forgotten lie because no hands will save?

No! Never let it e'er be known Americans forget Though centuries may come and go, our ever-unpaid debt,
To this great ship, that saved our land
  by triumphs on the sea—
Come on, Americans! Arise, and set "Old Ironsides" free!

—John Stuart Barrows.

Memory

O, poignant memories that flood my soul
And brim my eyes with far-remembering tears,
Dear faces trouping back to gaze at me,
Loved voices hailing me across the far-spent years!

Youth, my love-encompassed youth,
Rises within me a resistless surge,
And to the surface flings
Dreams immemorial and deep buried things.

Alas, that now no living heart may share
In these dear vanished joys!
Will not the one recurring time but find
A more and more forgetting mind
Until one come and then, forevermore,
They and I go, how intimately, alone?

—Mary E. Gaffney, in Boston Transcript.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 18—With 60 in attendance, which is more than the number that usually comes out for the event, the annual borough caucus was held in the Orpheum theatre this evening at 7 o'clock and but 12 minutes were required to complete the business under consideration. There were no contests for any place on the ticket and with one exception, all of those nominated have served on borough boards for long terms of years.

Gaston A. Maindon, who has been a burgess for years, was nominated for warden to succeed Attorney Harry E. Back, who declined to be a candidate for re-election. The other nominations were as follows: Clerk and treasurer, Frank T. Preston; burgesses, Louis E. Young, D. E. Jette, Charles E. Austin, Harry E. Back, A. V. Woodworth, F. O. Armington; bailiff, John McFarland; tax collector, Sidney H. Perry; library directors, Frederick A. Jacobs, Attorney Louis A. Woisard. Ernest R. Warren, who has been a member of the board of library directors for years and whose term is expiring, was not renominated because he is no longer resident within the limits of the borough. Gordon J. Gale was chairman of the meeting and Frank T. Preston clerk.

STATE POLICE GET TWO STILLS IN CANTERBURY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 18—Two stills were seized this afternoon by Sergeant G. L. Gardner and State Officer H. Theodore Strand in a raid at the farm occupied by Mark Sedochuck in that southern part of the town of Canterbury near where the state-aid road to Lisbon ends at the present time. Neither still was in operation. One of them was the type that is so commonly constructed with a wash boiler and coil, the other small. In addition to the stills the officers seized a barrel containing 52 gallons of mash and also four barrels of wine. A truck brought this material and the stills to the barracks late this afternoon. Sedochuck was placed under arrest, charged with manufacturing and keeping with intent to sell, and was being held at the barracks here this evening pending arrangements for his prompt presentation in a justice's court in Canterbury.

Friday and Saturday of this week the state Y. M. C. A. county championship will be run off. The Windham County Y. M. C. A., with headquarters here, will be represented by senior and junior division teams. The senior division will start their games Saturday afternoon and finish them that night. Divisional championships have already been played off, leaving Windham county and Tolland county to play off their first game in the semi-finals and Hartford and Fairfield counties to play off the second. The winners of these two games will play for the championship. It will be remembered that the Tolland county group gave Windham such a hard fight three years ago for the championship, a fact that makes it likely they will be out this year to even up matters.

The list of the senior Windham players already has been published in this column. The Windham junior team, under the leadership of Eugene Sills of Woodstock, will be made up of Clark Wood, Fred Arnold, Adam Slovick, Shirley Green, Danielson; James Child, Donald Child, Donald French, Treffle Cross, Joseph Morse, Dudley Gifford, Alfred Wetherell, Lawrence McWilliams, John Meehan, Woodstock; Reynolds DeBeridenas, Stuart Sabin, Putnam; Wads Chubbuck, Bernard Sherry, Thompson.

Various improvements in the surroundings have been made and others will be made on the grounds surrounding the sub-station of the Connecticut Light and Power company west of Mechanic street and about opposite Westfield avenue. The completed plan will find the station surrounded by grass plots, and approaches covered with fine crushed rock. A pole yard also is being constructed. I-beams will rest on concrete piers and across these the surplus of poles will be kept, clear of the ground, easy to load or unload from trucks and easy to inspect.

LOCAL MAN TO FACE RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 18—Abram J. Chase of 14 Oak street has been ordered by Chief of Police William J. Allaire to appear in the Twelfth district court of Rhode Island Thursday morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

Early yesterday the Chase machine figured in crashes with two cars near Carpenter's corners in Slatersville. The car that the local man was operating struck a car parked on the Victory highway and knocked it 70 feet, and then sideswiped another car coming in the opposite direction. Irene R. Chartier of 84 Hamlet avenue, Woonsocket, was seated in the first car struck by the Chase machine, awaiting the return of her father, Fortunat Chartier, who had gone for a can of water, presumably for the radiator. Miss Chartier fainted as the car eventually ran off the highway and down a small embankment into a swamp.

After striking the Chartier car the Chase car continued on until it struck a light sedan being operated by Joseph Allard of Glendale. This machine was overturned and apparently damaged beyond repair. Chartier's machine also was considerably damaged. The Chase car came out of the accident with minor damages, and was in condition to be driven away.

The association also has an application for a loan under which a building that has been in use for other purposes would be remodeled for homes.

The subscriptions for the last series of shares are by far the largest of any series issued by the local association since it was formed, nearly 15 years ago.

Three ornamental standards on each of which a powerful flood light is to be placed are being erected along the Main street frontage of the Brooklyn Savings bank property, brilliantly illuminating the exterior of the building at night. The lights are expected to be working in about a week.

JEWETT CITY

STARTS REMODELING ASHLAND BRICK MILL

Contractor Earle E. Gilbert has begun this week the work of remodeling the large brick mill owned by the Ashland Cotton company. This mill was built in 1864, and until the present changes at the company's plant, has been a cotton mill. From the bale to the finished product, the entire manufacture has been accomplished at this plant, which has been kept in operation at the peak of efficiency. A few months ago, the Ashland Cotton company discontinued the manufacture of cotton goods in favor of rayon. A large addition was built and the cotton machinery, including pickers, lappers, spinning frames, cards and several hundred looms, has been removed.

The Ashland company will now install a modern silk and rayon dyeing and finishing plant. It is expected that this new borough industry will be in operation within three months. New machinery, representing a cost of thousands of dollars, will be installed following the rehabilitation of the plant. An outstanding benefit is seen for Jewett City in this added industry.

ARMAND BLANCHETTE EVADED RESPONSIBILITY

Armand Blanchette of Voluntown will be in Griswold town court this (Wednesday) morning, to tell what he knows about evading responsibility in connection with an automobile mix-up Saturday night. Blanchette, driving a new Ford, collided with first, a machine belonging to Emil King, then crashed into a car belonging to William Griswold, following which he kept going. In Mr. Griswold's car, besides himself, were his son Kenneth, Walter Ztingilas and Fred Wheeler. These men were all thrown clear of the machine into the road. All were more or less cut and bruised, with Mr. Griswold so badly cut that he was carried by Bud Jodoin, who happened to be passing, to the office of Dr. G. H. Jennings. The doctor, who had retired, took him into his office and dressed several wounds on his head. Both the King and Griswold cars were considerably damaged. The party of men, who fared the worst in the smash, were returning from a Grange dance in Pachaug. The King car was parked off one side of the road. In the darkness it was impossible to get the numbers of the machine, which kept going. State police from Danielson looked up two numbers given as random guesses, but they were found to be registered in other parts of the state. Sunday, Officer Vegiard looked up a chance clue, and learned from Blanchette a part of the story, when he admitted to the officer that he had struck the King car, but didn't know about hitting the other in which the four men thrown out were riding. Several matters in connection with the wrecks will have to be explained to Judge John T. Barry. Mr. Griswold expects to be able to attend the trial.

P. C. PROVANDIE NAMED COUNTY HOME SUPERINTENDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 18—At a meeting of the board of management of the Windham County Temporary home in Sawyer district held at the home, this afternoon, Philip C. Provandie of Northboro, Mass., acting head of a children's institution there, was named superintendent of the county home and will succeed the late Mrs. Addie H. Parks, superintendent and matron for many years, whose death occurred in December, 1929.

Mrs. Provandie, wife of the newly appointed superintendent, was appointed by the board to succeed the late Mrs. Parks as matron, the position to which Mrs. Parks was originally appointed in 1914. County Commissioner Arthur C. Keith of Putnam said tonight Mr. and Mrs. Provandie come to Windham county highly recommended with a number of years experience in this line of work and are duly qualified to take over their new duties on April 1.

The board of management at the home consists of County Commissioners Keith, Urgele J. LaFrance of Central Village and Bert J. Johnson of Woodstock and Dr. Seldon B. Overlock, surgeon general at the Day Kimball hospital, representing the state board of health and Mrs. Mitchell of Norwich, representing the state board of child welfare.

FAIL TO PROVE LIQUOR CHARGES AGAINST FOUR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 18—Uncorroborated testimony of the state's star and only witness, John B. Daigle of Green street, and the courts ruling that, "one man's word is as good as another," prompted Judge M. H. Geissler to find Alvin Jarvis and Ed. Tetreault, arrested a week ago on charges of violation of the liquor laws, not guilty of the sale of intoxicating beverages, when the cases came to trial this morning in city court following a week's continuance. With two victories for the defense lawyer, Irving H. Miron already scored, Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson in an address to the court at the afternoon session sought permission to nolle the cases against Arthur Dupre and Wilfred Champagne, who were arrested by the local liquor squad during a series of raids a week ago. The latter two did not appear in court.

The trial of the five attracted citywide attention this morning. The little court room in the basement of the municipal building was jammed to its seating and standing room capacities. A corps of newspapermen, through the courtesy of Judge Geissler were permitted to improvise the prisoner's docket and the steps to the bench for press benches, their regular quarters being occupied by the quintet of defendents. The numerous heated debates that ensued between Prosecuting Attorney Johnson and Defense Attorney Miron furnished many a thrill for the enthusiastic listeners during the course of the four hour session of court entirely devoted to the settlement of the liquor cases.

The state opened the session when John B. Daigle, whose intimate knowledge of liquor selling in the north end of the city is alleged to have been revealed to the police, resulting in the raids being ordered, was arraigned upon a charge of assault, to which he pleaded not guilty. The case was continued and the business of trying the liquor cases followed.

Mrs. Tetreault, 54 years of age and mother of Edgar Tetreault also under arrest was arraigned on charges of owning and keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell. She entered a plea of not guilty and at the request of Attorney Miron, the case was granted a week's continuance.

Edgar, her son was the next to appear. He entered a plea of not guilty to charges of sale of liquors. Daigle, witness for the state, took the stand and told of going to Tetreault's home procuring liquor and paying for it. Daigle said the beverage was home brew beer. Tetreault in direct examination by Attorney Miron emphatically denied having sold the liquor to Daigle. He said that Daigle came to his home on the date in question and was welcomed as a guest. During the evening, the defendant admitted offering his guest beer, but said that no mention was made of any money. Daigle asserted that he left 75 cents on the table, to which Attorney Miron charged the witness with a deliberate lie. Judge Geissler, overruled the motion of the defense to have the case dismissed, but after counsel rested he decided that the defendant was not guilty since the testimony of Daigle was not corroborated and that the statute makes no provision for the giving of liquor constituting a criminal breach of the act.

Alvin Jarvis, youthful north end business man was the second victim of the liquor squad's activities to take the stand in his own defense. Jarvis was charged with sale. Daigle again was called to the stand to offer testimony which the state hoped would serve to secure his conviction. On direct examination Daigle told of going to the Jarvis store on Providence street one night last November and securing a half pint of liquor from Jarvis, for which he paid a dollar. He said he was alone and that Jarvis was the person involved in the transaction.

In a cross examination by Attorney Miron, Daigle tripped up and stated that he made the purchase of Jarvis in March. With this Attorney Miron in heated phrases attempted to force further damaging statements out of the witness, when Attorney Johnson leaped to the floor and informed Daigle, "Don't be hypnotized, he won't jump on you." Attorney Miron entered an objection to the interference. Continuing the cross examination, Attorney Miron forced Daigle to admit that he did not purchase the liquor from Jarvis, but of an employe.

In direct examination Jarvis denied having sold Daigle liquor at any time, and stated that at no time had Daigle, to his knowledge, ever been a patron of his store. He also stated that he had not been working evening's for several months, the period covering the time specified by Daigle in his testimony. The early prospect of the success of the case for the defense was darkened when Attorney Johnson inquired, "Yes, and you never sold a drop of liquor in your life, did you Jarvis?" The question brought a volume of laughter from the large audience and again roused the fiery temper of Attorney Miron who replied, "I object." Jarvis did not answer the question. A few minutes before noon, Daigle, who appeared to be mentally beclouded to such an extent that he found it difficult to answer the conflicting questions of the prosecution and defense, finally admitted that he did not see Alvin Jarvis on the night he made the liquor purchase at the Jarvis establishment.

In deciding the case, Judge Geissler said, "Daigle's testimony has failed to prove the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. His testimony is uncorroborated and the situation again is the word of one man against another. I find that Jarvis is not guilty."

Judge Geissler then ordered a recess of two hours for lunch and at the reopening of court this afternoon nolled the charges against Dupre and Champagne upon the request of Attorney Johnson.

In court Wednesday morning the state will open the continued case against Daigle, who is being held on a charge of assault.

WEDDING

Bishop-Carpenter

A wedding of interest to Putnam folk took place yesterday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock at the Congregational church parsonage on Grove street when Miss Lucy Carpenter, daughter of Mrs. Harriet J. Carpenter of Chapman street was married to Coomer Alan Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bishop of School street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Congregational church.

Miss Carpenter and Mr. Bishop were attended by Mrs. Carpenter, mother of the bride and Mrs. Edith Weeks of Chapman street. The couple are well known in the city and are popular members of the younger set. They are to make their home at the bride's residence on Chapman street.

Again this year the Windham County Farmers' association and the Putnam chamber of commerce are to unite in their efforts to stage a repetition of last year's fashion shop, it was announced today. In letters the organizations state that public demand is a primary cause for the display of spring fashions which will be made on Saturday, April 5, at the state armory on Harris street. People residing in towns surrounding Putnam are cooperating. The models are to be taken from various towns in order that the affair will be truly a county day. Those selected to date are: Mrs. H. A. Coolidge of South Killingly; Mrs. E. M. M. Major, Brooklyn; Mrs. L. S. Ingalls, Brooklyn; Mrs. H. S. Cady, Jr., South Woodstock; Mrs. Leon Robbins, Thompson; Misses Mary Pearl, Hampton; Muriel Johnson, Pomfret; Gladys Evans, Mechanicsville; Eleanor Gallup and Evelyn Gallup, Abington and Master Wayne Bunnell, Eastford.

A feature of the annual fashion show will be the appearance of Miss Ellen Van Cleef, state clothing specialist of Storrs, who will speak on style notes in clothes, pointing out the features of the new creations as the models exhibit them. Miss Van Cleef is a delightful person and an authority on feminine attire. Her comments to be made with living models will be doubly interesting.

The majority of business men and women in the city are cooperating with the farm bureau and the chamber of commerce. The drill shed of the armory will be converted into a galaxy of booths from which various lines will be exhibited. Admission to the show will be by ticket, which are complimentary and may be procured from the Farmers' association in this city.

OBITUARY

Wilfred G. Chandler

Wilfred Greene Chandler, son of Patrolman Ernest Chandler of this city died at noon today at St. Francis' hospital in Hartford after a prolonged illness. The immediate cause of death was given as prenicious enimea. Mr. Chandler was in his 39th year. He was a veteran of the World war, having served with the A. E. F., overseas, in the veterinary corps. While in the service Mr. Chandler was affected with secondary attacks of gas, which impaired his health and brought on the disease that caused his death today. He had been in ill health for about two years.

Mr. Chandler was born in this city on November 4, 1891, the son of Ernest and Hettie (Greene) Chandler. His mother died some years ago. He attended Putnam high school, being a member of the class of 1911. Besides his father he is survived by five step-sisters and one step-brother.

Two suspects were detained at the police station yesterday for questioning in connection with the burglary at the Putnam steam laundry, Saturday evening. After intensive grilling the pair under surveillance established alibis, convincing the authorities of their innocence.

Little progress was made by the investigators today, Captain Dubreuil said. Fingerprints have been photographed and foot-prints on the floor of the laundry office were transcribed on paper in order that they might be preserved. The police intimated that the foot-prints were made by crepe soled shoes, about the only aid that will eventually lead to the undoing of the persons responsible for the petty robberies which have been committed in the city during the past three months, Captain Dubreuil said.

Mrs. William P. Warren of South Main street, patient at the Day Kimball hospital, was reported by the hospital officials this afternoon as considerably improved. Mrs. Warren's condition became alarming, Saturday following an operation.

Gondolas, 42 feet in length and 100,000 pounds capacity, the largest yet to be constructed are being used now by the main line engines of the New Haven railroad running over the Midland division. The gondolas, familiarly known as coal cars, are being used to fuel engines hauling only revenue traffic passing over the lines. Fifty of the new tankers were placed in service on February 15.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

HOWARD CLARKE'S FATHER DIES UNEXPECTEDLY

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Clarke, of Norwich, were called here at midnight Sunday by the critical illness of Mr. Clarke's father, Stephen Albert Clarke, 74, who had been ailing for several months, but was able to be out of doors until Friday. He was to have been taken Monday to the Backus hospital but passed away at his home about noon. He had lived here about forty years. He was an overseer in Leavens' Cotton mill when he moved here from Packer and afterward had a livery stable. He retired several years ago. He leaves his son, Howard Clarke, of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brewster have been called to Moosup by the death of Mrs. Brewster's mother, Mrs. John Tuckerman, who had been ill for a long time.

A St. Patrick's tea was given by Mrs. Cora Day at the tea room Monday from 3 o'clock to 5. Mrs. George Reese and Mrs. Willis Rouse, vice president and president of the Ladies' Aid society, respectively, poured. Miss Margaret Lafrance and Miss Arlene Potvin served. Miss Gwendolyn Barr and Miss Lucy Broadhead had charge of the finances. Miss Genevieve Violette was the fortune teller; Clyde Leach, of Sterling, was the artist and was very clever, drawing the pictures of the guests. The decorations were green and white, with daffodils. Sandwiches, cake and tea were served. The receipts were given to the Ladies' Aid society.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean, Mrs. Willis Rouse and Mrs. L. Howard Cross attended a whist party in Brooklyn Monday evening. Mrs. Dean received a prize, a green glass dish.

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Stetson have been entertaining Mr. Stetson's sister from Norwich.

Mrs. Everett Ladd was at Quaker Hill Tuesday, to attend the funeral of her cousin, Arthur M. Kilpatrick formerly of this village. He had been ill but a short time with double pneumonia.

Miss Lois Stetson has been a visitor in Norwich.

BETTER EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS STARTS ENTHUSIASM IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Speculation for the rise was whipped up to a high pitch of enthusiasm on the stock market today by fresh declines in money rates and the department of commerce's report showing a turn for the better in employment conditions. Total sales aggregated 4,247,950 shares, and the index of 20 leading shares was pushed up nearly 2 points to 189.8, the highest level since the end of October, when it bounded up to 191.8, after breaking to 162.2.

Save in a few bull favorites and high priced specialties, gains were moderate, largely amounting to a point or two, and the movement was checked at times by heavy profit taking. Wall street was filled with rumors of powerful pool operations in various issues, but seldom has board room sentiment been so divided, some observers seeing the movement as a distributive one, while others felt convinced that accumulation was under way in expectation of an eventual upturn in business activity.

The day's industrial news continued of a rather cheerless nature. Steel operations this week have sagged further, U. S. Steel curtailing operations to 80 per cent of capacity, against 82 last week. Reports of new automobile registrations indicate that February showed a sharp gain over January, and came within 2 per cent of the previous February. Excluding the two leading small cars, however, which accounted for 56 per cent of the new registrations, a drop of 30 per cent from the previous February was shown. Preliminary estimates of crude oil production for last week were less pleasing, showing a substantial upturn, although much of it was due to opening of wells for testing.

Call money officially ranged from 3 1-2 to 3 per cent again, but sagged to 3 per cent in the outside market for the first time in five years. Bankers acceptance rates also sagged to the lowest since 1926. Although money may be slightly firmer during the next few days, the conviction of leading bankers that rates are in a long range decline appeared in the clearing house's cutting maximum rates payable on deposits.

Oil shares encountered a little profit taking, but amusements, rails, office equipments, rail equipments, B and utilities were generally strong. U. S. Steel sold up 2 3-4, but lost half its gain later. Allied Chemical gained 7 points and shares advancing about 3 to 5 included Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, Columbia Gas, Columbian Carbon, Eastman Kodak, Gillette, General Railway Signal, New York Central, Paramount, Standard Gas, Underwood, Warner Bros. and Western Union. General Motors and Radio sold up moderately to new 1930 peaks. American Locomotive was a soft spot, dropping 6 points to 84 1-2, the lowest since 1924, but rallying to close at 88 3-4.

Commodities were steady to firm. Corn gained more than a cent on bearish weather and good cash demand. Wheat closed fractionally higher, and cotton, after uncertain fluctuations closed up 55 cents to $1.15 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were somewhat irregular, but leading currencies were steady to firm. The Canadian dollar rallied to 99.93 3-4 cents.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Natural gas stocks led a brisk advance in prices in today's curb market, the largest session of the year. Total stock sales were 1,346,200 shares as contrasted with the previous 1930 record of 1,358,500 on March 5. Bond prices also showed further improvement, with gains of 1 to 4 points registered by a wide assortment of domestic and foreign mortgages.

Easy money rates, merger rumors and widespread expectations of early improvement in general business provided the groundwork for the advance. Profit-taking brought about moderate recessions from the day's high levels in the late trading, but final quotations showed a preponderance of net gains which ran from 1 to nearly 5 points in the active issues, and from 6 to nearly 20 points in a few specialties.

United Gas, which Wall street understands is to be absorbed by a new subsidiary of Electric Power & Light, was marked up more than 4 points to a new high at 43 5-8, and then eased to 42. The stock sold as low as 19 3-8 this year. The day's turnover in this issue was 204,200 shares. Arkansas Natural Gas, Dixie Gas Utilities and Lone Star Gas also moved into new high ground.

Oils made relatively little progress due to heavy profit-taking, inspired in part by preliminary estimates of another large increase in crude oil production last week. Gulf of Pennsylvania, selling ex-dividend, moved up to a new top at 154 7-8 and then eased to 153, unchanged on the day. Humble also closed unchanged on the day at 105 after establishing a new peak at 108 3-4. Continental Oil of Maine, International Petroleum and Texon Oil & Land moved into new high ground on small gains.

Electric Bond & Share closed 5 points higher at 103 1-4, the day's high price, although it was still 1 1-4 points below the recent high. American Light & Traction jumped 4 points and American Gas & Electric 3 1-8. Nevada California Electric ran up 6 points to a new peak at 100 and retained all but a point of its gain. Niagara & Hudson Power, which has been dragging behind the rest of the list, was turned over in large volume, and closed a point higher.

Investment trust and trading corporation issues displayed a firm undertone but the gains were small. In the industrials Ford of Canada, Ford of France and Ford Limited eclipsed their previous peaks on reports of expanding European sales of Ford cars. Dubilier was one of the few strong spots in the radio group.

American Cynamid B was heavily bought, climbing nearly 4 points to a new peak at 32 7-8 but losing part of its gain on realizing. Amrad corporation, Aviation Corporation of the Americas, General Realty preferred, and Nathan Straus Inc., all sold at new 1930 high prices.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—The bull market in bonds went forward with renewed vigor today. Issues listed on the New York Stock exchange and the curb market, as well as the vast number of unlisted securities, turned over in bulk at smartly higher prices, and the day's business crossed $18,000,000, principal amount.

Money available in huge quantities, again went down and time loans were quoted 3 1-2 to 3 3-4 per cent up to 60 days. With the longer maturities at 4 per cent flat, the easiest rates in years, call funds were available outside at 2 per cent although the official rate went no lower than 3.

Buying by banks, insurance companies, institutions and individuals was still concentrated on the better grade issues, but there was sufficient interest in the market as a whole to extend the inquiry into secondary obligations, many of which displayed important strength. Rails, as a group, were very active, and the utilities also traveled at a fast pace. The average for thirty bonds in the three major groups went to 100.2, which compares with a high of 102.4 for the same bonds in 1928 and with last year's low of 96.3.

Foreign bonds easily attained new highs. French 7s went to 118 5-8, up 3-4, to a peak price. Poland 7s, New South Wales 5s, the Colombia bank issues and many other South Americans went steadily upward.

Plans for new bond financing are going forward rapidly. An $18,000,000 issue of Cleveland Union Terminal securities and an offering of Big Four railroad bonds, probably to the extent of $20,000,000,000 are among the issues expected soon.

Foreign obligations, with the Latin Americans again in the lead, advanced impressively, although turnovers were slightly smaller. United States governments, which many observers felt had discounted current money trends, sold off uniformly, the declines ranging from one to five thirty-seconds.

Rails making new highs for the year included Boston & Maine 5s, Canadian National 4 1-2s of 1968, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, Hudson & Manhattan 5s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Pennsylvania 4 3-4s, Reading General 4 1-2s, Union Pacific 4s, Virginia 5s, New Haven 4 1-2s and Wabash 5s. Convertible rails, under the leadership of Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s which soared 1 1-4 on an enormous turnover, were carried up with the shares.

Louisville Gas & Electric 5s, International Tel. 5s, International Match 5s, Utah Power & Light 5s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4 1-2s, and Chile Copper 5s were miscellaneous points of strength. Amusement and oil company bonds advanced sharply.

Trading in the new Pere Marquette 4 1-2s, offered today at 97, was inaugurated on a when-issued basis and the bonds ranged between 98 1-8 and 98 1-2.

The share feature issues were buoyant. American Telephone 4 1-2s, American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s and Texas Corp. 5s traded actively, showing the best tone in some time.

A new foreign issue appearing on this market tomorrow is an offering of $8,000,000 City of Helsingfors, Finland, 30-year 6 1-2 per cent external sinking fund gold bonds, by a syndicate headed by Brown Bros. The bonds are offered at 95, to yield about 6.90 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 18—(AP)—Corn led all grain upward in price today, and finished at virtually the top level reached.

Indications were that the season's main movement of corn to market terminals has reached an end, with prospects of liberal out-shipments ahead at the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes. Announcement of 3,245,000 bushel decrease of the world's wheat available supply tended further to strengthen wheat values, and so too did expectance of a cold wave Friday or before over domestic winter wheat states.

Closing quotations both on corn and wheat were firm, with corn 3-4-1 3-8 a bushel higher than yesterday's latest figures. Wheat finished 1-8-3-8c up, oats 1-8-7-8 advanced, and provisions unchanged, to a rise of 12 cents.

Wet weather prevailing throughout the corn belt had much to do with stirring up speculative demand today for corn. Besides, important trade leaders were calling attention to the fact that open market interest in Chicago corn future deliveries has steadily increased of late, whereas the open interest here in all other grain except corn has decreased sharply during the last thirty days. This circumstance was asserted to show increased general appreciation of the soundness of current values of corn.

It was also pointed out that terminal stocks of corn are light, particularly at Chicago, that call from shippers here is already good as well as continuing to enlarge, and that in addition the corn market is free to respond to supply and demand. Meanwhile rural offerings of corn today were small, and arrivals in Chicago amounted to but 62 cars against 142 cars a week ago. Six vessel cargoes of corn were reported today as having been chartered to leave Chicago at the opening of navigation. The oats market followed corn rather than wheat.

Widespread rains and snow relieving drought fears tended at first to ease wheat values down, but the Kansas weekly report was considered as rather bullish, and there were developments more or less foreshadowing reduction of spring wheat acreage in Canada as well as in the United States. Advices were also at hand saying the wheat crop in France is deteriorating as a result of too much rain. However, export business today in North American wheat was again lacking in volume, and total shipments of wheat from Canada and the United States appeared to be continuing much below the 9,000,000 bushel weekly quota estimated as necessary to furnish European requirements during the next 21 weeks.

Provisions reflected upturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat May 108 1-4-3-8, 109 7-8-110; July 104 1-2, 107 5-8; Sept. 106 1-4-3-8, 109 1-2-3-4. Corn May 82 3-4-7-8; 84 7-8-85; July 83 3-4-7-8, 85 3-4-7-8; September 83 3-4, 85 3-4.

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock exchange for $415,000, an increase of $5,000 over the previously recorded sale.

Operations of the steel industry are averaging around 74 per cent of rated capacity, Dow, Jones & Co. reported today. This figure represents a decrease of 2 per cent from last week's average and a drop of 5 per cent from that of two weeks ago.

Money was so plentiful in the call market today that it was offered at 2 per cent "outside," although the official stock exchange rate held at 3 per cent, following a renewal rate of 3 1-2. The "outside" rate was the lowest since January 11, 1925. Those conversant with money market conditions feel confident that "cheap" money will be available for some time, but they take pains in pointing out that the short-term overdraft operations of the treasury department are likely to result in slightly higher rates during the next few days.

WESTERLY

STONINGTON ASSAULT CASE BRINGS FINE AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 18.—In Stonington town court Tuesday morning, before Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck, Edward Joseph, of Stonington represented by Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, entered a demurrer to a complaint charging assault. Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher informed the court that the defendant had been apprehended March 8th in Stonington following the complaint of a woman who accused him of being in her home and grabbing her by the throat and later she sought help. A more serious assault charge was at first lodged against Joseph, the prosecutor said, but he had been in consultation with New London County Prosecutor Arthur M. Brown and the county official had recommended a change in the charge. Inasmuch as the defendant had been nearly a week in the New London county jail which had already caused some punishment he would not recommend any jail sentence but a substantial fine. Judge Wilcox overruled the demurrer, found the defendant guilty, and fined him $25 and costs.

John A. Geisers, 48, of Stonington, apprehended March 15th by State Police Officer Smith, pleaded guilty to the charge of reckless operation of an automobile March 15th on the Boston Post road when he was in collision with the rear of another auto on a curve north of Stonington town hall and neither foot or handbrakes were found to be in good order. He was fined $25 and costs of $12.95.

Frank M. Parker, 30, of 8 Summer street, Westerly, pleaded guilty to the operation March 15th, of a Chevrolet truck which did not have a plate showing the maximum capacity load weight and light weight. Parker paid a $5 fine.

Louis Thavenet, 23, 8 Moss street, Pawcatuck, pleaded guilty to having no windshield wiper as required by law. He paid a $5 fine and costs.

George Bailey, 51, of Westerly-Stonington road, pleaded guilty to the operation of an Overland truck with no plate showing weights. He was fined $5 and costs.

To save time in the disposition of the twenty-five cases before the court Prosecutor Hammacher then had the defendants names all read to learn how many were in court and to each name called there was a response. Other cases then disposed of were as follows: Angelo Cristina, 25, of 11 Downer street, Pawcatuck; Frank Grills, 32, of 11 Courtland street, Pawcatuck; Henry M. Button, 53, of 23 Stanton street, Pawcatuck; Robert B. Stenhouse, 17, of 44 Railroad avenue, Westerly; Angelo Algier, 26, of 2 Batterson avenue, Westerly; Joseph A. Crumb, 25, of 103 West Broad street, Pawcatuck; Dominic Cappizzano, 37, of 67 Tower street, Westerly; Richard Veevers, 39, of 14 Lockbridge street, Pawtucket; Samuel Kahn, 40, of 147 Canal street, Westerly; Paul J. Duval, of 495 Front street, New Bedford, Mass.; Edwin W. Tefft, 32, of Wyoming; John A. Hogan, 20, of 134 Tower street, Westerly; James Serra, 20, of 19 Perkins avenue, Westerly; George Provontial of 147 Hanover street, Providence; Joseph P. Keane, Jr., 18, of 43 Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck.

Dr. James H. Weeks, who has not been at Stonington town court sessions for a number of weeks due to illness, was a court attendant whom Judge Wilcox named as guardian ad litem for all defendants who were under age and who retired to the judge's room for conference before they returned to the court room to plead.

There were a number of cases reported as scheduled to come before the court, interest in which helped to swell the court attendance. Some of these cases were continued, or were not called at this session.

Defendants, John Christie, of North Stonington; Michael J. Carroll, 69 Brewster street, Providence, no reflector; Frank R. Severance, 294 Sayles street, Providence, truck driver for Cole Transportation Co., 251 Tockwotten street, Providence; John H. Hill, John Stefanski and Elmer C. Merritt of Stonington, who were arrested Saturday through their attorneys requested continuance of their cases for a week, and it was granted them.

Nastralio Facchione, 27 Willetts avenue, New London, was fined $10 and costs, double the others, because he was found without a 1930 driving license.

Three automobile drivers who had violated traffic ordinances in Pawcatuck were also before the court, all on complaint of Officer George Seidel.

Dominic Castagna, 21, of R. F. D., No. 2, Westerly, who illegally parked his car on the West Broad street bridge a week ago.

Thomas Saddow, 34, of Westerly, arrested Saturday night for parking his car within ten feet of a hydrant on Coggswell street, was fined $5 and costs. Saddow claimed he came to the business section Saturday night shortly before 9 o'clock and could find no other place to park. He said he had to leave his machine in order to buy provisions before the stores closed.

Stanley P. White, of North Stonington, arrested March 11 for cutting to the left of the traffic beacon on West Broad street, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs.

PAWTUCKET COMPANY GETS JUNIOR H. S. CONTRACT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 18.—The general contract for the building of the $500,000 Westerly junior high school, to be located on Highland, Park and Ward avenues, was awarded Tuesday evening at a meeting of the building committee held in the offices of Superintendent of Schools Willard H. Bacon. The award was made to the Rowley Construction Co. of Pawtucket, R. I., whose bid, the third lowest, was $304,000.

The time of the meeting was taken up mostly by the signing of the contract for the Rowley Co., by Van Rowley and his partner and the members of the building committee, Thomas Perry, Daniel F. Larkin and Mrs. Helen S. Price of the school committee and Clifford W. Campbell, Frank A. Sullivan, with Willard H. Bacon, clerk. The bond for the full amount of the construction was also executed by the building committee. The meeting adjourned at 9:45.

At the next meeting of the building committee on next Thursday evening contracts will be awarded for the plumbing, heating, ventilating, electrical work and painting, on which bids were opened Tuesday, March 11. Representatives of the various labor organizations of Westerly were present at the committee meeting when assurances were given that, insofar as possible, Westerly labor would be employed at the prevailing Westerly scales for labor.

EARLY MORNING SUMMONS FOR LIBERTY ST. FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 18—Pawcatuck Fire company, No. 1, responded Tuesday at 7:45 to an alarm from Box No. 63, Liberty and Smith streets, Pawcatuck. The hook and ladder and small motor trucks went out for the chimney fire at 88 Liberty street, in the house owned and occupied by Mrs. Maria Castagno, widow of Joseph Castagno. An upper apartment is occupied by her son, Thomas Castagno, while the other apartment is unoccupied. When a fire was made in a stove in the house the chimney caught fire and the fire department was called. Firemen took a line of hose from the booster pump to the roof, also into the chimney openings on the upper floors of the house to extinguish the blaze. Recall was sounded at 8:20 a. m. The damage was mostly from smoke and water.

MRS. JOSEPH TAYLOR STRUCK BY CAR OF J. A. WHEELER

About 8 o'clock Tuesday morning as Mrs. Sarah Taylor, widow of Joseph Taylor, and housekeeper for Gideon Palmer, at 147 Main street, was crossing High street from the Colonial club property toward the Opie stores she was struck and knocked down by the Ford coach owned and driven by J. Alton Wheeler, 33, of the Road district, Stonington. Wheeler claimed that he was driving his auto northward along High street at a rate of speed from 15 to 20 miles, when suddenly Mrs. Taylor stepped from between two automobiles parked at the curb and started to run across the street. He applied the brakes and the skid mark on the highway showed the auto went some 19 feet before stopping. Mrs. Taylor struck on the hard highway surface, causing a bad laceration over her left eye from which blood flowed freely. She was taken to the office of Dr. J. Gordon Anderson where it was found that she had not been badly injured. Patrolman Robert M. Kessel was the investigating officer and Wheeler was given a summons for the Third District court Friday morning.

Mrs. Taylor was taken to the private hospital for further observation.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Ethel E. Roy, who passed away a year ago today, March 19th, 1929.

Safe and lonely, softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly,
In her lonely, silent grave.

More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within our hearts concealed.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR ROY, HORTENSE AND EMERY ROY.

LYNN SMITH, NEW LONDON, SWALLOWS NICKEL POLISH FOR COUGH MIXTURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 18—Lynn Smith, janitor of the Hull building, 46 Main street, swallowed poison by mistake tonight, but discovered his error in time so that he could obtain medical treatment. As a result of the timely discovery of the swallowing of the poisonour liquid, Smith will recover for it was not necessary to cause him to be taken to a hospital. He is under medical care at his apartment and the physician announced that the man will recover. Smith went to the furnace room early this evening and he has been suffering from a severe cold several days. He had a bottle of medicine there and close to the shelf where the cough remedy was stored, there was a bottle containing nickel polish. In the dimly lighted room, Smith seized a bottle, believing that he had the container of the medicine, when in reality the bottle was that which held the liquid for polishing nickel. Placing the bottle to his lips, Smith swallowed a quantity of the polish, but instantly realized his mistake. A physician was summoned and administered an antidote, which gave immediate relief to the janitor. After Smith had been pronounced out of danger, he was put to bed and it is believed that within a few days he will experience no ill-effects from his careless act.

Hospital Patient Returned

Andrew Calbanico, 16, of Bridgeport, a patient at Norwich State hospital, Preston, escaped from the institution about 6 o'clock this morning. He walked to Gales Ferry, where at 10 o'clock he boarded a bus for New London. The driver, Charles Reardon, observed the queer actions of Calbanico and at the submarine base, communicated with the state police barracks, expressing the opinion that the passenger had escaped from the asylum. Officer Arthur Whitmarsh went to the Thames river highway bridge and awaited the arrival of the bus. Calbanico was taken from the bus and returned to the asylum.

BRAVERY MEDAL READY FOR PATROLMAN RIORDAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 18—A special meeting of the city council will be held in the municipal building tomorrow evening, at which time Patrolman Edward Riordan will be presented a medal in recognition of an act of bravery. The conferring of this honor upon the officer is the first of its kind ever to be made a paid servant of the city and is the result of the officer shooting Frank Lipka, after Riordan had, himself, been shot when the robber and gunman was attempting to escape arrest. Riordan was on duty at the corner of Williams and Broad street several months ago about 5 o'clock in the morning. Lipka had robbed two stores and held up the attendant in a lunch wagon when he started to get out of the city by going to the Hartford turnpike. Arriving at the corner where Riordan was on duty, the officer's attention was attracted to the pedestrian because of Lipka's fast walking and that he was a stranger. When Riordan questioned Lipka and the latter declared that he was in New London seeking work, Riordan disbelieved the story and ordered Lipka to accompany the officer to police headquarters. The youthful bandit pulled a revolver and opened fire on the officer and at the same time fleeing through Williams park. Riordan, although wounded, pulled his revolver and gave chase, his fire resulting in Lipka receiving a superficial abdominal wound. Lipka ran through the Post Hill section and Riordan was forced to relinquish the chase because of his wound. Lipka continued to Bayonet street and to Chesterfield where he was captured after the woodland had been surrounded by a cordon of about 50 members of the New London and state police departments. Lipka is now serving a long term in the state prison at Wethersfield. Riordan, who was a hospital patient many weeks, recently resumed patrol duty.

Runaways From Bay State

Oscar Bloomstrom and George Wilson, youths who claimed to reside in Boston, but who are runaways from their home in Readville, Mass., were arrested here during the early hours of this morning. The boys were observed loitering at the union station by Special Agent James Daly. When the officer questioned the pair he was certain that the boys were runaways, but locked them up on a technical charge of vagrancy. They were presented in the police court today and their cases continued until tomorrow that a check-up of their stories could be made. It finally developed that the youths ran away from home several days ago. Their parents have been notified and arrangements will be made for the return of the youths to Readville. When arrested Wilson had in his possession a huge knife of the type used by Boy Scouts.

SAILOR VIOLATES LAW—COMMITTED TO JAIL

Lance Chitwood sailor, stationed at the submarine base, was presented in the police court this morning charged with reckless driving and driving without a license. He was fined $25 and costs on the former charge and on the latter count a penalty of $10 and costs was imposed. Chitwood was unable to pay, so was committed to jail. In court, Chitwood attempted to intimate that because he was in the service of the federal government he was immune from penalization for violating the law, but when he was taxed about $50, Chitwood realized that he, like all others, must obey the law. Chitwood was arrested last night by Patrolman Edward Skoczylas and was riding a motorcycle. When Chitwood's operation of the motor vehicle attracted the attention of the officer, the sailor was held up and it was then determined that he had been drinking, but he was not intoxicated. He did not have a license and it developed that Chitwood was using the registration of another sailor, E. H. Rice, in an effort to violate the law.

J. H. Hall, U. S. Coast Guard, was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. The court imposed a fine of $10 and costs on the former count, and a nolle was ordered on the second charge. Although Hall pleaded guilty to the complaint charging him with intoxication, when questioned by the court he declared that he was absolutely sober. Hall was arrested last night by Patrolman Skoczylas when the officer observed the sailor as the latter deliberately kicked a receptacle containing refuse into the highway at the corner of State and Main streets.

A dozen cases of intoxication were tried, for the police, Monday afternoon and night, renewed their efforts to rid the vicinity of North Bank street of its batch of drunks. Two, who were given suspension of judgment when presented in the police court Monday upon their promise to go to their employment at Fishers Island were sentenced to 30 days in jail each by Judge Daniel M. Cronin, for the men lost no time in becoming drunk. Another victim of drink, who was given suspension of judgment today, will be in court again tomorrow for he succeeded in getting drunk a few hours after the adjournment of court and was again arrested.

Elias Moukawsher, 120 Williams street, Mrs. Earl Chapman and infant daughter, Broad street extension, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

MYSTIC

Mrs. Ralph Hodgson and two sons, who have been spending the winter in A. W. Burrows' house, Old Mystic, are now staying with Mrs. Hodgson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Staplyn, of Burnet's Corner. Mr. and Mrs. Burrows have been spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Norvin Smith and family, of Wilmington, N. C., and are expected home at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Gates, of Providence, spent the week end at their summer home on the River road, near Old Mystic.

Mystic grange, No. 171, P. of H., is to meet Thursday evening.

Hazardous Fires

Fires seem to be numerous in Mystic during the past week. Saturday afternoon, a blaze was started near the railroad station, presumably from a spark from a passing train lighting in the grass. The blaze crept up to a pile of creosoted poles. When these started burning, the dense black smoke was easily seen in Old Mystic, three miles away. The fire companies were called and when they arrived, the building of the Mystic Chemical company was blazing. Windows were broken and after some hard fighting, the fire was subdued, with a small amount of damage. High voltage wires broke and added great danger to anyone near, especially to the firemen. No one was injured. Another fire, Sunday, started up on Pequot avenue and extended down to High street. All available men nearby had to go out and fight the flames, as there is plenty of dead grass and the wind was blowing very hard. Still another fire Sunday afternoon which called out the fire company, was a grass fire on Mason's Island. Over an hour of hard work was required to quench this one. Had the firemen not been alert, many cottages of summer residents would have gone up in smoke, as there are not enough persons staying through the winter to fight a stubborn fire.

Mrs. Charles H. Burdick, who has been confined to her home for the past three weeks with septic sore throat, is improving slowly.

Edward Welles, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Welles, of Old Mystic, is able to be out of doors, after being confined to his home by a light attack of scarlet fever. No other cases have been noted in Old Mystic yet. Mrs. Daisy Jones and Miss Catherine Keeney, who have had the fever have both recovered.

The teachers of the Old Mystic school were in Stonington Monday afternoon where they attended a teachers' meeting presided over by Prof. W. R. Snyder.

Monday afternoon at 3:45, at St. Patrick's church, the children who are to receive their first holy communion, probably in May, were given instructions by Rev. J. P. Kennedy, the pastor.

Charity and Relief lodge, A. F. and A. M. met in Masonic temple Tuesday evening. The fellowcraft degree was conferred on a class.

Addressed Voters' League

Mystic League of Women Voters met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. John Rossie, of Reynolds Hill. Mrs. C. C. Cutler, chairman of the committee on education, was in charge of the program. She gave a very interesting talk on the cost of educating the pupils of the town of Groton, both to the state and own. Mrs. Cutler has examined the 1929 records, and it was from this information that she gathered her facts.

Charles Reynolds and Benjamin Hewitt, Oscar Foote, of Mystic and partner, of New London, S. S. Brown MacKenzie and Clark Barnes and Harry C. Allyn and partner, all of Mystic, have signified their intentions of playing in the second annual elimination bridge tournament of James W. Harvey post, No. 58, American Legion, of Stonington. More women have entered this tournament than have entered any other so far.

Several students and their friends were in Stonington Monday evening where they attended the St. Patrick's dance held in the town hall, given by the girls of the senior class of Stonington high school. Music was furnished by William Squadrito's orchestra.

Spring is surely on the way—children are playing marbles, flying kites and playing baseball. Many of the kites og away, never to return, perhaps in the very top of an exceedingly tall tree, over the telephone wires and over someone's aerial. Some of the older residents have forgotten when they liked to play and fly kites and are very much disgusted when the kite string gets tangled up in one of their pet trees, or perhaps a baseball goes through a window.

Broadway Theatre.

Would you be thrilled by fraternising with a clique of international jewel thieves, or with spring on the way, do your thoughts lightly turn to romance and lilting music? Or maybe you'd like a little of both. Then, Mr. and Mrs. Public and all the little Publics, hie yourselves to the Broadway, where the perfect sound equipment will unfold two of the most satisfying talking pictures for your pleasure. Clive Brook, that smooth, polished, Englishman with the thrilling voice, is a society "lone wolf," with a flair for expensive jewels, who craves possession of a certain string of pearls, owned and flaunted by a noisy, talkative American, newly rich, who with his family is "crashing" the gates of society on the Riviera. Evelyn Brent, also a crook of some repute, is the tool of an international ring, headed by the sinister Paul Lukas, who dominates the woman despite her efforts to break away and "go straight." Forced into an attempt to steal the same jewels, her path crosses that of Brook, and amid a series of exciting adventures, the jewels are stolen, recovered and stolen again, culminating in a wild climax, as unexpected as it is exciting. Eugene Pallette is the blustery Yank, and the supporting cast is equally well known.

In the companion feature Bebe Daniels, fresh from her laurels in "Rio Rita," deserts her Spanish roles for that of an American cafe singer, stranded on a Central American island, ruled by a swaggering "jefe" who "loves the ladies." His career is rudely ended with the advent of a tramp steamer, with Lloyd Hughes as a bucko mate in search of a thrill, accompanied by the gloomy Ned Sparks, a cynical engineer. Hughes, by the way, has developed a surprisingly good tenor voice, which is used to advantage with the lovely Bebe in many tender duets. The latter's rich voice has an even greater opportunity than in Rio Rita, and her many vocal numbers will delight her hearers. The scenic effects on the little island of Caparajo, which is clearly seen on the maps of romance, are extremely beautiful, and there are many audacious shots of the exotic cafe and hotel. Fox movietone news with late shots from the baseball camps completes the program. In preparation for Saturday's program change is Radio's big U. S. naval musical show "Hit the Deck," with Jack Oakie, Polly Walker and a thousand others, much of the fast action taking place on the main deck of the U. S. S. West Virginia.

Palace Theatre.

"Loose Ankles" and "The Racketeer," two of the finest of the current harvest of talking pictures, have been selected as the double feature program at the Palace for today, Thursday and Friday. They are admirably suited for such a program, inasmuch as one is a somber melodrama and the other a light, airy and delightful dancing comedy romance.

Robert Armstrong, noted star and Carol Lombard, one of the screen's loveliest women, are featured in The Racketeer, which is a picture story of society life and the underworld. The action takes part mostly in the upper circles of wealth and fashion in New York city, and is considered to be one of the most daring exposes of gangster life that has ever been put on the screen.

In The Racketeer one glimpses the giant octopus of crime that clutches with its tentacles into every nook and cranny of the city. One meets and listens to the controlling genius of this vast and vicious network. One sees the wheels of justice fumbling, groping, striving to bring the underworld wolves to bay, but not often succeeding. One sees also a tragedy in the social world, the tragedy of a woman caught by fate and whirled into the society of the most notorious racketeer in the metropolis. Out of this welter of sensation arises a sharply cut story, dealing ruthlessly with the times, yet interwoven with a romance that is all the sweeter for its drab setting.

The screen's most romantic love team collaborate in Loose Ankles. By these we mean handsome Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his charming partner, Loretta Young. These two produce a comedy that is a constant laugh. In the first place they have a plot that is marvelous. It's almost a shame to give away the details of this killing story, but we may say that it concerns a woman who is willing, nay eager to pay some man $5,000 to marry her.

Is she an old maid? you may ask. Well, come and see. Come and decide how quickly any young man might snap up that delightful offer. You will be thrilled and delighted by the audacity of this film, by its undertones which occasionally send the audience breaking out into uncontrollable laughter, and constantly keep it highly amused and diverted.

Success Came Late in Life

"For the first time in years I am able to eat the things I like without becoming nauseated, and suffering cutting pains afterward, and lying awake hour after hour unable to sleep," says Mrs. Marion L. Foenges of 509 Cass St., Chicago. "Ever since I started taking Acidine I am clear of all that. At first I took a dose after each meal. Now I take one at night and another after I get up—my stomach is so sweet I am eating whatever I want, and my nerves are calm, now."

That shows how easy it is for people with a sick, sour stomach to help themselves now. It is usually caused by excesive acidity from failure to digest starchy foods. ACIDINE liquifies the souring mass, sweetens the stomach, the inflammation is soothed and the tension on the nerves is relieved Try ACIDINE. It tastes good and costs so little at any drug store.

WILL MAKE PROTEST PETITION TO PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting was held Tuesday night in the Norwich chamber of commerce rooms with representatives of the Putnam chamber of commerce, and with Chairman Archibald Macdonald, Jr., of the railroad service committee of the Putnam chamber of commerce, presiding. The meeting resolved itself into a general discussion of the fact that the New Haven railroad system had eliminated its passenger service between New London and Worcester, thereby cutting all the communities in this important item of transportation facilities with the result that the future interests and business contacts of this entire area are badly jeopardized.

It was further brought out that it would appear that the New Haven had decided to use this particular branch of their system for the fast through freight to the exclusion of the requirements of the people who number in round figures more than 100,000 in the territory which this line was built to serve. Another point developed was the fact that Norwich and the other communities were entirely without any connecting contact with the through passenger service between New York and Boston on the shore line. It now is the case that passengers for Norwich arriving at New London must use the bus lines and cannot make a through passage.

So apparent to the meeting was the fact that unless drastic action was taken to prevent the New Haven system from continuing their policy of eliminating Norwich and the other communities served by this branch that the meeting decided to proceed with a petition to be filed with the public utilities commission of the state wherein the conditions prevailing today will be brought officially before this body and the New Haven system ordered to restore to this section of the state its passenger train service with its mail and baggage service.

As soon as the petitions have been prepared by the Putnam chamber of commerce, who have taken the leadership in this movement to restore the passenger train service betwen New London and Worcester, the same will be filed with the Norwich chamber of commerce, Jewett City, and all other communities along the line. In this well-directed effort it is believed that the matter will be brought to the attention of the utilities commission in the form of a complaint which will be made the subject of a general hearing at some future date to be set by the commission.

Among the many phases of the railroad situation brought out at the meeting it was brought to the attention of the meeting that the Central Vermont were maintaining a regular train schedule that brought general approval by those whom this line served, which was in great contrast to the attitude of the New Haven with respect to its obligation and franchise rights, so far as the people along the New London and Worcester branch were concerned.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER NIGHT AT SPECIAL SERVICES

A splendid audience gathered at the Central Baptist church Tuesday night in attendance upon the "New Life" services now being conducted by Dr. Charles H. Stull. It was mother and daughter night, though there were many men and boys present, also. A large delegation from the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, consisting mostly of young men, was present. Miss Young of New London sang a solo.

The evangelist selected for the subject of his address, "The Things that Satisfy in Life." He said that human life was a cup all had to drink, but that what was to be found in it was largely decided by the character of the individual. He dwelt upon the satisfactions people seek in material prosperity; worldly honors; and the fruits which are gathered from pure knowledge. "But human beings," said the speaker, "are so constituted that they grow weary after a while of all these things, for man wants something more in life than a suit of clothes, a house to dwell in, and some place to visit." He affirmed that life's best satisfactions are in the fellowships, services, and sacrifices we make for others, for their welfare and happiness. "Motherhood has demonstrated to mankind that the real glory and happiness of life lies in the direction of self-renunciation," Dr. Stull said. "The highest symbol of true Christianity is the cross, for it crosses our selfishness, stands across our path to ease and gain, and throws a shadow upon every act of selfishness and self-will."

The meetings are attracting attention. Wednesday night is church school night when it is expected that all Sunday school classes will attend. Dr. Stull is being warmly received and his messages are drawing forth favorable expressions.

EVANGELISM CONFERENCE OF BAPTIST MINISTERS

SECURES $4,166 VERDICT AGAINST RAILROAD COMPANY

A verdict for $4,166 damages was awarded Anthony Silva of New London against the New Haven railroad by a jury in the superior court at New London at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The case was given to the jury at 1 o'clock, after which court took a recess until 2 o'clock, the jury being out half an hour. Silva had brought suit for $10,000.

The suit rose over Silva's automobile being struck by a train of the New Haven railroad early one morning several months ago at the Maple avenue crossing in New London. The automobile was carried 200 feet down the tracks by the train, but in some miraculous manner Silva escaped death. Later he complained of kidney trouble and subsequently brought suit for $10,000.

The railroad company attorney contended that the accident was a result of negligence by Silva and that any injuries he received were superficial.

TRYING $10,000 SUIT OVER CELLULOID FIRE

A jury was chosen in the superior court at New London Tuesday afternoon and presentation of the plaintiff's case was about half presented when court adjourned for the day in trial of the $10,000 suit of Agostino Alfieri, administrator of the estate of Joseph Spinnato, a minor, against the Schwartz Leather Co. and Arthur Messer. Attorney B. H. Hewitt is appearing for the plaintiff and Max Boyer for the defendants.

The suit is the outcome of the celluloid fire at the Spinnato home in Jefferson avenue, New London, a year ago last January when Joseph Spinnato was burned to death. Lena Spinnato and Mrs. Lena DiMarco lost their lives in the same fire. The family was engaged in sewing celluloid into pocketbooks when from some cause the highly inflammable material burst into flames which engulfed the room.

The defendants named are Abraham, Aaron and Hyman Schwartz of Colchester and Arthur Messer of New London, operators of the Schwartz Leather company in Garfield avenue.

Damage suits have also been brought in behalf of the estates of the other two victims of the fire and also in behalf of other members of the family who were badly burned in the fire.

TWO AUTOMOBILES DAMAGED IN NELSON PLACE FIRE

One automobile was badly wreskeed, the paint on another blistered and the interior of a garage scorched, in an early morning fire Tuesday on Nelson place. The fire was discovered at 3.40 o'clock by Herbert M. Booth of No. 6 Nelson place, who had just arrived home from The Bulletin office where he is employed at night. Mr. Booth sent in a telephone call to Engine No. 6, West Thames street, and that company with Chief Henry R. Taft, Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan and Squad A responded.

The flaming machine, a Pontiac sedan, owned by Harry Carlson of No. 14 Nelson place, was pushed from the two-car garage into the street where the fire was extinguished with chemical and water. The other machine in the garage, a Hupmobile sedan, owned by Charles H. Standish of No. 124 West Thames street, was considerably damaged as the paint on one side and the top was blistered from the intense heat.

Mr. Carlsen left the machine in the garage about one o'clock Tuesday morning. It is thought that a spark from a pipe or cigar was responsible for the blaze. Both machines are insured. The garage is owned by Frank Comstock.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED IN PROPERTY SUIT

The $9,000 suit brought by Daisy Duggan and Arthur G. Davis of Waterford against Clarence E. Pierce as executor of the estate of Ernest L. Davis, late of Putnam, was settled out of court and withdrawn from the docket of the superior court in New London on Tuesday.

The plaintiffs claimed they were joint owners of property left them by their grandmother, Laura L. Davis, located at Pine Grove, Niantic, valued at $6,000. They alleged that the late Ernest L. Davis, while pretending to be administrator of their grandfather's estate, sold the property in question to Mrs. Carrie A. Alden of Niantic, and failed to turn over the proceeds to the plaintiffs and that in his will no provisions were made by which they were to receive the money claimed due.

A family doctor's laxative is the sensible choice!

YOUR health is too important! This applies not only to grown people; it is particularly the case where young children are concerned.

That's why a family doctor's laxative is always the safe choice! Only a doctor knows just what will cleanse the system of men, women or children without harm.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is prepared today under strict supervision from freshest herbs and other pure ingredients, and exactly according to Dr. Caldwell's original prescription.

He was a family doctor for more than forty-seven years. He specialized in the disorders of the digestive tract. He tested this prescription in thousands of cases. Men liked its quick and thorough action; the children liked its pleasant taste; old people praised it because it never gripes.

Today, millions of families rely on Dr. Caldwell's judgment in the selection of their laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is now sold in all drug stores. It is the world's largest selling laxative.

FAVORS 100-YEAR TRIAL PERIOD FOR PROHIBITION

Statement Made By Former Secretary of the Navy Daniels—Maintained That Should Enforcement Cost $300,000,000 Annually For a Century It Would Save the Country $300,000,000,000 In the Cost of Liquor In That Period—Prohibition Was Extolled In Views of the Late Chief Justice Taft and Commander Booth of the Salvation Army.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The views of the late William Howard Taft and of Josephus Daniels and Commander Evangeline Booth that prohibition had improved the social order from the slums to institutions of higher learning were laid before the house judiciary committee today by dry advocates.

The late chief justice, in a letter read to the committee and a copy of a speech submitted by his brother, Horace D. Taft, of Watertown, Connecticut, extolled prohibition and urged observance of the law from a point of "good sportsmanship."

Josephus Daniels, who as secretary of the navy under Woodrow Wilson made the naval forces dry declared the dry laws should be given 100 years of trial even if it cost $300,000,000 annually to enforce them. He said that during the hundred years prohibition would save the country $300,000,000,000 in liquor costs.

A statement from Commander Booth of the Salvation Army said that at the coming of prohibition conditions in the slums changed.

"The ten cent 'flop' is discarded for the 35 cent room and the guest had the wherewithal to pay his way," she said.

William S. Bennett, a former member of the house from New York, who no wives in Chicago, testified that industry was more entitled to the credit for the growth of sentiment that resulted in the 18th amendment than were the "churches and the temperance societies put together." He described conditions he attributed to liquor traffic before enactment of the dry laws and said that modern industry demanded sobriety of its workers.

Resuming their testimony for their sixth day before the committee, the drys made a quiet attack today on the arguments presented by anti-prohibitionists. Although the committee room was crowded as usual with men and women, demonstrations were infrequent and quiet as compared with previous sessions when prohibitionists were being heard.

At the conclusion the drys announced only one witness for tomorrow Daniel C. Roper, a former commissioner of internal revenue, is scheduled to appear. Mrs. Lenna Lowe Yost, a member of the legislative committee of the National Association of Organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment, planned to read a statemetn from Professor Irving Fisher, of aYle university, on the benefits of prohibition. A statement from Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, probably will be offered for introduction by Deets Pickett, his secretary.

Commander Booth's remarks were presented by Colonel H. W. Jenkins of the Salvation Army.

In Salvation Army hotels in the pre-prohibition days, her brief said, between 25 and 33 per cent of the men in them were under the influence of intoxicating liquors. During a recent smallpox scare in Chicago, it added, 500 men in a hotel were vaccinated and not one of them was found to be under the influence of drink. Her statement said Bowery workers in New York, "still declared without the slightest hesitation that conditions are fully 70 per cent better in every way than before the prohibition law was enacted."

Commander Booth wrote prohibition had not resulted in forcing the Salvation Army to take care of girls of tender years as compared with pre-prohibition days. She said that greater freedom and the wider use of automobiles were "a fruitful source today of youthful misconduct."

Mr. Taft, who is head master of the Taft school for boys at Watertown, Conn., told the committee his brother had opposed the eighteenth amendment before its adoption but that after the will of the people had been expressed, he advocated observance and respect of prohibition.

He read his brother's letter, which was written to Irving Fisher at Yale in November, 1928. The chief justice had written that "while looking ahead I despaired of any success," but added, "I really think that it is possible, if we keep at it, to achieve a satisfactory result."

Taft said his brother's former position after enactment had never been made clear to the public and he resented the use by wet advocates of letters written by his brother before he altered his views. Noting that his brother had opposed it previously, Mr. Taft said.

"When, however, the amendment was adopted and the law passed he became convinced that both of them were beyond repeal and that the policy was here to stay and that all good citizens must observe the law and do all in their power to help its enforcement. There is no excuse whatever for misunderstanding this."

TO MATERIALLY DECREASE VOLUME OF UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—Although no substantial gains in industry were reported for February, the department of labor said today that business and industry "appears to be consolidating the progress made in January for an expected upturn in employment during the spring months."

Citing indications that a widespread county and municipal highway building program involving over $1,500,000,000 will afford employment to an army of workers and that the public utilities companies are to expend $3,250,000,000 this year, the department said:

"With these various projects underway there will be a large demand for labor, which will materially decrease the volume of unemployment apparent at the close of February."

MOSCOW, March 19—(AP)—Twenty-four skilled American watchmakers formerly employed by the Duber Hampden works at Canton, Ohio, arrived here today. They will establish the first watch factory in Russia and will try to teach their art to natives.

The men came here under a one year renewable contract with the government. They will work on a guild system, something like that which prevailed in the middle ages.

The government also announced that it had acquired control of an American factory manufacturing dollar watches. It was declared that the soviet hopes to produce one million cheap watches and 300,000 full jewel timepieces annually.

Crossman, attached to the Canaan barracks, had been warned early in the day to serch for the escaped men. Details of the arrest had not been received at headquarters this afternoon.

CATHOLICS PROTEST SOVIET WAR ON RELIGION

VATICAN CITY, March 19—(AP)—Roman Catholics throughout the world, led by Pope Pius XI, today united in a great spiritual protest against anti-religious persecutions in soviet Russia.

Pope Pius himself presided at an intercessory mass in St. Peter's basilica before a huge congregation of 70,000 persons.

Sonorous Slavonic Cantacles chanted by a specially composed choir of Slavic ecclesiastics and seminarians alternated with the more sombre music sung by then on-Russians at the solemn mass. Representatives of the people for whom he prayed accompanied the pontiff with their own strangely thrilling music virtually turning St. Peter's into a Russian national cathedral for the occasion.

The service opened with a chant by the sistine choir which was followed by the "Introit" or introduction to the mass.

Soon after the choir broke into the chant of the "Kyrie Eleison" (Lord have mercy on us), the pope then read the prayer of the pontiff which he followed with the Nicene creed, the entire congregation taking it up.

During the service the pope included with the "Memorare" to St. Joseph, whose feast comes today, calling upon him to "Remember that it has never been known that anyone invoking thy help or solicited thy patronage without obtaining relief. Thou, the adopted Father of the Eternal Son, [illegible] my prayer and plead for my necessities."

PRICE FOR RANSOM INCREASED BY ABDUCTORS

SAN ANGELO, Tex., March 19—(AP)—While relatives here today were attempting to negotiate the release of J. E. Bristow, 60, American oil operator kidnapped by Mexican bandits near Tepic, Narayit word was received that [illegible] had been demanded, instead of 3,000 pesos as first reported.

Frederick Yenny at Tepic in a telegram to relatives of the oil operator at San Angelo, today reported Bristow left Tepic March 6 with Charles Fields and Alfonso Acequera. Four days later, Yenny stated, Bristow and his companions were kidnapped and Bristow held for 10,000 pesos ransom.

Fields, Yenny said, was given a signed check by Bristow with which to obtain ransom money but the bank refused to honor it. Acequera, he added, escaped. Yenny also reported the military was trying to locate the bandits and that it was "impossible to get in touch with Bristow."

A message from the American consul at Juarez, Mexico, said an "emissary from the bandits was expected at Tepic at any time."

RAIDERS FOUND OPIUM IN CHINESE LAUNDRY

BRISTOL, March 19.—(AP)— Police and federal agents tonight raided a laundry conducted by William Joe, a Chinese, and found opium valued at $150 and a smoking pipe. He was held under $500 bond.

Police said the pipe had been taken apart and hidden in four separate places. The opium, also, had been distributed in three jars.

DEFENSE STATEMENT BY MAJ. CHARLES A. SHEPARD

DENVER, Colo., March 19.—(AP)—Major Charles A. Shepard, U. S. army officer in jail here charged with the murder of his wife at Fort Riley, Kansas, last June, today, in an interview, said he became engaged to wed Miss Grace Brandon, 23-year-old Brooks Field, Texas, stenographer, eight months after the death of his wife.

Explaining that his wife was the victim "of a tragic habit," Major Shepard said "I did everything in my power as husband and physician to free her from the habit, but to no avail."

He denied that he had poisoned his wife, as charged by federal agents and declared he submitted to a blood transfusion in an effort to save her life.

"Does that look as though I wanted to be rid of her?" he asked.

Reports from Fort Riley said that the officer ascribed his wife's condition to the use of liquor.

Major Shepard said he met Miss Brandon at Brooks Field in 1928 where he took a course in aviation surgery before his wife's death. After the cremation of his wife's body in Los Angeles, he said he went to San Antonio where he again saw Miss Brandon. He said he expressed the hope then that the friendship between them might "become a deeper sentiment as time went on."

SENATE VOTES AGAINST TARIFF ON CRUDE OIL

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—Climaxing seven hours of bitter personal encounters over charges of "vote trading" and clashes over tactics of its lobby investigating committee, the senate went on record twice tonight against tariff protection for oil and petroleum products.

The first vote was 38 to 29 against an amendment by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, for a duty of one dollar a barrel on crude oil and 50 per cent. ad valorem on gasoline and other by-products. Except for a provision to apply the revenues to road construction pending determination of a proper levy by the tariff commission, the proposal was identical to the one rejected last month.

Senator Pine, republican, Oklahoma, attempted a compromise by proposing a duty of 50 cents a barrel on crude and 25 per cent. on by-products. This was turned down 32 to 28.

Two senators who voted against the higher Thomas amendment supported the Pine proposal. They were Hale, Maine, and Keyes, New Hampshire, both republicans.

HOUSE AGAINST $750,000 INCREASE FOR BOSTON P. O.

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—The senate amendment to the first deficiency bill to raise the cost limit of the new Boston postoffice from $6,000,000 to $6,750,000 was overwhelmingly rejected today by the house and ordered back to conference after a long debate over the respective merits of granite and limestone in government construction work.

Five members of the Massachusetts house delegation including Edith Nourse Rogers, combined forces in support of the amendment. They were joined by a number of members from other states, but failed to assemble enough votes to cope with the strong opposition headed by members of the appropriations committee.

The proposed increase was designed to permit the use of granite in the construction instead of limestone.

CONDEMNING APPOINTMENT OF NEGRO TO JUDGESHIP

AUSTIN, Tex., March 19—(AP)—Condemning the nomination by President Hoover of a Negro for appointment to a judgeship in the District of Columbia, State Senator Thomas J. Holbrook of Galveston today introduced a resolution in the Texas senate calling upon the Brookhart congressional committee to conduct a further investigation on republican patronage practices. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

Jobless Men Raided Pastry Laden Trucks

Deserted Bread Line In Front of Salvation Army In the Bowery, New York.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—More than 1,000 jobless men deserted a bread line in front of the Salvation Army in the Bowery today and [illegible]ded two automobile trucks load[illegible]th pastry as they drew up i[illegible] of the place.

The trucks were loade[illegible] bread, rolls, jelly rolls, and [illegible] which a bakery had donate[illegible]tribution to the men.

As the hungry [illegible]hed at the trucks, ripped o[illegible]r doors and jerked the ba[illegible], pastry rolled out into the [illegible]nd were trampled on.

Guards stationed inside the hotel, where meal tickets are distributed daily to about 1,800 men, aided by police quelled the riot and rescued part of the pastry.

Lieut. Col. Wallace Winchell, director of the hotel, attributed the riot to the fact that the meals supplied to the men consist usually of stew and coffee, and that they seldom receive pastry.

DISPUTE BETWEEN COUNSEL IN DOHENY BRIBERY CASE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Disputes between counsel in the Doheny bribery case over what each side wished Justice William Hitz to include in his instructions to the jury today, delayed the starting of closing arguments in the case.

Doheny's defense to the government charge that he paid Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, $100,000 for a lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, had ended a while before.

Former officers of his company corroborated his own testimony that he had nothing to do with the negotiations for the Pearl Harbor naval oil storage contract. This contract contained a clause which eventually led to the Elk Hills lease being awarded Doheny's company. Additional character witnesses also testified.

The defense succeeded in getting into the charge to the jury instructions that untrue statements that Fall made as to where he received the money were not to be considered in determining Doheny's guilt or innocence, and instructions that Fall, already convicted of bribery, might be guilty under the law and Doheny not guilty. This was the chief objective of the defense in its arguments and the jury will be so instructed.

The government, however, was equally successful in getting into the charge instructions that it was admitted that Doheny delivered $100,000 to Fall.

NEAR RIOT AT MEETING OF LOFT CANDY STOCKHOLDERS

NEW YORK, Marc 19.—(AP)— The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Loft Candy company ended in a near riot here today and uniformed policemen were called in to preserve order. Alfred R. Miller, president of the company, adjourned the meeting without transacting any business.

After the adjournment, an insurgent group of stockholders who are seeking to wrest control of the company from Miller, convened and elected a new board of directors, headed by Mathew J. Sullivan.

The insurgents were led by Charles G. Guth, former vice president of the company, who has been seeking to oust Miller since last January when he was voted out of office.

Nearly all of the 200 persons who were in the meeting room apparently were Guth's supporters and fist fights nearly developed between them and officials of the company in the arguments that followed.

A call was sent in for the police and Miller ordered the company's records taken from the room and locked in the safe.

BRITISH FREIGHTER WAS SEIZED ON LIBEL ORDER

SEATTLE, Wash, March 19—(AP)—Carried by adverse currents into the American half of the Strait of Juan De Fuca, the British freighter Chief Capilano was seized today on a libel order obtained by Dant and Russell, Inc., Portland, Oregon shippers, and taken to Port Townsend, Wash., by U. S. Deputy Marshal A. B. McDonald.

The seizure of the ten thousand trampship resulted from efforts of the shipping firm to collect $20,000 for loss of cargo in the sinking off the Aleutian islands in December, 1928, of the freighter Chief Maquilla of the Canadian-American Shipping company, owner of the Chief Capilano.

The Portland firm placed another $100,000 lien against the vessel as she lay in Port Townsend harbor.

She is 523 feet long and was built in 1920 in Germany.

SENATE VOTES DUTY ON SILVER BEARING ORE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—A duty of 30 cents an ounce on silver contained in silver-bearing ore, now on the free list, was voted tonight by the senate.

The vote was 55 to 12.

The proposal was offered by Senator Pittman, democrat, who said the silver industry in the United States was in a serious plight.

Pittman said if the price of silver were increased the principal burden would fall on purchasers of sterling silverware and the motion picture industry, which uses it in producing films.

Income Tax May Meet The Budget Estimate

March 17 Less Than $10,000,000 Below the Figure On Same Date Last Year.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Although treasury officials remained unwilling to venture predictions, returns up to today from the March 15 income tax installment supported the view that the first quarterly collection might come up the budget requirements.

The latest official figures available placed the amount turned in by the close of business on March 17 at $99,666,010, a little less than $10,000,000 below the figure for the same date last March.

On the basis of the last one per cent reduction in income tax rates the treasury estimated the budget on a first quarter collection of $550,000,000 from this source. Should the present proportion between this year's receipts and those of last year be maintained this expectation would be met.

The receipts for March 18, to be announced tomorrow, may establish whether this proportion will be maintained. Last year the same day showed the largest receipts out of the March 15 collection, totalling more than $161,000,000.

DEATH OF LORD BALFOUR, FORMER BRITISH PREMIER

WOKING, Surrey, England, March 19.—(AP)—In a room of his brother's house, looking out to the peaceful English countryside he so much loved, Lord Balfour died today. He was 82 years old.

He was a former prime minister of Great Britain and one of the last ministers of Queen Victoria's reign. His last act was characteristic of his whole life.

Sending for his man servant, James Coltman, who had been in his service 30 years, Lord Balfour took him by the hand and said:

"Good-bye, James. Thank you very much for all you have done for me."

Today, all the chief public figures of England, headed by King George, united to pay tribute to the man who in the rough and tumble of political life—and none was a more doughty fighter than he—never lost his perfect courtesy or that philosophic calm reflected in his numerous speeches and writings.

The house of lords and the house of commons adjourned for the day out of respect to his memory, but perhaps the tributes which the dead statesman himself would have preferred most have come from the man and the woman in the street.

"He was a gentleman," is the phrase which was on tens of thousands of lips today.

The Briton knows no higher praise. Tributes poured in, too, from all over the world.

FARM SUPT. AT SCHOOL FOR BOYS DISCHARGED

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—James S. Peck, farm superintendent at the Connecticut school for boys at Meriden, who protested to the state welfare commission that young inmates of the school were ill-treated, going to that body when he felt the school trustees ignored his claims, has lost his job.

His summary dismissal by the trustees is the first drastic action following four separate inquiries into conditions in the school, probes that brought public attention and aroused interest when parents and others made charges that brutality accompanied whippings allowed under the regulations and that the lads were underfed and generally neglected.

The trustees closing up their own probe dismissed Peck without a public explanation but Supt. Edward S. Boyd of the school said that action probably was influenced by a feeling among other school officers that Peck could no longer work in harmony with them. To the boys, some six hundred in number, Peck was regarded as a friend who had tried to better their condition.

PREFERS FIRING SQUAD TO HANGMAN'S NOOSE

FARMINGTON, Utah, March 19.—(AP)—Delbert Green today chose to face a firing squad in preference to the hangman's noose and was sentenced by District Judge Eugene E. Pratt to be shot at the state penitentiary, May 17, for the murder of his uncle, James Green.

Green, confessed slayer of his wife and her mother and his uncle at the home of the uncle near Layton, Utah, last January, was unmoved as he elected the mode of execution. Sentence was passed after Judge Pratt had denied a motion for a new trial and for arrest of judgment.

The court had no alternative to the death penalty, since the verdict of the jury carried no recommendation for leniency.

WOULD ANNUAL TRAFFIC IMMUNITY FOR DIPLOMATS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—With a young man near death as the result of collision with a foreign diplomat's automobile and with Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, calling upon congress to abolish diplomatic immunity to traffic regulations, the state department today became seriously concerned again with the immunity problem.

An accident between automobiles driven by Commander Juan Polich, naval attache of the Chilean embassy, and Paul Edward Hammond, 22, a railroad clerk, two days ago, since which Hammond has been only partially conscious, precipitated the latest controversy.

TANKER BLEW UP AFTER HAVING BEEN SET AFIRE BY GAS TANK EXPLOSIONS

PHILADELPHIA, March 19—(AP)—Exploding gasoline tanks at the Gulf Refining company's plant at Girard Point, at the junction of the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers, tonight set fire to the tank steamer Hagan, several tank cars on a railroad siding and a large warehouse filled with oil and gasoline. All were destroyed, causing a heavy loss.

The 36 members of the crew of the Hagan leaped into the river when the tanker caught fire and were picked up by tugs. All were said to have been accounted for.

A few minutes later the tanker blew up with a blast that was heard for miles. Its tanks contained approximately 70,000 gallons of oil. It had come in from Port Arthur, Texas, late today with 100,000 gallons, but about 30,000 gallons had been taken off.

MOULTHROPE AND LALONE TO BE GIVEN LIFE SENTENCES

Sentence Was Automatically Fixed By Verdict of Guilty With Recommendation For Mercy—Convicted Men Appeared Content With the Verdict—Moulthrope Will Serve His Time In Florida State Prison—Lalone May Be Sent Back to Wethersfield Prison, From Which He Escaped While Serving Life Sentence For Killing a Policeman.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—A circuit court jury today decreed that Watson Moulthrope and Roland Lalone, escaped Connecticut convicts, must serve life sentences for the murder here of Detective W. D. Smith.

The jury deliberated five hours before reaching a verdict of guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation for mercy. The trial consumed two weeks and three days.

Judge Daniel A. Simmons, within four days, must pronounce the life imprisonment sentence, automatically fixed by the verdict. Moulthrope will serve his time in the Florida state prison at Raiford, but it is uncertain where Lalone will be taken. He is under a life sentence in Connecticut for killing a policeman. The governors of the two states will decide whether he shall go back to Connecticut. Moulthrope also was serving a long sentence in Connecticut when, he, Lalone and Leo Landry escaped and came to Florida, where Detective Smith was killed in a gun battle after he and Willie Jones, another detective, tried to question the men. Landry, who turned state's evidence, is still to be tried for Smith's murder. No announcement as to when his case may be called was made today.

Lalone and Moulthrope both appeared content with the verdict, which hardly changed their status. Mrs. Rose Lalone, Roland's mother, who sat through the long trial to be near her son, also seemed pleased, and Judge Simmons told defense counsel that the verdict was "the biggest victory for the defense I have ever seen." John L. Farris, chief of the defense counsel, was pleased but he had asked that his clients be acquitted.

The gun battle in which Smith was killed and Jones severely wounded occurred last January soon after the three men escaped from the Wethersfield prison in Connecticut and made their way to Florida in a stolen automobile.

The two plain clothesmen were riding to police band practice when they saw the bandit car and ordered it to pull to the curb. The shooting followed.

Landry was captured three days later when he came out of hiding from under a house. Lalone and Moulthrope were apprehended at Pensacola just as they were about to sail for Mobile, Ala.

The defense plea was self defense. The men asserted they did not recognize the plain clothesmen as officers of the law. They also declared the officers drew the first guns and fired the first shots. Landry testified that Moulthrope shot Smith. Jones, fully recovered from his wounds, took the stand to identify Lalone as the man who shot him. Lalone admitted exchanging a shot with Jones, but said the officer fired first. Moulthrope said he fired once at a man searching Landry. This man proved to be Smith but Moulthrope said he did not know the man was an officer and did not know if he hit his mark.

The life sentences for Moulthrope and Lalone may begin after they complete the terms to which they were sentenced in Connecticut. Judge Simmons said he would ascertain whether Connecticut wants them back to finish their sentences, and whether the governor of Florida would approve such a plan, before imposing sentence.

TO ASK RETURN OF LEO LANDRY FROM FLORIDA

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—The decision of a Florida jury that Watson Moulthrope and Roland Lalone, escaped Connecticut convicts, must serve life sentences for the murder of a Jacksonville detective brought an immediate reaction in the office of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, when the news reached here late this afternoon and it was announced that a request would be made on the state of Florida for the return of Leo Landry, companion of the convicted men, who is awaiting separate trial on the same charge.

Before imposition of the sentences, which must be within four days, Florida authorities will communicate with Mr. Alcorn and and Gov. John H. Trumbull.

EXPLOSION WAS CAUSE OF SPECTACULAR FIRE IN BRONX

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—Flames reported to have followed an explosion in the boiler room of the Stephens Fuel company, on the Harlem river in the Bronx, spread tonight through the entire block occupied by the company's coal pockets.

The spectacular fire which ensued, causing five alarms to be used for the summoning of apparatus, was visible throughout the Bronx and in parts of Harlem.

The explosion was said to have occurred in the boiler room of the steam plant where power was generated for hoisting machinery and conveyers.

Ray Lyons, night manager of a nearby gasoline station, heard an explosion and saw the flames. He turned in an alarm, but before apparatus arrived, the entire block was in flames.

MAY DISTILL ALCOHOLIC COMPOUNDS INTO LIQUOR

HARTFORD, March 19—(AP)—Assistant U. S. District Attorney John A. Danaher, said today, that unlimited shipments of alcoholic compounds, easily distilled into liquors, from foreign countries to the United States, is a possibility if a case now being tried in the United States district court in New Haven, is decided against the government.

The case, believed to be the first of its kind since the passage of the prohibition act, involves tremendous possibilities of opening up alcoholic traffic from Canada and other countries, according to Assistant U. S. District Attorney John A. Danaher. A wood stain containing 89 per cent alcohol, legally manufactured in Canada, but failing to meet the legal requirements set up for manufacture in this country, is the immediate subject of debate in the action.

ACTION ON DEFICIENCY BILL WAS BLOCKED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—Final legislative action on the first deficiency bill, carrying approximately $170,000 for shortage of funds in various governmental departments, was blocked in the house today when three senate amendments to the measure were rejected and returned to conference for the second time.

A $100,000,000 item for the federal farm board, inserted in the bill by the senate at the retquest of President Hoover, was approved, however. This will enable the farm board to proceed with its task of rehabilitating agriculture. The sum brings the total provided for the board from the $500,000,000 revolving fund originally authorized in the federal farm act last year to $250,000,000.

The three senate proposals which were rejected by large majorities in the house were the amendments carrying $3,000,000 for hurricane relief in Porto Rico, an increase in the cost limit of the new Boston postoffice from $6,000,000 to $6,750,000 and an increase in the cost limit of the Denver courthouse and customs building from $1,060,000 to $1,235,000.

The votes for rejection were 155-28 on the Porto Rican amendment; 110-98 on the Boston increase, and 89-11 on the Denver amendment.

RAID ON MINT VENDING MACHINES IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, March 19—(AP)—New Haven police opened a war on mint vending machines here today, arresting 25 persons and seizing a like number of machines.

Armed with 27 warrants, a squad of 50 police raided simultaneously restaurants, stores, pool parlors and other establishments.

The machines are of the 25 cent variety, and are not covered in an injunction recently granted the Eastern Mint Vending Machine company, against police. This injunction restrained authorities from interfering with the operation of five cent machines as long as the tokens were not exchanged for money or merchandise.

Chief Philip T. Smith personally led the raiders. As the owners of the machines were brought into police headquarters they were held under $100 bond for a hearing tomorrow.

City Attorney Harry French said he was convinced that the court would rule that these devices were being used for gambling purposes.

Ledoux of 376 Pleasant street, quite painfully, when a Chrysler coach, in which they were riding and which was driven by Mr. Ledoux, received a severe broadside blow when run into about 6:15 o'clock tonight at the corner of North and Valley streets by a Studebaker coach operated by Claude Mathewson, 20, of 327 Ash street, and owned by his mother, Mrs. Claude Mathewson.

The mud on the country roads has been very bad during the past week, in some places making travel impassable. The school nurse got stuck on a visit to one of the schools, also a funeral procession on the way to the West Street cemetery got mired so that some of the cars had to be pulled out. The past few days with its wind has helped to settle the traveling quite a bit, so that there is some bottom to the mud holes. North of the Green the people appreciate being on the new Jonathan Trumbull Highway, as two of the worst mud holes in town have always been in that section. Last year for weeks it was impossible for a car to go through where now they can go with ease over the new highway.

DANIELSON

BROOKLYN MAN INJURED IN CARBIDE TANK EXPLOSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 19.—Howard Woodson, 20, was seriously injured this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCoy in the western part of the town of Brooklyn. The McCoy farm has kept a number of boarders for years. For several years past the house has been illuminated by a carbide gas system. Just before 2 o'clock this afternoon young Woodson, who was more or less unfamiliar with recharging the system, went out, cleaned out the tank and placed a new charge of carbide therein. An explosion immediately followed, presumably caused by some water being left in the bottom of the tank. A piece torn off of the metal tank cut a gash in Woodson's forehead, broke the upper part of his nose and rendered him unconscious. Dr. Warren A. Tanner, who was summoned from Danielson, ordered the removal of the youth to the Day Kimball hospital of Putnam. After an examination of the patient, Dr. S. B. Overlock, head of the surgical department, expressed the belief that Woodson may be suffering from a fracture of the skull, in addition to his other injuries. The injured youth remained unconscious up to 6:30 this afternoon.

PLAN REVEALED TO DIVERT WATERS OF THE QUINEBAUG

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 19.—It is now revealed, as a matter of interest to all the eastern border section of Connecticut, that the Quinebaug river, supplying power to many manufacturing concerns all along its valley, including plants in Putnam, Danielson and farther south in the direction of Norwich, was considered as long as four years ago as a source of water supply for the Boston metropolitan district.

It appears that this fact has been developed as the result of the suit by the state of Connecticut to have the state of Massachusetts enjoined by the United States supreme court from diverting water from the Ware and Swift rivers, tributaries of the Connecticut, to supply Boston.

This revelation is of more than passing interest to concerns holding water privileges along the Quinebaug river for miles along its valley. The Goodyear Mills, Inc., of Goodyear, in this town, is one of these. The Quinebaug company, with its plant just across the river from Killingly in the town of Brooklyn, is another. The Wauregan company, with its plant in the town of Plainfield, is still another.

These water rights, held for many years, are of great value to these concerns. If diversion of the waters of the Quinebaug to supply Boston had been carried out, one can imagine the effect it would have on the concerns mentioned, as well as upon other concerns farther up and farther down this stream, long a source of power for manufacturing purposes.

While it is true that some of the concerns mentioned, the majority of them, in fact, now use electric power to operate the machinery of their plants; it is also true that these mill companies, in turn, have contracts with the Connecticut Light & Power company, to use the waters of the stream for the generation of electricity at times when the mills are not using the water, the electric power company paying the mill companies for this use.

It has been said from an authoritative source of the plan to divert the waters of the Quinebaug: "From a power standpoint, as much damage would be done to valuable power as would be the case in the Swift development (the Connecticut river diversion project). There is this difference, that a large part of the damage would be in this section of Connecticut and beyond the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts courts, and, in case of failure to reach amicable settlements, the cases would be determined by the United States courts."

The Quinebaug river flows from Massachusetts into Connecticut and thence into waters emptying into Long Island sound, furnishing much power to eastern Connecticut manufacturing centers. Under the plan talked of to divert its waters from their natural course, the stream would be dammed near Southbridge and a 800,000,000-gallon reservoir formed.

For the present it would appear that there is not much likelihood that this will be done. It does appear to remain a possibility of the future, but one that will be most earnestly fought by eastern Connecticut interests, manufacturing and otherwise.

A delegation of members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., of Danielson will be in Bridgeport on Friday to attend the 27th annual state conference of the organization, which has a large membership here and in surrounding sections of this part of the county.

The body of Lawrence Kilpatrick, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kilpatrick of Brooklyn, was brought here today in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy from Norwich, where the young man died this morning. He was a native of Brooklyn.

State highway work that will be underway between Wauregan and Danielson all through the spring and summer seasons, while three miles of concrete highway is being built, will cause a detour of a heavy percentage of traffic usually passing over this trunk line to detour, at least part of the time. The optional route is the state road route by Brooklyn. Another is over the Green Hollow road, a good dirt highway.

Local boys who plan to be at Camp Woodstock this summer are interested in the announcement that one of the interesting things that will be done is the building of a nature trail. Russell Lund of the state board of education and Herman Sievers of the American Museum of Natural History in New York will assist in this work. Camp Woodstock is the summer camp ground maintained near Black pond in Woodstock by County Y. M. C. A. organizations of Windham, Hartford and Tolland counties.

Gaston A. Maindon, newly nominated candidate for warden of Danielson, has had years of experience in local borough government, as a member of the court of burgesses. He has served on a number of important borough committees and is familiar with the duties delegated to the warden. Mr. Maindon is also the county sealer of weights and measures.

When Killingly high school's baseball squad starts spring practice this year it will be without the school athletic field that the Alumni association and other friends of the school have been striving to obtain for several years. A considerable fund for such a field, has been accumulated, but not nearly sufficient to meet the cost, so more time must elapse before it becomes a reality.

Nightly watch is now being kept along reaches of the Quinebaug where the fish are found, for the annual run of suckers, apt to start at any time now. These fish usually are taken at night by spearing, and numbers here follow the sport.

Mrs. Ralph H. Reed, chairman of the department of the American home of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs, was the speaker this afternoon at the meeting of the Killingly Woman's club at the parish house of the Westfield Congregational church.

Unless something unforeseen occurs, Danielson's borough government will remain for another year practically the same as it has been during the current fiscal year, insofar as personnel is concerned. Forthcoming annual reports will show the same careful and conservative administration as has been the rule for several years past.

Speculation as to what the population census to be taken this year, beginning in April, will show is of interest to many Killingly residents. An increase is looked for, over the figures for 1930, but it is not expected to be more than a few hundred, and probably just under the 10,000 figure.

Francis E. Storer, Jr., student at the Choate school, is spending a vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Storer.

Henry C. Desjardins of Fall River is visiting for a time with relatives in Danielson.

The Quinebaug Valley Circuit league is to meet here Friday evening of next week at the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. J. Manly Shaw of Baltic is to be the speaker. In view of the fact that this will be the first meeting of the spring season, a large attendance is expected.

Danielson Rotarians today reported a delightful time at Providence last evening, when they were guests of the Providence Rotary club at the Biltmore hotel.

There was attendance from this town at the funeral of Cortland Arnold in Putnam this afternoon.

In a little more than another month Danielson and numbers of other communities will be on daylight saving time again until late in September.

The winter on the eve of closing has brought so little snow to this section that the snow removal appropriations of the town, aggregating $1,650, remain intact. In all probability this money, included in the budget that has been adopted, will not have to be used.

County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield was here today on matters pertaining to the duties of his office.

Spike Menard, Holyoke boy who gave Rene Peloquin, Danielson boxer, such a hard battle at the town hall last night, had a badly swollen right hand today. The injury, not of a serious nature, was sustained during the bout.

Investigation has failed to disclose who twice fired a gun at the car of William Pockoski, North Main street, while it was parked on the Canterbury road in Brooklyn a few days ago, riddling the machine with heavy shot.

MRS. BARTLETT RESIGNS AS BUILDING COMMITTEE MEMBER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 19—Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, democratic member of the town school committee, tendered her resignation as a member of the building committee of the board Tuesday evening at the monthly session which was held in the law offices of Torrey and Geissler. The resignation was accepted.

Mrs. William R. Barber, secretary of the board said this afternoon that Mrs. Bartlett did not advance any reasons for tendering her resignation. At the last organization meeting of the school board, Mrs. Bartlett was named to serve as a member of the building committee and since her appointment she has carried out the duties of her office in a capable manner.

An unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin for his comprehensive report of the national convention of school superintendents held recently at Atlantic City, N. J., which he attended as a representative of the town of Putnam. Each member of the board was given a copy of the report.

Eric H. Johnson, chairman of the board, named Committeemen John H. Bulger and Edward W. Mullan, as a committee to raise funds to be used to purchase uniforms and additional musical instruments for the Putnam high school band. After the board approved the appointments, Committeewoman Bartlett started an equipment fund with the initial contribution of $5.00.

By a vote of the board the Cosmos club was given the use of the high school auditorium in which to hold rehearsals for a forthcoming amateur production under its auspices. A steel cabinet is to be purchased for the clerk of the board to be used in the listing of records of the school enumeration.

The matter of appointing a manager of the high school cafeteria to succeed the late Mrs. Edwin S. Phillips, who died a month ago, was tabled until the April meeting.

With the approval of bills for the current month, the board voted to adjourn.

The members of the Putnam Rotary club listened to an interesting and enlightening talk on new ideas of American education and educational methods of these modern times, given by Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin, at the weekly meeting of the club held today at the Putnam inn. Mr. Farrin recently returned from the national convention of school superintendents, held in Atlantic City, N. J. Many of the newer methods seen and heard at the convention are already in use in the schools of the city.

Visitors at today's Rotary luncheon were Henry Dubuc and J. Gordon Gale of Danielson.

In city court this morning Judge M. H. Geissler rendered a verdict of not guilty in the case of Peter Racette, Bridge street taxi operator, arrested two weeks ago on a charge of violation of the state code of laws governing the operation of taxi-cabs. Racette, the state alleged, did operate his private livery service in a manner allowed only to taxi cabs. Racette pleaded not guilty. State Officer George Martin of the Danielson barracks testified that on March 9, he went to Racette's stand and hired the driver to take him to a point on Providence street, for which service he paid for on the regular taxi rate system. Returning a few minutes later and finding that Racette did not possess a license for such business, the officer testified that he placed the cab owner under arrest.

Judge Geissler ruled that Racette had been hired from his place of business and was operating a service which he was licensed to do, under the registration markers "O" and that the service he did for the officer did not constitute a violation of the statute referred to in the complaint.

Daigle Pays Costs

John B. Daigle of the north end, star witness for the state in the series of liquor cases tried in city court yesterday morning, returned to court this morning in the role of defendant, charged with assault upon Edward St. Martin. Daigle was arrested about two weeks ago, following a complaint of St. Martin, that the liquor witness had struck him during an argument that developed when the pair met on Bridge street. Judge Geissler ordered the case placed on file and instructed Daigle to pay court costs amounting to $3.

Thomas H. deCoudres, past president of the chamber of commerce and for many years an associate in the firm of Bosworth Bros., Main street grain dealers has sold his interests to his partner Ray C. He has stated that his plans for the future are indefinite. Before coming to Putnam, Mr. deCoudres was associated with town governments in Bristol, R. I., East Hartford, and Grafton, Mass., serving in capacitys of superintendent of schools.

English, pastor of the Congregational church and associate grand chaplain of the grand lodge of Masons, was the officiating clergyman.

The body of Mr. Arnold on Friday will be taken to the crematory at Forest Hills, near Boston, for cremation. The ashes will be buried later in the Barlow cemetery in West Woodstock. This was a request of Mr. Arnold.

Representatives of local business organizations and representatives of the Putnam lodge of Elks and Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows, with which Mr. Arnold was affiliated were in attendance at the service. There was a profusion of flowers.

Putnam friends of Harold R. Newcomb of Northampton, Mass., widely known throughout New England as "Dick" Newcomb, "The Master of Modern Melodies," were deeply affected to read in the press dispatches today of his arrest in Northampton on a larceny charge of $15,000 from a bank in that city of which he is a manager.

Newcomb, a banker by day and an orchestra leader by night, is director of one of New England's best known jazz bands. He has delighted local dance followers on many occasions in this section.

Addison H. Tourtellotte, well known Putnam resident, died this morning at the sanitorium at the state hospital in Norwich, where he had been a patient for the past four years. Previous to his illness, Mr. Tourtellotte was an engineer on the New Haven railroad.

Dr. E. D. Hoover, playing in a foursome at the Trumbull Country club at Warren, O., teed up on the third hole and socked it. His ball sped the 195 yards to the green and rolled in the cup. Standing out as the better cigarette

THE SINGLE IDEA of superlative quality was the inspiration for Camel Cigarettes.

From the time when the first Camel Cigarette was made that one idea has set Camel apart.

A policy of better tobaccos, combined in an incomparable blend, manufactured with the most exacting care—all to assure the utmost pleasure in smoking.

That is the ideal and the practice back of every package of Camel Cigarettes.

It has made Camel the most popular cigarette ever known. More millions have chosen Camels for smoking pleasure than ever accorded their patronage to any other cigarette.

DANGEROUS UNDERPASSES

We have witnessed prolonged efforts for the elimination of grade crossings in the interest of greater safety. We have seen that the cause for the trouble at such places was invariably the fault of the highway users (barring, of course, those instances where false information was given by the efforts made to protect the public at crossings) and we are brought face to face with the fact that the placing of highways underneath the railroad track may invite accidents quite as frequently as the grade crossing, even though constructed for the purposes of safety.

Along with the urgings for the elimination of more grade crossings, why isn't there as much effort made for the removal of the narrow underpasses and those which are constructed at a bad angle? They are dangerous to the driver who will not yield to the other fellow. They are bad for those who insist upon speeding. They are perilous for those who want a large part of the highway and accompany that insistence with fast driving. If grade crossings ought to go because there are so many accidents there, the same is to be said of the narrow and crooked underpasses.

If such is the case, it is based upon it that is exercised by the highway user to the extent of slowing down, possibly giving the other fellow or the locomotive the right of way and driving with the idea of preventing accidents, it matters little whether either the grade crossing or the bad underpass is removed. But it is so often that just the opposite attitude is displayed that there can be little surprise that accidents happen and deaths occur.

One thing is certain, the bad and narrow underpasses often furnish a greater menace to the highway users than do the grade crossings. Approaching them at an angle it is impossible to tell whether a machine is coming in the opposite direction and there is no signal to give warning. The maintenance of underpasses where it is with difficulty that two cars can pass when driven carefully is as serious an obstacle to the highway as a narrow bridge. It is bad enough when the angle is such that a car going in either direction may seriously encroach upon the right of way of the other. Thus while the cry is for less grade crossings, new reasons are being furnished frequently for an equally loud howl for the improvement of the underpasses. That in Lisbon is only one of many.

THE STRAW VOTES

According to the report of his appearance before the prohibition hearing at Washington, Horace Taft of this state does not put much faith in straw votes. In fact, it would appear that he doesn't take any stock in such indications, for he testified that they do not mean anything.

Mr. Taft is not alone in that view but he will have to admit that they have correctly forecasted the outcome in the last two national elections, when they were undertaken on a basis similar to the nationwide poll now being taken. While he didn't so state at Washington, it would seem that Mr. Taft's attitude is one to discourage participation in such efforts to learn public sentiment.

If such is the case it is based upon different views than those expressed by the trustees of the Anti-Saloon league in Rhode Island. In our neighboring state the legislature has authorized a referendum on the question of retaining the 18th amendment and the voters of that state will have a chance to express themselves in November. This referendum is different than a straw vote but it doesn't mean anything so far as actually removing or retaining the amendment. It will show Rhode Island's attitude for the guidance of legislation and its representatives and the league's trustees recognize that it will be foolish for those who favor the amendment to ignore the referendum when it gives them a chance to back up whatever contentions they have been making. Consequently they have voted to meet the situation by registering their convictions. That is the only attitude that ought to be expected under the circumstances. They intend to get out and do as much fighting for their views as possible to accept the challenge and enter the contest as determined as if they had proposed it. It is their purpose to make the referendum mean something insofar as public expression is possible and it is the only thing to do. They would hurt their own cause by sulking. They would play into the hands of the enemy by insisting the referendum didn't mean anything and tried to ignore it.

It will be quite the same way with the straw vote if the drys or the wets cast the ballots aside, declaring they mean nothing. There is a chance to make them mean just as much as they did in the last two presidential campaigns. Through a representative public expression it will be possible to come pretty close to the attitude of small or large numbers.

DEPORT THE UNFIT

Reason for more than passing attention is furnished by the taking of five men from state prison to Boston for purposes of deportation. These men are aliens and have been convicted and have served time for crimes committed in this state. Four of the number were involved in a bombing and blackmail plot at Bridgeport for which they have served about ten years, but instead of turning them loose to resume by any chance their former practices they are deemed unworthy of remaining here to enjoy the advantages of the United States and are to go back whence they came.

At a time when the crowded condition of the state prison has been pointed out, it will not fail to win genuine approval. These men represent a type which should never have been admitted. They are unworthy, as their conduct has shown, to enjoy the privileges of this country. Having been tried and found wanting, the thing to do is to send them back and let the countries which are responsible for them take care of them henceforth.

It is an unfortunate fact that too many of our public institutions are crowded to overflowing because of the aliens who have come here to commit crimes or become public charges. There are many who are deported each year and the wonder is that greater attention isn't centered upon this method of dealing with the undesirables, those who managed to get in through the immigration bars but who have demonstrated their unfitness.

When the need of deportation is referred to it is always pointed out that it is a slow process and a costly one. It takes time to carry out the necessary requirements and it is always true that the number deported might be much larger but for the lack of necessary funds. That being so, it would seem that more attention should be devoted to this method of dealing with the criminal and insane aliens and provisions made whereby the process can be speeded up and the necessary funds be obtained. Certainly it is evident that it is far preferable that there should be a larger expenditure for deportation purposes, that will mean complete riddance of those who have disclosed criminal dispositions, to spending as much or more for keeping them in restraint or going to the expense of keeping track of them and convicting them in future cases. The greater the number of such aliens who can be permanently removed the better.

CURBING DIPLOMATS

Quite the natural reaction is that which has been displayed by Senator McKellar of Tennessee in introducing a bill in congress removing certain of the immunity privileges that foreign diplomats now enjoy in this country.

Inasmuch as the diplomatic representatives of other countries are beyond the reach of the laws of this country it being the practice to have them recalled if they go contrary to expectations certain of them have shown a disposition to go the limit and take every advantage of the privileges that are allowed them. The idea has been to surround them with no more restrictions than Americans, and, as it proves in practice, much less, but there are those who place such an interpretation upon the right as to ignore regulations to the extent of causing serious injuries and possible death.

No matter what has been the view of such diplomats it has not been the purpose of this country to encourage the violation of any and all regulations. Traffic regulations may be considered minor matters in the minds of foreign diplomats at Washington but not so for those who are crushed under the wheels of their machines when they disregard traffic signals. There is no reason why such representatives of other countries should not govern themselves in traffic the same as other people. It is to be expected that American representatives abroad will conform to the laws of other countries, even to traffic rules, and there is no good reason why foreign diplomats here should not do likewise. In fact, most of them probably do but, as is so often the case, the acts of the few make stricter regulations for the many, and Senator McKellar takes the right view of the matter when he seeks legislation that will deal with an aggravating situation. Though diplomats should know better it seems necessary to provide rules of conduct for them.

LORD BALFOUR

The memory of Lord Balfour is one that will remain long in England and other countries as well. Because of the prominence he has taken in politics and the various services he has rendered his country it was inevitable that he should be numbered among the British notables and that he should be held in the highest esteem throughout the world.

He figures in various lights in many prominent international actions. His statesmanship was outstanding, his ability was never questioned, great reliance was placed upon his judgment although it cannot be said that he did not make mistakes. He was a philosopher whose efforts were sincere. He was not the aggressive type of politician who forced his views and ideals upon the government or the country. He depended rather upon the soundness of his views being recognized. He was associated with some of the great men of British history and his career has been such as to gain for himself an honored position therein. He was one of the master minds of a disappearing British school but it is impossible to forget the great service he rendered as the leader of the British delegation to the Washington conference, his advocacy of the repatriation of the Jews in the Holy Land and his famous note which renounced all war claims except what were needed to meet British war debts.

He was a leader in many a British legislative battle, saw years of service as prime minister and was a conservative leader during memorable successful and unsuccessful contests. His was a long life, his fame was widespread and it is inevitable that he should be rated one of the famous men of his country.

AIR MINDED

Three days after Milly solemnly declared to her chum Gertrude that she was scared to death of flying and never, never would go up in an airplane she had the misfortune to meet Bert Alshire, an airmail pilot, and fell desperately in love at first sight. We say "desperately" advisedly. She didn't fall so desperately as to retract her vow never to fly. Instead she made a new vow—she'd induce Bert to give up flying!

At first Milly didn't tell Bert her aversion to airplanes. He talked about his various trips and she appeared to be all ears. But the day he first invited her to take a short flight she knew the time had come. Never would she go up in the air! Not even Bert could make her. The very thought of flying made her ill.

"Milly, dear," Bert said that afternoon. They had known each other three months and were much in love. "Milly, today I'm going to take you up!" Milly set her lips tight.

"I'm sorry, Bert," she said determinedly, "I wouldn't think of going up, even with you."

"But darling—"

"And, furthermore," said Milly, "I want you to give up flying." Bert was too astonished to speak. "I wouldn't think of marrying an aviator," she finished. Bert took it calmly. He didn't try to argue with her. He just sat and said little and went home much earlier than usual.

Milly was terribly upset at the way Bert had taken her pronouncement. She worried about it all night. And next day she hurried out to the airport to see him.

"Bert Alshire?" said the mechanic she questioned. "Sure, there he is, just getting ready to take off." Milly looked in the direction he pointed and gave a startled, heartsick little gasp. For Bert was helping into his plane a pretty young girl garbed in the becoming costume of an aviatrix.

"Oh," said Milly weakly. So he was going to forget her—give her up for a girl who liked to fly! Another girl have her Bert! Never! Milly was not a girl to give up without a struggle. As fiercely as she previously had vowed never to fly she now vowed to learn. That evening Milly had a long conference with her father.

"Buy you an airplane?" said he. "Hmmmmmm." For hours Milly argued and begged, teased and reasoned; in the end she had her way and the next day she had her first flying lesson.

Milly was the best pupil that flying instructor ever had. In a short time he let her take up her plane alone and after that she flew every day. When the Ashville women's endurance flight contest came along Milly resolved that she would enter it.

"At last," said Milly to herself, "Bert will see who is the bravest aviatrix in town and I will have him back."

Milly not only proved herself the bravest but the best aviatrix in the contest. She broke the previous record by several minutes and came down to be cheered and photographed and presented with the silver trophy, but her thoughts were not on all these honors. Where was Bert? Was he among the judges? But though she strained her eyes Milly could find him neither in the judges' box nor in the crowd. Milly stood up bravely until the celebration was over. Then she sadly found her way to her little green roadster and drove home.

As she drew up in front of the house Milly's pulse quickened. There was Bert, her own Bert, waiting in the swing for her. But why—why hadn't he come to her there on the field?

"Milly," he said as she came toward him, "what's happened? I just can't understand you."

"Why"—Milly was puzzled. "I learned to fly so you'd love me—so—so that other girl—"

"Other girl?"

"I saw you that day after our quarrel taking her up with you." Bert laughed.

"Silly little Milly," he said. "She was the customer I got to buy my plane after you vowed never to marry an aviator."

"Buy your plane?" breathed Milly. "Oh, Bert!" Then she brightened as she thought of her own shiny new amphibian. "I'm glad you did sell it," she said. "We'll only need one plane in our family, won't we, dear."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 19—On a sleepy day in the house some seven years ago a "gentleman from Missouri" arose seeking permission to revise and extend remarks which he had not made.

A colleague desired to know what would be remarked upon and was informed it had to do with bulletins issued by the agriculture department.

That sounded politically inocuous, so there was not objection and the Missourian extended as desired. He extended to the extent of some four pages of the Congressional Record.

That extension proved in fact to be a regular best seller. Report has it that some million or more copies of it have been consumed by the reading public since them. Requests for it still reach the extender and it now is distributed in book form under the title "The Dog," by Harry B. Hawes, senator and former representative from Missouri.

Complex Starts

It did more than that. It set off a writer complex in the statesman-lawyer-soldier from St. Louis that still is going strong. He's among the most prolific of congressional authors today. His fifth book in seven years is just off the presses and is entitled "My Friend, The Black Bass." His other works are "Conservation of Wild Life," "Saving the Black Bass" and "Big Outdoors."

For Senator Hawes, out of congressional harness, is a great lover of the wide open spaces. When he can't lurk along a stream, rod in hand, or go gunning in the autumn woods, at least he can dream about it and remember the joyous past, anticipate the alluring future—and write about 'em.

Having met the senator and his family of a summer, encamped on the shores of Chesapeake Bay, the Bystander knows just how deeply the out o'doors complex lies in the Hawes make up. He has seen, too, the spirit in which the senator goes about his fishing, be it for bass or any other finny friend. And the senator himself speaks it in his new book on bass in this fashion:

"There is such a thing as chivalry, and what is known as 'being a gentleman' in our relations with our fellow men. Suppose we try chivalry and 'being a gentleman' in our contacts with nature and wild things."

Bait And Politics

The senator allows he's been hunting black bass in this friendly way since he was nine years old. His adventures make a readable book.

There is much, too, about bait—and a little politics.

The senator recalls the Coolidge early remark that "only small boys went fishing" and what followed in a country of 17,000,000 annual fishing licenses.

"Naturally enough, in a short time Mr. Coolidge went fishing," the senator says. "And word came that the president was fishing with worms. Can it have been that Mr. Coolidge turned to worms as a popular move, so to speak?"

"Harnessing Our Dreams"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Behold a ladder set up on the earth and the top of it reached to heaven" (Genesis 28:12).

Read: Genesis 28:10-17.

MEDITATION: That is the way it should be with dream ladders. They must be set up on the earth. Dreams will make us happy or unhappy according to the relation they bear to our every-day lives and necessities. In that popular novel, "Mamba's Daughters," the young dreamer, "Saint," was a long time finding himself. He hated the work of the store to which he had committed himself. He fitted up an adjacent room as a refuge and remarked to a friend: "I only let my dreams come into this room and never cross that threshold into the store." To which his friend replied: "Don't you see you cannot do that? That is drifting. You must carry your imagination over that threshold into life and make it work for you." We must domesticate our dreams and harness them to the actual business of being what we can be.

PRAYER: O Thou Giver of dreams keep us from idle dreaming. Teach us not to despise the life we are called to live, or to neglect the task of today. However humble and prosaic it may be, let us follow it, as our opportunity for service. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

A Demonstration

By Edward R. Hays, M. D., Falls City, Nebraska.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

A most interesting demonstration of health examinations was recently made by the Nebraska State Medical association at the State Fair. Realizing the importance of periodic health examinations in the conversation of health, twenty-eight doctors donated their time and skill for this demonstration, and in all examined 231 adults. A thorough painstaking examination was given each applicant by one examining physician. No treatment of any kind was offered, and in such cases in which treatment was needed the applicant was advised to consult his family physician.

Our building was fitted with a large waiting room, eight examining rooms, a laboratory, an x-ray room and a specialty room for the examination of eyes, ears, noses and throats. The patients were selected from those who had applied in an adjoining building containing our exhibits, where the patients' histories were taken by two internes. Any person who applied and stated that he was ill or under the care of a physician was refused examination. We took only those who were apparently well. On account of the influence of the mother in the home, we gave preference in our selection to women, and attempted, furthermore, to choose applicants who came from all parts of the state. The periodic health examination record blank of the American Medical association was used.

Of the 231 adults examined, 200 were found to have physical defects, 146 women and 54 men. In the 200 patients, 390 defects were discovered. Those of chief concern were: Blood pressure, appendix, eyes, teeth, tonsils, heart, hernia, lungs, thyroid, tuberculosis.

In listing the defects, we had to bear in mind that a periodic health examination does not necessarily mean a diagnosis. The purpose is to detect the abnormal from the normal, and when an abnormal condition is found, to advise further examination. For instance, a defect of vision may be discovered in a health examination, but it would require special examination to determine the etiology, degree and type of defect.

This demonstration has done two important things. The periodic health examination has been demonstrated to a sufficient number of people from a large enough area to have statewide influence, and from these people we believe a great demand will grow for this sort of medical service. Physicians have been educated in the possibilities of preventive medical practice and have been taught what to expect from a health examination and how to make one. Such examinations, made by the family doctor once a year, together with a dental check-up every six months, is the straight and short road to greatly improved health, and that means longer, better, happier life.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Dipper Shows Off

He is not vain who shows his skill;
He has a right to if he will.
—Dipper the Grebe.

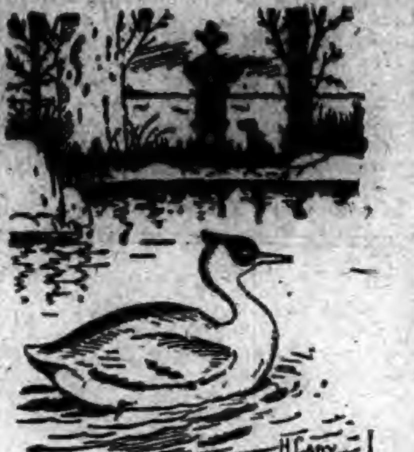
Farmer Brown's Boy was much interested in his new pet, Dipper the Grebe. Dipper being a very wise little bird was friendly with Farmer Brown's Boy. You see, Dipper knew who it was that fed him. So they were getting to be great friends. But there was one thing that Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't counted on. This was Dipper's appetite. It seemed as if Dipper was hungry all the time and all he wanted was fish. Farmer Brown's Boy did get him to eat a little meat, but fish was what Dipper wanted and it was antonishing how many fish he could put away. Yes, sir, it was so. So there was nothing for Farmer Brown's Boy to do but to go catch fish, and this wasn't always the easiest thing to do.

"There's no use talking," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I can't keep this up. I have other things to do besides going fishing. So as long as there's nothing the matter with you, I think we'll give you your liberty."

Of course, Dipper didn't understand any of this and of course Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't expected that he would. So Dipper was very much puzzled when one morning Farmer Brown's Boy gathered him up and started off across the Green Meadows with him. "I wonder what he's going to do with me now," thought Dipper. "Yes, sir, I wonder what he's going to take me back to leave me where he found me. That would be dreadful. I don't know what I would do."

So Dipper really was a little anxious as Farmer Brown's Boy, with Flip at his heels, tramped down across the Green Meadows.

Straight past the place where Farmer Brown's Boy had picked Dipper up they went. Somehow, without being able to see it, Dipper knew that they were coming near water. He began to get excited. Yes, sir, Dipper began to get excited. Presently they were right on the shore of the Smiling Pool. The ice was gone. Farmer Brown's Boy held Dipper so that he could see the water. Dipper quivered all over. Oh, how he did long to get into that water! Farmer Brown's Boy felt him quiver in eagerness. He smiled. Then he put Dipper down a little way back from the Smiling Pool. He gave him a gentle pat and let him go. It was funny—it really was funny—to see Dipper waddle to the top of the bank and then actually fall right down the bank to the water. No one could be more awkward or clumsy than he was.



He swam across the Smiling Pool and back again.

But the moment he was on that water, such a change as took place! It didn't seem as if he could be the same bird. He was at home there. Yes indeed, he was at home there. First he ducked his head several times. Then he looked up at Farmer Brown's Boy and Flip on the bank, as much as to say: "I'll show you what real swimming is." He swam in circles. He swam across the Smiling Pool and back again. And then he dived. Yes, sir, he dived. One instant he was there swimming and the next instant he had disappeared. Farmer Brown's Boy and Flip waited and watched. There was no sign of Dipper. Flip wondered what could have become of him. He wondered and wondered. Then he heard his master chuckle. He looked up to see Farmer Brown's Boy looking at the upper end of the Smiling Pool. At first Flip saw nothing. Then quite unexpectedly he discovered a head. It was Dipper's head, and only his head could be seen. All the rest of him was under water.

Dipper popped up, then once more he dived. This time he came up with a fish in his mouth. He was very much at home now and very, very happy.

"I hope you'll stay with us all summer," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "but I don't suppose you will."

Fascinating Monkey.

Uncle Charles was showing little Alice through the animal section at the park. When they came to the monkey house he could hardly get her away. Finally he said:

"Do you like them, Alice?"

"No," she answered.

"Then why do you want to stay here?" Uncle Charles inquired.

"I don't know," she answered, "I just have to."

After looking at the rest of the menagerie she wished to go back to the monkeys.

"Which one do you wish to see?" Uncle Charles asked.

"The one with the sad face," she answered solemnly.

Little Talks on Thrift

Economist Suggests Two Years' Wage As Price For One's Own Home

We have reached a period of the year when the thoughts of many are given to owning a home. To own one's home is a good way to practice thrift for most persons. The problem, however, is one not easy of solution. The question with most prospective home owners is "How much can I afford to pay for my home?"

As in all other problems relating to individual or family administration, each case presents certain special aspects. Only broad, general suggestions can be offered. Manifestly, a young man whose prospects are for a continually rising income can afford to pay more for a home than a man who, through one circumstance or another can look into the future years with no assurance of greater earnings.

One of the most interesting contributions to this subject was made recently by Mr. Henry M. Stegman, writing in the Thrift Magazine. He points out that "most homes are bought on partial payments. Here the need for caution is even greater than if all the money needed were in hand. The monthly installments are not all savings. Especially in the beginning, they will go chiefly toward meeting the interest. As the debt is gradually reduced, this factor will decline. But the initial bargain should be based as closely as possible on one hundred times the weekly wage."

One hundred times the weekly wage would be approximately two years' wagewhich, Mr. Stegman concludes, is a good basis for determining what one should pay for one's own home.

It must be borne in mind, however, that this is only a general formula. Homes in or near large cities, for example, are more expensive than those purchased in small places. For this reason home ownership is out of the reach of many city workers whose only recourse is to go far into the suburbs and sometimes this is impracticable. We may feel, nevertheless, that with the vast multitude of Americans, home ownership is an economic possibility. With most families it is a commendable type of thrift and at this period of the year should receive every encouragement. —By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Robert Gair Company, Montville

The Robert Gair company, whose largest corrugated plant is located at Montville, was established in 1864. The fact that Robert Gair was progressive from an early age is evidenced by his having come alone to this country from Edinburgh when only fourteen years old. Seven years after his arrival the Civil war broke out, and having been in the national guard, he enlisted and served throughout the war, participating in 18 engagements and achieving the rank of captain before he was mustered out.

Within 60 days after being mustered out in 1864, he started a paper goods business in lower New York city. This business grew steadily, and when in the 80's he found himself seriously cramped for space required for the extension of his business, moved his plant to Washington street, Brooklyn, N. Y., where he had the advantage of a better labor market and excellent transportation facilities. There the business expanded more rapidly and was given a great impulse by the invention of a speedy process for making folding paper cartons by Robert Gair in 1878. He was also a pioneer in the corrugated and fibre case industry, and as these three products acquired importance in the improved merchandising habits of the country, other paper specialties were dropped and his activity centered upon these three.

In 1920 the Robert Gair company acquired five large boxboard mills, at Piermont, New York, to which is attached one of the largest folding carton plants in this country; at Haverhill, Mass.; Montville, Conn.; Quincy and Chicago, Ill. Recently the Chicago plant has been sold and a large board mill at Tonawanda, New York, bought.

The Thames River division at Montville, consists of an excellent paperboard mill and one of the largest units in the world for the manufacture of corrugated shipping containers. The plant extends for more than one-quarter of a mile along the Thames river waterfront, the two-story fabricating building alone exceeding 200 x 500 feet.

The fabricating plant was built by The Robert Gair company in 1920 but the mill was erected by a New York promoter with Boston capital in 1909. Originally one paperboard machine was installed; the second was added in 1912. Control of the mill was taken over by Mr. W. J. Alford in 1914, from whom the property was bought by the Gair company in 1920.

Within the last year the Robert Gair company has enlarged its facilities for the production of corrugated by the purchase of two well known corrugated plants, The Interstate Corrugated Box company of Brooklyn, N. Y., and The Warner & Childs company of Boston. Sufficient corrugated is made in a year at the Thames River plant alone, to pave the earth at the equator four feet wide.

SUPT. GRAHAM EXPLAINS SCHOOL NEEDS BEFORE WOMAN'S CITY CLUB MEETING

Supt. Edward J. Graham of the public schools delivered an instructive address on the junior high school proposition before an audience of about 100 members of the Woman's City club at its annual meeting held Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. His talk centered upon four subjects: The existing crowded conditions in the schools, the history of the junior high school movement and growth, the advantages of the system and how it is being received throughout the United States. He was introduced by Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, president, following the business session.

In opening his talk Superintendent Graham asserted that the junior high school is the most important step in the history of education that has come to this community. Under the first subject the superintendent said that a communication was received by the town school committee from the trustees of the Norwich Free Academy stating they would have to have increased accommodations by the fall of 1931 and suggesting the junior high project, previously discussed, as a means of solving the problem. After the committee made a complete and exhaustive study of the crowded conditions existing at the Academy and grammar schools, the school board unanimously recommended the junior high project to the town.

After mentioning the crowded conditions in various schools in the town, the superintendent said that we need increased accommodations. The town is going to spend a certain amount of money for these accommodations, he said. The question is how can it be accomplished most wisely. That's for you as citizens to decide for yourselves the best way the money can be spent, he said. The town school committee has recommended two junior high schools, one to be located in the Greeneville section and the other in the central part of the city, to accommodate the overflow of pupils. Such an organization would take care of the 7th and 8th grades in the grammar schools and the first year pupils at the Academy.

In connection with the history of the development of the junior high system the superintendent said that President Elliot of Harvard, in the eighties, took the position that secondary education should "dip down" to include the last two years in the grades of the elementary schools. He was concerned primarily with the steadily increasing age of the average Harvard freshman, and looked upon this alteration in secondary education as a possible remedy for it. Other educational institutions throughout the country became concerned. The outcome of this question was the appointment of a committee which was to make a careful study and report to the national society for the study of education.

Different plans were suggested, he said, but after several years of study and experiment, the 6-3-3 plan was adopted. In the opinion of the committee, several subjects now reserved for the high school, such as algebra, natural science and foreign languages and some of the commercial subjects should be begun earlier than now. Since 1908 the movement has rapidly gained headway. Briggs, of Teachers' college, defines the junior high school as an organization of grades 7-8-9, to provide by various means for individual differences, especially by an earlier introduction of prevocational work and of subjects usually taught in the high school.

In citing examples of the advantages of such an organization the superintendent said that it does away with that sudden change which a pupil experiences in going from the grammar grades into the high school where only departmental teaching is done. The curriculum of the junior high school gradually acquaints the pupils with this change of departmental teaching and overcomes the gap which now exists between the grammar school and the high school.

He pointed out that individual differences in pupils call for at least a partial differentiation of courses to supply individual demands. Suitable work has not been provided for large and mature pupils in grammar schools, but they have been kept to their disadvantage in classes with smaller children. The new system would eliminate this, he said.

The superintendent also pointed out that the pupils would be promoted by subjects under this system, which would be an asset rather than a detriment as the present promotion system is. I believe that the junior high would be able to save seven out of ten pupils that fail, he said.

To show the practically unanimous endorsement which the 6-3-3 organization of school system has received from departments of education from the different states and from the education leaders throughout the country Superintendent Graham said that a letter sent by the department of education of the state of Massachusetts to the state departments of education of the 48 states asking for a brief expression of opinion as to the success of the junior high school organization brought 42 favorable replies, three did not answer and three failed to express an opinion. Twelve cities in the state of Connecticut have adopted the system, he declared, and he went on to tell of other states that have junior high schools.

In answer to a question upon the approximate cost of the buildings Superintendent Graham said that each would cost about $350,000 without figuring in the cost of land. The superintendent said that he did not feel a trade school would take care of the situation here, in response to a question. He pointed out that Norwich has the lowest per capita cost in education in the state with the exception of Bristol.

Miss Margaret Bridges, a visiting teacher, who conducts classes for problem children at Broadway, Bishop and Greeneville schools, was the ten minute speaker. She gave illustrations of children low in their studies and how the visiting teachers helped to overcome their difficulties and become successful pupils.

SETTLEMENT FOR ABOUT $2,500 IN FIRE SUIT

A settlement out of court understood to be for about $2,500, was reached Wednesday by attorneys in the $10,000 suit brought by Agostini Alfieri, administrator, against the Schwartz Leather company and Arthur Messer. Trial before a jury was started in the superior court at New London Tuesday afternoon and five witnesses had been heard when attorneys for the respective parties Wednesday morning transferred their arguments to chambers, and came to an agreement after two and one-half hours' deliberation.

The suit was brought in behalf of the estate of five-year-old Joseph Spinnato, late of New London, who was one of three to lose their lives in a celluloid fire at the Spinnato home at 123 Jefferson avenue, New London, Jan. 28, 1929.

Suits for similar amounts were brought in behalf of the estates of the other two victims of the fire, Lena Spinnato and Mrs. Lena De Marco, and also in behalf of Mrs. Rose Spinnato, mother of the two Spinnato children, and Mrs. Joseph Baude, both of whom were seriously burned but recovered. The settlement is understood to include settlement of the four other suits which are still on the docket of the superior court.

The Spinnato family was engaged in doing work for the Schwartz Leather company at home when in some manner a large quantity of celluloid, which was being sewed into billfolds, became ignited and transferred a quiet atmosphere of industry into a furnace of death. Joseph Spinnato and Mrs. De Marco were found dead by firemen and Lena Spinnato died at the hospital the next day.

Fire Chief Thomas H. Shipman was the first witness called. He told of conditions at the Spinnato home when he arrived on the scene and of what was done by the firemen. He was followed by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, Mrs. Rose Spinnato, Deputy Sheriff Nelson C. L. Brown and Joseph Petrone.

Attorneys Benjamin H. Hewitt and Lucio DeBiasi appeared for the plaintiffs in the case and Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and Max Boyer for the defendants.

The jury impaneled for the case was as follows:

New London—Henry R. Tisdale.
Groton—Arthur S. Boylen.
Stonington—Fred G. King, Albert P. Kenyon, Edward H. Newbury.
Montville—Dwight Kelsey and Burke G. Hewitt.
Ledyard—Carroll S. Hurlbut.
Waterford—Herbin O. Eccleston and Frank Geer.
East Lyme—Harry B. Morton and Harrison Bond.

NORWICH ROTARY CLUB'S TENTH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Observing its tenth birthday the Norwich Rotary club had as guests 35 members of the New London club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The New London club, which is the parent club, was out in force to extend congratulations to the Norwich club on its completion of ten years of Rotary. Many of those who were present at the organization of the Norwich club in 1920 were in attendance and assisted in the birthday party.

The meeting was in charge of the club's first president, Joseph C. Worth. Other past presidents of the club present were Lucius Briggs, William G. Park, Charles A. Saxton, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, J. Nelson Weymouth and Edward W. Jewett. There are only seven charter members of the club who are active members at the present time. Among the guests of the club were Cornelius C. Costello, president of the New London club when the Norwich club was organized, James Sullivan of New London, William Clark, secretary of the New London club and Past District Governor Colvin.

The programme was exceptionally interesting with addresses by various members of the Norwich and New London clubs and vocal selections by Jim Sullivan, Frank R. Murdy and Henry J. LaFontaine. Past President Worth extended a very hearty and cordial welcome to the New London guests.

On the speaking programme were Adelard Morin, a charter member of the Norwich Rotary club who spoke on "What Rotary Has Done for Me in 10 Years"; Henry Vinot, who was the ambassador from the New London to the Norwich club, who told of the founding of the Norwich organization; Connie Costello, who recalled the first meeting of the club; Bill Clark, who was highly instrumental in getting the Norwich club off on the right foot; and Jim Sullivan, the master of rare and sparkling humor, who spoke in a reminiscent way of the organization of the club.

The meeting was one of the best in many months and was largely attended, nearly a hundred being present.

In the business session Miss Grace Thomas read the minutes of the previous meeting, after which the treasurer's report, as rendered by Miss Esther Hill, was accepted. In making her report on memberships, Mrs. Nancy Kromer proposed the names of four new members.

A nominating committee, Mrs. Julia Corcoran, chairman, Mrs. Whiteside of New London and Judge Foss, was appointed by the executive board of the council, when it met with Miss Anderson of the welfare bureau, Willimantic, previous to the meeting. Fishing Rights on Willimantic River

Fishing rights have been acquired by the state board of fisheries and game on the Willimantic river from below the mouth of Roaring brook in Stafford to Willimantic. This stream, State Superintendent Titcomb says, will be stocked with brown trout. It is not expected that large catches will be the rule there during the first season, he says, but the stream should prove admirable for anglers who seek real trial of skill with the use of the dry fly.

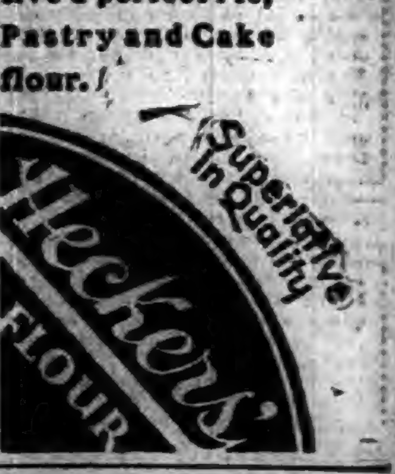
The SAVING FLOUR

Sweetest wheats are so blended to bring out the utmost of flavor and to make Heckers' Superlative a perfect Pie, Pastry and Cake flour.



She Is Making Her Mother Happy

"A big change came over Eline from the time I started giving her ACIDINE regularly for her sour stomach," says Mrs. Ragan of 463 First St., Brooklyn. "She likes to take ACIDINE because it tastes just like peppermint. Therefore I can give it to her regularly enough to help her. Since she's so much brighter and happier now, I want every mother, who has the same trouble as I had, to know how she can get it off her mind."

Too much acid makes grown folks suffer from biliousness and indigestion. You can imagine then, why it keeps a child's delicate little stomach so upset she has no appetite and gets puny, pale and drowsy. More than two million people are using ACIDINE regularly because it actually sweetens a sour stomach so quickly, tastes so good and costs so little. Get ACIDINE at any drug store.

NEW LONDON TRANSFERS SHORE SITE TO GOVERNMENT FOR C. G. ACADEMY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 19.—An adjourned meeting of the city council was held this evening at 5 o'clock when the final steps were taken to transfer to the federal government the land which the city of New London has given for a Coast Guard academy. Director of Law Troland was present and explained the situation as it exists to this time. The Central Vermont Railroad company, Inc., has just come in possession of the railroad it operates from New London to Vermont and not until now was it possible to get title to the land, water front and riparian rights which the government demanded. The land for the proposed academy came to the city from the estate of Harriet U. Allyn, but the railroad company was the owner of land and riparian rights along the water front in East New London. These the railroad company has now deeded to the city and the city has deeded to the government, or will deed as soon as the papers can be signed and forwarded. The New York Trust company has a mortgage on the railroad's land and that had to be taken care of by deed. The railroad company gets a deed of right of way for its line through the land on the water front. The city is to erect a bridge eighteen feet above the railroad tracks at the academy and the same is to be forty feet in width. The railroad company is to have a width of 75 feet along the water front instead of 50 feet as it now has. The railroad company deeded its land to the city without price. The state also deeded land to the city and the city deeded to the federal government. The city manager was authorized to act for the city in signing the deeds so now the transaction is complete. The council gave a vote of thanks to the Central Vermont road for its generosity and to the director of law for his careful and untiring labors in the preparation of deeds and the examination of other deeds consequent upon the transfer of the property.

The council acted upon the ordinance fixing the time for the payment of taxes due the city.

A petition from the Mohican company for the privilege of erecting a small building in the rear of the hotel that shall be used by a watchman and for the same use in the protection of automobiles there, was referred to the city manager with power, his action to meet the approval of the inspector of buildings.

The extension of the water system to accommodate the Coast Guard academy was canvassed, as the contract is to be awarded in competition among contractors.

NIGHT VENTILATION HEALTHY, BUT EXPENSIVE FOR COLLINS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 19.—Thomas J. Collins, insurance solicitor, residing at 31 Linden street, was robbed while he slept last night. The crook, who stole $120, collections which Collins made Tuesday, pursued a novel method. Collins retired as usual Tuesday night and his trousers, in a pocket of which was the money, were left on the bed post. Collins followed his usual custom of sleeping with a window open and when he awoke this morning the trousers were missing. They were found a few minutes later in the yard, but a few feet from the open window. Naturally, as Collins suspected, the money was missing. Collins reported the theft at police headquarters and Sergeant Samuel Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey went to the Linden street house. They decided that the thief had not entered the house, but had succeeded in using a long pole or stick by which the trousers could be reached, pulling them through the open window. After the money was taken the trousers were discarded. The officers made a search of the premises of neighboring houses in an effort to recover the implement used by the crook to secure the trousers, but were unsuccessful. The investigators are convinced that the thief had knowledge of the money being in Collins' pocket, also were aware of the fact that he slept with his window open.

NOLAN NESBIT, BAD ACTOR, ARRESTED IN LOS ANGELES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 19.—Nolan Nesbit, former taxicab driver, who formerly resided on Bank street, wanted here on a charge of forgery and conversion, is under arrest at Los Angeles, Calif. The New London police, who have long sought Nesbit, were informed this afternoon by the Los Angeles police of the ex-taxicab operator being in custody. He will undoubtedly be returned to New London for trial, but it is believed that Nesbit will first have to answer for a crime committed in Los Angeles. Nesbit, several months ago, concluded his labors with a taxicab company but did not notify his employer that he would no longer work. He purchased an automobile on a conditional bill of sale of Maurice Wilkinson, 821 Bank street, making the initial payment, and he also forged a check of Abie Davidson for $23. Securing the cash and automobile and deserting his wife and two children, Nesbit left the city. A search through police channels in various cities did not result in Nesbit being located until today when the message was received from Los Angeles, relating the fact that he was in custody there. Nesbit had informed the California authorities that he has been sought here for the crimes with which he is charged.

REFUSED TO PAY TAXI FARE—BUT PAYS TWO STIFF FINES

Augustus Christopherson was in the police court today, charged with intoxication and refusing to pay a taxicab fare. On the first charge, Judge Daniel M. Cronin imposed a fine of $5 and costs and on the second count Christopherson was fined $10 and costs. Christopherson hired a Union cab last night and after retaining it a long time refused to pay the driver, Robert Potter. When Potter's patience was exhausted in endeavoring to induce Christopherson to pay, the driver made complaint to the police and the man was arrested.

Fred Leiper, 82 Maple avenue, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving an auto equipped with defective brakes. He was fined $10 and costs. Leiper was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Carlos Stone.

Oscar Bloomstrom and George Wilson, Readville, Mass., boys, who were arrested on a technical charge of vagrancy Monday night, obtained their freedom today for the charges against the boys were ordered nolled. The runaways were given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who has arranged for the return of the boys to their home. The boys were arrested at the union station by Special Agent James Daly when the officer detected the youths loitering there and sensed that they had run away from home.

Joseph Harding, about 50, is another of the type of law offenders who does not appreciate leniency. He was in court today, charged with intoxication, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Harding, who has been arrested several times, was in court Tuesday on the same charge and was given suspension of judgment when he assured the court that he would go back to work. Harding forgot his promise as soon as he left the court room, for in less than five hours he was found drunk and was re-arrested.

WESTERLY

WM. S. MARTIN, PHOTOGRAPHER, DIES SUDDENLY IN STUDIO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 19.—William Seaman Martin, 63, photographer, died suddenly about 6 o'clock Wednesday night at his studio, 52 High street. His wife, in an adjoining room, heard him groan and, stepping in, found that he had died almost instantly. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and pronounced death due to heart trouble.

Mr. Martin has conducted Martin's Photo studio in the Porter-Loveland block on High street. He was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 29, 1866, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin. Coming to America when 18, he landed in New York and from there went to Springfield, Mass., where he remained a year.

From Springfield he went to Stafford, where he stayed about a year, going then to Willimantic, where he resided from 1905 to 1919. He came to Westerly in June, 1919, and opened a studio on Main street, later moving to High street. He maintained a branch studio in Norwich.

Besides his wife, Mrs. S. Maud Richard Martin he is survived by two daughters, Miss Jeanne Martin, formerly a student at Willimantic Normal school, and Miss Karem Martin, who makes her home with her parents in Pawcatuck. He has a sister and three brothers residing in Sweden and Germany, also a cousin in New Orleans.

Mr. Martin was a most active worker in the Westerly lodge of Elks, No. 678, of which he was treasurer, also was a member of the Royal Arcanum and I. O. O. F. in Willimantic.

CRANDALL HOUSE CHIMNEY CAUSE OF FIRE ALARM

Fire alarm No. 33 was sounded on the Westerly whistle shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning for an out-of-town and district call in Hopkinton. The call came by telephone from the Herbert Crandall farm located a short distance off the Noose Neck Hill road. The large chimney on the two and a half story frame farm house became ignited and grew so hot it was feared that it would set fire to the house although the roof was shingled with non-combustible shingles. The Westerly fire department was called by Miss Tacy Crandall. Fire Chief George E. Egger received word that the house was on fire and in company with First Assistant Engineer George McKenzie made a quick trip with the Seagraves motor pumper and men. Ladders were raised at the rear of the house and a line of hose taken up from the booster tank and the contents poured into the chimney from which dense clouds of smoke were pouring when the firemen arrived. Chief Egger has stated that when chimney fires are found better results would be obtained if the fact was made known when the call is sent in for firemen can make faster trips to the fire and carry chemical tanks which are most effective in the fighting of these fires and the larger apparatus can be left at headquarters. No damage was done the house on this farm, formerly known as the Aaron Kenyon farm.

Westerly smelt fishermen were not so successful Tuesday in their seine hauling in the waters of the Pawcatuck river, a little over 100 pounds being the total catch of the day.

Funeral services for Charles H. Hurlburt, who died Monday morning from injuries he received when he fell down a flight of stairs last week, were held at Uncasville Methodist church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and were attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles Smith. The floral remembrances were exceptionally beautiful. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, New London.

Mr. Hurlburt is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Cyril C. Hewitt, of Uncasville, and Mrs. F. B. Winram, of Cambridge, Mass., a son, Earl, of Hingham, Mass., and a brother, John D. Hurlburt, of Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sarayusa held a pinochle party at their home in Pequot Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served after the game. The guests were Miss Anna Wickowsky, Victor Svenberg, Agnes Svenberg, Arthur Quimby, Alice Svenberg and Mrs. Albert Taylor.

A clam chowder supper and fancy article sale, given by the Montville council of Catholic Women in the Uncasville Community house Wednesday, from 5:30 to 7:30 was largely attended and liberaly patronized.

Peter Tisky has visited John Hanek of Pequot, who is seriously ill at Lawrence-Memorial hospital in New London.

During 40 years he served as a mail carrier Albert Pritchett, of Fort Madison, Ia., was never late to work.

RISE IN STOCK PRICES ENCOUNTERED PROFIT-TAKING AND SHORT SELLING

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—The bull crowd, encouraged by still further cheapening of money, urged share prices further into new high ground today, but the market advanced with increasing reluctance. Profit-taking and short selling was sufficient to cause a wide sprinkling of net losses at the close, although the index of 90 leading shares gained a point, recording still another new high since October. Trading continued in large volume, the turnover of 4,336,260 shares slightly exceeding the volume of business yesterday, and coming close to the year's busiest day.

Many traders took profits on the theory that the upturn this week had been unduly rapid in view of business conditions, and that pool distribution had weakened the market's technical position. The weekly brokers loans figures are expected to show another large gain tomorrow. Furthermore, business news was of a mixed nature. Carloadings figures as announced for the first week of the month showed another slackening of activity.

The weekly steel trade reviews indicated that the bottom of the decline in mill operations appears to have been reached, but that no upturn is yet in sight. More pleasing was F. W. Dodge Corp's. weekly report of building contracts let, showing a gain of 44 per cent from the small total of the previous week, but failing to reach the aggregate of the like week of last year by 15 per cent.

The extraordinary influx of money into this market caused still new low collateral loan rates for the past five years. Call money renewed at 3 per cent for the first time since 1925, and dropped to 2 per cent at midday. Outside loans were offered as low as 1 1-2 per cent. Bankers acceptance rates were reduced further, making the shorter dates 2 7-8 per cent asked. This wide spread between the 3 1-2 per cent rediscount rate caused expectations of another reduction by the federal reserve within the next few weeks. With similar conditions in London, cable advices state that betting favors a further drop in the Bank of England rate tomorrow. The money flowing to this center appears to be coming mostly from the interior, despite the higher rediscount rates at the other reserve institutions. As this is normally a season of outflowing funds, the situation is somewhat puzzling. It appears to reflect primarily the slack commercial demand.

Such shares as American Can, American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, International Nickel, Baltimore and Ohio, New Haven, and Public Service of New Jersey reached record 1930 prices with extreme gains of about 1 1-2 to 6 points, although they were not generally maintained. U. S. Steel sold up 3 3-4 points, but slipped back a point from the top.

The tobacco shares were singled out as targets by the bears, who based their attack on the advertising controversy which seems to be arising in the industry and rumors of a new price cutting war. American Tobacco dropped 12 1-2 points, and the B. shares 6 1-2. Reynolds B., the Liggett and Myers issues and Lorillard lost about 1 1-2 to 4 points. Simmons was also again under pressure, touching 50 1-4, the lowest in several years. National Bellas Hess preferred dropped 25 points on passing of the common dividend, and the common closed off 1-2 at 12.

Commodities were irregular. Wheat futures closed up fractionally on reports of extreme cold over the central west. July corn gained a cent. Cotton futures lost 35 to 70 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were steady, sterling cables ruling 1-32 higher at $4.86 7-32.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—Another reduction of 1-8 of 1 per cent in bankers acceptances was announced by leading dealers today, the seventh similar reduction within a month and the most rapid fall in such a short time since 1924. The new rates are 2 7-8 per cent bid and 2 3-4 per cent asked for 30 to 120-day acceptances, and 3 per cent bid and 2 7-8 asked for acceptances maturing in from 150 to 180 days. Subsequently the New York Federal Reserve bank reduced its buying rate by 1-8 of 1 per cent, making the new rate 3 per cent for maturities up to 45 days, and 3 1-8 per cent for the longer bills.

Francis B. Davis, Jr., president of the United States Rubber Co., has been elected a member of the board of trustees of the New York Trust Co.

Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation Corp., said today that sufficient stock of the Hydraulic Brake Co., of Los Angeles has been deposited to assure its acquisition by the Bendix organization.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, March 19 — (AP) — Treasury receipts for March 17 were $751,796,294.72; expenditures $379,612,561.47; balance $286,286,780.13.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—Heavy profit taking, based, in part, on the belief that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction after its recent rapid advance, and on expectations of a large increase in brokers' loans tomorrow, turned the course of prices irregular on the Curb exchange today after an early period of strength. Several of the recent leaders in the public utility and oil groups showed moderate net recessions but final quotations also disclosed a rather long list of gains.

United Gas, which was the strong and active feature of yesterday's session, touched a new high at 43 3-4 and then sold down at the close to 40 7-8, off 1 1-8, when it became apparent that heavy liquidation was taking place in the new "when issued" stock which opened at 27 3-4 and sold down to 26. Most of the other natural gas stocks, which had been pushed up on merger rumors, yielded in sympathy.

Electric Bond & Share, after moving up to 103 7-8, or within a fraction of was bid up to a new high on talk of its off 1 5-8 net. Central States warrants dropped 4 points, Electric Power & Light optional warrants 2 7-8 and a few others yielded a point or so. On the other hand, Nevada California Electric soared 10 points to a new high, Commonwealth Edison jumped 11 1-2, American Light & Traction 7 and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore 3 3-4.

Oils were mixed. Gulf and Humble, which have been leaders of the recent advance, dropped 3 and 2 points, respectively. Indian Territory Illuminating moved up 2 to a new high and Cosden jumped 2 3-4 on a few sales. Standard Oil of Ohio duplicated the year's top

A. O. Smith was a spectacular individual feature, soaring nearly 20 points to a new 1930 peak at 209 3-4. It had sold down to 137 1-4 this year. Amrad ran up 4 1-2 points to a new high but the other radio shares showed little change. A better demand was apparent for the aviation issues, Western Air Express standing out with a gain of 3 points. Consolidated Aircraft registered a new 1930 peak.

Segal Lock & Hardware was one of the leaders of the low priced specialty group, touching a new high on unofficial reports that the 1929 report, soon to be published would show a gain of 300 per cent in earnings. Atlas Stores the year's high, sold off to 101 5-8 transfer to the big board. American Cyanamid B., Cooper Bessemer, Houdaille Hershey, Jefferson Electric, Fred T. Ley & Co., Shenandoah preferred, Super Maid corporation, and Texon Oil & Land all reached new 1930 high levels.

Acme Wire, General Industrial Alcohol, Mangel Stores preferred and Technicolor broke to new lows. Federal Screw, Newmont Mining, Ford Motor Limited, General Realty and Ainsworth also were conspicuously heavy.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—Investment funds poured into the bond market today, carrying transactions on the New York Stock exchange above $22,000,000, principal amount, the largest total for the current movement and of course for the year. The unlisted market, where most of the business in bonds is done each day, reported an enormous demand. Transactions on the exchange in the last hour totaled about $8,000,000.

Developments reflecting the unusual easiness of credit came rapidly. Call money renewed at 3 per cent for the first time in five years, and later the rate was cut to 2 per cent. Bankers acceptances were twice reduced and the Federal Reserve bank of New York made one reduction in its bill buying rate. Reports heard in Wall street said that the Bank of England would reduce its discount rate tomorrow. Time funds here were steady.

With money virtually begging for borrowers at the prevailing interest charges, there was a scramble to bonds. Much of the inquiry was directed toward lower priced issues, which normally move more slowly than the higher grade securities, but convertibles also claimed broad attention and most of the listed obligations in this group, especially the rails, sold up sharply.

Seasoned investment rails offering smaller yields worked higher, but gains were mostly smaller than recently. There was a marked increase, however, in the demand for such bonds as Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, which made a maximum advance of 5 points, the St. Paul issues, Erie 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, and Western Maryland 5 1-2s and 4s.

Miscellaneous points of activity included Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, Utilities Power & Light 5 1-2s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s and 4 3-4s, National Dairy Products 5 1-4s, Goodyear Tire & Rubber 5s, International Telephone 5s and American Telephone 5s of 1965. Ajax Rubber 8s soared 10 points to 65.

Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s, up 1 1-8 on the day to 103 3-4, led the stock feature list with a turnover of nearly $1,300,000, par value. American Telephone 4 1-2s, after making a new 1930 high at 163 1-4, sold off a little but closed up 1 5-8. Atchison 4 1-2s, Alleghany Corp. 5s of 1944, Chicago & North Western 4 3-4s, New Haven 6s, Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s with warrants, Texas Corp. 5s and Remington Rand 5 1-2s with warrants averaged a point higher, all on large turnovers.

Interest in foreign bonds waned, but the trend was still upward. South Americans, particularly the Columbia bank issues and the Bolivia 7s and 8s, were well supported. Poland 7s made a new high on a rise of 1 3-8. Leading European obligations held firm.

Liberties and Treasuries, after an early interval of easiness, reversed their course on the appearance of 3 per cent money. The Treasury 4 1-4s, rallying 13-32 of a point to a new 1930 high, led the group.

Bond circles understand that the Royal Dutch Petroleum company is soon to market, through American banking houses, a $40,000,000 issue of long term 4s, priced just below 90.

POETRY

Our House

It should be yours, if I could build
The quaint old dwelling I desire,
With books and pictures bravely filled
And chairs beside an open fire,
White-paneled rooms with candles lit—
I lie awake to think of it!

A dial for the sunny hours,
A garden of old-fashioned flowers—
Say marigolds and lavender
And mignonette and fever-few,
And Judas-tree and maidenhair
And candytuft and thyme and rue—
All these for you to wander in.

A Chinese carp (called Mandarin)
Waving a sluggish silver fin
Deep in the moat; so tame he comes
To lip your fingers offering crumbs,
Tall chimneys, like long listening ears,
White shutters, ivy green and thick,
And walls of ruddy Tudor brick
Grown mellow with the passing years.

And windows with small leaded panes
Broad window seats for when it rains;
A big blue bowl of potpourri
And—yes, a Spanish chestnut tree
To coin the Autumn's minted gold,
A Summer house for drinking tea—
All these (just think) for you and me.

A staircase of the old black wood
Cut in the days of Robin Hood,
And banisters worn smooth as glass
Down which your hand will lightly pass,
A piano with pale yellow keys
For wistful twilight melodies,
And dusty bottles in a bin—
All these for you to revel in!

But when? Ah well, until that time
We'll habit in this house of rhyme.

—Christopher Morley, in American Poetry Magazine.

A February Morn

Diamond-drops among the pines,
Fragile, fleeting things;
Catching color that outshines
Man-made polishings.

Patter of the melting snow
From bent branches sped;
Gentle showers falling, though
Blue skies bend o'erhead.

Dazzling drops among the green,
Bird-song, winter-born;
Shadows blue on earth's white sheen;
A February morn!

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 19—(AP)—Despite heavy selling to realize profits for wheat holders, the market showed a persistent advancing trend today. Prospects of frigid weather overspreading domestic wheat territory was largely responsible, together with a sudden jump in rye values to 10c a bushel higher than last week's bottom level. Extensive damage to the rye crop was reported as having been done northwest.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 1-4-7-8c net advance for the day. Corn closed 1-4c-11c up, oats showing 3-8-5-8c gain, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 12c.

Much of today's purchasing of wheat future deliveries came about from attention given to predictions of severe cold wave tonight northwest sweeping southward during the next 36 hours. In addition were Minneapolis reports current about injury by winter killing having been done to the rye crop, and there were advices telling of frost at various places in Kansas. Further stimulus to buyers resulted from lively upturns in Liverpool wheat quotations today and from word that Germany was after wheat at Rotterdam and elsewhere to anticipate a forthcoming increase of German import duties.

Forecasts of a falling-off in the volume of Argentine wheat offerings to Europe received considerable attention, and so too did reports that Argentine shippers were buying futures. Meanwhile, European continental stocks of native wheat were asserted to be decreasing, Italy's home supplies in particular. Shipments of foreign wheat destined to Great Britain were also reported as smaller than has been the rule of late. Estimates put today's export purchases of North American wheat at 600,000 bu., virtually the whole of it Canadian.

With corn receipts continuing meager and shipping demand here good, broader general buying of corn futures was in evidence. Oats kept even pace with corn.

Provisions were firm, responsive to an upward slant of the hog market and of cereals as well.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 1.09 3-4-7-8, 1.09 1-2-5-8; July 1.08-1-8, 1.07 3-4-7-8; Sept. 1.07, 1.08 7-8. Corn, May 89 1-4, 88 1-8; July 84 5-8-3-4, 88 5-8; Sept. 84 7-8, 87.

COTTON

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 7 to 14 points lower; spot steady; middling 19.85.

Well, it seems that a retired bricklayer and a retired plumber made an engagement to play golf the following morning. When they met at the clubhouse, the bricklayer asked:

"Why, where are your clubs, Charlie?"—American Legion Monthly.

The man was complaining to his landlord. "Those people in the flat above me won't give me a minute's peace. This morning at two o'clock they were jumping up and down and banging on the floor as hard as they could. I simply won't stand it."

"They woke you up, I presume," said the landlord.

"No, I hadn't gone to bed."

"Working late?"

"Yes, I was practicing on my saxophone."—The Pathfinder.

COMPARE VALUES BEFORE YOU BUY AN AUTOMOBILE

Low charges for distribution of the new Ford save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in making the car

THESE are days when every dollar counts. The period of reckless spending is over. People are going back to the good old-fashioned principles of thrift and economy. Value is again being carefully considered.

Nowhere is this more important than in the selection of an automobile. For the purchase of a car represents a considerable investment. It should not be decided on hurriedly, but only after analyzing every important factor that concerns cost, value and performance. The time to do this is before buying—not afterward when it is too late.

ON THE basis of cost, performance and the actual comparative worth of every part, the new Ford is a value far above the price you pay. It is made of better materials and with greater care and accuracy because of the recognized efficiency and economy of Ford manufacturing methods.

The value of these methods is known and understood by millions of people. It is not generally realized, however, that these same principles of efficiency and economy are applied also to every step in the distribution of the Ford car. The low cost of selling, financing time payments, etc., means a direct saving to you of at least $50 to $75 in addition to the money saved by Ford economies in making the car. Here are three reasons why this is so.

(1) The Ford dealer does business on a smaller margin of profit because of the greater number of cars he sells. His discount or commission is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference in your favor, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

(2) The Ford charges for financing are low.

(3) No expensive extra equipment is needed when you buy a Ford. The car leaves the factory ready for use. The f.o.b. price includes a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield and an extra steel-spoke wheel, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes. Any accessories you may wish for your individual taste are sold considerably below the usual prices. None of these charges for selling, financing or accessories is marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

Get all the facts, therefore, before you buy and figure out just what you are getting for your automobile dollars. Go beyond the f.o.b. price and find out how much more you pay the dealer than the dealer pays at the factory. Analyze the used-car allowance. Compare all charges—item for item—value for value.

WHEN you do this you will have a new appreciation of what the Ford Motor Company and Ford dealers are doing to keep down the cost of Ford cars. You will also know why it is possible to put so much real value into the new Ford and still retain the low price. The money you pay goes for value in the car. It is not wasted in excessive costs in manufacturing or selling.

TRIBUTE

William W. Backus Hospital Nurses Alumni Association's Tribute to Doctor W. K. Tingley.

At the regular meeting of The William W. Backus Hospital Nurses' Alumni Association held March 12th, 1930, the following tribute to Dr. Tingley was voted upon:

In the passing of Doctor Tingley, the nursing profession of Norwich has lost a most devoted friend and advisor. Not only was he physician to us and with us, but always the kindly and courteous gentleman, giving us so freely of his time and knowledge over a period of many years.

His was a life of which those who knew it best could well be proud. Unconscious of his own superior qualities, blind to the imperfections of others, a sympathiser in trouble and a friend in need. In his time he did much for the nursing profession and will be greatly missed, not only by this Association, but by every one who knew him; we shall always remember him with deep affection and appreciation.

Voted: That a copy of this tribute be sent to Dr. Tingley's family and one spread upon the records of this Association.

Palace Theatre

Out of the dark depths of the sinister New York underworld comes a thrilling picture to the screen of the Palace theatre, "The Racketeer," a tenderloin drama starring the great Robert Armstrong and lovely Carol Lombard. Along with this tense epic is a sweeter and more romantic play, entitled "Loose Ankles" and starring that famous team of Loretta Young and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

This is another famous double feature bill which the Palace is now offering its patrons. "The Racketeer" is the story of an underworld king, a man who can crush others, and who, by his nefarious and widespread net of crime, is able to keep himself in luxury and win his way to the exclusive social set. He has an estate on Long Island, a sumptuous town apartment, and he is a good looking man. Then a woman enters his life and what a woman!

This is the dramatic and stirring tale of a pretty society girl well bred and brought up amid refinement and luxury. She loves a dissipated young violinist, and through that love she becomes a denizen of the underworld and meets the great Mahlon Keene, racketeer extraordinary. He was the master mind of a daring band of crooks, a tiger in his dealings with other men, yet he loved this high born lady, who in turn loved a shiftless musician. It is a wierd story, a story that will keep every theatregoer tense in his or her chair while the film unfolds its swift and dramatic plot.

"Loose Ankles" has an unusual plot, but it has more than that. It has, besides its chief stars, a cast including the amazingly funny Louise Fazenda the girl who makes everybody laugh. It is spicy, but charmingly spicy, and it tells one of the raciest stories in a captivating manner. No one who sees it can help the laughter that it spontaneously provokes. At the same time it is a sweet romance, comparable to those other love stories played out by this talented pair of young screen stars.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Was it an apple or a glistening trinket that tempted our Mother Eve so many years ago? After all, an apple is only an apple, and jewelry has always had a strange fascination for the weaker sex, yes and the men folks, too, as witness the desperate attempts of the International Jewel Syndicate, Limited—(limited only by the limits of the world)—in their plans to "get" the famous Corbett pearls! In "Slightly Scarlet," Evelyn Brent is the unwilling tool of this gigantic ring of crooks, and her cleverly concocted scheme to win the pearls, was only frustrated when her path crossed that of Clive Brooks, ostensibly a detective, but in reality a "lone wolf," also with a penchant for pearls. Paul Lukas is the sinister head of the "ring," which deals death for disobedience, and Eugene Pallette is the loud-mouthed American social climber, who flaunts his jewels in the very faces of the thieves. A pretty plot and a mighty interesting screen drama with excitement and thrills, cleverly spiced with comedy in every foot. The companion picture returns to the screen Bebe Daniels in a role more exotic than her famous "Rio Rita," as the American senorita in "Love Comes Along," a sparkling musical comedy of life on a Central American island. Lloyd Hughes, in his first singing role, is the bucko mate of a tramp steamer, and with his pal "Happy" the engineer, none other than gloomy Ned Sparks, furnishes plenty of thrills for the natives when the crew hits shore after a long voyage. A scheming jefe with his eye on the young American girl, meets a sad finish at the fists of the forecastle boss, at the conclusion of the brilliant fiesta which furnishes a colorful background for the picture. Bebe's voice has full opportunity, as does that of Mr. Hughes, who in his first vocal efforts makes an enviable record.

The latest Fox movietone news offers some new headline thrills, with the latest baseball training camp news, and shots of a young man who finds pleasure in wrestling with full grown lions. This interesting double feature program will close with tomorrow night's showings, to be followed Saturday with Radio's big naval spectacle "Hit the Deck," an actionful musical comedy, with Jack Oakie heading a cast of over 1,000, and most of the speedy action taking place on the main deck of the battleship West Virginia.

Eastern Star—Groto Minstrels

"The Minstrel Revue," and "Fashion Show," at Masonic temple, Friday, March 21st, will bring to you an old time first part minstrel which will be the talk of the town. Fred G. Prothero, the director, will be the interlocutor and the end men, Percy Collins, Chester Davey, George Weiler, Neil Finlayson, Fred Power, and William Mitchell, will provide plenty of comedy with their songs and jokes. The mixed quartet, Miss Beatrice Littlefield, Miss Amie Marsh, Frederick J. Maples and John Richardson, will delight you with their solo and quartet numbers and not forgetting the chorus of 30 mixed voices who will add strong support in the chorus numbers.

Of special interest to the ladies at intermission the fashion show with fifteen models will display the latest in spring fashions.

Then the second part of the show with Crawford Adams, "Wizard of the Violin," as the extra added attraction. Mr. Adams has many friends in Norwich who no doubt will enjoy the opportunity to hear him again. Others appearing in this part of the show will be Frank R. Murdy, well known local singer, in a group of songs assisted by Henry La Fontaine, Alex Finlayson with John Marchant in "A Wee Bit of Scotch," and Allyn Bernard, local banjoist; all of whom will please the audience with songs, music and comedy. Truly, a wonderful show awaits you on the 21st. Better get there early as tickets are going fast.

Dance Recital

The pupils of Miss Helen Crandall look forward with great anticipation to the dance recital to be held at the Wauregan hotel, Saturday, March 22. Forty-five pupils ranging in age from 3 to 12 years will give artistic and novelty dances under Miss Crandall's direction. Mrs. Harry Stebbin and John Egan will accompany at the piano. The particular feature of the dance will be "top and toe" dancing. There will also be a number of novelty dances never before seen in Norwich.

Special attention has been given by Mrs. McCord to the costumes to be worn by the children, which will be beautiful and unique in both texture and design. The parents of the children and their friends and also the admirers of Miss Crandall's dance studio, will be present to witness the recital.

Plainfield Community House.

A famous radio band will appear at the Plainfield Community house on Friday, March 21, when Paul Specht and his New England Majestic orchestra are here for big spring dance.

Mr. Specht's Georgians are a smaller unit of musicians famous for their recordings of "hot" dance music and for broadcasting of the same kind of harmony. The Georgians have been combined with the internationally famous Specht orchestra, and the two bands are appearing under the personal direction of Mr. Specht for a short American tour.

Among the original radio dance bands, having broadcast from station WJZ as early as 1922, Mr. Specht numbers his radio listeners by the millions. This band was the first regular feature to be broadcast to a New York station regularly from a remote control point, as in 1923 special telephone wires were run from the New York studio of WJZ to Philadelphia, where Mr. Specht's orchestra was appearing, so that the regular broadcasts of the famous musical organization would not be lost to the listeners of WJZ.

Recently Mr. Specht's orchestras have broadcast over the Columbia broadcasting system chain, with programs originating at station WABC in New York, but he has appeared before the microphone of practically every leading station east of the Rocky mountains, and is well known to listeners in every section.

SHYMA CLUB ANNOUNCES FAST CARD FOR BOXING SHOW ON MARCH 28TH

Another action card has been completed by Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn of the Shyma club for the boxing show to be held at Parish hall on Friday evening, March 28th. The card is made up of three eight round star bouts with a supporting card of six and a four round preliminary bouts. The card bristles with action and looks as good as any of the cards yet put on by the Shyma club which is saying a good deal.

For the headliner Matchmaker Flynn has signed Al Kosiol, local battler, in a return bout with Freddy Bender of Fall River. As local fans, who follow the ambitious boxing career of Kosiol know, both boys hold a verdict over the other.

Next on the card is an eight rounder, which brings together Lou Brouillard of Danielson and Mule Brown of New Haven. Fans have been clamoring for a bout between these two ever since seeing Brown box at New London some months ago. Brouillard has never been beaten in a local professional ring and fans have been crying that Brouillard is getting only set-ups. Brown is no set-up.

The third star bout is between Rene Peloquin of Danielson and Domes Dubois of New Haven. Peloquin earned a decision over Dubois here a short time ago in a six round preliminary. Dubois was not satisfied with the verdict and claims he can turn the tables in a long bout which remains to be seen. Rene is fighting regularly and gaining plenty of confidence and experience as he goes.

Johnny Kgp of Norwich who won on a knockout at the last show will box a six round preliminary with Joe Barre of New York. Barre is an unknown quantity at the present time but has been fighting prelim bouts in and around New Bedford this winter.

The opener brings together the Taftville Adonis, Young Guoin, and Young Carries of Fall River. Carries is a boy who only recently has come up from the amateurs but is doing well in the pro ranks. He has engaged in six fights and has won them all. Guoin will be engaging in his third pro fight having won his other two by knockouts.

Tickets will be on sale this week and another capacity house is expected.

BOOTH TO PRACTICE WITH TWO YALE TEAMS

NEW HAVEN, March 19—(AP)—A rather delicate question concerning Yale's athletic welfare has been submitted to arbitration and a sort of parity achieved.

Football Coach Mal Stevens and Baseball Coach Joe Wood met in secret session today, and out of it came the announcement that Albie Booth, Captain Fay Vincent and four other gridiron stars would divide equally their time between the two sports this spring.

So this afternoon, the sextet, Linehan, Taylor, aWiker and Snead besides Booth and Vincent, were early at baseball practice and then went across the way to the football field where they went through fundamentals of spring practice.

This will be the plan for this next month or so while Mal Stevens has his seventy odd candidates in training for next fall's campaign.

The six men have excellent chances of winning letters in baseball.

KAYE DON TO TRY TO BREAK SPEED RECORD TODAY

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Weather and beach conditions permitting, Kaye Don, British racing driver, will make an official attempt to break the world automobile speed record of 231 miles an hour shortly after daybreak tomorrow, he announced late today.

Adverse weather and a ruffled beach prevented Don from making trials today, but gradual swinging of the wind toward the northeast quarter led the driver to believe better conditions might prevail tomorrow. He said he would be on the beach at six o'clock. Low tide will be between 6 and 7 a. m.

Rain fell here nearly all day with some prospect that it might continue tomorrow, making racing impossible.

REPORT OF RESUMPTION ARMY-NAVY RELATIONS

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—The New York Evening Post said today that Army and Navy would resume football relations in a post season game next fall but the report caused little excitement at the West Point citadel of the Cadets.

Major Phillip B. Fleming, athletic director at the Army Academy, said that neither his office nor that of the adjutant had received any overture from the Navy for resumption of athletic relations broken off in 1927 after a dispute over eligibility rules.

Taking the word of a "high authority" in Washington, the Post said there would be no further conflict between the two schools over eligibility codes and that the game would be played either in Baltimore or New York.

ELEVEN TEAMS ENTERED FOR PLAINFIELD TOURNAMENT

LeRoy A. Dissinger, director at the Plainfield Community house has received eleven entries for the first annual Eastern Connecticut Basketball tournament which is to be held March 29th at the Plainfield Community house court. The teams now entered in the tourney represent Putnam, Danielson, Willimantic, Meriden, New Britain, Plainfield, Norwich, Westerly, Colchester, Fitchville and Woodstock.

Forty blanks have been sent out and more entries are expected before the entries close on Wednesday, March 26th. Mr. Dissinger announced yesterday that the winning team would receive gold basketballs and the runners-up would be given silver basketballs. There will be a loving cup for the winners and there will also be a number of individual prizes.

The victory in the interscholastics at New London last May together with the introduction of indoor track the past winter seems to have been just the tonic needed by this sport, which for so long placed the Academy in the position of the proverbial "door-mat". In short, it may be said that prospects for the 1930 track team at N. F. A. are regarded as very bright.

There are only three lettermen available but there are several promising newcomers in addition to the holdovers from the successful cross-country team last fall. Capt. Sam Berkman, regarded by a good many as one of the best scholastic trackmen in Connecticut if not in New England, takes rank alongside Bill Agnew and Gink Barber of football fame as the lettermen. Barber holds the league record for the shot put.

The present outlook shows the squad strong in every event from the dashes right up to the half mile and especially well fortified in the quarter mile. The prospects in the mile or beyond are not on a par with those for the other positions but there are few good long distance men on any high school squad.

Here's the present array of talent: 100 yard dash—Roots, Sura, Lyons, Sargent, Lashroff; 220 yard dash, Capt. Berkman, Sura, Sera, Roots, Hogg, Goldberg; 440 yard run, Berkman, Flather, Agnew, Lenkiewicz, Mahoney, Lyons; 880 yard run, Berkman, Mahoney, Sura, Agnew; mile run, Richardson, (cross-country captain last fall), Begbe, Szarcha, Levitsky, Baronsky, Sedes; high jump, Roots, Lenkiewicz, Armstrong; pole vault, Hogg, Lenkiewicz, Shields, Preskop; broad jump, Roots, Sera, Hogg; shot put, Barber, Berghinzo, Cruickshank, Hertz, Hayden, Sheridan; discus, Wojstasiak, Barber, Berghinzo, Cruickshank Hayden, Sheridan, Hertz; javelin throw, Sheridan, Wojstasiak, Cruickshank, Berghinzo. There are also several after places on the relay teams.

Hogg, who is listed for several events, is a new arrival from Scotland, where he captained his high school track team last year. He is only a lower middler and will undoubtedly be of much help to the Red and White.

The new uniforms, of Cardinal satteen pants and white jerseys with warm-up suits for the relay team, are attracting much attention. Already in practice this week times of 54 seconds for the quarter mile and 1.40 for the half-mile relay have been turned in. Tuesday a team of Roots, Sura, Goldberg and Berkman ran up this figure in beating Lyons, Mahoney, Lenkiewics and Agnew.

The one-mile college relay was won by New York university in 3:46 4-5.

In the one-mile academy relay, Roxbury defeated Norwich Free Academy in 3:52 3-5.

The two-mile handicap was won by H. Werbin, Millrose A. C., in 10:08. Barker, N. Y. U., and Pope, Yale, were second and third.

Harding high school of Bridgeport won the high school relay with Hartford second. The time: 3:26 1-5.

ROBINS GO ON RAMPAGE IN 12TH TO DOWN BROWNS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Scoring eight runs in the 12th inning, the Brooklyn Dodgers won an extra inning game from the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 2 today.

The National leaguers bunched seven of their 13 hits in the final round to score eight runs at the expense of Eddie Stiely, a rookie left hander. At the end of the regular nine innings the two teams were deadlocked at 2-all, the Robins having knotted the count in the eighth.

Clark and Morrison did most of the heavy work for the winners but Hollis Thurston received credit for the victory. Score:

Susie Says

(News item—Professional firebug is arrested and confesses to long list of fires and names his old clients.)

P. F. B.: Ah, good morning, Mr. Cloxensutes, how's business? Don't answer, I know. I'm rushed to death nowadays.

Mr. C.: Sssh, come inside, don't let people see me talking to you. The Irisher on this beat is already superstitious of me since that last one.

P. F. B.: Oh, don't worry, there's not a chance of anything going wrong. I'm a specialist in my line and I do business with the best in town. Ask any of the boys if my work's not satisfactory. You know my motto is, "A total loss or money refunded."

Mr. C.: Now let's get down to business. I want a good clean job done like Charlie Bootsenahus had over on 9th avenue. There was a good job, the lucky stiff. Can you do it and what's your price?

P. F. B.: Now Mr. Cloxensutes, let's see your policy. Is it all paid up? Yeah. Well, now what's your inventory? And don't go knocking it down, give me the right dope. Oh, $50,000. Well, I'll take the job for ten per cent, that oughta net me five grand.

Mr. C.: That's too much. Make it five per cent and you get the job and if you don't I'll get somebody else. There's plenty of good fireflies around.

P. F. B.: Oh, yeah? Well, let me tell you, anybody that will do it less than ten per cent on the total inventory ain't a union man. But if you want a scab to do it, and you will probably land in jail, why, that's your lookout. Ten per cent is my figure, take it or leave it.

Mr. C.: Oh, Mr. Arson, that you should be so hard on a poor business man. But what can I do, you specialists has got us merchants tied. But maybe I can get some of the stock away before the accident happens, what?

P. F. B.: That's okay with me, but I get ten per of the total inventory, just the same.

Mr. C.: All right, it's a bargain, bring out the contracts and we'll sign. Now, when can you do this job?

P. F. B.: Let's look in the book. Say, I'm all booked up for the next two weeks. Here's two jobs on Broadway for next week, and one on Seventh avenue, and another uptown. The next week's the same but I can give you the date two weeks from Tuesday. That all right?

Mr. C.: Sure, that's good. That will give me a lotta time to move some of the stock. Now on Monday I'll announce I'm leaving for Florida on Tuesday night, so a telegram ought to stop me just before I get to Washington. With business the way it is I don't wanta buy a through ticket to Florida.

P. F. B.: Anything you say, Mr. Cloxensutes, but you better give me a grand just to bind the deal and I'll be breezing along. Lots of appointments today. You was lucky to get me when you did.

Mr. C.: Oh, you hard businessman, Mr. Arson, I wish I could do business as quick as you do. The cloak and suit business is rotten. Here's the $1,000.

P. F. B.: Good morning, Mr. Cloxensutes, rest easy, you'll have nothing to worry about after Tuesday.

Mr. C.: Goodbye, I hope you're right.

SHIRES MUST DO SOME EXPLAINING TO COMISKEY

CHICAGO, March 19.— (AP) —Art Shires, belligerent White Sox first baseman, must explain his prize fighting troubles to Owner Charles A. Comiskey before the veteran White Sox boss will reinstate the first baseman. Shires wired his acceptance of the White Sox terms today, but Owner Comiskey declined to accept the contract until Shires made a satisfactory explanation of his prize ring activities.

Comiskey received the following telegram from Shires, from Italy, Tex., the ball player's home town:

"Terms satisfactory; shall I send contract in or carry with me to San Antonio?" The Sox training camp is at San Antonio.

Comiskey replied by another wire:

"Your wire received. Signing of contract is a secondary consideration. What I must know before you become reinstated is who accused you of wrong doing while participating in the fighting ring, who suspended you, and who produced the evidence that caused your reinstatement. Do not report to San Antonio until you have answered the foregoing questions to me. If reinstated in baseball, you must follow baseball as a serious profession. As you must know, your actions in the past have been humiliating to your companions and we cannot countenance any recurrence of such actions."

The White Sox offices here added that the contract which Shires accepted as satisfactory was the original one sent him.

Shires has been described as a holdout.

NEW HIGH SINGLE MARK SET IN NAT. TOURNEY

WATERBURY, March 19.—(AP)—Eddie Dugay of the South End Bearcat A. C., of Waterbury, set a new all-national tournament single string record in the National Duckpin congress tonight with a score of 170. The previous mark was held by Harry Krause of Washington, D. C., who rolled 165 at Richmond, Va., a year ago.

Lawrence and Taunton, Mass., Plainville and Waterbury, Conn., teams competed today but none of the new entrants displaced the leaders recorded yesterday.

The tournament will be idle tomorrow, but competition for national honors will be resumed Friday.

ACADEMY PRACTICE OFF; WEATHER TOO CHILLY

The Academy baseball squad had its first off-day of the year Wednesday when a strong wind, sweeping across the campus, forced Coach Brigham to forego any work for fear of sore arms. With warmer weather promised for today, however, the Wildcats will get right back to work and hope to continue hard at it until the opening game.

The unwieldy squad of 75 that worked out the first of the week has been cut down somewhat so that for today's session there will probably be around 40 on hand.

OFFICIAL SANCTION GIVEN TO DUWELLS TO HOLD NATIONAL TITLE RACE HERE

Announcement was made here last night that the national headquarters of the A. A. U. had officially confirmed the awarding of the national 10 mile championship race to the Duwell A. A. and had accepted Memorial day, May 30, as a suitable date on which to conduct the event. At a recent meeting of the Connecticut Association of the A. A. U. the event was awarded the local club but it was not until yesterday that the national body actually confirmed the award.

Now that they have official confirmation of the award the Duwells will immediately begin to lay their plans for the conduct of the race. Inasmuch as the affair is a national proposition and really is the outstanding event on the A. A. U. program it will take considerable planning and arranging to put it over properly. For years the race has been held in the largest cities of the country, being conducted at New York city in 1929. This year will be the first that it has ever been brought to a small city, in fact the first time that it was brought into New England. The success of the race in May will determine whether or not it will be awarded a small city in the future. In hopes of securing the championship for Norwich as an annual affair the Duwells will bend every effort towards making it a big success this year.

The securing of the championship is not only a scoop for the local athletic organization but for the city itself, inasmuch as Norwich will be advertised throughout the United States before and after the race. Athletes from the various sections of the country will take part in the run, press notices of the affair, under Norwich date lines, will be wired to the newspapers throughout the country and in all probability pictures of the run will be shown on the motion picture screens of many of the theatres in the United States.

In years past the Duwells succeeded in bringing many of the outstanding athletes of the east to Norwich for their annual races but this year they should succeed in bringing the best in the country here. At the present time it is undecided as to whether to hold the race on the road or on a track. Inasmuch as records for an event of this kind are accepted only when the affair is held on a track it would be proper to hold the race on a track if one can be secured here. In the past the Duwells secured information that the long distance committee of the National A. A. U. would co-operate with the local organization in arranging for the run. William (Bill) Kennedy of Port Chester, N. Y., who is president of the International Marathon Runners association will also co-operate with the local committees. Bill, who is well known here, having appeared in several of the Duwell runs, has advised the Duwells that at the next meeting of his association he will urge all of the members to file entry for the race.

Inasmuch as the staging of the race will be a tremendous task and will require considerable financial as well as moral support the Duwells will look to the various organizations in the city for assistance. In years past the co-operation has been splendid and it is felt certain that it will be even better this year in view of the importance of the run. It is understood that the minimum cost of putting on the race will be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Tom Zachary, veteran New York Yankee southpaw, was credited with his first defeat since the opening of the 1929 season when the St. Louis Cardinals pounded out a ninth inning victory at his expense today. The score was 7 to 3.

Indians Beat Pelicans

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 19.—(AP)—Seventeen youngsters and two veterans on the Cleveland Indians won a 11 to 10 victory over the New Orleans Pelicans today in the Indians' first exhibition game of the season.

KOJAC CAPTURES TWO PLACES ON SWIMMING TEAM

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—George Kojac, Rutgers university captain and Olympic champion, captures two berths on the annual all-league team selected today for the Associated Press by the coaches of the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming association.

The powerful Rutgers leader who set a scoring record of 90 points this season in addition to creating a new intercollegiate mark for the 100 yard dash and trying the 50 yard figure gets the call in both free style sprints and in the relay as well.

Yale's well balanced team, winner of the intercollegiate championship, carried off two all-star positions as did Princeton, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse each placed one man on the chosen array.

The selections for first team follows, the figures indicating how well the various athletes fared in the voting of the coaches.

First team:

TIGERS TROUNCE PHILLIES IN EASY EXHIBITION

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 19—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers pounded three of Burt Shotton's pitchers for fourteen hits to trounce the Phillies 9 to 2 in an exhibition game here today.

Lester Sweetland kept the Tigers in check in the first three innings, but Claude Willoughby's ascension to the mound in the fourth frame was the signal for a barrage of hits. Art Herring new hurler on Bucky Harris' staff, blanked the Phils in the first five innings. Hogsett, who replaced him, was touched for two runs in the sixth. Score:

Detroit	010 310 003—9	14	1
Phillies	000 002 000 2	7	1

Cubs

AVALON, Calif., March 19—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy drilled his Cubs for the last time this season on Catalina Island today and then broke up camp for Los Angeles where a long series of exhibition games will be played.

"Barring bad luck and bad breaks, the Cubs will win the flag again," McCarthy said.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

With the recent announcement that the K. of C. would again sponsor a baseball team this coming season, perhaps it would not be amiss to recall one of the games of the strong Kacey team of eight or nine years ago.

Saturday, July 15, 1922, the Knights played one of their many games with their old rivals, the Alhambra council of Worcester. This was a real game, although won by Worcester, 2 to 1, in a last inning rally. Durning allowed only three hits to the Worcester team but passed eight men, which proved his downfall.

All of the names on the K. of C. team will be familiar to the many fans that used to flock to the Fairgrounds Sundays for the games. One, in particular, Bill Hunnifield, at short that day, is now with the Chicago White Sox.

Another action card has been completed by Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn of the Shyma club for the boxing show to be held at Parish hall on Friday evening, March 28th. The card is made up of three eight round star bouts with a supporting card of six and a four round preliminary bouts. The card bristles with action and looks as good as any of the cards yet put on by the Shyma club which is saying a good deal.

For the headliner Matchmaker Flynn has signed Al Koziol, local battler, in a return bout with Freddy Bender of Fall River. As local fans, who follow the ambitious boxing career of Koziol know, both boys hold a verdict over the other.

Next on the card is an eight rounder, which brings together Lou Brouillard of Danielson and Mule Brown of New Haven. Fans have been clamoring for a bout between these two ever since seeing Brown box at New London some months ago. Brouillard has never been beaten in a local professional ring and fans have been crying that Brouillard is getting only set-ups. Brown is no set-up.

The third star bout is between Rene Peloquin of Danielson and Domes Dubois of New Haven. Peloquin earned a decision over Dubois here a short time ago in a six round preliminary. Dubois was not satisfied with the verdict and claims he can turn the tables in a long bout which remains to be seen. Rene is fighting regularly and gaining plenty of confidence and experience as he goes.

Johnny Kus of Norwich who won on a knockout at the last show will box a six round preliminary with Joe Barre of New York. Barre is an unknown quantity at the present time but has been fighting prelim bouts in and around New Bedford this winter.

The opener brings together the Taftville Adonis, Young Guoin, and Young Carries of Fall River. Carries is a boy who only recently has come up from the amateurs but is doing well in the pro ranks. He has engaged in six fights and has won them all. Guoin will be engaging in his third pro fight having won his other two by knockouts.

Tickets will be on sale this week and another capacity house is expected.

BOOTH TO PRACTICE WITH TWO YALE TEAMS

NEW HAVEN, March 19—(AP)—A rather delicate question concerning Yale's athletic welfare has been submitted to arbitration and a sort of parity achieved.

Football Coach Mal Stevens and Baseball Coach Joe Wood met in secret session today, and out of it came the announcement that Albie Booth, Captain Fay Vincent and four other gridiron stars would divide equally their time between the two sports this spring.

So this afternoon, the sextet, Linehan, Taylor, Wilker and Snead besides Booth and Vincent, were early at baseball practice and then went across the way to the football field where they went through fundamentals of spring practice.

This will be the plan for this next month or so while Mal Stevens has his seventy odd candidates in training for next fall's campaign.

The six men have excellent chances of winning letters in baseball.

KAYE DON TO TRY TO BREAK SPEED RECORD TODAY

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Weather and beach conditions permitting, Kaye Don, British racing driver, will make an official attempt to break the world automobile speed record of 231 miles an hour shortly after daybreak tomorrow, he announced late today.

Adverse weather and a ruffled beach prevented Don from making trials today, but gradual swinging of the wind toward the northeast quarter led the driver to believe better conditions might prevail tomorrow. He said he would be on the beach at six o'clock. Low tide will be between 6 and 7 a. m.

Rain fell here nearly all day with some prospect that it might continue tomorrow, making racing impossible.

REPORT OF RESUMPTION ARMY-NAVY RELATIONS

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—The New York Evening Post said today that Army and Navy would resume football relations in a post season game next fall but the report caused little excitement at the West Point citadel of the Cadets.

Major Phillip B. Fleming, athletic director at the Army Academy, said that neither his office nor that of the adjutant had received any overture from the Navy for resumption of athletic relations broken off in 1927 after a dispute over eligibility rules.

Taking the word of a "high authority" in Washington, the Post said there would be no further conflict between the two schools over eligibility codes and that the game would be played either in Baltimore or New York.

ELEVEN TEAMS ENTERED FOR PLAINFIELD TOURNAMENT

LeRoy A. Dissinger, director at the Plainfield Community house has received eleven entries for the first annual Eastern Connecticut Basketball tournament which is to be held March 29th at the Plainfield Community house court. The teams now entered in the tourney represent Putnam, Danielson, Willimantic, Meriden, New Britain, Plainfield, Norwich, Westerly, Colchester, Fitchville and Woodstock.

Forty blanks have been sent out and more entries are expected before the entries close on Wednesday, March 26th. Mr. Dissinger announced yesterday that the winning team would receive gold basketballs and the runners-up would be given silver basketballs. There will be a loving cup for the winners and there will also be a number of individual prizes.

The victory in the interscholastics at New London last May together with the introduction of indoor track the past winter seems to have been just the tonic needed by this sport, which for so long placed the Academy in the position of the proverbial "door-mat". In short, it may be said that prospects for the 1930 track team at N. F. A. are regarded as very bright.

There are only three lettermen available but there are several promising newcomers in addition to the holdovers from the successful cross-country team last fall. Capt. Sam Berkman, regarded by a good many as one of the best scholastic trackmen in Connecticut if not in New England, takes rank alongside Bill Agnew and Gink Barber of football fame as the lettermen. Barber holds the league record for the shot put.

The present outlook shows the squad strong in every event from the dashes right up to the half mile and especially well fortified in the quarter mile. The prospects in the mile or beyond are not on a par with those for the other positions but there are few good long distance men on any high school squad.

Here's the present array of talent: 100 yard dash—Roots, Sura, Lyons, Sargent, Lazaroff; 220 yard dash, Capt. Berkman, Sura, Sera, Roots, Hogg, Goldberg; 440 yard run, Berkman, Flather, Agnew, Lenkiewicz, Mahoney, Lyons; 880 yard run, Berkman, Mahoney, Sura, Agnew; mile run, Richardson, (cross-country captain last fall), Beebe, Szarcha, Levitsky, Baronsky, Sedes; high jump, Roots, Lenkiewicz, Armstrong; pole vault, Hogg, Lenkiewicz, Shields, Preskop; broad jump, Roots, Sera, Hogg; shot put, Barber, Berghinzo, Cruickshank, Hertz, Hayden, Sheridan; discus, Wojstasiak, Barber, Berghinzo, Cruickshank, Hayden, Sheridan, Hertz; javelin throw, Sheridan, Wojstasiak, Cruickshank, Berghinzo. There are also several after places on the relay teams.

Hogg, who is listed for several events, is a new arrival from Scotland, where he captained his high school track team last year. He is only a lower middler and will undoubtedly be of much help to the Red and White.

The new uniforms, of Cardinal satteen pants and white jerseys with warm-up suits for the relay team, are attracting much attention. Already in practice this week times of 54 seconds for the quarter mile and 1.40 for the half-mile relay have been turned in. Tuesday a team of Roots, Sura, Goldberg and Berkman ran up this figure in beating Lyons, Mahoney, Lenkiewicz and Agnew.

N. F. A. LOSES RELAY RACE TO ROXBURY PREP AT N. H.

NEW HAVEN, March 19.—(AP)—Monty Wells, Boston A. A., tonight equalled the world's record in the 40-yard hurdles at the fourth annual meet of New Haven firemen, when he skimmed the timbers in five and two-fifths seconds. Bud Ramsey, Roxbury school, was second. Wells also won the 45-yard hurdles in six seconds with Ramsey trailing him.

Ray Conger, Illinois A. C., won the special one-mile handicap, defeating S. E. Grodman, New York university, and J. McCormack, Yale. His time was 4:32.

Loretta McNeil, Millrose A. C., defeated Catherine Mearis, Boston A. A., in a 40-yard dash in the time of five and one-fifth seconds.

The one-mile college relay was won by New York university in 3:46 4-5.

John Gibson, Newark A. C., was winner of the 600-yard run, beating A. R. Summer, and A. Parker of Yale. The time was 1:19 3-5.

The two-mile handicap was won by H. Werbin, Millrose A. C., in 10:08. Barker, N. Y. U., and Pope, Yale, were second and third.

Harding high school of Bridgeport won the high school relay with Hartford second. The time: 3:36 1-5.

ROBINS GO ON RAMPAGE IN 12TH TO DOWN BROWNS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 19—(AP)—Scoring eight runs in the 12th inning, the Brooklyn Dodgers won an extra inning game from the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 2 today.

The National leaguers bunched seven of their 13 hits in the final round to score eight runs at the expense of Eddie Stiely, a rookie left hander. At the end of the regular nine innings the two teams were deadlocked at 2-all, the Robins having knotted the count in the eighth.

Clark and Morrison did most of the heavy work for the winners but Hollis Thurston received credit for the victory. Score:

St. Louis	000 000 200 000—2	11	6

The game was exceedingly fast during the first half, the sailors holding a 19-18 lead at its conclusion. In the second half, however, the play of the visitors fell away and the Base, winners of the City league title, romped through to their coveted victory.

(News item—Professional firebug is arrested and confesses to long list of fires and names his old clients.)

P. F. B.: Ah, good morning, Mr. Cloxensutes, how's business? Don't answer, I know. I'm rushed to death nowadays.

Mr. C.: Sssh, come inside, don't let people see me talking to you. The Irisher on this beat is already superstitious of me since that last one.

P. F. B.: Oh, don't worry, there's not a chance of anything going wrong. I'm a specialist in my line and I do business with the best in town. Ask any of the boys if my work's not satisfactory. You know my motto is, "A total loss or money refunded."

Mr. C.: Now let's get down to business. I want a good clean job done like Charlie Bootsenshus had over on 9th avenue. There was a good job, the lucky stiff. Can you do it and what's your price?

P. F. B.: Now Mr. Cloxensutes, let's see your policy. Is it all paid up? Yeah. Well, now what's your inventory? And don't go knocking it down, give me the right dope. Oh, $50,000. Well, I'll take the job for ten per cent, that oughta net me five grand.

Mr. C.: That's too much. Make it five per cent and you get the job and if you don't I'll get somebody else. There's plenty of good fireflies around.

P. F. B.: Oh, yeah? Well, let me tell you, anybody that will do it less than ten per cent on the total inventory ain't a union man. But if you want a scab to do it, and you will probably land in jail, why, that's your lookout. Ten per cent is my figure, take it or leave it.

Mr. C.: Oh, Mr. Arson, that you should be so hard on a poor business man. But what can I do, you specialists has got us merchants tied. But maybe I can get some of the stock away before the accident happens, what?

P. F. B.: That's okay with me, but I get ten per of the total inventory, just the same.

Mr. C.: All right, it's a bargain, bring out the contracts and we'll sign. Now, when can you do this job?

P. F. B.: Let's look in the book. Say, I'm all booked up for the next two weeks. Here's two jobs on Broadway for next week, and one on Seventh avenue, and another uptown. The next week's the same but I can give you the date two weeks from Tuesday. That all right?

Mr. C.: Sure, that's good. That will give me a lotta time to move some of the stock. Now on Monday I'll announce I'm leaving for Florida on Tuesday night, so a telegram ought to stop me just before I get to Washington. With business the way it is I don't wanta buy a through ticket to Florida.

P. F. B.: Anything you say, Mr. Cloxensutes, but you better give me a grand just to bind the deal and I'll be breezing along. Lots of appointments today. You was lucky to get me when you did.

Mr. C.: Oh, you hard businessman, Mr. Arson, I wish I could do business as quick as you do. The cloak and suit business is rotten. Here's the $1,000.

P. F. B.: Good morning, Mr. Cloxensutes, rest easy, you'll have nothing to worry about after Tuesday.

Mr. C.: Goodbye, I hope you're right.

SHIRES MUST DO SOME EXPLAINING TO COMISKEY

CHICAGO, March 19.— (AP) —Art Shires, belligerent White Sox first baseman, must explain his prize fighting troubles to Owner Charles A. Comiskey before the veteran White Sox boss will reinstate the first baseman. Shires wired his acceptance of the White Sox terms today, but Owner Comiskey declined to accept the contract until Shires made a satisfactory explanation of his prize ring activities.

Comiskey received the following telegram from Shires, from Italy, Tex., the ball player's home town:

"Terms satisfactory; shall I send contract in or carry with me to San Antonio?" The Sox training camp is at San Antonio.

Comiskey replied by another wire:

"Your wire received. Signing of contract is a secondary consideration. What I must know before you become reinstated is who accused you of wrong doing while participating in the fighting ring, who suspended you, and who produced the evidence that caused your reinstatement. Do not report to San Antonio until you have answered the foregoing questions to me. If reinstated in baseball, you must follow baseball as a serious profession. As you must know, your actions in the past have been humiliating to your companions and we cannot countenance any recurrence of such actions."

The White Sox offices here added that the contract which Shires accepted as satisfactory was the original one sent him.

Shires has been described as a hold-out.

C., of Waterbury, set a new all-national tournament single string record in the National Duckpin congress tonight with a score of 170. The previous mark was held by Harry Krause of Washington, D. C., who rolled 165 at Richmond, Va., a year ago.

Lawrence and Taunton, Mass., Plainville and Waterbury, Conn., teams competed today but none of the new entrants displaced the leaders recorded yesterday.

The tournament will be idle tomorrow, but competition for national honors will be resumed Friday.

ACADEMY PRACTICE OFF; WEATHER TOO CHILLY

The Academy baseball squad had its first off-day of the year Wednesday when a strong wind, sweeping across the campus, forced Coach Brigham to forego any work for fear of sore arms. With warmer weather promised for today, however, the Wildcats will get right back to work and hope to continue hard at it until the opening game.

The unwieldy squad of 75 that worked out the first of the week has been cut down somewhat so that for today's session there will probably be around 40 on hand.

OFFICIAL SANCTION GIVEN TO DUWELLS TO HOLD NATIONAL TITLE RACE HERE

Announcement was made here last night that the national headquarters of the A. A. U. had officially confirmed the awarding of the national 10 mile championship race to the Duwell A. A. and had accepted Memorial day, May 30, as a suitable date on which to conduct the event. At a recent meeting of the Connecticut Association of the A. A. U. the event was awarded the local club but it was not until yesterday that the national body actually confirmed the award.

Now that they have official confirmation of the award the Duwells will immediately begin to lay their plans for the conduct of the race. Inasmuch as the affair is a national proposition and really is the outstanding event on the A. A. U. program it will take considerable planning and arranging to put it over properly. For years the race has been held in the largest cities of the country, being conducted at New York city in 1929. This year will be the first that it has ever been brought to a small city, in fact the first time that it was brought into New England. The success of the race in May will determine whether or not it will be awarded a small city in the future. In hopes of securing the championship for Norwich as an annual affair the Duwells will bend every effort towards making it a big success this year.

The securing of the championship is not only a scoop for the local athletic organization but for the city itself, inasmuch as Norwich will be advertised throughout the United States before and after the race. Athletes from the various sections of the country will take part in the run, press notices of the affair, under Norwich date lines, will be wired to the newspapers throughout the country and in all probability pictures of the run will be shown on the motion picture screens of many of the theatres in the United States.

In years past the Duwells succeeded in bringing many of the outstanding athletes of the east to Norwich for their annual races but this year they should succeed in bringing the best in the country here. At the present time it is undecided as to whether to hold the race on the road or on a track. Inasmuch as records for an event of this kind are accepted only when the affair is held on a track it would be proper to hold the race on a track if one can be secured here. In the past the Duwells secured information that the long distance committee of the National A. A. U. would co-operate with the local organization in arranging for the run. William (Bill) Kennedy of Port Chester, N. Y., who is president of the International Marathon Runners association will also co-operate with the local committees. Bill, who is well known here, having appeared in several of the Duwell runs, has advised the Duwells that at the next meeting of his association he will urge all of the members to file entry for the race.

Inasmuch as the staging of the race will be a tremendous task and will require considerable financial as well as moral support the Duwells will look to the various organizations in the city for assistance. In years past the co-operation has been splendid and it is felt certain that it will be even better this year in view of the importance of the run. It is understood that the minimum cost of putting on the race will be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

Indians Beat Pelicans

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 19.—(AP)—Seventeen youngsters and two veterans on the Cleveland Indians won a 11 to 10 victory over the New Orleans Pelicans today in the Indians' first exhibition game of the season.

KOJAC CAPTURES TWO PLACES ON SWIMMING TEAM

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—George Kojac, Rutgers university captain and Olympic champion, captures two berths on the annual all-league team selected today for the Associated Press by the coaches of the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming association.

The powerful Rutgers leader who set a scoring record of 90 points this season in addition to creating a new intercollegiate mark for the 100 yard dash and trying the 50 yard figure gets the call in both free style sprints and in the relay as well.

Yale's well balanced team, winner of the intercollegiate championship, carried off two all-star positions as did Princeton, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse each placed one man on the chosen array.

The selections for first team follows, the figures indicating how well the various athletes fared in the voting of the coaches.

First team:
50-yard: Kojac, Rutgers, 12.
440-yard: Ray Ruddy, Columbia, 16.

TIGERS TROUNCE PHILLIES IN EASY EXHIBITION

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 19—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers pounded three of Burt Shotton's pitchers for fourteen hits to trounce the Phillies 9 to 2 in an exhibition game here today.

Lester Sweetland kept the Tigers in check in the first three innings, but Claude Willoughby's ascension to the mound in the fourth frame was the signal for a barrage of hits. Art Herring new hurler on Bucky Harris' staff, blanked the Phils in the first five innings. Hogsett, who replaced him, was touched for two runs in the sixth. Score:

Phillies	000 002 000 2	7	1

Cubs

AVALON, Calif., March 19—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy drilled his Cubs for the last time this season on Catalina Island today and then broke up camp for Los Angeles where a long series of exhibition games will be played.

"Barring bad luck and bad breaks, the Cubs will win the flag again," McCarthy said.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE ?

With the recent announcement that the K. of C. would again sponsor a baseball team this coming season, perhaps it would not be amiss to recall one of the games of the strong Kacey team of eight or nine years ago.

Saturday, July 15, 1922, the Knights played one of their many games with their old rivals, the Alhambra council of Worcester. This was a real game, although won by Worcester, 2 to 1, in a last inning rally. Durning allowed only three hits to the Worcester team but passed eight men, which proved his downfall.

All of the names on the K. of C. team will be familiar to the many fans that used to flock to the Fairgrounds Sundays for the games. One, in particular, Bill Hunnifield, at short that day, is now with the Chicago White Sox.

Mothers by thousands praise California Fig Syrup. For fifty years physicians have endorsed this pure vegetable product. It tones and strengthens stomach and bowels; stimulates appetite; encourages digestion and assimilation. Its use helps make sallow, listless children rosy and energetic.

The entertainment was in charge of Woodruff T. Sullivan. The session opened with singing of old time songs, led by Lewis E. Aldrich. Lewis Mell played the piano for the singing. Frederick G. Ross, the vice president, was in the chair. A brief, enlightening story of the life of John Mason was read by Woodruff Sullivan. The secretary, Rev. Geo. W. Potter, read the minutes of the previous meeting. The treasurer, Stanton W. Brown, gave a report showing a balance in the treasury. The Gospel for a Working World

A large congregation Sunday night in the Methodist Episcopal church heard the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter deliver a stereoptican lecture on "The Gospel for a Working World." He said no weightier question is before the nation or church than that presented by labor, as after lying prone for so long a time she now struggles to her feet and claims her rights. The problem is unfortunately not easy to solve. Our study must be made among the more complicated circumstances of modern industry. No question is ever finally settled until it is settled right. It is the task of the church with tact, firmness and love, to declare the full social gospel of the Carpenter, King of Galilee." Ralph Smith showed 70 stereopticon slides during the lecture. Under the direction of the organist Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich the junior vested choir sang an anthem, "In Pastures Green." The attendance at the evening Sunday service for the past three weeks has averaged 75. The C. E. society meeting was in charge of Mrs. Arthur Fulton who led in an interesting discussion of the topic, "Peter, a Great Evangelist."

TENDERFOOT BADGE FOR MAYOR ROBBINS AT BOY SCOUT COURT OF HONOR

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins was inducted into the mysteries of scouting Wednesday night when he received his tenderfoot badge at the hands of the court of honor of Norwich council which was held in the town hall. In presenting the badge Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale declared that the Scouts had a real friend in the city's chief executive. Mayor Robbins responded with a talk on what the Scouts were doing to help the city and what an honor it gave him to become a member of the great scouting brotherhood.

The court opened with the drum and bugle corps of Troop 5 playing spirited music. A moment's silent prayer was held for ex-President Howard Taft who for many years was a Boy Scout friend and booster.

Candidates for the rank of tenderfoot scout then presented themselves before the court and were awarded their badges. These included Scouts Arthur Driscoll, Joe Marrigo, Walter Chapman, James McNulty, Reynolds Chapman, Howard Randall, George Peter, George Johns, John Johns, Edward Lyons, Louis Kirstein, and Gustave Sandburg.

Charles B. Gilbert, chairman of training, presented the second class badges to the Scouts. Troop 8 sent up fourteen Scouts for second class rank. These were: Scouts Zaw, Bradford, Hotchkiss, Aubrey, Chapman, Carlow, Ross, Waters, Hastedt, Budesk, McGee, Mack, Taber, Hock. Other second class Scouts appearing before the court were Scouts Savage, Manning, Pina, Barrow, Kennedy, Debbis, Quinto, Perrone, Sullivan, Shigoue, Deauville and Shannon.

An interesting program of moving pictures occupied the remainder of the evening. A long reel of Scout activities at Camp Pioneer was shown which included many scenes taken from the winter camp which Norwich Scouts attended. Scoutmaster Carl Brend and L. M. Crandall were responsible for this part of the program. Other pictures shown were pictures of Camp Tippecan of three years ago, comedies, and diving form.

According to the members of the court, the Scouts were unusually restless, which is declared to be a sure sign of spring. And when spring comes Scouts begin to think about camp. The pictures were shown at the court Wednesday night to interest parents in sending Scouts to camp.

Scoutleaders assisting with the board of review and the court were Scoutmaster John Hill of Troop 5, Howard Ludlow of Troop 8, and Lloyd Rathbun of Troop 9. Scout Howard Ludlow was given a hearty applause for the large class of second class Scouts coming before the court, a total of 14 in all.

Thanks were extended to the drum and bugle corps of troop 5, and Carl Brend and L. M. Crandall for their part in the entertainment. According to the court, the next session will be held in about six weeks.

SERMON ON SUBJECT OF CHRISTIAN VISION

Christian Vision was the subject of the sermon given Wednesday evening by Rev. Charles H. Stull, Ph. D., in his series of "new life" meetings at Bushnell chapel of the Central Baptist church. Dr. Stull has preached in a great many churches all over the country and as the result of his preachings thousands of men and women have aligned themselves with the church. He has conducted campaigns in many cities of the United States, and in his preaching has stressed teaching and trained work. Dr. Stull's objective is to increase church membership through steady church work throughout the year. Church workers, through personal contact, he said in an interview Wednesday evening can bring into the church many non-members. His idea is that the right word in the right place will bring into the fold many a man or woman who is now outside Christianity.

"Where there is no vision the people perish," was the text Dr. Stull spoke from Wednesday evening. The preacher gave several illustrations of Christian vision, mentioning Paul, the Apostle, John Wesleyan, William Carey and others.

Thec hurch, Dr. Stull said, is not an objective, but only a means to an end. The church does not mean a group of people to provide for a financial institution; neither does it mean a group of people to provide fine buildings. The church does mean a group of people whose lives are dedicated to the teachings of Jesus Christ. Illustrating his thought, Dr. Stull told the following story:

Are you a Christian? asked one neighbor of another, as they met on the street. Yes, I profess to be, was the answer. You will be saved? asked the neighbor. Yes, I believe I will be saved. Do you think I will be saved? was the next question. If you are not a Christian you will not be saved, came the answer. Then, as a Christian, are you concerned as to whether or not I will be saved? was the next question. Yes, I am concerned, came the answer. We have met and passed on the street, day in and day out, said the neighbor, but never once have you manifested any interest as to whether or not I would be saved.

Dr. Stull told the above story to illustrate his thought that the right word, in the right place, will bring many a man and woman into the fold of the church. The visiting preacher will continue his "new life" meetings at Bushnell chapel this (Thursday) evening.

BIBLE CLASS STUDY ON DUTY OF USEFUL WORK

The weekly Bible study class for men was held at the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening with a good interest manifested.

The scripture used was 2nd Thessalonians 3:6-13, and the topic was "The duty of useful work." Among the points developed in the study and discussion were the following: It was never intended that men should live a life of ease and self satisfaction. When Adam was placed in the garden, it was not to be idle but to take good care of the grounds. Every man should work his share and every man should have his share of rest; it is as much of a duty to rest as it is to work, and both in the proper proportion. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

If a man can work and will not work he should not eat. No normal man need be idle, whether he be rich or poor; he can either serve for money or for his love of helping others.

The true worker gives little thought to praise; he simply is faithful to his duty. One who works for money alone does not usually do as good work as he whose main thought is to do his job well. The happier man is he who enjoys his work, though hard at times, rather than the man who has plenty of money and has no need to work. We get the greater satisfaction from the services we render without hope of reward, and not from that for which we receive pay.

AMERICAN FLAG PRESENTED TO GIRL SCOUTS TROOP

A beautiful American flag was presented Wednesday night to Troop No. 1, Girl Scouts of the United Congregational church. The gift was from Buckingham council, No. 14, Junior Order United American Mechanics, and was made at appropriate exercises in which both donor and recipient participated. The presentation speech by Joseph Wellington, state secretary of the order, enthused all who heard it and was responded to by Mrs. Frank S. Grieve, captain, and Miss Janet Gifford, secretary of the troop. The salute to the flag and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" were spontaneous expressions of loyalty to this new representative of the national emblem.

After the ceremony, refreshments were served and the girls stayed for an hour of games.

WOULD WORK OUT PLAN FOR ENFORCEMENT OF DRY LAW

Daniel C. Roper, a Former Internal Revenue Commissioner, Would Have President Hoover Call a Council of Governers and Prominent Citizens to Devise a Method of Educating the People In Law Observance—Drys Have Indicated a Desire For Several More Days Before the Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—The calling by President Hoover of a council of governors and prominent citizens to work out a plan to educate the American people to observance of the dry laws was advocated today in the house judiciary committee prohibition hearings.

The first of five witnesses, Daniel C. Roper, a former internal revenue commissioner, said he was convinced the law could be enforced and suggested that the chief executive call federal and state officials into conference with wets and drys to determine upon a solution of questions revolving around prohibition. Too much time, he said, had been devoted by dry forces and the government to enforcement of the law and not enough to the education of the people to observance.

The American-born wealthy class was charged by Mrs. Martha Bensley Bruere of New York, author and a social worker, with creating a market for illicit liquor. She said low wage earners created no demand for liquor.

The National Woman's Christian Temperance union was placed on record as opposing all of the measures before the committee to repeal the 18th amendment by Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Brooklyn, N. Y., its president. She declared that as long as the women retained their right of suffrage the 18th amendment would remain in the constitution and that regardless of party affiliations they would continue to be "implacable foes of the liquor traffic."

The other two witnesses of the day were Rames L. Kennedy, of Greensburg, Pennsylvania, and Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron foundation.

Kennedy advocated observance of the prohibition law on the ground that it deserved protection by the citizens as long as it was a law.

Stewart said more than half the population of the United States would oppose any measure to repeal or modify the dry laws sent to the house by the judiciary committee.

The committee also received a statement from Mrs. Neille Burger of Springfield, Missouri, president of the Missouri Woman's Christian Temperance union, in which she declared that prohibition had brought "relief to hundreds of families who never before knew anything but grinding poverty." She added that prohibition had not been the cause of crime increase, but attributed it to automobiles and firearms. When wet advocates offer a better solution for handling liquor trafficking than prohibition, she said, she would consider it.

At the outset of the hearings, Mrs. Lenna Lowe Yost, a member of the legislative committee of the National Association of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, read a telegram from her brother-in-law, Fielding H. ("Hurry Up") Yost, coach at the University of Michigan, in which he expressed the opinion that the college youth of America was not drinking as much as in pre-prohibition days.

The telegram said that the government had tried to regulate liquor and had made a "miserable failure of it" and added "that it was unfortunate that certain people of standing, by example, furnish a leadership to youth in law violations."

The committee received several other communications and adjourned the hearings until next Wednesday, when the dry forces will resume presentation of witnesses. Chairman Graham announced that the drys had indicated they desired several more days before the committee.

Roper reviewed the history of the rise and fall of the liquor dispensary system in South Carolina, saying it had "degenerated into a graft and political machine" and had been accompanied by an increase in the consumption of liquor until the people of that state became disgusted and discarded it.

As one means of bringing about better enforcement, he suggested that judges and enforcement officials confer, to determine how best to obtain observance. An exchange of ideas between government officials, citizens and wet and dry advocates was needed, he said. In deploring a lack of what he described as sound suggestions from both sides of the prohibition controversy.

Mrs. Bruere said she had directed a nationwide study for the National Federation of Settlements to ascertain what were the circumstances around the lower wage earning group due to prohibition. The study showed, she said, that while immigrants and those of recent foreign extraction manufactured liquor in urban districts, the market was created by what she terms the "wealthier American-born," who were the offspring of the earlier settlers.

Speaking for the Woman's Christian Temperance union, Mrs. Boole assailed the purchasers of liquor.

"The bootlegger is blamed and is blameworthy for violating the law," she said. "He could not exist if people did not buy his liquor, neither could he exist if only the criminal classes patronized him. It is the rich, the influential, who still believe in moderate drinking—those who claim the right to violate the law, who lead the way and are supported by the unthinking and lawless."

CRITICISED ATTITUDE OF PRESS ON PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—Senator Wesley Jones, republican dry of Washington, charged in a statement today that the greatest factor in prohibition enforcement difficulties was what he called the attitude of newspapers publishing "everything which may be unfavorably construed."

In a written compendium of opinions on the question, the author of the law setting a penalty of five years' imprisonment of $10,000 fine on major Volstead violations said "apparently the newspapers are not in sympathy with this measure and are doing much to create antagonism and prejudice."

The statement was entitled "The Voice of the Multitude." It explained that opinions it quoted, from unnamed but otherwise identified persons in the United States and Canada, came to the senator after he delivered a radio address on prohibition, early in January.

Jones said he was not expecting to receive comments on his talk and that "hundreds of letters from manufacturers, lawyers, teachers, students and professional men and women," indicated that "the people of this nation are vitally interested and believe this law is a matter of outstanding importance to all."

The responses, he added, were "a further indication" that the people "still hold fast to the principles and ideals of the United States."

FEMALE IMPERSONATORS IMITATED BY WITNESS

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Capt. James J. Coy, a bald and husky police officer who experienced some difficulty and apparently a good deal of embarrassment in trying to mimic a female impersonator, was the first witness today against Mae West and 57 others associated with her in the production of "Pleasure Man," which was raided and closed by the police in October, 1928.

Miss West, as author, Carl Reed, as producer, and as much of the cast as could be assembled are on trial charged with a misdemeanor for having put on an allegedly indecent play.

Coy said he was assigned to attend the opening performance and that, during the last act, he went back stage and requested the stage manager, Tod Lewis, to ring down the curtain. This, he said, Lewis refused to do and also declined to show him how to do it. Two nights later police raided the play, arrested the cast and refused to permit any more performances to be given.

Several characters in the play, which is written around the back stage troubles of a theatrical company, were supposed to be female impersonators, and it is over these characters and the way the roles were written and played that the trouble started.

"They walked with their shoulders going like this," Coy said, swaying his own shoulders. "They talked in high falsetto voices, and my impression is that they had rouge on their cheeks, heavy."

Raising his own voice, he quoted several lines which the police and district attorney considered objectionable, while the courtroom hangers-on tittered and the jury listened gravely.

Before Coy was called as the first witness for the state, attorneys for the state and defense outlined their cases. Assistant District Attorney James Wallace denounced the play as indecent and immoral.

"It is not an indecent play," argued Nathan Burkan, Miss West's attorney. "It was intended to show life back stage, with its perplexities and difficulties. It teaches a moral lesson."

LABOR GOV'T. VICTORIOUS IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, March 20—(AP)—With the liberal party officially taking no part in moving or supporting amendments to the government's coal mines bill in its committee stages, the labor government tonight defeated two conservative amendments to it.

The vote on the first amendment was 274 to 229, and 267 to 220 on the second. On neither occasion did the conservatives muster their full voting strength of 260.

A week ago tonight's debate loomed up ominously in Prime Minister MacDonald's path. Then political observers feared that the liberals would, as they had done only recently, join the conservatives and defeat the government.

This feeling of tension vanished several days ago when the liberal parliamentary party decided in view of the delicate situation of the naval conference negotiations to refrain from embarrassing the government in the house of commons.

8-YEAR-OLD BOY COMMITTED SUICIDE BY HANGING

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 20—(AP)—An eight-year-old boy committed suicide in a public school here this afternoon, hanging himself after he had been banished to the coat room by his teacher for being unruly. The victim was Girard Lyons, a pupil in the third grade. His teacher, Adele Marshall, scolded him and by way of further punishment sent him to "solitary confinement."

A half hour later when the other children were dismissed from their classes they shrieked in terror as they entered the coat room and found Girard hanging by his necktie attached to a pair of coat hooks on the wall.

SAND STORM CAUSED TROUBLE IN THREE STATES

SPOKANE, Wash., March 20—(AP)—Spokane "wash" was the natural slogan adopted here today, following a stand storm which hurled so much dust into the homes and stores that cleaners' bills will run into thousands of dollars.

The dust storm, which covered eastern Washington, northern Idaho and western Montana, was succeeded here today by a light fall of snow, which soon disappeared. The grime of yesterday remained, however, causing woe to storekeepers because of damaged stocks and to housewives who had done their spring cleaning early.

RISKS HIS LIFE AS AUDIENCE WATCHED SCREEN

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Wisps of smoke seeped into the auditorium of a Lower East Side theatre today where 1,000 spectators were watching a thrilling screen melodrama.

Nobody paid much attention; an official of the theatre announced briefly from the stage that there was a slight fire next door. The show went on.

But behind their backs, up on the mezzanine, ushers were dragging the unconscious form of Leslie Quigley, the head doorman, out of a smoke-filled storage room. Quigley had discovered the fire there and was overcome when he attempted to extinguish it single-handed. An inhalator squad worked over him for 20 minutes before he was revived.

Meanwhile somebody had turned in a fire alarm. Because there are no windows in the storage room, the firemen had considerable difficulty with their hose lines. Three of them were partly overcome, but within 15 minutes the fire was brought under control.

The 1,000 spectators watched the drama that was being unfolded to them on the screen.

BENCH WARRANTS ISSUED FOR LIQUOR CASE PERJURY

HARTFORD, March 20.—(AP)—The first of the secret bench warrants issued by the superior court as a result of charges by the grand jury in a secret report to the state's attorney that Hartford policemen and bootleggers had committed perjury, when called before the jury as witnesses, will be served tomorrow.

The state's attorney's office was reticent as to the number of the warrants to be served and the identities of those named but in view of past developments in the grand jury, particularly the report handed up to Judge Newell Jennings of superior court at the opening of the criminal session on March 4, it seemed a certainty that the Hartford police department is due for its first big shock of the county liquor investigation.

Officers directed by County Detective Edward J. Hickey, who so far has served more than a score of warrants issued as a result of the probe in various parts of the county, will make the arrests tomorrow. The prisoners will be questioned and held for bail at the county building.

Income Tax Receipts Ahead Of Last Year

To Date $40,000,000 Greater Than Previous Year—Officials Expect Sharp D[illegible]

WASHINGTON, March 2[illegible]—Treasury officials continu[illegible]tic today over the inco[illegible]tion as receipts fro[illegible]arch 15 collection continu[illegible]ell the month's total at a [illegible]ndous rate.

The latest returns [illegible]ailable at the treasury today showed that by March 18 a total of $314,300,553 had been paid in, largely on account of the efforts of collectors who all over the country worked late last Saturday night and Sunday to check up the receipts.

The treasury on March 18 received a total of $214,584,548 from the payments made on the March 15 deadline. While the day before the receipts had been running about ten millions behind the figures for the same date a year ago the latest figures brought the total $40,000,000 ahead.

However, a sharp drop is expected by treasury officials to show in the receipts for the next few days, but they are hopeful that the $550,000,000 expectation for the first quarter payments will be realized.

INTERNAL REV. RECEIPTS GREATER THAN LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Internal revenue receipts for the first eight months of the current fiscal year made public today totalled $1,675,007,488, an increase of more than $180,000,000 over the corresponding period for the fiscal year 1929.

The bulk of this increase was shown in the income tax collections which up to February 28, totalled $1,256,937,756, with the gains shown principally in individual and partnership returns. These exceeded by $141,475,771, the receipts for the previous year. The total corporation taxes paid in for the period was $666,057,058.

Tobacco taxes also showed a considerable gain, totalling $298,333,594, of which cigarettes accounted for more than $237,000,000. Cigarettes alone had a gain of more than $16,500,000 but cigars and chewing tobacco showed losses of more than $797,000.

ELECTRIC DEVICE WHICH MAY CURB PRISON BREAKS

BOSTON, March 20—(AP)—A model of a prisoner crept up a model prison wall here tonight and, as it came within range of vision of an "electric eye", a revolver trained on the prisoner spat viciously and a bell on the prison wall set up a furious clangor.

It was the first demonstration of how science may thus curb prison breaks. It was given by Edwin H. Vedder, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company before the Illuminating Engineering Society of Boston.

This use of the electric eye, Mr. Vedder explained, was only one of many possible purposes to which the "electric eye" might be put.

The mechanism involved, he added, was relatively simple. Parallel to the prison wall, near its top, a small and scarcely noticeable ray of light shone steadily into the "electric eye" mounted at the other end of the wall.

ALCORN TO DEMAND RETURN OF THE ESCAPED CONVICTS

HARTFORD, March 20.—(AP)—Formal demand for the surrender of the three escaped Connecticut convicts now held in Florida, was made today by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn in a telegram to State's Attorney Charles Durrance of Jacksonville, Fla. Almost at the same time Gov. John H. Trumbull issued a statement saying that he did not think the return of the three men to this state was advisable.

While it is not believed that Gov. Trumbull will block any attempt by Mr. Alcorn to extradite the criminals if Florida authorities approve, he nevertheless expressed himself vigorously, stating: "I will make no effort to return the three convicts from Florida. I don't see any reason why Connecticut should spend any more money on these three men and shoulder the burden for keeping them in Wethersfield the rest of their lives. Florida is welcome to them as far as I am concerned."

He said he believed a few years on the Florida chain gangs would be a fitting punishment for the trio.

ARGUMENTS UNDERWAY IN DOHENY BRIBERY CASE

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—Less than five months after he had heard a jury declare Albert B. Fall guilty of having accepted a bribe from him, Edward L. Doheny, listened for four tense hours today to himself being denounced and defended before the bar of justice.

Prosecution and defense counsel were making their final arguments before the nine men and three women who, before the week is out, will retire to decide whether the wealthy oil man bribed the former interior secretary.

Time and again the 73 year old defendant had heard and told the story of that notorious lease in his company of the Elks Hills naval oil reserve, on which the bribery charge is based. Today he heard former Senator Atlee Pomerene, for the government, witheringly proclaim that corruption had occurred. The case may not reach the jury until Saturday morning.

Deadlock Continues At Naval Conference

French and Italians Are Causing Practical Suspension of Negotiations.

LONDON, March 20.—(AP)—The five power naval conference will be two months old tomorrow, and tonight Prime Minister MacDonald was still struggling with Scottish persistency to break the Franco-Italian deadlock.

Long weeks have passed since King George summarized the hopes of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the United States as their delegates assembled before him in the gorgeous setting of the royal gallery of the house of lords.

In words hurled around the world by radio he called war "a grim and immense tragedy," and expressed faith in the noble inspiration of the delegates to lessen "the heavy burden weighing on the peoples of the world."

But the deadlock of the French and Italians has resulted in a practical suspension of the five power conference as such.

The British announced nothing regarding the meeting which lasted only twenty minutes, and likewise the Italians had no comment to make.

The American delegation is awaiting news from Tokyo with as much expectancy as that from Paris or Rome. But though the possibility of some further negotiations with the Japanese is admitted, there seems to be little doubt that an agreement will be reached.

BRIAND REFUSES TO DISCUSS CONFERENCE

PARIS, March 20.—(AP)—Aristide Briand, foreign minister and acting head of the French delegation to the London naval conference, returned to Paris tonight and was adamant in his refusal to discuss the conference.

STATE CONVENTION OF D. A. R. IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, March 20.—(AP)—Recent events have proved "that the D. A. R. are not very far wrong in their warnings against our indifference to what is going on under our very noses," Mrs. John Laidlaw Buel, state chairman of national defense and former president-general of the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution, asserted, in presenting her report at the state convention which opened at the United church, this afternoon. Mrs. Buel called attention to "increased communist demonstrations openly and boldly staged in our large cities; communist controlled strikes like those of the southern textile workers; incessant activities of communist youth organizations; the nation-wide red demonstrations on March 6, last," and other developments, as events which "make speeches a little less necessary as a means of awakening America to a realization of the dangerous tendencies within her gates."

"The events of the past year in the radical world have been sufficiently illuminating to all who clearly and intelligently follow the news of the day," she said.

GIRL WAS TIED TO BED WHICH WAS SET AFIRE

FAIRFIELD, Texas, March 20—(AP)—Alleged to have been tied to a bed which was set afire, Wilma Jones was rescued from her smoke-filled hotel room here early today and a few hours later G. S. Moore, prominent business man of Oakwood, was arrested charged with assault with intent to murder.

Hotel guests who rushed to the girl's room, attracted by the smoke, found the bed in flames but Miss Jones had rolled off it in time to escape being burned. Her feet were alleged to have been tied to the bed with a lace curtain stripped from a window. She did not suffer greatly from the experience.

Miss Jones, 23, brunette, five feet tall and 100 pounds, came here yesterday to answer charges in connection with attempted cashing of a $250 check bearing the purported signature of Moore, ginner, druggist and land owner, married and the father of one child.

She collapsed in the Freestone county courthouse and was taken to the Cook hotel, where she was treated by a physician. The attack occurred around midnight.

Moore denied any connection with the rime. He was released in $1,000 bail.

ANNUAL REPORT OF FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF NEW YORK

Reveals That At the Peak of Stock Market Crash Last Fall the Bank Aided Its Members Replace Call Loans of $1,400,000,000 By Buying $120,000,000 In Government Securities—Lending By Corporations and Individuals Had Taken Control of Brokers' Loans Away From New York City Banks.

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—The annual report of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, reviewing credit conditions and reserve bank policy during 1929, reveals that at the peak of the stock market crisis last fall the bank aided its members in replacing $1,400,000,000 in called loans by buying $120,000,000 in government securities.

The report, made public tonight, refers to the extension last year of the practice by corporations and individuals of lending money to brokers through the agency of the banks, adding that "it was lending of this sort which provided the huge growth in loans to brokers during 1928 and 1929."

"In some measure this large increase in loans by others than banks," says the report, "took control of brokers loans away from the New York city banks and from the Federal Reserve bank. It was true, however, that the market was only able to secure these funds from other lenders by paying very high rates. It might be presumed, perhaps, that under more normal circumstances these high rates would have the effect of checking speculative enthusiasm but the market of 1929, encouraged by business prosperity, large industrial profits and other evidences of economic progress, was not easily discouraged."

Reviewing the successive increases in the New York bank's rediscount rate, the report discusses the interval of stock deflation, and the calling of loans by lenders other than banks.

"Within a week," it says, "a total of $1,400,000,000 of these loans was withdrawn from the market. In addition, out-of-town banks called about $700,000,000 of such loans. This huge withdrawal was only prevented from adding a serious money shortage to a security panic by the willingness and capacity of the New York city banks to replace with their own funds the loans withdrawn, relying upon the assurance that they could depend upon the availability of federal reserve credit.

"In this way the New York banks were called upon in a single week to increase their loans and investments by $1,400,000,000. Since the deposits of these banks increased correspondingly, their required reserves with the federal reserve bank also increased proportionately and they were suddenly required to find more than $200,000,000 of additional funds.

"It was at this point that the Federal Reserve bank aided its members in meeting this huge demand by purchasing $120,000,000 of government securities in two days when the situation was most critical. Thus the banks found it necessary to meet only a part of the increased demand for credit by additional borrowing and they were able to furnish the funds needed without any increase in the money rate. The emergency for funds passed without serious disturbance."

Recalling the successive decreases in the rediscount rate following the stock crash, the reports says mentions the decline in business activity toward the year-end, and says this decline was an important consideration in the steps taken by the bank toward easier money.

CHERBOURG, France, March 20.—(AP)—Off for New York on her first Atlantic crossing, the new North German Lloyd liner Europa, sister ship of the Blue Ribbon Bremen, steamed out of port into headwinds and westerly gales tonight. She remained in the roads only 65 minutes, a call record-breaking for brevity.

A hundred miles out, the big liner wirelessed that she had run into violent headwinds. Nautical men here believe she will hardly be able to break the Bremen's record for the crossing if the westerly gales hold for several hours.

Officials of the North German Lloyd line have declined to comment on reports that the Europa would try to better the Bremen's time of 4 days, 17 hours, and 24 minutes. Nevertheless her time will be closely watched.

LIQUOR CONTROL BILL IN NOVA SCOTIA HOUSE

HALIFAX, N. S., March 20.—(AP)—A liquor control act was introduced into the Nova Scotia house of assembly today by Premier Rhodes.

It provides for the sale through government stores of spirituous liquors under the administration of a commission, and also for the sale of bottled wines and beer. The commission would be vested with discretionary powers as to the sale of beer and wine, subject to certain restrictions.

The act provides, however, that "no store shall be established in any town, municipality or district in which at the vote taken under the plebiscite act there, was a majority of votes cast against the sale of liquor under a government control act, until such time as the commission may be satisfied that a majority of the electors desire the establishment of stores."

NINE BIRDS AND DOG DIE IN SO. WINDHAM FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 20. — The residence of Miss Georgianna Flint on South Windham road, just outside of the city limits was considerably damaged by fire of unknown origin this morning, the smoke from the blaze suffocating an eight-year old Airedale watch dog and two love-birds owned by Miss Flint. Four love-birds, two canaries and a parrot owned by Mrs. Pearl Chamberlain, residing on the upper floor, were also the victims of smoke.

The fire was discovered about 9 o'clock by the conductor of the Norwich-Willimantic trolley car who notified Oliver Chartier, a neighbor. Mr. Chartier in turn summoned Engine company No. 1 of the fire department. Two lines of hose were laid to fight the blaze.

The house was unoccupied at the time the fire was discovered. Miss Flint, in company with Mrs. Chamberlain, had left about 8:30 o'clock in the former's automobile, Miss Flint going to the Windham Center school where she is a substitute teacher, and Mrs. Chamberlain stopping in South Windham to visit relatives. The fire evidently started in the den of Miss Flint's apartment, the origin being underneath a bookcase. After damaging this room the flames spread to the library in the front part of the house and a bedroom and then worked upwards by way of a partition into the Chamberlain apartment where most of the damage was caused by smoke. Valuable antiques including a china closet containing antique crockery were destroyed in the Flint home. The estimated amount of damage was not given out today awaiting the arrival of insurance adjusters. An investigation by Fire Chief Charles A. Reynolds disclosed that the fire may have started from defective wiring. The firemen performed efficient work in checking the blaze before more serious damage was caused.

A continuance, tentatively until next Tuesday, was granted in police court today in the case of Claude Mathewson 20, of 227 Ash street, charged with reckless driving in connection with an automobile crash early Wednesday evening at the corner of North and Valley streets. The continuance of the case was ordered owing to the condition of Mrs. Euclide F. Ledoux of 375 Pleasant street, wife of the driver of the other car involved, who is confined to her home with painful injuries.

NINE BIRDS AND DOG DIE IN SO. WINDHAM FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 20. — The residence of Miss Georgianna Flint on South Windham road, just outside of the city limits was considerably damaged by fire of unknown origin this morning, the smoke from the blaze suffocating an eight-year old Airedale watch dog and two love-birds owned by Miss Flint. Four love-birds, two canaries and a parrot owned by Mrs. Pearl Chamberlain, residing on the upper floor, were also the victims of smoke.

The fire was discovered about 9 o'clock by the conductor of the Norwich-Willimantic trolley car who notified Oliver Chartier, a neighbor. Mr. Chartier in turn summoned Engine company No. 1 of the fire department. Two lines of hose were laid to fight the blaze.

The house was unoccupied at the time the fire was discovered. Miss Flint, in company with Mrs. Chamberlain, had left about 8:30 o'clock in the former's automobile, Miss Flint going to the Windham Center school where she is a substitute teacher, and Mrs. Chamberlain stopping in South Windham to visit relatives. The fire evidently started in the den of Miss Flint's apartment, the origin being underneath a bookcase. After damaging this room the flames spread to the library in the front part of the house and a bedroom and then worked upwards by way of a partition into the Chamberlain apartment where most of the damage was caused by smoke. Valuable antiques including a china closet containing antique crockery were destroyed in the Flint home. The estimated amount of damage was not given out today awaiting the arrival of insurance adjusters. An investigation by Fire Chief Charles A. Reynolds disclosed that the fire may have started from defective wiring. The firemen performed efficient work in checking the blaze before more serious damage was caused.

A continuance, tentatively until next Tuesday, was granted in police court today in the case of Claude Mathewson 26, of 227 Ash street, charged with reckless driving in connection with an automobile crash early Wednesday evening at the corner of North and Valley streets. The continuance of the case was ordered owing to the condition of Mrs. Euclide F. Ledoux of 375 Pleasant street, wife of the driver of the other car involved, who is confined to her home with painful injuries.

This concern has leased the pasteurizing plant of Mr. Myers and will produce an ample supply of pasteurized milk, the use of which is steadily increasing in this community. Raw milk also is to be dealt in by The Terrace Farm Dairy company.

Motorists coming into Danielson from Providence last night on the Danielson pike were stopped by Rhode Island troopers, operating in their own state, and in Killingly by state officers of the Danielson barracks for a checkup of their machines. The troopers of both states were seeking for chicken thieves who have been operating in the vicinity of Providence, and who possibly used the route mentioned into Connecticut in getting away with their loot.

Two Sent to Jail

Henry Owens and Howard Conrad, respectively 20 and 18 years of age, have been sent to the county jail in Brooklyn to serve 60 days each for violation of the game laws. These youths were presented in court before Judge W. Fenner Woodward by County Game Warden Thomas Daniels to answer to charges of hunting without a license and in trapping contrary to law.

Only recently these young men completed a six months' period of probation, following a court appearance for another affair in which they were involved. Because of their past record the sentence for violation of the game laws was made more than ordinarily severe.

In the twelfth district court in Rhode Island today Abram Chase of Danielson pleaded not guilty when charged with driving so as to endanger, and the case was continued for a week. It having been demonstrated that property owners within the limits of the borough can be brought to court and fined for failure to keep chimneys of buildings they own properly cleaned, it is regarded in official circles as likely to have a good effect on delinquents in this respect.

F., celebrate the 40th anniversary of the institution of the lodge. An elaborate programme has been arranged by the committee. A turkey supper will precede a programme of entertainment.

Three of the five members who took the degree of Odd Fellowship in Willimantic over 40 years ago for the purpose of instituting a lodge in this city, are living. They are Arthur D. McIntyre, Anson A. Buchanan and Lucius H. Fuller. The other two members were Edward G. Wright and George A. Hammond.

The local branch of the organization came into existence on March 21, 1890, when 18 members took the degree. Lucius H. Fuller, one-time judge of the city court, was the first noble grand of the Israel Putnam lodge. He will be an honored guest Friday evening at the anniversary observance and will be one of the speakers.

There was much interest locally today in the press dispatches telling in detail the results of the murder trial of Roland G. Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, escaped Connecticut convicts who were tried in Jacksonville, Fla., on a charge of killing a detective. The fact that Lalone escaped the gallows for his part in the slaying of State Trooper Irving H. Nelson, at Pomfret on the night of April 6, 1928, and yesterday was successful in beating the Florida electric chair has gained additional notoriety for him. Many local residents who were fortunate enough to gain admittance to the superior court room in this city two years ago, when Lalone and his partner in crime, Albert G. Raymond, were sentenced to spend the remainder of their lives in state prison, recalled to mind the smile, spoken of in accounts of the Florida trial when the bandit learned of his fate, which came over Lalone's face when Judge Edward M. Yeomans pronounced the sentence. Lalone was unmoved by the sentence of the court. He smiled at Raymond and when Raymond acknowledged with a similar expression, Lalone was seen to laugh.

The emotions of the bandit described by newspapermen at the trial in Florida appeared to be an exact duplication of the attitude adopted by him during the time spent in the county court house in this city when he listened to the first decree of the people.

In the city court this morning, Edward Blake and Samuel Renick, local men arrested Wednesday night following a disturbance at the Renick apartment on Main street, were found guilty of charges of breach of peace. Blake paid a fine of $1 and costs and Renick appealed to the superior court. Sergt. A. J. Sponcey of the local police placed the two men under arrest following an investigation of the complaint.

KEEP IT IN MIND

Getting the public right minded as to what it does is unquestionably a desirable thing. Too often its action is the result of thoughtlessness. It follows the easiest course and does little thinking. It carries its responsibilities lightly but for the most part it responds when it stops to think.

One might suppose that the disgraceful picture presented by the picnickers who have left an attractive spot littered with everything they shouldn't would be a sufficient reminder to others about to do the same thing. Perhaps you have seen those who have refused to be a party to such a disregard for the rights of others and the privileges permitted, clean up their mess, even though the refuse of other picnics stand out glaringly. They get much satisfaction out of the fact that they have not been contributors to the badly littered beach or grove and they are the ones who would respond to any effort that was made to keep such places clean. They would bear in mind signs and warnings. They would find pleasure in following a slogan bearing upon such conditions. But how generally such a means of remedying the conditions would appeal is a question.

When it is recognized that there is so much disregard for one's own safety, such a disregard as to result in the loss of life every day in accidents of various kinds and particularly at the much marked and protected railroad crossings, it is a question how much attention could be gained by putting up signs asking the public to refrain from littering property.

It is a desirable thing to do. It is needed for the sake of those who will heed such an effort, but it would be unreasonable to expect that it would end the nuisance. It is, nevertheless, a fine thing to direct greater attention to such a need, since the more publicity it can get, the greater thought, seriously or jokingly, it will stimulate and it is when such a need is on the mind of the public that the best in the way of preventive measures can be expected.

It will not be long now before the army of picnickers will be heading for their favorite places. If they will but bear in mind their duty in leaving such places as attractive as they find them, or as free from litter as they should be, they can expect less restrictions and a better welcome. Keep it in mind.

DIGGING UP THE DEAD

With all the earmarks of taking another dig at the administration, and without regard for prevailing conditions, the attention of the senate has been called to the patronage situation in the south with the request that the department of justice be asked to consider the evidence with the idea of taking action.

Such might all be well enough if it dealt with present conditions. The fact is that it is a tale which concerns the past. There were patronage conditions in the south which were bad. Recognition was taken of this situation a year ago, soon after the president took office. He insisted upon a housecleaning and it was only to be expected that he would direct attention to the changes which have been inaugurated.

In view of the fact that there has been a reorganization in the south by the republicans, it was only proper that such should have been incorporated in the report instead of creating the impression that what existed previously was still in existence and needed attention. In view of what has been done, the improvement that has been made and the insistence upon the maintenance of the republican organization in the southern states on a high plane, it is impossible to look upon the report and those who have been urging action under it as otherwise than a direct and open political attack which was by no means deserved. It was characteristic of many that have been directed at the administration by democrats and insurgents for political effect. No thought was given to fairness and such a practice stands condemned by the method adopted.

Bringing up the dead past in an effort to establish a present-day indictment, when it is known, or could have been learned, that the condemned conditions have been corrected and no longer exist, cannot fail to react to the detriment of those who are responsible for it. The unfairness of it stands out most conspicuously. It was so glaringly wrong that the president could not permit it to go unanswered and he so effectively nailed it that there is nothing left for the responsible senators to do but slink away and get busy on some new scheme.

EXTENDING THE POLL

Whether the prohibition poll amounts to anything, there seems to be an interest in it. With the straw ballot of the Literary Digest counted for the second week there have been over 700,000 votes cast. It isn't a vote that is being carried on solely by the wets, as certain leaders of the drys would have it, for there have been nearly 182,000 who have declared for enforcement of the dry law. The opposition to enforcement reaches the total of 512,000, divided between repeal of the amendment, which is favored by nearly 288,000, and modification of the law, which has 224,000 supporters.

Under the present figures Connecticut stands seven to two against enforcement with 4,500 favoring repeal, 2,500 standing for modification and 1,200 for enforcement. Of the 30 states and the District of Columbia from which votes have been counted there are 18 states which show a larger number in favor of repeal than for enforcement. Eight show a larger vote for enforcement but there is only one state, Kansas, where the vote for enforcement is larger than the combined vote for repeal and modification.

The poll is young yet. Georgia is thus far the only southern state to be heard from and, while over 2,500 there favor enforcement, there are 2,000 and over for modification and the same number for repeal.

New York has thus far produced the most votes and is the wettest. Illinois comes second with the number of ballots but is not quite as wet, while Ohio, third in the total votes thus far, shows even less wetness. California is slightly more wet but Pasadena is a strong dry center. In view of the fact that there are 20,000,000 ballots involved it will be some time before the task of voting and counting is completed, but to say that the poll doesn't mean anything or that the questions presented to the voters for a decision are not getting attention and arousing interest is unwarranted.

It is certain that the vote thus far cast does not necessarily forecast the outcome. There are many states where sentiment hasn't been expressed but where it can be expected a decided stand will be taken both for and against. When completed, however, there will be furnished much food for thought.

OUR SCHOOLS

Good and adequate schools are what every town should be interested in. At the present time through recommendation of the town school committee Norwich faces one of the most important changes that has taken place in its school system since consolidation of schools. It is being told that crowded conditions are such that additional facilities must be provided somewhere. In the opinion of the town committee there should be adopted at this time the junior high school plan which was previously advocated and not accepted.

This opens up again the questions that were previously raised and it is natural that there should be a demand for full enlightenment upon the present educational system and convincing reasons set forth as to the best method of meeting the problem. It can be expected that opinions will differ as to the way in which any move should be made at this time and it remains to find out what the majority sentiment is.

In order to get such an expression, and in order to make it possible for the people of the town to be certain in their own minds as to what should be done there is need for much information. If the town committee is convinced that its recommendation is the right one it is probably prepared to back it up with facts and figures, prepared to show the townspeople that it would be advantageous to follow such a course and that the need exists at this time for favorable action.

The need for enlightenment exists. The cards should be put on the table, the whole details should be disclosed. There will be plenty of opportunity for discussion after it is known just what is contemplated, what is proposed in the way of buildings, what has been the increase in school attendance in the past decade, what the costs under the projected change are going to be and why there is an advantage in the suggested method over any other.

MORE WALKING

It will have to be left to the doctors to determine the correctness of the claim that people are doing too much riding and too little walking, but there can be no doubt that more are riding and fewer walking. There has been a marked change since the automobile grew into such favor. It is so today that the disposition is to ride even if going not much more than a block where large numbers never thought anything of going back and forth to their work on foot.

That there has been a decided decrease in the amount of exercise that was gained in that manner in the open air is apparent. When medical authorities declare that it is having its harmful effects there is reason to listen before it is too late.

Possibly it is only human nature to adopt the easiest way, to ride when walking can be avoided, to save yourself steps when possible, but doctors will tell you that walking is the best kind of exercise and those who deny themselves that are in many instances taking away all opportunities for properly maintaining health and muscular fitness.

It can be urged that the doctors ought not to worry about anything that bids fair to give them more business, but, seriously, it must be recognized that if there is any value in preventive measures, if ill health and undesirable conditions are being encouraged when they should be discouraged, it is more advisable to take the warning of the medical authorities before broken down conditions develop rather than to wait until they have occurred. Getting back is always harder and worse than staying fit. Thus when the doctors have something to say about the wisdom of doing more walking it cannot be ignored entirely, but it is probable that it fails to get as much serious attention as it deserves.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The chance to start a prize contest over the naming of the new planet ought not to be overlooked.

The man on the corner says: There's no hope of the groundhog getting out of the jokebook this year.

Admiral Byrd in his resourcefulness hasn't got to the situation where there's no place to go except home.

The smile on the face of the groundhog may easily be attributed to the ease with which he fooled the trusting public.

Speaking of the dangers of railroad crossings, there doesn't appear to be anything very safe about that Lisbon underpass.

FATE'S POINTING FINGER

"Ancient peoples," stated Caryll, running her long fingers through her carefully waved hair and creating an effect like wind over lake ripples, "believed in signs and omens. They asked for 'em and they got 'em. There must be plenty of unused signs and omens lying around getting all dusty these days—now, if I only could have a sign of some sort it would help me make up my mind!"

The vision in French taffeta who was visiting Caryll in her too utterly perfect little suite of rooms above the shop of antiques, glass and what-not that fronted on a boulevard and was a howling popular success, snorted in ladylike fashion. "If," she got out heatedly, "you require omens, or, in other words, have to be pitched neck and crop into matrimony with John Austin, because you hate to give up your piffling shop—"

"I'll show you my income tax if you talk silly like that!" Caryll retorted as heatedly. "I don't care if he is disgustingly rich! There's satisfaction in feeling that you can make a large income yourself—"

"Income!" Awe filtered into her voice. "My word—she talks of money when she has a chance to grab John! Tell him I'll marry him any day!"

"I will not," said Caryll coldly. "You're too good-looking. Oh, you just can't understand—I argue and reason with myself and am farther from a decision every day. I—"

"She argues and reasons," repeated the visitor who seemed fond of declamatory conversation. "Whoever heard of a girl really in love using reason? Well, I'm glad I arrived just now because maybe I can beat some sense into your head. You're in love with him and won't admit it! You and your signs and omens! Huh!"

The lights were snapped out and slumber reigned. Cars whizzed by on the boulevard in decreasing numbers. There were intervals of almost city silence. There was a muffled crash from below and the visitor from Paris sat bolt upright on the daybed in the living room. There was a prolonged smash and the visitor met Caryll plunging out from her tiny bedroom and they clung together.

"Burglars—in the shop!" they gasped. Shuddering they wrapped themselves, unearthed a weapon and stole down the hidden stairs leading below. Something long and lithe whizzed through the shop, landed on a shelf and $50 worth of old Sandwich glass returned practically to the elements when it hit the floor. Caryll managed to turn on a light. Emerald-eyed, frantic with fear, a fifteen-pound tiger cat stared wildly at the two. With a yowl he leaped across the angle to the rear wall. He landed on a fragile tiptilt table covered with Chinese porcelain boxes. It lived up to its name with unbelievable promptness and the results were thorough and catastrophic.

"N-N-Nice kitty," stuttered the visitor, snapping her fingers beguilingly. "If I could grab his tail—"

"Yeeeeooow!" wailed the cat. He crouched, leaped and hit the shelf on the opposite wall, slithered and scrambled along and pushed off quite a priceless collection of delicate Bohemian glass goblets. They fell against the edges of a dozen service plates just secured from an old collection after much angling and a large check. He dashed through ivory carvings, tumbling them about disastrously, he hung frantically for some moments on some chains of amber beads and the strings broke and the beads obeyed gravity.

He played claw-tag over the surface of a priceless early American table and its six chairs and made shreds of the Italian red silk damask of a couch. When his frenzy finally subsided and he dashed out of the rear door into the freedom of the open, Caryll having stood it ajar, she looked about. In appearance her treasured shop was a wreck. Another girl would have sat down and wept.

Strange to say, Caryll looked happier than she had for some weeks. She turned triumphantly on her visitor.

"Now, do you believe in signs?" she inquired joyously. "I guess it's too early to telephone John, isn't it? Anyhow, I intended to marry him all the time, only I wasn't quite certain!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 20—The senate's abrupt about face on the sugar tariff schedule has gone down in history.

But if Senator Thad. Caraway, with four terms in the house and a double six year hitch in the senate to his credit is a qualified political stargazer, the end is not yet.

Never in recent times have senatorial ears heard such biting castigation as fell from the lips of this spitfire from Arkansas.

There was a touch of high drama to the scene as he rose to speak. The second vote on sugar rates in less than two months was about to be taken, the final say of the senate. Already press observers had sensed that some senators, for whatever reason, would shift.

Caraway read the roll of senators who had voted in the first test for low rates.

"Eight of those senators, it is alleged, have agreed to change their votes," he said. "They agreed to change before a single thing had been said on this floor touching reconsideration of this rate.

"Every senator is the keeper of his own honor. If he believes that his vote is a private thing, that it belongs to him like the clothes he wears, that he has a right to traffic in it like anything else that belongs to him, he will cast his vote accordingly.

Not Long Enough

"I venture the assertion, and I do it in no spirit of harshness, that the senator who changes his vote now will not live long enough to explain to his constituency and to the American people and to the senate the reasons that impelled him to do it.

"He will not attempt to do so on the floor of the senate. He is going to trust that time will be kind to him and people will forget.

"I shall be much mistaken if he does not find that in that he is mistaken."

Caraway proved a good prophet in one thing. No senator who changed front on the vote that followed then rose to answer him or explain his shift.

But he was wrong as to numbers. Ten instead of eight senators changed sides, five republicans and five democrats. Six of them, four democrats and two republicans, were coalition bolters on the vote.

Speaking as moving spirit of the concurrent lobbying investigation, the Arkansan said he had been "contemptuous of the influence of lobbyists."

Arraignment

"I have looked upon them as parasites who fatten on the credulity of those away from Washington," he added. "I shall reverse my opinion of the effectiveness of lobbying if these changes (of votes) are made."

And if ever before any single senator, or group of senators whose identity was all but stated, listened in silence to such an arraignment, the Bystander does not know of it.

"The Spirit of Content"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content" (Philippians 4:11).

Read: Philippians 4:8-13.

MEDITATION: Paul had emancipated himself from outward fortune. He knew how to enjoy much and how to get along with little. Content comes only to one who has gained great independence of things, and who has learned to spiritualize success. There will always be those who will outstrip us in fortune and eminence, but there need be no one who will outstrip us in the spirit of loving endeavor. The man who finds his joy in service understands the words of Henry VI—

"My crown is in my heart, not on my head,
Nor made with diamonds or with Indian stones bedeck'd;
My crown is called Content—a crown it is
That seldom kings enjoy."

PRAYER: Grant us deliverance, O God, from anxious cares and envious tempers and unrestrained affections. Create in us the thankful spirit that remembers Thy good gifts and is content. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

As The Twig Is Bent
By Felix J. Underwood, M. D., Jackson, Miss.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

One of the most hopeful modern phases of health activities is the movement to promote the right mental and physical habits during childhood. The child, to be healthy, must not only have a body free from physical defects but must be trained to acquire the right habits of thought and action in order to face every day problems of life happily and normally. Thus equipped he will become an adult who may adapt himself in a well balanced manner to the daily tasks of living which confront him.

There seems to be a tendency in the minds of the public to divide the child's physical intellectual and emotional existence into three separate entities. This is a great error. These three attributes are closely interwoven one with the other. Intellectual processes are stimulated by physical health and emotional stability.

It is also possible during this early period of the child's life to recognize and most easily understand and treat defects which might later handicap him as an adult. Adequate training in habits of health will guard his health, and equally careful guidance of the mind will prevent the personality from becoming warped or distorted and so rendering the child inefficient and unhappy. Certainly in mental habits and emotional tendencies "the child is father of the man."

The task of adequately training children in the right habits is of such tremendous magnitude that the responsibility of this great work must be assumed by parents, teachers, general medical practitioners, and the mental hygiene specialists who are eager to act as guides and leaders in this great work.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Flip Finds a Strange Fellow

Be careful of the way you greet
The stranger whom you chance to meet.
—Bowser the Hound.

Flip the Terrier, who had come to live at Farmer Brown's, had learned a great deal about the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. However, he still had a great deal to learn. He wouldn't admit it. He is one of those who likes to think himself very wise. The result is that every once in a while Flip gets into trouble. Flip didn't like to admit that Bowser knew more than he did.

It happened one morning that Bowser and Flip went over to the Green Forest. You see, it was spring and perhaps a little of the spring fever had taken possession of them. Anyway, they felt that they just had to go to see what they could find. Now, Bowser is dignified and sedate and rarely gets excited, unless he smells the scent of Reddy Fox or Mrs. Fox. On the other hand, Flip is a very lively little chap. So, while Bowser trotted along, sniffing here and sniffing there, Flip raced about. He would dash off to the left. He would dash off to the right. He would race ahead along the Lone Little Path.

He ad made one of those little dashes off to one side and disappeared from Bowser's sight. Presently Bowser heard him barking excitedly. At first, Bowser merely grinned and paid no attention to it. You see, he had become quite used to hearing Flip bark excitedly. Everything at all strange to Flip would make him bark excitedly. When, however, he noticed that Flip seemed more excited than usual, Bowser decided to go see what it was all about. He didn't hurry. He didn't hurry a bit.

When Flip heard Bowser coming he barked more excitedly than ever. "Hurry up, Bowser, hurry up!" he barked. "I've got a queer fellow cornered here. Hurry up and we'll fight him!"

Bowser didn't hurry a bit, but when he came in sight of Flip he turned his head so that Flip wouldn't see him grin. Flip was dancing around an old acquaintance of Bowser's. This old acquaintance was a curious looking fellow just then. He looked as if some one had brushed his long hair in the wrong direction. It was all standing on end. Before Bowser could say a word, Flip made a sudden little rush towards this queer fellow. Bowser opened his mouth to warn Flip to keep away, but Flip's courage failed him at the last minute and he jumped to one side.

"Come on, Bowser!" cried Flip. "You take him from one side and I'll take him from the other. Did you ever see such a queer fellow? Did you ever see such hair? It's the queerest coat I ever saw. Some of that hair looks too stiff to even bend."

Meanwhile, this queer fellow had decided to teach Flip a lesson. Without any warning, he backed toward Flip. Flip jumped to one side just in time. He was so astonished that for the moment he forgot to bark. He stood at a respectful distance and stared round-eyed at this queer fellow who backed toward him instead of running headfirst toward him. When Flip found his tongue it seemed as if he were more excited than ever.

"Did you see that?" he barked. "Did you see that? That fellow was trying to fight backward. Whoever heard of such a thing? And see how slow and clumsy he is. What's he doing now? What is he poking his head under that log for? Does he think he's hiding?"

Flip jumped to one side just in time

CHILD TRAINING

Carving A Character
Helen Searles Marsh

"I do not know what to do with my two boys," a wealthy woman declared. "They are very destructive, always scratching the woodwork and marring, yes, actually destroying, the furniture.

"We are in despair over their lack of appreciation of the beautiful in the home," added the father.

Mr. and Mrs. Jordan had an unusually elegant home. The two boys, eight and ten, had been brought up in an artistic environment, but had been sadly restricted with regard to freedom of movement and outdoor activities. They were told continually not to touch, or not to do this or that until they found indoor life, including games, books and study, irksome. They were normal boys and wanted real work and play.

A noted wood-carver heard the complaints of the parents, and was interested at once in the so-called unruly, mischievous and destructive boys.

"They are rather too old to begin to form good habits now," he said. "However, send them to me. I think I know just what these youngsters need in the way of discipline."

He took them to his workshop-studio. They were given tools and were taught to sharpen and care for them. He showed them what could be done with these instruments in creating something worth while and artistic from a piece of oak or mahogany.

Slowly, patiently and happily the boys worked with this artist, who was teaching them lessons in character-building as well as in wood-carving.

It was not long before both boys began to feel respect for the efforts in craftsmanship, represented in the hand-carved furniture and beautiful woodwork in their home.

"How much hard work and skill it must have taken to make just one design on this chair," the older boy said to his father one day, gazing at a familiar piece of furniture with new eyes. And a week or so later, "It must have taken a long time to build this library table of mahogany. How wonderfully it is carved!"

"Just how did you do it?" the delighted father asked the artist the next time they met.

"I put the mischievous but ingenious hands to work," the artist explained. "The boys were taught to be responsible for their tools, and to design and create simple, useful things—a glove box for their mother, a book-rack for your study and tool-chests for themselves. Their originality and skill in craft-work has increased, but the lesson I really wanted them to get and which they certainly are learning is not confined to wood-carving or to its art in decoration. I mean SELF-DISCIPLINE. They are learning it because they are acquiring the habit of appreciation and so see the need for it."

Little Talks on Thrift

Following One's Natural Bent A Good Example Of Thrift

Sometime ago a survey was made of men who had been out of college for a number of years and it was found that a large percentage of them drifted from one position to another for about ten years. At the end of this period they seemed to "find themselves" and their real progress in life then began. One of those who made the survey commented as follows: "We were constantly impressed with their average low earning power in their first ten years after graduation."

It is likely that inquiry among general groups of young men would reveal the same tendency— i. e. that numbers of them waste many years before they finally settle down to the line of work for which they seem best fitted.

One of the worst forms of waste of time is to follow a profession or trade for which you are unfitted.

The writer's attention recently was called to the story of a successful lawyer who began studying law at the age of 41. He had wasted fully twenty years before he finally went into his natural profession.

Almost every young person early in life has a definite idea of the line of endeavor they wish to follow. As a rule, these aspirations are the result of natural aptitude for the work desired. Too often parental interference, financial limitations, lack of educational background or some other circumstance of like make it seem impossible for the young person to carry out his desires. In most of such cases this means a serious waste of time. Years go by before the young man or young women finally gets around to the type of work for which nature seemed to have fitted them.

Let us remember that herein lies a great thrift lesson. What could be a more serious form of waste than to spend years in a type of employment that does not harmonize with one's ambitions? Seldom, if ever, is real progress made by those who do not love their work and love of work can spring only from a natural aptitude for the tasks being performed.

If you have a worthy ambition for some particular line of work and are spending your years in some other form of employment, you are wasting time and opportunity. There can be no complete concentration and efficiency of effort where one has no heart for one's work. The ingenuity, zest and indomitable determination necessary to great success come only to those who are performing a service which they love and for which they were created by nature.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More Anent Hunting and Fishing

Mr. Editor: The comparative prices charged for hunting and fishing licenses in the nearby states as printed in a recent edition of the "Herald" should be of interest to every sportsman in Connecticut.

The first question that comes to mind in looking over this comparison is: "Are we getting hunting and fishing in proportion to what we pay, and if not, why not?" In the opinion of the writer, we are not.

No figures have ever been disclosed by the commission showing the cost of fish and game propagation. They do, however, prepare a very elaborate set of figures showing the value of the fish and game killed each year. A set of figures that are misleading in regard to the value of the work done by the commission because of the fact, that Mother Nature and the many sportsmen's organizations in the state have contributed very largely to the stocking.

The commission, however, takes full credit for the bountiful supply of fish and game when reporting the kill.

Is the propagation of fish and game handled in an economical manner?

How do our costs compare with those of other states?

Why does the commission persist in following a policy of planting a large amount of trout fry and fingerlings? It has been stated on good authority that not over 10 per cent of the trout fry and fingerlings planted reach maturity; why save $10 and waste $90.

Why does the commission persist in planting trout a day or two prior to the opening of the season in the easiest and most accessible spots and continue this planting throughout the trout season? Is this efficiency? Why not deliver them from house to house, dressed and ready for the pan, instead? It would be but carrying the idea a step further. The sportsmen should insist that trout be planted after the close of the season. Our desire is to angle for trout; not to ladle them out with a dipper.

Practically the same policy is pursued in regard to the stocking of birds.

This practice is severely condemned by hunters and fishermen and certainly does not help in the matter of propagation.

It is the belief of the writer that a checkup of the methods employed by the commission would reveal possibilities for economy and that the present high licenses are unwarranted by what is done for us.

I would like very much to see an expression of opinion from some of my brother sportsmen.

Sportsmen, let us hear from you.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Grant Manufacturing & Machine Company, Bridgeport.

The Grant Manufacturing & Machine, Bridgeport, was organized by J. Grant Kingsbury in 1900, as Grant Manufacturing company, the company starting business in a small room on John street over the machine shops of Walter Brothers. The principal product at the beginning was the revolution counter wheel, the figures being engraved by special machines invented by Mr. Kingsbury for engraving on cylindrical surfaces.

Gradually other lines were added, such as metal paterns, screw slotting machines, tool-post grinders, general toolwork and special machinery.

In 1904 the company incorporated as The Grant Manufacturing & Machine company, erecting a two-story building on its present location, on Sullivan avenue. At this time the company began building noiseless rivet spinning machines now consisting of several styles and sizes.

In 1913 they brought out the Grant rotary vibrating riveter, adding in 1921 the Grant double-end automatic chamfering facing and burring machine and in 1923 the Grant double-end automatic threading machine, all of which necessitated, in 1926, the erection of a new building approximat 100 per cent more floor space.

The company now has branch offices in New York city and Chicago and does a world-wide business.

The present officers are: J. Grant Kingsbury, president; Wr. B. McNaughton, vice president and treasurer; L. O. Gustafson, secretary.

Coughs Go!

"I thought Joe would have to be in bed a WEEK . . ."

"Little Joe certainly caught a man-size cold. He coughed and sneezed—he felt grippy and cross. The druggist advised Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. I could remember using Smith Brothers' drops since I was a little girl, so I didn't hesitate to let sonny take the syrup. That very afternoon he was getting better. His nose cleared, he coughed less.

"In two days he was completely restored, went back to school. I thought he would have to be in bed for at least a week. Smith Brothers' helped him so quickly!" MRS. M. PAIGE

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs so quickly because it has Triple Action: 1—it soothes, 2—is mildly laxative, 3—clears air passages.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

TROUT REARING STATION ON MOUNT MISERY BROOK

One of the good trout streams now controlled by the state fish and game commission is Mount Misery brook, in the 5,000 acre state forest in the town of Voluntown and vicinity. This brook was stocked with adult trout last summer, after the season closed. It is known as a difficult stream to fish without a boat or canoe, but offers excellent sport once it is reached. A rearing station for trout is being operated on this brook. There are now 9,000 yearling trout at this station, some of which are destined for the adjacent brook and some for other streams in New London and Windham counties.

Many varieties of food are now fed to the trout at the hatcheries following nutrition experiments of past years, and growths are obtained far beyond those which occur when the trout is in the wild or natural environment. In the ordinary Connecticut trout stream, experts of the board have determined that it usually takes about three years to produce a six-inch trout from the egg. The trout, which are reared under expert supervision, are fed as infants six times a day. These feedings are reduced in number as the fish increase in size, but because they have an abundance of food they grow rapidly. Under favorable temperature conditions some attain a growth of nine inches within a year from the time they begin to feed.

FINDS INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSION TEMPORARY IN NORWICH

Industrial employment conditions in Norwich in February were suffering temporary depression, but the decline in industrial employment and activity in Connecticut as a whole that was reported in January continued throughout the state in February, the United States employment service announced Thursday after the completion of a nation-wide survey.

The following was the report made on this city:

Norwich—One woolen-textile mill closed, affecting 125 employes. A plant manufacturing radiators operated on a curtailed basis of four days a week, affecting about 125 workers. These reductions, together with a surplus of unskilled labor, contributed principally to the volume of unemployment apparent at the close of February. However, this depression was described as of a temporary nature, and a resumption of normal schedules is looked for in the near future. Two cotton-textile mills operated overtime. No special activity in building was noted during the past 30 days.

DEPARTMENT OFFICERS AT LEGION DISTRICT MEETING

With a large attendance the March meeting of the fifth district of the American Legion was held Thursday night at Rioux hall, Jewett City, when the Legionnaires were guests of Orville LaFlamme post, No. 3, and the post auxiliary. The attendance was approximately 125. Rev. Walter Casey, department chaplain, and State Vice-Commander Elmer M. Dickinson of the first district were the speakers. Rev. Father Casey told of the advantages of membership in the American Legion. We mustn't forget, he said, that the Civil war veterans are a living example of patriotism and that the World war veterans should also be a living example of patriotism. We should keep alive the memory of those who are gone, the state chaplain said, and, we should take an active interest in national defense. We should not worry over foreign invasion but should be on the watch for movements that might start in our own country. We should be proud of our membership in the Legion, he said. Rev. Father Casey called attention to the fact that it took 25 years for the G. A. R. to reach its maximum membership, but said, that with the increase this year in Legion membership, he does not think it will take any such time for the Legion to arrive at its maximum enrollment.

State Vice-Commander Dickinson, in his address, urged each Legion member to turn in to his post the name of a new member. With such co-operation he expressed the opinion that the posts throughout the state would meet the increased membership asked by the state department. The speaker called attention to the C. M. T. C., stating that last year Connecticut was second to Massachusetts in the New England states, but that, with the interest shown this year by the American Legion, he looks for Connecticut to stand first in New England. The state commander urged all present to attend the state convention to be held in Bridgeport July 25, 26 and 27th, and also called attention to the fact that the week of April 6-12 has been set aside as past commanders' week. At that time the state department is going out after new members, setting a goal of 13,000 total membership. In closing the district commander invited all present to attend the district meeting to be held March 30th, at Newington, at which time all interested will have an opportunity to visit the site of the new veterans' hospital at that place. The hospital is to have 400 beds.

Announcement was made that State Commander W. F. Alexander will address an open meeting of R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, at the Buckingham Memorial, this city, next Wednesday evening. It was also announced that Count Von Luckner, the sea devil, will visit Norwich next month, when he will give a lecture on his experiences in the German navy during the World war.

State Vice-Commander Joseph A. Bellefleur of the fifth district presided at the business meeting, following which refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed. The next meeting of the fifth district will be held at Montville, April 26th.

NEW LONDON FACTORIES ON ABOUT HALF CAPACITY

In the report made for February to the state chamber of commerce, business in New London is shown to have been behind that of a year ago.

Secretary Gariepy of the New London chamber reported as follows: Business in general for the month of February was considerably behind last year for this same period. Local factories operated at about 50 per cent capacity. Retail sales were correspondingly low while real estate showed very little activity. Building permits issued during the month totalled $51,300 for 21 permits issued against 31 permits for February, 1929, totalling $64,600, a decrease of $13,300. A bright spot, however, is noted in the post office receipts which showed $14,046, or $776 over February 1929. Both gas and electricity consumption showed an increase over February of last year with 1,836,849 kilowatt hours measured through 10,361 meters, an increase of 105,199 kilowatt hours and 181 meters over 1929. Gas also showed a considerable gain with 31,920,500 cu. ft. measured through 7337 meters, an increase of 3,474,300 cu. ft. over 1929 and 183 meters. Telephones also showed a gain. There were 9910 telephones in use during the month of February as against 9,487 in February, 1929, an increase of 423 phones.

SAYS CHURCH SHOULD BE DYNAMIC SPIRITUAL POWER

The "new life" services being conducted at the Central Baptist church each night this week are well attended and the campaign is moving forward to a successful conclusion under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., assisted by the director of evangelism, Rev. C. H. Stull, Ph. D., who took for his theme Thursday night, the subject, Dallying With Destiny.

Everybody is charged with a sacred trust, whether he recognizes the fact or not, the preacher said. People who talk about personal liberty are using a phrase which they know little about, of which there is next to none in this world. You cannot practice personal liberty without running into both the laws of nature and the laws of society. The president of the United States is our greatest slave; while the man who comes nearer being personally free to do anything he wills, is the tramp. But even he is not wholly free, for he must find something to eat and wear, and keep out of the clutches of the law.

Every man has a trust and business men are always looking for executives who take responsibility seriously. Yet, today, the churches are neglecting this great trust of handing down our institutions and ideals to future generations. The responsibility to the church is the last thing large numbers ever think of. Everything else gets attention, politics, societies, clubs, committees, plans and programmes for this and that, while religion is given a gesture on the Sabbath day. This generation will decide whether in this country the church shall bring a mere moderating influence upon the future, or be again the dynamic spiritual power she has been in bygone days. Many churches are so weak now they exercise merely a moderating moral influence and that is all. But Jesus intended His church to be a dynamic, vital, ever-living power for righteousness and truth among men.

The evangelist here affirmed that the next outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the church would not be one of doctrines and beliefs, but one in which the average church member would exemplify in character the thing he preaches, a real demonstration of Christ-likeness in living.

Rev. Mr. Stull will again be heard in the "new life" series at the Central church this (Friday) evening, the service to start at 7:30 o'clock. All of these "new life" meetings are open to the public.

HARTFORD CURATE SPEAKS AT UNION LENTEN SERVICE

Rev. Lyman C. Bleeker, curate at Trinity Episcopal church, Hartford, delivered a stirring sermon Thursday evening, at the third in a series of Union Lenten services at Christ Episcopal church which is uniting with Trinity church. Rev. Thomas Richey, rector of Christ church, and Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church, took part in the service, during which a short organ recital was given by the organist, Arthur Hull.

Jesus in his message to the people didn't expect immediate victory to crown his proclamation, said the preacher, nor did he expect to receive the reverses that he did. He marveled at the unbeliefs of the people. He tried to make them understand the story of the sower. The sower, we are told, is any sower of truth, especially Jesus. This parable is not chiefly about the sower, nor chiefly about the seed, but is about the soils, the soils of human understanding.

A great many people, we are told, said the preacher, came to listen to the words of Jesus, some out of curiosity, some with quick enthusiasm and others with a deep longing. His words were received by his listeners in different ways, just as the seeds of the sower by the earth. Why are we so quick to blame the sower and seed and slow to blame ourselves? We are quick to blame the social leader and slow to blame ourselves who go to make up the society that such a reformer comes to change. We point out the faults of the government and fail to recognize the faults of ourselves.

Perhaps the loudest cry in the country is the cry against the prophet of religion and his message. If he would only be more convincing and enthusiastic and cry down against the evils and errors of the world is the cry. Any genuine prophet is only too willing to do this. One fact stands out that there was once a prophet and priest who spoke the words of eternal life and they nailed him to a cross. The fault was not with the messenger, the fault was with those who heard Him.

There is no easy or quick method to production of holy deeds, said the preacher. Unless we, as hearers, keep the soil from becoming shallow and thorny we can not expect to receive the words of God and bring forth fruit with patience. He that has ears let him hear.

Rev. Samuel Sutcliff, rector of St. Mark's church, New Britain, will be the preacher at Trinity church Thursday evening at the next service in the series.

DISTRIBUTING TROUT IN STREAMS OF STATE

Distribution this year of 42,000 adult trout has been made by the Connecticut board of fisheries and game in preparation for the fishing season from April 15 to June 30. These fish are in addition to thousands planted after the close of the season last year.

The distribution this year is expected to be even greater than last year when about 280,000, or more than 18 tons of trout with a total value of nearly $40,000, were put in streams of the state.

Included in the plantings this year will be 25,000 adult brown trout, or about 9,000 more than were distributed a year ago. These trout will average from 1-4 to 3-4 of a pound in weight and range from 8 to 13 inches in length. Because they do not grow as rapidly in the first season as the ordinary brook trout, they are held for release until two years old. They are planted only after a careful survey of the streams and then usually in waters of a somewhat higher temperature than those considered favorable for brook trout. Also among the larger fish being distributed are 1,800 rainbow trout, which will average even larger than the brown trout.

11 Brothers in Band

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Perhaps the "most brotherly band" is that of the University of Arkansas, where five sets of brothers do most of the blowing and compose more than a fifth of the organizations. There are 11 brothers, four pair and one trio.

History In Almanacs

LONDON, O.—(AP)—A 50 year history of the world chronicled in almanacs has been preserved by John Fraher here. Starting shortly after the Franco-Prussian war, Fraher saved his copies of J. Gruber's Hagerstown Town and Country Almanacs, all published at Hagerstown, Md.

Now you can protect her lovely hair!

Millions of men and women know how Danderine helps stop falling hair and dissolves the worst crust of dandruff; how easily it changes dull, lustreless, brittle hair into hair that is soft, sparkling, vigorous.

With Danderine it is so easy to "train" a child's hair; to keep it orderly, sparkling, clean. Danderine accentuates the natural curl of a child's hair. A girl's "waves" look more natural when "set" with it. And they stay in longer.

Use Danderine with children to overcome the evils of frequent washing. It puts back into hair and scalp the natural oils removed by soap and water.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It is no trouble to use. Just put a little on the brush each time the hair is arranged. That will keep the scalp healthy and encourage the growth of long, silky and abundant hair. Five million bottles used a year is proof of Danderine's effectiveness.

WEED SPECIES INCREASE AS LAND IS CULTIVATED

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—Weeds travel with civilization. The more widely land is cultivated, the more numerous becomes different kinds of weeds.

This condition is reported to the American association for the advancement of science by Dr. H. T. Darlington of Michigan state college.

Through plant catalogs he has determined approximately what weeds existed in Michigan 100 years ago and those which have moved into the state since.

In 1839 the state had 47 of the 147 kinds of weeds listed. Up to 1881 new weed species arrived at the average rate of one a year. From 1881 to 1904, 23 years, there were 41 new introductions.

Dr. Darlington thinks the more rapid influx of weeds in the later periods corresponded with the more rapid cultivation of land.

FIRST ACTION AGAINST NEW LONDON BROUGHT BY CONN. BROACHING CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 20.— The first action brought against the city of New London by an aggrieved property owner because of the assessed valuation as levied against two pieces of real estate was made known today. The Connecticut Broaching company, 19 Pequot avenue, through Charles Amidon, treasurer, gave notice of taking the case to the superior court, in an endeavor to obtain a reduction of the valuation made on the property by the assessor, Frederick C. Burrows. The case is returnable the first Tuesday in April. The plaintiff claims that the amount assessed against its property in unjust and unequitable and prays the court to make a reduction. Property of the plaintiff at 19 Pequot avenue was valued at $37,085 and other property owned by the plaintiff and in the rear of 27-29 Pequot avenues was valued at $11,916. The plaintiff through its president requested the assessor to abate a part of the amount at which the properties were valued, also requested the board of relief to make a satisfactory reduction, but both requests were denied. The bringing of the suit is but one of several that will be instituted by aggrieved property owners. It is understood that several other real estate owners have authorized similar action to be brought against the city.

The upsets of Children

All children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give a few drops to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown! Every drugstore has Castoria; the genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

A concentration of beauty, melody and romance such as the talking screen has rarely if ever afforded, is to be found in the new spectacle, "Montana Moon," which brings lovely Joan Crawford and Jack Mack Brown to the Palace theatre for a glorious four-days stretch beginning Saturday. Here is a film that will keep the spectators gasping as reel after reel unfolds its panorama of beauty, exciting action and sweet song music.

The story of "Montana Moon" centers about the daughter of a Montana cattleman who comes from New York to visit her father's ranch for a vacation. While there she falls in love with a cowboy, but the wide social difference in their positions seems an insurmountable barrier to their happiness. The ingenious method by which the westerner convinces the girl that she would make him a contented wife is one of the high spots of this engaging drama.

Four famous song writers collaborated to produce the song hits of this film, among which are "Sing a Song of Old Montana," "Happy Cowboy," "The Moon Is Low," "Devil May Care," "Trailin' in Old Montan,'" and "Montana Call." One of the chief attractions of the drama is a chorus of 50 cowpunchers who sing original cowboy ditties and ballads.

The scenes in "Montana Moon" are said to be among the most picturesque ever obtained for camera purposes. They include vistas of great herds of cattle grazing in wide, lush valleys, unusual shots of canyons and mountain precipices, campfire scenes and sequences depicting the various activities of cowboys roping cattle and engaged in other traditional western pursuits.

Today for the last times the Palace presents its superb double feature program which includes that underworld drama, "The Racketeer," starring Robert Armstrong and Carol Lombard, and "Loose Ankles," featuring Loretta Young and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. This is a bill that combines comedy, melody and stark drama. It is one of the season's best.

Broadway Theatre

With tonight's showings the Broadway's double feature bill starring Bebe Daniels in her latest success "Love Comes Along," and Clive Brook with Evelyn Brent in the stirring crook play "Slightly Scarlet," comes to a close to make way for tomorrow's big opening of Radio's gigantic U. S. Naval spectacle, "Hit the Deck." As a stage spectacle "Hit the Deck" was supposed to have reached the limit in production, but this film version only starts where the stage show left off. Sensation after sensation, thrill after thrill are piled on one another in this mountainous production. Jack Oakie with his winning grin, nimble feet and eternal wise cracks, is starred as a flirtin', fightin' gob, with the able assistance of diminutive Polly Walker, a peppy blonde rascal, and a small cast of slightly over a thousand. The film tells the story of one "Bilge" Smith, a salty gob, and his wild experiences on the famous navy round-the-world cruise. The musical numbers are new and catchy, the chorus lassies, hundreds of 'em, young and pretty and snappy, the comedy is a wow, and for realism, picture the New England village street, the landing stage at the naval station with Liberty boats busily plying to and from the huge fleet anchored in midstream, and the immense foredeck of a U. S. battleship with its turrets and huge 14-inch guns, the ship's band and scores of other familiar naval scenes. While the boys are all in uniform, the girls' costumes are varied and beautiful, ranging from the extremely abbreviated sports dresses of the seaport flappers to the exotic, trailing evening gowns of the debutantes, and the scaly shimmering "gowns" in the "mermaids' dance." The naval scenes are authentic because filmed at the San Diego base in co-operation with the navy department. An extremely interesting and novel program of short featurettes has been booked by the management for showing with "Hit the Deck," making one of the strongest programs of the season.

OLD AND YOUNG TAKE RIDE IN A PLANE FROM AIRPORT

Joan Sullivan, when four years old, took her first ride in an airplane. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sullivan. When the airplanes were making a big hit at the airdrome, thousands came from all over to see the airship. One woman who lives far back in the woods never saw even a street car and had reached the age of 100. She came to the airport and saw her first airplane. Not even wearing glasses, she looked it over. Someone in the crowd said "Why don't you take a ride in it?" The old lady was funny and asked "What are you going to use for money?" The laugh was heard a long way off. Putting some tobacco into her pipe, she struck a match and had a smoke. Then she stepped into the plane for her first ride through the air around New London. She was not sick but enjoyed it greatly. Getting out she said, "Look what I have missed in all those years! It makes me feel young again!"

Coming back to Little Joan Sullivan as everybody was going up for a ride having a good time and her brother, Clifford, holding her hand, she said, "Why don't we go up for a ride?" Clifford was all smiles and said, "Let's go!" So both got into the plane and waved to their father a goodbye. About 1000 feet up the man at the wheel said, "Are you afraid little one?" "Can't you go a little higher, mister? This is great!" So up a little higher the kind man went. "Do you try a loop-the-loop?" His heart was changing from one side to the other to think she asked him that one. "You might be a second Lindy, the eagle of the air." Her brother was holding on tight; he wanted to know if there were any trees that they could tie up to. Little Joan wanted to drive the airplane. "When I am big, believe me, Mr. Airplane Man, I will be back of the wheel floating over Ocean Beach, high up in the air!" She said, "What are those little people doing down there, so small?" Getting out the field-glasses, she saw it was girls with one-piece bathing suits on, ready for their afternoon dip in the ocean. The houses looked small and the trees were like a plant in a pot. Clifford was not afraid, but Little Joan had a steel nerve and sure did like her first ride in the air. She did not want to get out when the plane came on the field, after 20 minutes off the ground. Her daddy was some happy to see them both back. He turned to Little Joan and said, "How do you like it?" Gee, Dad it was great! But Mr. Airplane Man would not go up any higher than 1100 feet! He did not want to scare me, but when I am a young girl about 20 I'm going to buy a plane and learn how to fly one! Gee, it is great sport!"

She was the youngest one to go in a plane at Groton airdrome that summer. It was a birthday present to her. She was asked if a sleeping doll with real hair would be all right, or a wrist watch, or a ride in an airplane. So she said, "I'll take the ride!" And was some happy over her birthady present. She is waiting for another birthday to come so she can go up in the air again. The man at the wheel said he never saw anything like it in his life. Little Joan was not afraid and smiling all the time.

"I have taken up hundreds of people, many of them wanted me to turn right back but she would say, "Go higher Mr.! That sure tickled me."

That summer half the people in the Fishing Village went up in that airplane which sure was the talk of the town. On every corner, "Have you been up in the airplane yet?" was the question.

The old lady from the woods, taking her first ride in the air, was the oldest passenger to go up in the airplane, puffing away on her pipe, more like a smoke screen, enjoying the trip. When leaving the flying field she said goodbye to the thousands of people there and said to the driver of the plane, "Thanks for the buggy ride!" She drove home in an auto in which a neighbor had taken her down to the field. Going around to New London, they took in the movies. It was her first time to see the pictures. She did not know what to say when the actors were talking, she thought that the most wonderful thing she ver saw in her life. Turning to her neighbor she said, "All these years I have looked at trees around my house, sat around the fireplace—once in a while an auto would go by or a horse and wagon. I did not know that the outside world was doing every thing up to date like radio. I am happy that I saw those things and can go back to my white house in the woods and wait until I am called away to another world and no more wood pile for me! I have cut a cord of wood in one day. Now I have got a pile high enough for weeks. I want to thank you for your kindness in taking me to the field where I got my first ride among the clouds!"

There's a definite Early American Influence here

The "STANDISH"

$119

Early American bedrooms are flowering with renewed vigor during the widespread revival of 18th Century furniture style in smart homes today. A notable modern example of this historic period is the Standish, whose sturdy feet, spool turnings, and liberal storage room are typical of the obdurate days which gave them birth. Walnut veneers, amplified by decorative carvings, and spool effects, interpret the design with fitting restraint. A feeling of solidity is substantiated by the full construction of all case pieces. In this group are included the bed, five drawer chest, and vanity table. The four drawer dresser is also pictured.

The Living Room, too, can economically be 18th Century

The "GARRICK"

$159

No hour since the dawn of civilization has produced so many delightful designs as the "Golden Period in English Furniture History," the 18th Century. One of the immortal types belonging to this hour is Queen Anne period style, whose rarely graceful designs are copied today in some of our most beautiful existing creations. The Garrick is of typical Queen Anne contours in both the distinguished looking divan and chair. Because the age that inspired it was known for "human" furniture, this group has been constructed, with this ideal in mind, for extreme comfort, as well as for enduring beauty.

The "COVENTRY"

$145

Particularly well adapted to dining room dignity, the Coventry endows the festive board with gracious charm. Only the poised grace of the Queen Anne design could achieve so much beauty with so sparing a use of decoration. American striped walnut veneer is combined effectively with the figured pattern of butt walnut veneer, center matched on the drawer surfaces, and expertly fashioned cabriole legs identify all the pieces as masterly reproductions from a glorious period in English history. Adroit carvings mark the fine symmetry of line. The distinctive buffet, table and six chairs, comprise this group, with china cabinet additional.

JEWETT CITY

TOWN COUNSEL A. M. BROWN GIVES REVALUATION OPINION

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 20 — As touching upon a future town meeting to be held for the purpose of taking action upon the proposed revaluation of taxable property of the town of Griswold, First Selectman Daniel F. Finn, has received today the following letter from Arthur M. Brown, the town's advisory attorney.

The statute in question is section 1153 of the general statutes of the state, revision of 1918, and reads as follows:

"The assessors of all towns, consolidated towns and cities and consolidated towns and boroughs unless otherwise provided shall, on or before Feb. 1, 1920, and during each period of ten years thereafter, view all of the real estate of their respective municipalities and shall revalue the same for assessment, and in the performance of these duties at least two of the assessors shall act together and all valuations shall be separately approved by a majority of the assessors."

As you will note, the law is mandatory, and says the assessors shall revalue the real estate of their respective municipalities. The word is "shall" and not "may."

The statute, however, provides no penalty to be visited upon either the town or the assessors providing the revaluation called for is not made, and I do not find such penalty provided for elsewhere in the law. It being mandatory, however, I am of the opinion that any tax payer of the town might bring a mandamus action before the superior court, and obtain a judgment requiring the assessors to obey the statute, and it may be that the tax commissioner of the state could take some such action. Inasmuch as the law positively requires revaluations to be made, it seems to me wise for the town to make such financial provision as will enable the assessors to do the work even though the statute carries no penalty at the present time, and the bringing of an action by any tax payer is not likely to happen.

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR M. BROWN.

WITTY BROTHER MICHAEL AT SANTA BARBARA MISSION

Writing from the Hotel Taylor, Paso Robles, Cal., March 5, Mr. Ross says:

This morning before leaving Santa Barbara we visited the mission, said to be in the best condition of any of the missions along El Camina Real.

Of course there is a sameness in the missions and yet they are different. The mission of San Gabriel, near Los Angeles, I visited a little more than 40 years ago. The thing that impressed me most at that time was seeing the trampling of the grapes to make wine. The grapes were thrown on a wire screen, horizontal of course, and there tramped with bare feet, the grapes being broken up and skins, seeds and juice falling into a tank. I wanted to see this place where the wine was made, but no one could tell exactly where it used to be, until we went into the patio and there a man showed an excavation made only a day or two before, for a drain from the kitchen. Here was found the tank, and the Padre said it would be kept intact.

In regard to the growing of grapes in California, where are thousands of acres in vineyards. There was for years the threat of state prohibition and this threat had been the bugaboo of the grape growers and prohibition was uniformly defeated in the state in the interests of these men. When they were finally overwhelmed in the tide of national prohibition originating in the Great War, they resigned themselves as lost and a few vineyards were pulled up to replant the ground in fruit trees.

Yet strange as it may seem, while the wails of distress wer still sounding, there came a sudden demand for dried grapes of any kind or quality—even those which, before the war, would have been thrown away as of no good, sold for more than the top quality did before the Volstead act. Unprecedented prosperity settled down upon the vineyard men, and I am told that today grapes are selling for from two to three times as much per ton as they brought from the wineries before the war. We saw new vineyards being planted in different parts of the state.

But to return to the Santa Barbara mission—"Venerable and impressive before whose altar the sacred flame, symbolic of the Real Presence never has been extinguished"—the Padre told us since its foundation in 1786 not a day has passed without ceremonial ministrations.

Of course the first converts were Indians. These were taught different trades (by the Padres) and mechanical arts, such as masonry, carpentry, cooking, farming, tailoring, shoemaking, etc. The girls and women learned to spin yarn, weave cloth and made clothing. Within ten years natives skilled in every ordinary line of industry were to be found at the mission.

The advance of the Indians under the Padres' instruction was remarkable. From 1787 to 1834 the wheat crop averaged about 4,000 bushels; barley, corn, vegetables, with grapes and other fruits were produced. The Mission Santa Barbara, called the "Queen Mission," prospered and grew in wealth and influence until the year 1821 when Mexico proclaimed its independence from Spain. California, as a part of Mexico became involved in the unrest that marked the state's history down to the establishment of American rule in 1846. The year 1822 marked the height of Mission Santa Barbara's propserity. Up to that time nearly 5,000 Indians had been baptized.

The revolt of the Indians in 1824 spread to Santa Barbara. A conflict resulted between the soldiers and the natives. In spite of the Padres' efforts to quell the disturbance a number were killed on both sides. The revolt continued for several months, but finally the deserting Indians were pardoned; most of them returned to the Mission. Following this, although the industries were kept up, the Mission declined in prosperity. In the secularization period many missions were sacked. History repeats itself for only a few months ago Mexico secularized the Roman Catholic churches in Mexico.

In the sacking of the missions, Santa Barbara was fortunate and escaped in large measure and became a depository for books and valuable papers from other missions. This freedom from sacking resulted from the fact that the Franciscan Superior had sent to Santa Barbara some priests who were natives of Mexico, and not of Spain. The Friars remained in control of the mission, still they lost many of its secular possessions and many of its buildings fell into decay. The church and the cloisters were well preserved.

Santa Barbara Mission of today includes the church (walls six feet thick), monastery or home of the Padres, the cemetery and two gardens. The chapel is the most beautiful we have seen. The living quarters of the Padres joins the church proper on the west. It is a large building, constructed mainly of adobe, 50 by 240 feet and is two stories high. The facade is supported by 18 Roman arches, above a paved (the pavement made by Indians in 1780) corridor, upon which the cloister stands.

At the rear, in an angle formed by the junction of the dwelling and the church, is a beautiful patio, popularly known as the "Sacred Garden." Women are ever excluded, the only exception being made for the wife of the president of the United States and her attendants. (We did not go into this garden.)

The east garden, part of the old burying ground contains the bodies of more than 4,000 Indians. I think this garden is about one-half the size of the cemetery back of the Baptist church in Jewett City. The Indians are buried four and six deep and the Padre thought some places nine bodies deep.

In a corner of the garden are concrete vaults, where are entombed the Franciscans who have died at the mission. These vaults look like post office boxes only of larger size, with the name of the Padre on the outer end. I asked the Padre "if he had picked out his particular place." He said he "kept putting it off."

This cemetery is a garden of roses geraniums, vase plants and trees. Near the center is a large Crucifix, twenty feet high, in a carefully trimmed niche of native cypress trees.

The Padre was very witty and full of humor. He told Mrs. R. "if she wished to have a goood garden without irrigation, to be sure and plant the potatoes and onions beside each other and the weeping from the eyes of the potatoes would keep the garden well watered." I asked the Padre his name but he would not tell me. He said he was the talking machine of the mission and had been doing it for 18 years. He could talk very fast and his wit was such that I suspected his nationality. You know how fast and how witty "Tim" Duggan can be when excited—Well the Padre was almost equal to Tim.

He told me just as we were leaving he was known as Brother Michael.

INTENSIVE FARMING OF SMALL FARMS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

A member of the Kansas state legislature is reported to have introduced into that body a bill prohibiting corporation farming in that already somewhat over-swaddled state.

The avowed intent of the bill is to prohibit corporation-owned farms, highly capitalized, mechanized, systematized and operated with small overhead expense, from crushing out the small farmers.

The chief argument for the bill seems to have been the asserted fact that several Kansas corporation-owned farms had paid dividends of 12 1-2 per cent during the last few years.

All of which is interesting, as illustrative of various elemental truths in life and politics.

One is that Kansas, like too many other communities, manifestly does not demand common sense as a condition pre-requisite for election to the legislature. Common sense, if it discovered any sort of farming paying 12 1-2 per cent profit, would vote that kind a blue ribbon and a gold medal, p. d. q.—if not sooner. But here's a legislator, elected and serving, who wants to drive it out of his state!

Another elemental truth suggested is that there's no end to the infection of the prohibitory bug, once it bites you. Kansas has long prohibited the demon rum, with how much success seems to be a matter of disputed testimony. It also prohibits the deadly cigarette except under grandmotherly restrictions. It straitly prohibits its capitalists from making investments except under state supervision. Some of its educational czars peremptorily forbid the use of tobacco in any form by any teacher, under any circumstances. One of its locally popular reformers is prominent in the movement to prohibit the use of those dangerous drugs, tea and coffee. And now comes another crank seeking to prohibit the kind of farming which earns 12 1-2 per cent. All of which suggests two venerable English sayings; "Give him an inch and he'll take an ell," and "Put a beggar on horseback and he'll ride straight to the devil."

A third reflection is regarding the futility of mere good intentions, unaccompanied by knowledge and judgment. Dr. Johnson's famous assertion that "Hell is paved with good intentions" is not so much a smart quip as a condensed and figurative statement of a fact. The calm verdict of impartial history is that the Roman emperors who persecuted the early Christians were actuated by good intentions. They fought Christianity because they considered it subversive of the existing social order and treasonable to the state. In other words, they meant well but they didn't know. Their intentions were good, but their information was either inadequate or wrong. Similarly when Torquemada burnt Jews and Protestants and other heretics by the thousand, he was sincere and well-intentioned. He undoubtedly believed that such heresies led inevitably to eternal torments. So believing, it was natural and logical for him to assume that the temporal death of a few was less horrible than the eternal agonies of the many. As before, he also meant well; but again, he didn't know.

So it may fairly be assumed that our Kansas legislator who wants to forbid corporate 12 1-2 per cent farming means well. His intentions are O. K., it is only his judgment which is A. W. O. L.

The Toledo, O., Blade, commenting briefly on his proposal marks that his purpose is commendable. "The small farmers are bulwarks of strength to the nation. Generally, they are honest, industrious and endowed with good sense. It would be extremely unfortunate if they should be driven in larger numbers into congested cities and over-crowded industrial occupations."

Yea, verily. This country started on its career as one of small farmers, chiefly. It got its tremendous momentum from their combined industry and good sense. Their combined honesty and good sense have acted as the balance-wheel to keep it running fairly true and steady. What the future may have in store we can none of us foresee, but the past is secure,—made so mainly through the stanchness of the finally controlling rural population.

Now, however, whether fortunately or unfortunately, that rural population has ceased to be the controlling element. It has become a minority. Whether in the census returns or at the polls it is overshadowed by majorities living in cities and boroughs and villages.

That's another one of the hard facts which we farmers have to learn and accept. We have lost the power to shape society or control the state. We can neither carry and enforce good measures, nor can we effectively veto bad ones. We are not entirely powerless, but we no longer occupy the throne.

The whole social and economic and political structure which we built is being torn down to make way for new-fangled sky-scrapers and acre-burdening factories or shops. The human world is being made over on lines which we haven't drawn and haven't even been consulted about.

Farming, while still remaining basic and essential, has ceased to be dominant. It has become one of numerous industries on the general co-operation of all which our only chance of the future depends.

To put it figuratively, we've got to go with the current or be hopelessly stranded on some back-water sandbar.

To put it baldly, we've got to take what we can get and do what we are able, and make the best of conditions which have gone out of our control.

And any attempts, either by the legislature of Kansas or the congress of the United States, to stay the stream or bring back the shadow on the dial of Ahaz are foredoomed futilities.

Personally, I think the change from country rule to city domination is a misfortune. I think the change from a farming republic to an urban empire is deeply regrettable. As to that, I don't think you need to have me repeat. But I didn't make the change. Nor did you. It has came in spite of us. That doesn't alter the fact that it has come.

Instead, it opens the question; What are we going to do about it?

And that question, as I'm sure you'll agree, is also one that doesn't really need renewed discussion.

The question isn't one to be answered collectively, but individually. It isn't what "we," as nine million farmers, are going to do, but what "I," as one of the nine millions, am going to do.

Considered from that standpoint the question must have, not one answer, but nine million separate answers.

It isn't what the 9,000,000 farmers between the Atlantic and the Pacific are going to do, but what the individual farmer of Podunk, Conn., is going to do? What the individual farmer of Salina, Kan., is going to do? What the individual farmer of Tombigbee Flats, Ala., is going to do? Etc., etc.

Many of the answers will be essentially similar, but most of them will be different in detail. That's one reason why no blanket enactment can cover them all with equal protection.

Here in New England it seems to me that the prevailing conditions call for the intensive farming of small farms, under which individual farmers shall give close individual attention to the production of locally salable crops. The higgledy-piggledy mix-up of our hills and valleys, the smallness of our arable fields, the thinness of our average soils, the uncertainties of our unpredictable weather, the depredations of numerous insect pests, the infestations of both native and imported weeds,—all seem to indicate the unwisdom of attempting agriculture on a big scale. It is to "the little fields, well-tilled" that we must look.

Out in the west, conditions are strikingly different. Cornfields of 20,000 acres and wheat fields of 40,000 are not only possible but feasible and profitable. And, if such enormous acreages can be best handled by corporations, why forbid or seek to hamper them?

It would be the height of idiocy for a Connecticut legislature to forbid individual farming in Connecticut, on the ground that it doesn't pay as it should. Seems to me it would be quite as silly for the Kansas legislature to prohibit corporate farming on the ground that it pays too well.

Connecticut and Kansas are different states.—For which fact the citizens of one, at least, may give devout thanks!—They can't wear the same size shoes, nor want the same sort of breakfasts. They are not to be racked out or lopped off to the same stature, nor stuffed or starved to the same weight. "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," without doubt, but you can't make the dog eat the silage which the dairy cow fattens on. Attempts to make farming over to suit the ideas of certain know-it-alls are no more sensible than the attempt to make human nature over by legislation.

There used to be an old saying to the effect that "God fits the back to the burden." That means that the cat isn't expected to carry the same pack as the camel. It also means that whoever tries to transport camel-loads on cat-backs is, to put it mildly, lacking in sound business judgment.

The belief of some men and women that they could greatly improve on the world as God made it and on its inhabitants as He made them doesn't in the slightest degree alter the fact that the world is what it is, and folks are what they are.

We farmers, of all beings, ought to know that Nature can neither be stopped nor side-tracked by any "Be it enacted." She is her own lawmaker,—and what she says goes.

THE FARMER.

WESTFORD

Dr. Ben Robbins and family of Bristol were among the visitors at Z. B. Bicknell's Sunday on the anniversary of Mrs. Bicknell's birth. A beautiful bouquet of carnations was presented her and many other gifts.

Misses Lillian and Abigail Amidon have been spending a week with their sister, Mrs. J. W. Armitage.

Charles D. Chism is slowly recovering from the effects of a recent fall.

Word has been received of the serious illness of Mrs. David Chism, now of Worcester, Mass., formerly well known here.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Warren Tanner, Mrs. Harry Maynard and Lizzie Maynard, went to the Day-Kimball hospital Sunday and took Harry Maynard to his home on Ekonk Hill. He had been to the hospital one week. He is getting along fine. He had a very bad operation. We all hope to hear of his recovery soon.

Joel Barber of Jewett City and Clifford Bugbee of Lisbon visited Tuesday with Joel's grandparents in Eastern Voluntown. They were both looking fine.

Lizzie Maynard of Eastern Voluntown visited with her sister, Mrs. Warren Tanner and family, over the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Tanner and Miss Lizzie Maynard were in Jewett City and Plainfield Monday.

Jefferson Barber walked to Samuel Bitgood's and back, six miles or more, Friday. Pretty good for a man of his age, 86 years old. Some of the young people would not think they could do that. They would either want an auto or an airplane.

Maurice Harrington has been up on the farm with his grandfather, Albert Dawley. They have been cutting the bushes on the place.

Mrs. Bitgood received a slip from some one in Willimantic telling of a hen that went to the pump to get a drink of water and found it frozen up. She sat on it until it thawed out then she got her a drink. Then she went to her nest and laid an egg. How is that for a hen? I think she knew more than the one who sent the slip. She knew enough to sit until the pump thrawed out so she could get a drink of water and the one that sent the slip did not know, or did not want to, how to sign their name. Mrs Bitgood says she wishes whoever sends her any more letters or slips would please sign their name and then she could answer them back.

Mrs. Clifford Congdon and son have returned to Mrs. James Congdon's after visiting a week with her parents in Norwich.

Lee Remington of Oneco is building a new brooder house, getting ready for some chicks.

Mr. Harkman of Beach Pond has nearly finished his hen coop and brooder house. He expects 1,200 chicks soon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood are both very lame.

Miss Ella Gardner of New London spent Friday afternoon at the home of her father, Charles Gardner.

The mid-week prayer service last week was held at the home of Mrs. Bertha Bishop, of Sterling.

Rev. (Miss) Lydia Hartig has purchased a new car.

Because of a mad dog roaming over Sterling Hill last week and engaging in a fight with several dogs, all dogs have to be securely confined and several have been killed.

Callers at E. E. Freeman's, Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Poole and family and two friends of Crompton, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. Olin Potter of Moosup and Mr. and Mrs. Dana Potter, of Willimantic.

NORTH LYME

Miss Eliza Martin, 84, a summer resident of this place, died Thursday afternoon at the home of her niece, Mrs. Winthrop Erving of New London, where she had spent several winters, also with her sister, Mrs Granger, the sisters having lived together many years. Miss Martin was the daughter of Joseph and Eliza Martin and was born in East Haddam, but the family later moved to Salem where they lived many years. Miss Martin had a wide circle of friends as she had taught school for many years in the surrounding towns. Her kindly disposition and ready wit made her highly esteemed by all who knew her, who will greatly miss her. The funeral was held in the Hamburg church, Sunday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Hoag of Old Lyme officiating. Burial was in the family lot in Hamburg cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Ackley of Chester called on friends in this vicinity Sunday, also atended Mrs. Martin's funeral.

24 QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED IN TAKING CENSUS OF POPULATION

There has been considerable curiosity as to what questions the census enumerators will ask when they visit homes all over the land in taking the 1930 census. While some of the questions may seem personal or intimate, the questioned one may rest assured the information will go no further. Besides the formal queries as to name, etc., of the subject, the following 24 questions, or as many of them as apply to the individual case, will be asked, according to Otto B. Robinson of Willimantic, supervisor of the Third district of Connecticut:

1—Relationship to head of family, including a statement as to the homemaker in each family.
2—Whether home is owned or rented.
3—Value of home, if owned, or monthly rental, if rented.
4—Radio set? ("Yes" or "No").
5—Does this family live on a farm? ("Yes" or "No").
6—Sex.
7—Color or race.
8—Age at last birthday.
9—Marital condition.
10—Age at first marriage. (For married persons only).
11—Attended school or college any time since Sept. 1, 1929? ("Yes" or "No").
12—Whether able to read or write? ("Yes" or "No").
13—Place of birth of person. (State or country).
14—Place of birth of person's father. (State or country).
15—Place of birth of person's mother. (State or country).
16—Mother tongue of each foreign-born person.
17—Year of immigration to the United States. (For foreign-born only).
18—Whether naturalized. (For foreign-born only).
19—Whether able to speak English. (For foreign-born only).
20—Occupation of each gainful worker.
21—Industry in which employed.
22—Whether employer, employe, or working on own account.
23—Whether actually at work. (For each person usually employed but returned as not at work, additional information will be secured on a special unemployment schedule).
24—Whether a veteran of the United States military or naval forces: and for each veteran, in what war or expedition he served.

How Information Is Used

Among the most important of the new questions is that calling for the value of the home if owned, or the monthly rental if rented. This will make possible a classification of families according to economic status, or perhaps one might say, according to buying power. Such a classification is urgently desired by individuals and firms using the census figures as a basis for organizing their selling and advertising campaigns and will serve many other purposes. The replies to these questions will be used only as a basis for classification of the families into broad groups, and particular pains will be taken to see that the information given by any individual for his home is not in any way made public.

Another new question is that which asks for the age at first marriage. This will serve two purposes. In the first place it will give definite information as to the relative age at marriage of persons in different racial and economic groups. In the second place it will make possible a tabulation of important data on the size of families, such tabulation to be based on the number of children reported in the families of women who have been married a stated number of years.

The question on radio sets will give answer to the question as to how large the potential radio audience is.

Particular Attention to Industry

In the classification of gainful workers according to occupation and industry it is proposed to put much greater stress than heretofore on the returns for industry, and to instruct enumerators to pay special attention to this section of the schedule.

Women doing housework in their own homes (or supervising such work done by servants) and carrying the other responsibilities of the home will be designated as homemakers. This designation will be entered in the family relationship column of the schedule, rather than in the occupation column, in order that those women who follow a professional or other gainful occupation, in addition to being homemakers, may be properly classified in respect to both lines of activity.

A special schedule for unemployment will contain a number of questions designed to separate those not working into several classes, including, besides those absolutely unemployed, those who have a job but are for the time being on lay-off without pay, etc.

To Classify Foreign-Born

Provision is again made for classifying the foreign-born, which still form a very important element in our population, in five different ways, namely, by country of birth; by mother tongue (which is sometimes a better index of nationality than is country of birth); by year of immigration to the United States; by citizenship (that is, whether naturalized, having first papers, or alien); and by ability to speak English.

The form of the schedule was determined after a long series of conferences in which about 40 new questions suggested and endorsed by numerous organizations and individuals were carefully considered by two advisory committees and officials of the census bureau.

Legion Gets Ship's Bell

Iowa Once Rocky

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(AP)—A million years ago the surface of Iowa was different than today, says Dr. George F. Kay of the University of Iowa. In place of the fertile corn land, it was nearly all rock, sandstones, limestones and shales.

Time after Time after Time

Result of test-by-toasting is always the same

The very latest convincing proof comes from America's finest cooking schools

WOMEN in 2732 cities and towns in almost every state of the Union have proved with the test-by-toasting that slo-baked Wonder Bread is a true quality loaf ... the best for all-round, every-day use.

187 students of the Albany School of Cookery also used the test by toasting because it reveals more about baking and ingredients used in a bread than any other practical test.

How test was made

Using automatic toasters for exact timing, these cooking experts toasted Wonder Bread. Then they toasted the other breads and holding them side by side compared the results.

At every table the Wonder Bread was more evenly toasted, more golden, without traces of scorching. The other breads were disappointing. They suffered in comparison.

Why does the fact that Wonder Bread makes better toast prove that it is a fine bread for table use and every household need? Because Wonder Bread is a scientifically perfect loaf. Only perfect bread makes perfect toast.

$6,000,000 Bread

Six million dollars was spent to perfect and produce it before it was offered to you.

Every year two million dollarsextra is spent to get the super-quality ingredients required by the Wonder Bread recipe—the flour that is milled from the nutritious heart of the wheat berry—the twice-pasteurized milk with its high butter-fat content—and the salt, sugar and yeast.

Slo-baked Wonder Bread is at your grocer's. Fresh twice a day.

CUBS PICKED TO COP NAT. FLAG WITH PHILLIES, REDS, AND ROBINS IN RACE

ATLANTA, March 20.—(AP)—The champion Chicago Cubs, rated better than they were at this time a year ago, are being generally favored to again show the way in the National league, but the competition may be made of sterner stuff.

Strengthening of clubs in the second division in 1929 suggests that the senior circuit should have a great battle through the long summer stretch leading to baseball fame and fortune in the autumn.

The always dangerous Phillies, the hustling Reds of Cincinnati and the rejuvenated Robins of Brooklyn, with doves of peace hovering about their bench, should make the fight for places in the first four a sanguinary struggle.

With early spring estimates subject to revision later on, seven clubs in the National league seem to have a chance to take a lively part in the battle for the prestige assured by first division berths.

The players on the mauling Phillies, highly enthused over their sensational finish in the closing months of the last race, declare that they will not be satisfied simply to improve their position but expect to be a contender for the championship. Their pitchers will confirm or deny this claim.

With Lester Bell adding a punch at third base and at least one fair-to-middling pitcher available from the new crop, Joe McCarthy starts the season with rosy prospects.

Pittsburgh is experimenting with a brilliant minor leaguer, Gus Suhr, at first base, but the rest of the Pirates are much the same as the 1929 outfit. Burleigh Grimes may not get the start he had last year when he bowled the opposition over right and left until he was hurt when a drive struck his wrist. Ben Sankey, an infielder from Selma of the Southeastern league, has been one of the best of the Buccaneer prospects.

Making adequate arrangements for protection of second base will be the Giants' problem this year, as it was last. If a capable second sacker is developed the team will be formidable for some of the pitchers, notably the unusually reliable Larry Benton, will not have two poor years in succession. Close observers of the Giants' practice period have been disappointed at the showing of the recruits as a whole.

St. Louis, under a new manager, the veteran Gabby Street, is standing pat on the starting lineup, but with additional reserve strength in readiness to answer a call for help. The Cardinals have a veteran pitching staff and their chances will be decided, perhaps, by the ability of some of these oldsters to continue to pitch winning games.

Ability to hit the ball often and far away makes the Phillies dangerous at all times. Already top-heavy with sluggers, Manager Burt Shotton has added another likely clouter in Tripp Sigman and in John Sherlock has picked up a good infield reserve. Grover Cleveland Alexander, at 43, is not the least effective pitcher in the National league and his words of counsel, directed at the younger pitchers, are expected to bear fruit.

Brooklyn's hopes were boosted sky high when Glenn Wright, the hard-hitting shortstop who was out of the game with a lame arm last season, amazed the rail birds by throwing about as well as ever. Other sick and injured players have recovered some of their strength and the addition of Neal Finn and Gordon Slade, Pacific coast infielders, has given Manager Wilbert Robinson a chance to surround himself with some much-needed strength on the bench.

Dan Howley, an American league transfer from St. Louis, has the Reds hustling and with the extra power furnished by the bats of Bob Meusel and Harry Heilmann, the Cincinnatis will not be pushovers. Manager Howley is hoping for the best in the way of pitching but will not know for some time how much he has a right to expect. Given some runs to work on, Red Lucas and Jakie May will win their share of games.

The Boston Braves face a long period of reconstruction but Manager Bill McKechnie, who will be left alone with the responsibility of working out his baseball salvation, has made a start of getting some recruits who seem to be able to hit the ball. Randy Moore, a Texas league product, who has moved in from the outfield to third base, and Wally Berger, Pacific coast outfielder, have shown signs of being able to smash the ball. Red Rollings is a better player now than he was when a member of the Red Sox.

CHANGE IN CHURCH LEAGUE SCHEDULE

At a meeting of the managers of the Church league teams last evening at the Y. M. C. A., it was decided to play three games on Monday nights so as to end the league up before the latter part of April. There will be no Church league games on Monday, March 23, as the Norwich Girls' team will play another game. On Monday, March 31, Monday, April 7 and 14, there will be three games each evening, the first starting at 7:30 sharp, the second about 8:20, the third about 9:15. There are ten more games to be played, and the one that is left over between the Central Baptist and the Trinity Methodist will be played on some Thursday or Saturday night. The revised schedule is as follows:

Mon., March 31—Trinity vs. Stronghearts; Baltic vs. Phi Delta Nu; Central vs. Gamma.

Mon., April 7—Phi Delta Nu vs. Trinity; Central vs. Stronghearts; Baltic vs. B. O. J.

Mon., April 14—Baltic vs. Stronghearts; Brothers of Joseph vs. Trinity; Gamma vs. P. D. N.

CARNERA SIGNS FOR TOUR OF PACIFIC COAST

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp, plans to continue his fungo hitting through the mid-west and along the Pacific coast, following an engagement in Jacksonville, Fla., tonight.

Carnera's playmates have not been named but it was disclosed today that he will box in Kansas City March 26 and Denver a week later. He is then booked for engagements in Seattle, Oakland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. So far in his American appearances Primo has wiped out ten heavyweights for a net profit of $100,000.

Battalino and Kaiser Matched

ST. LOUIS, March 20—(AP)—Bat Battalino, world featherweight champion who meets Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., in Detroit tonight, has accepted terms to defend his title in a match with Johnny (Pee-Wee) Kaiser, St. Louis, in a bout at the Coliseum here April 8, Matchmaker Tommy Sullivan, announced today. In the event Taylor beats Battalino, then the Indianan will be Kaiser's opponent, Sullivan said.

ACADEMY TO BE WEAK IN HITTERS THIS SEASON

Of the seven Academy batters who hit over .300 for the 1929 season, the Academy Wildcats are starting their 1930 campaign with only two of the squad. Catcher Bud Fontaine, who was in third place with .367 and Alex Arico, the first baseman, who was sixth, with .319, are the boys now on hand who batted in the charmed circle for the Wildcats one year ago.

Eight players who broke into the averages last season are again on hand and their total average is .772 as against the entire team average of .330, showing that in cold figures the loss of such sluggers as Buck LaCroix, Hal Cummings, Jack Marks, Anso Tombari and Red Fagan seems stupendous. Cummings and LaCroix batted over .400.

Here are the 1929 figures of those remaining:

	a.b.	r.	h.	tb.	rbi	ave.
Fontaine	68	9	26	31	13	.367
Arico	72	23	23	25	8	.319
Gibbs	78	17	20	24	11	.253
Crowell	8	3	2	3	1	.250
Pepin	22	3	5	5	2	.227
Weisgraber	24	5	5	6	3	.208
Sherry	22	5	2	3	0	.091
Flather	2	2	0	0	0	.000

The team's new uniforms have arrived and will be handed out shortly. They are of the same color as last year but on the back are gigantic numbers, on the sleeves is the Wildcat insignia of the school and the stockings are of light red and white, instead of the entire bright red of the last few years. These with the new red Wildcat jackets make the Academy one of the best equipped high school nines in the country.

The first real practice game of the year was staged Thursday afternoon with honors about even. An inkling of how the team is shaping up may be had from the following starting lineups: Weisgraber, p; Fontaine, c; Arico, 1b; Navick, 2b; Gibbs, ss; Brean, 3b; Flather, lf; Carter, cf; Crowell, rf; vs. Richards, p; McGuinniss, c; Berghinzo, 1b; Fitzgerald, 2b; Sherry, ss; Riordan, 3b; Geer, lf; Pepin, cf; Greene, rf. The lineups were shifted around somewhat with Lavarge, Greene, Hamil seeing service in he box and Berghinzo going to the outfield on the first team, or rather, the team named first here. Navick and Sherry also changed teams.

The pitchers threw nothing on the ball and, as a result, there was free hitting. Weisgraber and Flather contributed triples and there were innumerable two-base hits. Bob Geer got a long single to left field that might have been good for two or three bags if there had not been some misunderstanding as to whether the ball was to be caught or not by the runners ahead of him. The batting cage was brought into use during the latter part of the drill.

ONE MORE GAME FOR Y SENIORS NEXT MONDAY

Basketball will take one more curtain-call before Norwich fandom before retiring for some six months when the Y Seniors engage the Saybrook Town team and the Norwich Girls team meet an as-yet-undecided opponent in a benefit double-header at the Y gym next Monday night.

The Seniors, who closed their league season with a thrilling last-minute victory over the Torrington Y and then decided to play a couple of post-season games, are meeting one of the best clubs in eastern Connecticut in the Saybrook team and are expecting a very busy evening. The opposition for the Girls may be furnished by the Y. W. C. A. team of New London, with whom the locals have a third and decided game yet to be played.

(Mame and the girl friend are discussing dieting as a means of reducing.)

"Listen, Mame, you and me has got to get rid of some of our spurious fat if we are going to fit them one-piece bathing suits we bought in the bargan basement last fall or they are going to be a total loss.

"That's all right, Mame, maybe I do weigh more'n you, but just the same you ain't no flyweight, either. Yeah, I know they say curves is coming back, but bulges ain't popular yet and that's what we got.

"If we don't watch out they'll be calling us the Michelin Twins we'll look so like the advertisements for them kind of tires. Yep, Mame, we gotta do something or we're sunk so to speak."

"Now there's lots of ways of making a perfect 36 out of an imperfect 44. There's the reducing exercises but we ain't got no radio. Then there's one of them shimmying machines that shakes the fat off but I'd rather buy a 1914 Ford.

"You can walk it off, but with all I got a coast-to-coast non-stop jaunt wouldn't help much. That leaves dieting the only thing left. I guess that's what we'll have to do. And besides, it saves you a lotta money."

"Yeah, you would ask questions like that. No, Mame, dieting is not done with Sunset dyes. It's not eating things you want, but eating the things you don't like, see?"

"When you eat things you like, candy sweet potatoes, hash, and pie, you eat too much. But when you tackle spinach, grapefruit and lemon juice, a little goes a great ways and you kind of starve yourself."

"Now, Mame, we'll start right now and begin dieting. Give me that bar of chocolate there and we'll give it to that skinny dame over on the notion counter. She'll need it. From now on we don't eat nothing but lettuce and spinach sandwiches for lunch and drink a glass of water."

"That's all right, Mame, I know cows grow fat on those things, but we ain't built like cows, even if we do weigh as much. Now for dinner we'll have a lamb chop, some toast and tea, and an orange. For breakfest we'll have some more toast and spinach."

"Listen, Mame, spinach comes in cans and you can open them. No, you don't eat it raw even if it tastes like it. A coupla months living like that and we'll be right down to shape."

"But, Mame, you gotta stick to it. There ain't no half-way business in this and now that we got our minds made up we'll just be strong and resist all temptations to eat."

"Oh, hello, Charlie, how's the boy? Sure, it's almost lunch time and we'll be going out in just a minute. Will we have a double chocolate sundae? Well, I guess yes."

"Come on, Mame, get your rags, we can start dieting tomorrow. All right, Charlie, let's go."

MILLER WINS UNPOPULAR VERDICT OVER CARPINO

BRIDGEPORT, March 20.—(AP)—Joe Miller, 132, New York, outpointed Joe Carpino, 132, New York, in the feature ten round bout on the Puritan A. A. boxing card at Red Men's hall tonight before a large crowd. The decision was an unpopular one with the crowd and Referee Pilkington was booed for his action. Other results:

Eddie Moore, 150, Bridgeport, knocked out Firpo Uscudun, 150, of Spain in the third round of the eight round semi-final.

Harry Goldberg, 145, New Haven, outpointed Sammy Kraft, 141, Bridgeport, in a six round bout.

Jim Driscoll, 153, Portchester, N. Y., knocked out Harry Horton, 149, Bridgeport, in the second round.

CARNERA FLATTENS ZAVITA IN THE FIRST ROUND

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian, scored his 11th knockout in the United States here tonight when he put Frank Zavita, Newark heavyweight, to sleep in the first round of their scheduled ten-round bout.

The fight lasted one minute and 51 seconds. Carnera drove a terrific right into Zavita's side and it was enough to end the bout.

PENN. COMMISSION ASKS FOR GODFREY AS A CONTENDER

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(AP)—Frank Weiner, chairman of the Pennsylvania state athletic commission, announced tonight that he would propose at the next meeting of the commission that no one be recognized in this state as heavyweight boxing champion until he had defeated George Godfrey, Negro giant of Leiperville, Pa.

"This goes for Jack Sharkey, Max Schmeling, Primo Carnera and all others in the race for the title," Weiner said. "Godfrey has received no consideration whatever from the persons controlling the selection of Gene Tunney's successor. In my opinion, he is as good as any other heavyweight in the world and should be given an opportunity."

Rochester Beats Rosenblooms

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 20.—(AP)—Rochester won the first game in the play off series for the American basketball league championship here tonight, defeating the Cleveland Rosenblooms, 20 to 16.

The Centrals, winners of the league's second half race, led during the entire game but were dangerously threatened several times. Cleveland's most serious threat came in the final minutes when the Rosies crept to within two points of a tie.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 20—(AP)—Francis (Hank) O'Day, of Lowell, a Boston college infielder for the past four years, today signed to play with the Pittsfield club of the Eastern league this year. He played with Hyannis of the Cape Cod league last summer.

BUD TAYLOR TAKES DECISION FROM BATTALINO IN NON-TITLE BOUT

DETROIT, Mich., March 20.—(AP)—Bud Taylor, veteran Terre Haute, Ind., boxer, defeated Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., featherweight champion, in a ten-round non-title bout at Olympic arena here tonight.

The decision in favor of Taylor was unpopular with the crowd which raised a chorus of boos.

The Terre Haute boy scored a knockdown in the second round, and the champion remained on one knee until the count of eight. This knockdown apparently was the margin by which Taylor won, Battalino piled up points steadily during succeeding rounds.

Taylor spun Battalino around with a hard left to the jaw in the seventh. The Hartford boy fought back, but appeared groggy for the remainder of the round. They stood toe to toe and exchanged punches in the ninth. Battalino appeared to have the advantage excepting for Taylor's two hard blows.

Taylor weighed 127 1-2; Battalino 127.

N. B. A. DEMANDS X-RAY PROOF OF PESEK'S INJURY

CINCINNATI, O., March 20.—(AP)—The National Boxing association today requested x-ray pictures and a statement of the attending physician when informed that John Pesek, aspirant for recognition as the world's champion heavyweight wrestler, had suffered a broken collar bone at his home in Ravenna, Nebr. Pesek was scheduled to meet Jim Londos of Philadelphia, at Columbus, April 9.

Stanley M. Isaacs, president of N. B. A., under whose authority the match was to be conducted to decide the title, said there was nothing that could be done except to wait until such time as Pesek would be physically able to go through with the match.

Pesek and Londos were the only two of five eligibles who posted forfeits to meet for the title, disposing of the possibility of naming another wrestler to meet Londos in Pesek's place.

MENDES KAYOES JOHNSON IN THE SIXTH ROUND

WATERBURY, March 20.—(AP)—Jimmy Mendes, of New Bedford, light heavyweight champion of New England, knocked out Tut Jackson, of Bayonne, N. J., in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 round feature fight of the Waterbury A. C. here tonight. Mendes weighed 175 1-2; Jackson, 171. Results of other bouts:

Joe Emmons, Waterbury, 146, outpointed Willie Lewis, Stamford, 142 3-4, in a sensational eight round semi-final.

Connie Mello, Waterbury, 131 1-2, won a six round decision over Jules Symbathy, Bridgeport, 133 1-2.

SEMI-FINAL AT GARDEN TONIGHT WILL BE TITLE GO

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—The old order will be changed about a bit for the fight faithful in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Instead of working up to a championship climax the boys will see Black Bill, the Cuban mite, and Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, battle 15 rounds for the flyweight crown as a semi-final to a ten round non-title scrap. Kid Chocolate, the flashy "Keed," will tackle Al Ridgeway, Union City, N. J., featherweight, in the final go.

The flyweight contest, even though billed as a championship test by authority of the New York boxing solons, is not considered appealing enough for a main bout. As a result Black Bill and Wolgast, survivors of a tournament started months ago in the Garden to determine an occupant for the long vacant 112-pound throne, must slug second in the batting order. Black Bill is a slight favorite.

FEW CHANGES EXPECTED IN 1930 FOOTBALL RULES

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Football, 1930 model, will be much the same as the 1929 product with only a few minor and technical changes and no freak appurtenance whatsoever, E. K. Hall, chairman of the national rules committee, indicated today.

When Mr. Hall and his colleagues get together in their annual week end session at Absecon, N. J., tomorrow, the chances are that thumbs will be turned down generally on such proposals as eliminating the point after touch down, continuing first downs in the scoring, moving the goal posts back to their old position, outlawing the runback of an intercepted pass and altering the year-old fumble rule.

The majority is all in favor of letting the game alone, the rules head made it clear.

Two years have been spent in study of the rules and plans for revision.

DIGLANE IN HOSPITAL AFTER LOSING MATCH TO SONNENBERG

BOSTON, March 20—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, recognized in many states as the world's wrestling champion, retained his title here tonight when Henri DiGlane, his French heavyweight opponent was unable to continue wrestling for the third fall after one of "Sonny's" flying tackles had knocked him from the ring. DiGlane was taken to the City hospital suffering from what was believed to be a severe head injury.

DiGlane had won the first fall and Sonnenberg the second but in winning his fall Sonnenberg had caused both himself and DiGlane to be carried out out of the ring by the force of one of his tackles, DiGlane landed under Sonnenberg and struck his head and chin. When the Frenchman was pushed back into the ring he was bleeding profusely from the both ears and from a cut on his chin. He was an easy prey for the former Dartmouth football star's winning tackle. The time for the fall was 20 minutes.

The French champion was taken to his dressing room where he was examined by a doctor who ordered him taken to a hospital. The doctor said he feared that DiGlane had suffered a concussion of the brain.

In the semi-final match Joe Malcewicz of Utica, N. Y., and Count Zarynoff, the bounding Russian, wrestled 45 minutes to a draw.

EVEN METALS HAVE VARIOUS AILMENTS

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—Even metals get sick, says Villiers W. Meloche, assistant professor of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin.

To illustrate, he refers to tin. At 18 degrees or warmer, the element is stable as a shiny metal, while below that temperature a gray powder is its stable form. This, Professor Meloche says, is known as "tin plague."

Sickness in metals comes through pressure, heat and other forces, he says.

Mrs. Sophia Cowles, 44, died in a hospital in New Haven of what was described as acute alcoholism induced by poison liquor.

An Idea For Retailers

SUCCESS lies not so much in location and lines carried—though these are important—as in the ability to recognize unusual opportunities and the ambition to take advantage of them.

For instance, here's a proven principle in business. While new customers are necessary to replace those who quit buying for one reason or another, the most prolific source of business is the regular customer list.

So, every time you make a sale, why not slip into the delivery package a little friendly printed reminder of the lines you sell, their merits from this or that standpoint. It will be the means of many an extra sale on the customer's next visit to the store.

Then, just another step to new sources of business. Employ two or three dependable boys to carry that same printed message to the homes in your neighborhood. Try it. You'll be surprised at the profitable returns.

SPECULATION FOR RISE CONTINUED IN IRREGULAR SESSION OF MARKET

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—The flood of money that has sent rates to the lowest level in years began to recede today, but speculation for the rise continued with unabated fervor, despite bear sorties against isolated issues. The price index of 90 leading issues was pushed up nearly a point further into new high territory for the recovery, and the day's turnover again exceeded 4,000,000 shares.

A considerable element in speculative circles was inclined to be cautious, in view of the rapidity of the advance during recent sessions, and profit taking imparted considerable irregularity to the price movement during most of the day. Call money, after renewing at 3 per cent for the first time since 1924, rose to 2 1-2 late in the session, which encouraged bearish operations.

Although the Bank of England reduced its rate from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent, the New York Federal Reserve bank made no further reduction. It was learned that the government overdraft at the reserve has not yet been paid off, and it has undoubtedly contributed to the extraordinary plentitude of money. It appeared today that lenders were finding the rates too low to be attractive, and were withdrawing funds.

A period of comparatively easy money seems assured, however. Bankers acceptance rates were cut to 2 1-2 per cent asked for the shorter maturities, and the spread of a full one per cent between that and the rediscount rate would seem to indicate a lower rediscount rate as soon as the federal reserve system can make the adjustments, Governor Young of the system, in an address at Washington, clearly indicated that the system is committed to a policy of easy money to revive business. There are no indications that the system is concerned for the time being, at least, by reaccumulation of brokers loans. At any rate, the week's brokerage loan figures showed another large increase, of $121,000,000. While this may indicate a weakening technical position of the market, it still leaves loans abnormally low, compared to recent standards, in relation to stock prices.

Business sentiment generally seems to be improving with the approach of the spring months, but there was nothing in the day's news to indicate any turn for the better as yet. The flood of call money is in a large measure attributable to slack commercial credit requirements.

High fliers on the market were Allied Chemical and Coca Cola, which mounted to about 14 and 11 points to new 1930 tops. Du Pont sold up 6 points to the best level of the year. The American Tobacco issues rallied 7 1-2 and 5 points as rumors of a new tobacco price cutting war were emphatically denied in trade circles, where further increases were regarded as likely. General Motors rose more than 2 points to a new top. American Car and Foundry, Gillette, National Cash Register and U. S. Alcohol were driven down about 4 points to new 1930 lows. U. S. Steel closed off a fraction.

Commodity markets were firmer, wheat futures closing 1 1-2 to 2 cents higher, on reports of good flour sales and bullish weather and crop conditions. Corn sold up a cent and more, and cotton closed 45 cents to $1.40 a bale higher.

Foreign exchanges were firm, as the low money rates here evidently began to result in reduction of foreign balances. Sterling cables rose about 1-4 cent to $4.86 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 20—(AP)—Lively upturns in wheat prices today resulted from aggressive buying, especially in the final transactions, the market closing firm at the day's top level. Half a dozen different European countries were reported as having purchased at least some North American wheat today for trans-Atlantic shipment. Unusual absence of selling pressure here was noted and traders gave sharp attention to chances that the bulk of the new crop of domestic winter wheat will be swept by a cold wave and be caught devoid of any snow cover.

Closing quotations on all grain were strong, with wheat 1 1-4-2 1-4c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 7-8-1 5-8c up, oats 1-8-5-8c advanced, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 2c.

Unexpected late upturns in wheat prices at Winnipeg, Liverpool and Buenos Aires tended to give special impetus to buying of Chicago wheat future deliveries.

Initial momentum however, toward a higher price level here came about largely from fears that sudden low temperatures looked for would have decided ill-effect on domestic winter wheat. Besides, dispatches from a leading Chicago crop expert were at hand telling of probable forty per cent abandonment of the winter wheat crop in sections of Illinois, the district between Pana and Mattoon being mentioned in particular.

Reduction of the Bank of England discount rate was more or less associated here with sudden strength which the Liverpool wheat market showed today, and there were surmises current also that forecasts of smaller out-shipments of Argentine wheat were at least partly responsible. Meanwhile Winnipeg advices said one of the severest blizzards of the season was overwhelming the Canadian prairies and that movement of wheat from Canadian farms would be hampered. Contributing further to the upward swing of the market were statements that exporters noted more assurance on the part of European buyers and that the federal farm board's chief auxiliary, known as the Wheat Stabilization corporation, has found it unnecessary to add any appreciable amount of wheat to the corporation's holdings during the last week.

Corn and oats obtained their strength mostly from the action of wheat. Furthermore, unsettled weather which is forecast will tend to restrict still sharper the movement of corn to terminal markets.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to downturn in hog values

Closing indemnities: Wheat May 1.08 1-8-1-4, 111 5-8-3-4; July 1.07-1-8, 1.10 5-8-7-8; September 1.08 7-8-1.09, 1.13. Corn, May 84 5-8-3-4, 87 1-8-1-4; July 85 5-8-3-4, 88 1-4-3-8; September 86 1-2, 89 5-8.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—The most vigorous bond market in several years carried prices of leading stock exchange issues one to two points higher today in a $30,000,000 trading session. This volume just exceeded the total of last October 29, which had been the highest in some time.

Today's demonstration of strength covered the entire domestic list. Some of the low priced bonds rose several points and the average price of 30 securities sent to 100.5, representing an advance of nearly half a point this week.

With call money renewing at 2 per cent, the lowest since November, 1924, after the Bank of England had reduced its discount rate, the flow of funds into bonds assumed enormous proportions. Dealers cut bankers' acceptances a quarter of a point and time money showed an easier undertone. The call rate later went to 2 1-2 per cent on the withdrawal of funds by prospective out of town lenders who had become discouraged by the low rates and the slow demand. The market was convinced, however, that a period of easy money had come to stay awhile and prices rose steadily to the close.

Several of the United States governments were eagerly bought. The Fourth Liberties rose 10-32 on a turnover of $500,000, par value. Liberty 3 1-2s and Treasury 4s were also strong.

High spots in the day's dealings included the strength and activity of the convertibles, most of which pushed to new 1930 highs. Of even greater interest, nevertheless, was the inquiry for rails of all descriptions, especially the secondary and semi-speculative issues.

Indications that these listings were beginning to catch up with better rated bonds appeared earlier in the week, but today the movement toward this group gained considerable momentum. Atlantic & Danville first 4s rose 8 points, St. Paul adjustment 5s more than 2, New York Ontario & Western refunding 4s and Norfolk & Southern 5s nearly 6 and Seaboard All Florida 6s, three.

The stronger investment rails included Canadian National 4 1-2s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, Louisville & Nashville 4s, Pennsylvania consolidated 4s, Northern Pacific 6s, St. Louis San Francisco 4 1-2s, Southern Railway general 4s, and Wabash 4 1-2s, all of which advanced 1 to 2 points. Missouri Pacific bonds were strong and exceedingly active.

American Telephone 5s of 1963 and International Telephone 5s traded in large blocks making new highs. Goodyear Tire & Rubber 5s and Armour 4 1-2s rose a point. Pressed Steel Car 6s advanced 8. Ajax Rubber 8s soared 11 and White Sewing Machine 6s were marked up 6.

Railroad convertibles led the stock feature group, with gains a point or more in New Haven 6s, Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s, Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s and Atchison 4 1-2s. American Telephone 4 1-2s closed at the new 1930 high of 164 1-4 after having touched 165.

Trading in foreign bonds was relatively quiet and profit taking was at work in a few of the recent strong issues, but the group closed generally higher with South Americans again in the van.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Heavy profit taking and occasional short selling, coupled with a resumption of bullish operations in a selected assortment of industrials, public utilities and specialties, gave stock prices in today's curb market a decidedly irregular appearance. Total stock sales crossed the million mark for the tenth time this year. Bond prices showed conspicuous strength, due to a further relaxation in credit conditions which carried call money to the lowest level since 1924.

The tendency to take profits was particularly pronounced in the natural gas stocks. United Gas, the leader of the recent advance in that group, sold down to 39 1-8 and closed at 38 5-8, off 1 1-4, and about 5 points below the high established earlier in the week. Arkansas natural gas issues and Dixie gas utilities yielded fractionally.

Deere & Co. (old stock) was one of the sensational performers, soaring 35 points to 645, or within 5 points of the second top. The new stock advanced nearly 2 points. American Cyanamid B, was again heavily bought, moving up more than 8 points to a new high at 35 1-2, or 10 points above the year's low. A sudden outburst of buying in Dubilier Radio, which closed 2 5-8 points higher at 11 1-4 after selling a point above that figure, accompanied the announcement that the company had won another important patent decision involving power radio sets.

Speculative enthusiasm for the oils has died down temporarily although Humble moved up 1 1-2 points today in response to the publication of a favorable 1929 report and Woodley Petroleum, a low priced issue, doubled in price. Gulf, Continental Oil, Lion and New York Petroleum lost a point or two.

Buying of the investment trust and trading corporation shares was rather selective in character. Tri-Continental common crossed 17 for the first time this year and the Tri-Utilities issues reached new high ground. Third National Investors also was in good demand.

Public utilities were mixed. American Gas & Electric climbed 4 3-5 points, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Electric Power & Light warrants 2 1-2 and several others a point or more. Electric Bond & Share closed fractionally higher at 102 1-4 after fluctuating within a range of less than 2 points. Several of the telephone stocks recorded substantial gains in odd lot transactions.

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—The New York Federal Reserve bank's weekly statement of gold movements at this port for the period ending March 19, showed imports of $5,331,000, of which $5,239,000 came from Brazil and $92,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries, and exports of $20,000 to Germany. There was no net change in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account.

General Motors dealers in the United States last month delivered 83,742 cars to consumers, compared with 110,148 for the corresponding month a year ago. Sales by General Motors manufacturing divisions to dealers in the country last month amounted to 100,904 cars, as against 141,423 in February, 1929. Total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments, amounted to 126,196 cars, as contrasted with 175,148 in the same month last year.

John C. Maxwell, a partner of Tucker, Anthony & Co., Boston and New York investment bankers, has been elected a director of the United States Dairy Products Corp.

Another reduction in its buying rates for open market bills was announced late today by the New York Federal Reserve bank. The cut, 1-8 of 1 per cent for maturities above 45 days, brings the rate to 3 per cent for bills maturing from one to 120 days.

Wall street heard today that opposition had developed to the reported plans for the General Baking Corp. to obtain additional working capital through a debenture issue, and that the plans have been indefinitely postponed.

24 HOUR STRIKE IN CUBA WITHOUT DISORDERS

HAVANA, March 20—(AP)—Cuba's 24 hour strike which began at midnight last night, progressed peacefully but gained some recruits during the day.

The newspaper El Pais-Excelsior suspended publication in the afternoon because of the strike, and the Spanish language morning papers were unable to publish.

Street car and omnibus lines were tied up, although some taxicabs, interurban lines and railroads continued to operate. The majority of trade shops were closed, as were coffee shops, cigar factories, sugar mills and sugar cane fields.

Leaders of five Cuban labor organizations called at the presidential palace at noon to assure President Machado that the strike would be free of disturbances.

The strike was called partly in protest of unemployment and partly because of the arrest of five radical labor leaders, last week. The Cuban police say that it was ordered by the third international at Moscow.

THREE CHILDREN DIED IN SCHOOL HOUSE FIRE

TYRON, Okla., March 20—(AP)—Three children died in a fire which destroyed the Pleasant Valley district school near here today. Eighty other children escaped through doors and windows.

The dead, all children of Lincoln county farmers, were:

Lawanda Doddrill, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Doddrill.

Freddy Eaton, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eaton.

Granville Murray, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Connie Murray.

The flames, which swept quickly through the school building, resulted from an explosion of kerosene which was being poured into a stove after the fire was believed to have died out.

UNPROFITABLE BULLS 'ON TRIAL' FOR 'FRAUD'

AMES, Ia. —(AP)— Nine hundred ninety-six bulls in Iowa dairy herds are "on trial" this year, accused of obtaining feed and shelter under false pretenses.

It is one of those mock trials in which the cards usually are stacked against the prisoner.

The story is simple. The dairy extension service of Iowa State college is promoting a better herd sires contest, and 48 cowtesting associations have listed certain bulls as profitable.

The "trial" is to emphasize the movement to eliminate scrub stock.

Farmers usually form the "jury." Failure of the bulls' daughters to produce as much milk or butter fat as their dams is evidence and the jury finds them guilty. For punishment they are slaughtered or sold.

Vice President—Have you met our credit manager?

The Visitor—Very informally—he called me a liar once.—Coolidge Humor.

Hurja—Forgets everything?

Lissen—No, she remembers everything.—The Pathfinder.

Excited Father—What shall I do? What shall I do? My son has just swallowed a half-dollar!

Voice from Gathering Crowd—Take him to the tax collector's office. They're experts at getting money out of people.—Detroit News.

"I took in the show last night."

"What did they have?"

"Educated fleas."

"How were they?"

"Fine. I took the leading lady home."—Army and Navy Journal.

Kunkle—I would marry Agnes but for one thing.

Bilhardt—Afraid to pop the question?

Kunkle—No; afraid to question the pop.—Exchange.

Mrs. Henry—Didn't the preacher mispronounce Ezekiel in his sermon? I never heard him make a mistake in pronunciation before.

A century plant in the New York botanical garden recently developed a young flower stalk which grew more than two and one-half feet in a week.

A bird dog has aided in the Michigan game bird census by riding on the running board of his master's automobile and routing approximately 1,000 birds.

A Swiss explorer has succeeded in photographing the customs and religious rites of the inhabitants of Nepal a country which has hitherto been forbidden territory for photographers.

When S. E. Hart, Illinois highway contractor, saw that his automobile carrying twenty-five sticks of dynamite and twenty-five dynamite caps, would be struck by a train approaching a grade crossing, he leaped from the car and avoided injury. In the ensuing collision the car was demolished, although the dynamite was not exploded.

While it was a good trick, it did not work. A Houston (Tex.) man bought a ferocious looking bulldog modeled out of plaster of paris. With his purchase under his arm, he hastened to his car outside, attached the "bulldog" by the end of the chain to the rear axle of the machine. He left his automobile in the custody of the "dog," departing triumphantly. Several hours later, he returned. The police are now searching for "one plaster of paris bulldog—very realistic, attached to one automobile."

TOWN, AGED 151 YEARS, HAS NEW WATER SYSTEM

JONESBORO, Tenn.—(AP)—A going concern when George Washington was president, and boasting the first charter issued a community west of the Alleghenies, Jonesboro does not propose to lie on its past.

Within its borders a state was created and abandoned before Tennessee joined the union. Man who made pioneer history lived here. But now Jonesboro wants the world to know it has a new water system and will celebrate its 151st anniversary this summer.

A fountain memorial to the "lost state of Franklin" will be dedicated along with the waterworks in the year late sesqui-centennial.

City Holds Edge

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The industrial life of the city continues to hold the edge over the farm. In the shifting of pupulation in 1929 the farm's net loss was 619,000. A total of 1,876,000 moved from farms to cities, the department of agriculture reported, while 1,257,000 went from city to farm.

APPLE BLOSSOM FESTIVAL TO DRAW 100,000 GUESTS

WINCHESTER, Va. —(AP)— When apple blossoms are brightest, in late April or early May, Shenandoah valley will be host at the festival to crown a new "Daughter of the Stars." Winchester, set in an orchard of a million apple trees, is ready to entertain 100,000 visitors.

The apple blossom festival will include three Pennsylvania counties this year from which will come, for the first time, Quaker maids as princesses in addition to 75 or more from Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland. Governors of four states have been invited and one of them will probably crown the queen.

If Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd comes home before the festival, it may be the occasion for a public reunion of the three brothers, Tom, Dick and Harry Byrd. Former Governor Harry Byrd, of Virginia, is home again at Winchester, tending his apple orchards with his brother Tom, and is aiding in plans for the fete.

MILAN BOURSE BUILT ON ROMAN RUINS

MILAN, Italy—(AP)—Milan's new stock exchange, or "palace of the Bourse," will be unique among the world's financial centers in that ruins of an old Roman theatre will be visible in it. These were brought to light during the excavations for the building, and the plans have been slightly altered to incorporate part of the ancient structure.

Rats' Damage Big

AMES, Ia.—(AP)—Rats work an annual damage of $20,000,000 on foodstuffs and farm crops, it is estimated at Iowa State college.

Favor Commerce Bureau

MERCED, Cal.—(AP)—A state bureau of commerce within the state department of finance will be proposed at the next California legislature, to develop Asiatic and South American markets for California fruits. Assemblyman E. G. Adams of Livingston will father the bill. Success of the movement it is hoped will avert the necessity of reducing fruit and grape acreage.

RUSSIA PUSHES VAST FARM IDEA BY U. S. METHOD

NEW YORK—(AP)—Russian and American farms may be operated by identical industrial methods before many years, but farmers of the two nations will be in quite different boats.

So predicts Bruce Hopper, who studied farming in Russia as a representative of the Institute of Current World Affairs.

"Russia is introducing American methods and machinery at a furious pace and was the best customer of the United States in 1929 for tractors and farm implements," said Hopper.

"Giant collectives are being formed, all aiming at creation of one socialized farm embracing the nation and fully as important, creation of a rural wage-earning class.

"Tractors and advanced machinery will be operating vast tracts in Russia, if the plan succeeds, releasing Russia peasants. The peasant will be a wage-earner and thus more thoroughly under control of the government because he is dependent upon it for his food," Hopper predicts.

"How far the soviet has advanced toward this goal of one national farm, and how fast they have gone is indicated by the acreage now collectivized. Under the 5-year plan soviet officials estimated 52 million acres would be grouped into collectives by 1933.

"Cable advices say 172 million acres are already collectivized, or about 14 times the amount estimated for this year. This about 54 per cent of the total sown area of the Soviet Union," said Hopper.

"The problem for the soviets now, of course, is to maintain these recently formed groups. The effects are not likely to be apparent until 1931, and it remains to be seen whether the state will be able to administer such an enormous socialized farm domain on such short notice.

"If the transition is successful the average farmer will have little or nothing to say about the farm management. No farm board will plead with him to cut down crops, for he will have no individual voice in what is to be planted."

Urges Study Of Breeding

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—(AP)—Dr. J. L. Lush of the Texas agricultural experiment station proposes that agricultural colleges co-operate with each other and with packing companies to use their flocks and herds to study breeding.

A Ragged Jacket

Although I'm but a working man, I live by honest labor;
I always do the best I can to assist a needy neighbor.
Content in health is all my wealth, with honesty to back it;
My motives pure, although I'm poor,—I respect a ragged jacket.

Let people say whate'er they may of broadcloth and who wear it,
It's not the coat that makes the man, but the deeds through life that bear it.
So always help a fellow-man, if assistance he should lack it;
Do him all the good you can, though he wears a ragged jacket.

All men were equally born at first, through this and every nation;
The rich among the poor would be but for wealth and education;
And when we're laid beneath the sod, with a thousand years to back it,

Who can tell which were the bones that wore the ragged jacket?

Physical Test For Rayon

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Capitol Theatre, Willimantic

The voice which English dramatic critics acclaimed as the "most perfect ever projected from a London talking screen" will be heard Saturday and Sunday at the Willimantic Capitol theatre when the Paramount romance-drama, "Sarah and Son" is shown there.

Gilbert Emery is the possessor of the voice. He made a notable talking debut in "Behind That Curtain," and now he is appearing in one of the main supporting roles in "Sarah and Son."

Emery is cast as John Ashmore, the wealthy man who, with his childless wife, adopts the infant child of Sarah Storm (played by Ruth Chatterton) after Sarah's malicious husband steals the baby away from her in an hour of inebriate revenge.

Frederic March supports Miss Chatterton in the leading male romantic role. Others in the cast are Fuller Mellish, Jr., Doris Lloyd, William Stack and Philippe de Lacy.

Eastern Starr-Grotto Minstrels

Tonight at the Masonic temple "The Minstrel Revue" and "Fashion Show" is recommended to you for a wonderful evening's entertainment. Fred Thumm and his 8-piece orchestra will accompany the show and will introduce a new musical number composed by Henry Ladd, one of the orchestra members. Two hours of mirth melody and surprises await you tonight. Doors open at 7:30 p. m. No reserved seats. Show starts at 8 p. m. You will be sorry if you miss the "Minstrel Revue."

Plainfield Community House

Paul Specht, who appears at the Plainfield Community house with his New England Majestic dance band tonight has often been called the most persistant musical leader in the world, because of his long drawn out battles with the British musicians' trust which finally ended the United States regulations against foreign musicians being tightened and a more equitable basis for the exchange of musicians being worked out between the two countries.

Mr. Specht's tour of Europe was perhaps the most elaborate of any American dance band leader, his original engagement of two weeks at the world famous Kit-Cat club in London having been extended until the expiration of his passports. In addition to appearing before royalty in England, Specht's band played for a number of other crowned heads of Europe, three distinct tours taking him into practically every city of importance in England and on the continent.

As the introducer of modern jazz music to Europe, Mr. Specht each year sends from three to five dance bands to play European engagements during the summer. His original band, which will appear here is unable to make European dates, because of the passport regulations, so music lovers of this city will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing his band soon.

Dr. Danforth at "Y" Friday Noon

The third of the interesting series of Friday noon Lenten heart-to-heart talks by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London will be given at the local Y. M. C. A. this week. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock, and the service will close promptly at 1 o'clock. The topic will be "The Fishermen."

All men, especially business men, are invited.

As she was alighting from a machine, her sweater caught on the side of it and threw her heavily to the ground. For one family to pay rent of one house for a period of fifty-nine years is a pretty good record, and that is the record revealed by the announcement that Fred R. Allen, 69, of Farmington, Me., is going to move for the first time. He is living in the house where his father began paying rent before Fred was born, and following the death of his parents he continued to reside there. The house is going to be torn down and so Mr. Allen has to move.

GREENEVILLE

CONDITIONS AT CROSSING APPARENTLY REMEDIED

The automatic signals at the Eighth street crossing of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which were installed recently, taking the place of flagmen, received a thorough investigation Thursday morning by officials of the railroad, members of the public utilities commission and town and city officials.

Interference In Contacts

Due to study and investigation of local conditions affecting the signal and causing it to fail at critical times, it was ascertained that the trouble was caused by interference in the contacts which operated the signal, created by the presence of two trains within the zone at the same time. One seemed to counteract the contact of the other so that the second train failed to start the signal working.

In order to take care of this possibility the railroad company has installed two block signals, each placed at a distance of approximately 1,500 feet from Eighth street, one above and one below. This sets off about 3,000 feet of track as a block controlled by the new signals which are so set that no train can enter this zone so long as another train is within. All of the several switches at this point on the line are within this zone.

Switchers Have No Effect

The plan has been developed so that a switching engine does not affect the signal at the crossing when it is operating on any switch, but does cause the signal to work as soon as it passes any cross-over to enter the main line. Whenever it happens that an engine switching within this zone goes upon the main line but not for the purpose of going by Eighth street, one of the train crew is ordered to direct traffic across the tracks. The entire morning was spent in trying out every imaginable combination upon the tracks and switches to make sure that the block system worked properly. Every test proved to be a complete success and the signal warned properly under all conditions. An extra engine, besides the special train, also two regular trains which happened to pass through during the morning, were used during the tests.

City Officials Present

Among those present at the test were Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Corporation Counsel Edmund W. Perkins, Selectman William S. Murray, Supt. R. M. Smith of the railroad, A. J. Warren and W. W. Losaw of the signal engineering office and J. P. Wadhams, transportation engineer of the public utilities commission, from New Haven.

During the test, Selectman Murray questioned the engineers about trouble which occurred at this crossing when boys were coasting down Fifth street and across the tracks on a piece of corrugated iron, but they did not know whether this would have any effect, but thought that a sleigh crossing could have had some effect.

With the conclusion of the investigation it was the unanimous opinion of the various officials on hand that the troubles of the crossing signals have been remedied and that there would be no further trouble at the crossing. It is felt that motorists may cross the railroad tracks without any fear of possible danger.

Miss Helen Quilty has returned to her home at Hartford, after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Keenan on Fifth street.

Troop No. 21 of Boy Scouts of the Third Baptist church held their regular meeting Monday evening in the hall room of the church. Two new tenderfoot scouts were present. The troop will postpone the next meeting until Friday, March 28 and the hike which was planned for Saturday has also been postponed until a later date.

In charge of the tables were: Mrs. Robert Agnew, Mrs. William Kramer, Mrs. John McNeely, Mrs. Frank Quinly, Mrs. Howard Rydholm, Mrs. Charles McMillan, Mrs. James W. Semple, Mrs. Albert Dilworth. A GREAT DISCOVERY

MORE than half a century ago, the discovery was made that emulsification helped make cod-liver oil easy to take and digest. It is the adaptation of this principle in that has made possible the widespread use and realization of the health-giving benefits of cod-liver oil.

Where there is need for cod-liver oil—Scott's Emulsion will serve that need adequately and pleasantly.

PAST YEAR BEST SINCE 1923 IN EARNINGS FOR U. S. FINISHING CO.

The United States Finishing company, whose Norwich plant is one of the largest employers of labor in the town, had a good business year in the past 12 months, the best in earnings since 1923, according to the annual report of President Henry B. Thompson, which has been distributed by mail to stockholders.

In his report President Thompson says:

We have closed our year showing substantial earnings—the best year since 1923. Of necessity our earnings were impaired in degree by the October break in the stock market, as the reflex was felt throughout the entire textile industry. Nevertheless we have every reason to congratulate ourselves on the results for the year.

Our report for the year 1929 is, for reasons stated later in the report, made on a consolidated basis—that is, instead of showing a report for the United States Finishing company separately, as in previous years, the figures for 1929 represent the combined earnings of the United States Finishing company and its subsidiaries, Queen Dyeing company and The C. P. Darling company. As this is the first time the report has been made in this form, we submit comparative figures on a consolidated basis for the year 1928. The consolidated net earnings in 1929, after deducting bond interest, federal income taxes and preferred dividends, were equal to $4.51 per share on the 121,200 shares of common stock of the United States Finishing company outstanding December 31, 1929, compared with $2.55 per share in 1928, based on the same number of shares, which accordingly represents a very substantial betterment in the earnings.

Our additions to plant for the consolidated companies amounted to $373,923 in 1929, compared to $756,740 in 1928. The distribution was in about the same proportions as the previous year.

Our repair account for the consolidated companies amounted to $634,038 in 1929, compared to $578,730 in 1928.

Our depreciation charge for the consolidated companies amounted to $384,746 in 1929, compared to $388,202 in 1928.

Consolidated current assets, December 31, 1929, totaled $2,575,293.05, and consolidated current liabilities $997,109.29, being in the ratio of 2.58 to 1. This compares with a ratio of 2.08 to 1 as of December 31, 1928, at which time consolidated current assets totaled $3,142,176.93, and consolidated current liabilities $1,508,745.62. (In this total of current liabilities for December 31, 1928, is included the sum of $593,000 consolidated bonds of the United States Finishing company retired out of current cash from January 1 to July 1, 1929. This bond figure was not included under current liabilities in the 1928 report, as re did not know at the close of 1928 how many of the bonds would be redeemed, but as this sum was paid off out of current cash in the first six months of 1929, we consider it necessary, for a fair comparison with 1928, to include this $593,000 as a current liability for 1928.)

In December, 1929, policies aggregating $1,233,000 were carried by the company in the Equitable Life Assurance society upon the lives of 1,953 employes. The percentage of employes covered by life insurance at the expense of the company continues to be about 90 per cent. of the total enrollment, the remainder not yet having served the necessary two year period of probation before the insurance becomes effective.

Persistent efforts to reduce accidents and to administer first aid when such accidents occur have resulted in an improved record for 1929 over that of 1928.

Of the original issue of $2,000,000 of consolidated mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the United States Finishing company, maturing July 1, 1929, there have been retired during the year, as noted above, $593,000, leaving outstanding a balance of only $767,000, which amount has been extended for a period of ten years to July 1, 1939.

During the year a change was made in the capital structure of the company. At a meeting of the stockholders held August 14, 1929, authorization was given to change the authorized common stock of the company from 40,000 shares of $100 par value to 200,000 shares of no-par value. One hundred and twenty thousand shares of this new no-par stock were issued on a basis of three for one to the holders of the old $100 par common stock, leaving 80,000 shares of the new no-par stock in the treasury, unissued. In addition, the preferred stockholders were given three votes for each share of preferred stock, compared with one vote for each share previously. The amendment to the certificate of incorporation of the company was approved by the secretary of state for Connecticut under date of August 19, 1929, conforming these changes.

Under date of July 8, 1929, the common stock of the company was listed on the New York curb exchange, and the figures of the United States Finishing company and its subsidiaries are reported this year for the first time on a consolidated basis as submitted to the curb exchange under its rules. This year for the first time, the annual report is mailed to stockholders ten days prior to the annual meeting, also to comply with the rules of the curb exchange.

On August 15, 1929, the United States Finishing company acquired a controlling interest, through stock purchase, in the Hartsville Print & Dye Works, of Hartsville, South Carolina. Your board of directors believed it to be to the interest of the company to have a print works in the south, and feel that the purchase of the controlling interest in this plant will prove a source of future benefit to the company. The Hartsville Print & Dye Works represented a new plant in which finishing operations only started in 1929. The plant therefore was still in the process of construction and organization, and accordingly no figures relating to the Hartsville Print & Dyeing Works are included in the consolidated statement herewith of profit and loss. The consolidated balance sheet submitted herewith, however, includes the assets and liabilities of this company, as of December 31, 1929.

Dividends: Four regular quarterly dividends of 1 3-4 per cent. each on the preferred stock of the United States Finishing Company, amounting to $252,000, were pair, and four regular quarterl dividends of 1 3-4 per cent. each on the preferred stock of the Queen Dyeing company, amounting to $35,000, were also paid, making a consolidated total of preferred dividends of $287,000. On the common stock of the United States Finishing company regular quarterly dividends of 1 1-4 per cent. in March and June, and an extra dividend in June of 1 per cent., were declared on the old $100 par stock; and in September and December quarterly cash dividends of 50 cents pe rshare and 1 per cent. in stock were declared on the new no-par common stock—making a total of cash dividends on the common stock for the year of $260,558, plus 2 per cent. in common stock. The consolidated total of all dividennds declared during the year was accordingly $547,558 in cash, plus 2,412 shares of common stock.

EXPENDITURE FOR SCHOOL NEEDS FACING TOWN

An interesting point that was brought out by Superintendent Edward J. Graham of the town schools in his address on the junior high school project Wednesday evening before the Woman's City club was the fact that regardless of whether the proposed two junior high schools, which are advocated by the town school board, are built or not, the town will have to expend over $400,000 for increasing local educational facilities.

This amount will be needed, stated the superintendent, in order to provide for additional facilities at the Norwich Free Academy and needed accommodations in the grammar schools. These would consist of additions to the Greeneville and Broadway school buildings and a new building at the Academy. The congested conditions at the grammar schools call for these additions at once, while the trustees are asking for increased accommodations by the fall of 1931.

A number of state departments of education and educational leaders that have endorsed the 6-3-3 plan of organization of school systems, which is proposed for this city, give their opinion on it as follows:

California — "Practically all the cities in California have established junior high schools."

Oregon—"It is my opinion that the junior high school fills a real educational need, since it affords a period of transition during which special attention can be given to educational problems in the light of our knowledge of adolescent psychology."

Kansas—"The junior high school organization is growing in popularity in Kansas."

Colorado—"The interest of children of junior high school age is quickened enormously in schools of this type. Their achievements are far greater and their happiness in school is raised far above anything obtained by the older forms of elementary and high school education. In every way I believe the junior high school marks a distinct advance in educational philosophy and achievement."

New Jersey — "The junior high school movement in New Jersey is still going forward with vigor."

New Hampshire— "In my opinion the junior high school has established itself as a necessary part of the public school organization. It has various forms but in all with more or less success it has revitalized the work of the upper elementary grades."

Connecticut—"So far as my observation goes and I have made a careful inquiry, I am finding that the junior high school has created in some cases an embarrassment in the senior high school because of the increased number of pupils who seek to complete 12 years of the common school course."

Dr. Frank Spaulding, former superintendent of the Newton schools, and now dean of the Graduate School of Education at Yale university, says: "It is my opinion that the junior high school, particularly as represented in the 6-3-3 plan of organization, is proving increasingly successful. The development of the junior high school, I believe, marks a distinct advance in educational organization and procedure."

Dean Holmes of the Harvard graduate school of education, says: "I am unequivocally in favor of the 6-3-3 plan of school organization. It seems to me to have been successful in every instance in which it has been given a genuine trial."

Charles H. Judd, director of the school of education in the University of Chicago, writes: "The junior high school organization is going forward rapidly in this country and is, in my judgment, one of the most promising movements in American education."

Twenty-four of the 32 cities in Massachusetts have junior high schools, all of the large cities in Rhode Island are committed to this plan, while over 10 cities in Connecticut have adopted the junior high school. These include: Greenwich, Stamford, Norwalk, Westport, Bridgeport, New Haven, West Hartford and New Britain.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN $175 COLCHESTER CASE

Judge Christopher L. Avery took the papers and reserved decision Thursday in the superior court at New London after hearing testimony in which Hyman Berman of Colchester, sought to obtain damages of $175 from Dwight H. Marvin of Colchester.

Developments Thursday were the result of counter suits in which Dr. Frederick T. Murless of Hartford sued Marvin for damages to the former's automobile and Marvin sued Murless for personal injuries resulting from a collision between the cars of Murless and one operated by Marvin and owned by Berman.

The accident occurred at Colchester several months ago. According to the testimony Berman had gone to Marvin's garage to have repairs to his car. Marvin took the wheel and backed out to try the car out. The Murless car struck the Colchester machine from the rear, some question being raised as to whether Murless was negligent in not seeing the car in time to turn out as it was contended he had time to do.

Some settlement was effected in the original suit, but Berman failed to collect $350 expected for damage to his car, counsel for Murless paying him $175 and referring him to Marvin for the other half.

The testimony in court Thursday was for the purpose of determining whether Marvin was liable for the other $175.

Gipsy Moth In Meriden Section.

A dangerous infestation of the gipsy moth has been discovered by scouts of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station in the state park on West Peak, near Meriden.

"We haven't finished scouting and we don't know how many acres the infestation covers," John T. Ashworth, station deputy in charge of the work, said, "but the condition is serious because of the location. From that height moths can be blown many miles and infest a countryside. A southeast wind would drive the insect over Portland and Glastonbury."

Newly hatched caterpillars have aerostatic hairs on their bodies and have been carried more than 20 miles when wind and weather were favorable.

SMUGGLED ALIEN CHINESE FROM MEXICO INTO THE U. S.

George E. Flaherty, Arrested In Los Angeles, Admitted Employing Two Airplane Pilots to Fly His $50,000 Transport—Pilots and Two Other Men Will Be Charged With Conspiracy to Smuggle Aliens—Two of the Accused Men Had Been Found With Nine Chinese In An Auto Near Mexicali, Lower Calif.

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—(AP)—With the arrest of five men, two of them aviators, and the seizure of a $50,000 transport plane, federal immigration agents said tonight they had broken up an elaborate plot to smuggle alien Chinese into California from Mexico by air.

George E. Flaherty, owner of the seized transport, was arrested at his home here late today and immigration agents said he confessed employing two fliers to pilot the plane on a smuggling expedition.

The pilots previously had been arrested. They are Harold A. Sweet, 26, of Los Angeles, former Air Line pilot, and George V. Gray, 34, of Taft, Cal.

Others in custody are John F. Smith, 24, of Los Angeles, and Eddie M. Collins, 34, of Long Beach, Cal.

Last Monday Mexican authorities found Collins and Smith and nine Chinese in an automobile near Mexicali, Lower California. The captives were turned over to immigration authorities for the United States at Calexico, American border city.

United States agents hurried to Imperial, Cal., and arrested Sweet and Gray as they landed their large ship at the Imperial airport. Federal agents charged the pilots planned to fly to a point in Mexico and meet the automobile, take the Chinese aboard and fly them to northern California.

News of the four arrests was not made public until the men were brought here today. The arrest of Flaherty followed.

Smugglers, the agents said, usually employ small, antiquated planes. The seizure of the big, modern transport was the first made in this territory in operations against smuggling activities.

TESTIMONY IN TRIAL OF PLAYWRIGHT MAE WEST

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—Capt. James J. Coy, who headed the police squad that raided "Pleasure Man," a year and a half ago, took the actors to jail, and forbade any further performances after the third night, was still on the stand today when trial of Miss Mae West, author, and those associated with her in the production adjourned for the week end.

Miss West, Carl Reed, producer, and the entire cast, of more than 50 members, are charged with a misdemeanor in having a part in the play "Pleasure Man."

The police captain, rotund and somewhat bald, all day today was under cross-examination by Miss West's attorney.

There was a prolonged discussion of a song which Captain Coy said he found to be most objectionable.

"Well, sing it for us," Mr. Burkan finally said.

"Me sing it!" Captain Coy said indignantly. "I never sang a song in my life, either in private or in public."

Mr. Burkan also questioned Captain Coy at length on how he was able to recall so accurately many lines and bits of stage business from "Pleasure Man," when he was unable to say how many more plays he had viewed as a police officer since October, 1928. Captain Coy said he had a complete story of the play, which he and a police stenographer wrote out after seeing the play.

"Well, let's see it," demanded Mr. Burkan. "Have you got it with you?"

"No, I don't carry it around all the time," Coy replied. "It makes my pockets bulge."

Coy testified today that once, 20 years ago, he had gone on in a production as a "super—just one of the mob standing around" and that he had also been a laborer with a circus.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

NEW CASTLE, Pa. March 21.—(AP)—Death in the electric chair was the verdict returned by a jury here tonight in the case of Irene Schroeder, 21, tried for the slaying of Highway Patrolman Brady Paul. The jury's decision was first degree murder, without mercy, which automatically carries the death penalty.

The verdict was returned at 9:25 o'clock after the jury had retired at 8:44.

Mrs. Schroeder never flinched as the verdict was brought in. Members of her family could be heard sobbing after the jury foreman had returned the verdict which carries the extreme penalty. Among the spectators in the crowded courtroom, many could be seen with handkerchiefs to their eyes. The blonde defendant sneered as she was led from the court room.

MURDER CONVICT CAPTURED AFTER A SHORT CHASE

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)—Convicted today of the murder of Frank Cappola, 21, on last Nov. 9, Joseph Zackowitz, 26, escaped from the van in which he was being returned to prison, but was recaptured by a mounted patrolman after a short chase.

Zackowitz said he killed Cappola because his 17-year-old wife, Irene, had told him that three men she passed on the street had made insulting remarks to her. Zackowitz went out in his car, found the men, and opened fire on them, seriously wounding Cappola, who died later.

ALLEGED SLAYER WAS ARRESTED IN PASSAIC, N. J.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 21.—(AP)—John J. McGlone, 25, alias Edward J. Collins of New York, alleged slayer of Frankie Dunn, Hoboken beer baron, and Alex Martin, alias William Ryan, 25, of Hoboken, N. J., fugitive from justice as one of the men who shot up Hotsy Totsy club in New York last July 13, were arrested tonight in a barber shop at 9 Park place.

The two men were taken without a battle by New York, Hoboken and Passaic detectives. Four officers entered the barber shop with drawn guns and both gunmen, one standing reading a newspaper and the other being shaved, "stuck 'em up" at the command of the police.

WARRANTS FOR BRIBERY INVOLVING POLICEMEN

HARTFORD, March 21—(AP)—Additional bench warrants based on grand jury information of perjury and bribery involving policemen and other witnesses who have been called before it to testify in the county liquor investigation, will be obtained soon from the superior court by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, it was learned today, following the arrest of Policeman Raymond R. Regan, of the Hartford police and Benjamin Bromberg, alleged bootlegger, on charges of perjury.

SENATE INVESTIGATION INTO UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—Unemployment conditions held "comparable only with those of 1914" were linked with pleas for action on legislation now pending in congress in testimony today before a senate investigating committee.

Miss Frances Perkins, a veteran of labor inquiry, now industrial commissioner for the state of New York and Dr. John P. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, who said he had followed legislation proposals for more than ten years, were the witnesses.

Miss Perkins said appeals for charity from families of workmen who would be expected to have employment, but have not had, "increased 200 per cent in the past six months" in her state. This, she said, was "striking and shocking" evidence of conditions throughout the state and in "other industrial centers."

Dr. Andrews said families living on barges for lack of other shelter indicated that conditions are "the most serious in years."

Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, author of the legislation which the witnesses united in endorsing, said after they testified that if his measures were enacted "we'll never hear of seasonal unemployment again."

WHALEN TO RESIGN AS N. Y. POLICE COMMISSIONER

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Persistent rumors forecasting the resignation of Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, were given emphasis today by the statement of a high official at city hall that Mr. Whalen would resign on April 26.

Mr. Whalen, who had become known throughout the country, chiefly as the sartorially splendid official "greeter" of the city's notable guests, was appointed head of the police department after demands for solution of the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, gambler, forced the resignation of his predecessor.

The murder mystery is still unsolved, but Mr. Whalen has become still more widely known because of the spectacular methods which he has used while in office.

As police commissioner, he gets $10,000 a year, while his salary as general manager of Wanamaker's was generally understood to have been $100,000 a year.

The announcement today said the resignation would become effective after the annual police parade next month.

HUGE ANTI-RELIGIOUS PARADES IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, March 21—(AP)—As a protest against intercessory prayers aboard for Christians in Russia, huge parades were held today in Moscow and other cities throughout the Soviet Union. Russian officials consider foreign attacks on their handling of the religious situation as intervention in Russia's internal affairs.

Tens of thousands of workers, red army soldiers, government employes and school children, marched for three hours over the muddy pavements of Moscow, singing anti-religious songs and carrying inflammatory red banners. They were led by brass bands playing martial and communist airs.

As usual, Pope Pius and religion bore the brunt of the propaganda attack on the posters and banners. Many marchers carried huge, grotesque effigies of the pope. Banners bearing the familiar Marxian inscription "Religion is the opium of the people" were conspicuous.

The crowds along the line of march were so dense that all street traffic was suspended for more than two hours.

Mrs. Helen H. Taft, in filing a petition for the probate of his will, made known that Mr. Taft owned real estate at Murray Bay, uebec, Canada, and in Washington, valued at approximately $125,000.

His personal estate, comprising stocks and bonds and personal effects, Mrs. Taft estimated at $350,000. The debts probably will not exceed $3,000.

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)— A message from the trawler Gertrude Sue requesting coast guard assistance because of a disabled engine was relayed here tonight. The vessel gave her position as 162 miles southeast of Cape Cod.

The message was picked up by the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Marine corporation and relayed to the corporation's station in Brooklyn. The coast guard also was notified.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, March 22—(AP)—(Saturday)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd announced today that his Antarctic exploration bark, the City of New York, was ready for sea and would begin its return voyage to New York tomorrow with a portion of the expedition.

BUENOS AIRES, March 21—(AP)—The wage dispute between the owners of the Argentine railways and the workers, which in the past two weeks has caused damage to railway property running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, was settled through intervention of the federal authorities. Regular service will probably begin again tomorrow.

JERUSALEM, March 21—(AP)—After a month's trial, five Arabs were today sentenced to death for the murder of four Jews during the Arab-Jewish riots at Hebron last summer. They were also ordered to pay $5,000 civil indemnity to the dependents of the murdered men, who were of the Abounhid and Gouslan families. Three other, Arabs were discharged.

EXPLOSION OF SMOKELESS POWDER KILLED THREE MEN

DOVER, N. J., March 21—(AP)—An army officer and two civilian employes were killed late today in an explosion of smokeless powder at the United States army arsenal, at Picatinny, near here.

The dead: Captain J. B. Fiddler, of the ordnance department; Frank Stevens, Wharton; Stephen DeEvey, Wharton.

Edward Goldsworthy, also of Wharton, was taken to Dover General hospital in a serious condition. Stevens and DeEvey, with Goldsworthy, were chemists at the arsenal.

Colonel James K. Train, commanding officer of the arsenal, said the men were experimenting with a new kind of smokeless powder. The explosion occurred in a small building which had been set apart for this purpose, and no damage was done to the remainder of the arsenal.

DOHENY BRIBERY CASE WILL GO TO JURY TODAY

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(AP)—The charge that Edward L. Doheny bribed a cabinet officer to obtain oil leases, will be given into the hands of a jury of nine men and three women, early tomorrow.

Two days of arguments by counsel ended tonight. Judge William Hitz of the District of Columbia supreme court deferred until tomorrow the delivery of his instructions to the jury.

During the last two days, the multi-millionaire has sat in court and heard himself alternately condemned as a man who paid $100,000 to Albert B. Fall to influence him to award Doheny's company a lease to the Elk Hill naval oil reserve, and praised as a blameless man who loaned money to an old friend in need.

FORMER BROKER PLEADED GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT

HARTFORD, March 21—(AP)—James Atkinson Smith, who was the active partner in the brokerage firm of Kenyon and Smith here and who disappeared in October, with $100,000 in securities not his own, pleaded guilty of embezzlement on one count in superior court this afternoon, and was sentenced to state prison for three to five years.

Smith was arrested as a fugitive at Springfield, Ohio, in January after he had been trailed about the country, his movements being marked by bad checks which he had cashed. His reputation was that of a bad check man, and he had many times been in trouble because of his frequent passing of fictitious checks.

COMMITTED SUICIDE ON BAGGAGE PLATFORM

BEACON, N. Y., March 21.—(AP)—Fred J. Young, 54, of Irvington, N. J., committed suicide, here today, by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. He went to the baggage platform of the New York Central railroad to do it.

A note to the Beacon chief of police blamed his act on family trouble and inability to find employment. The note found on the body asked his daughter be notified.

EATING OF BEAR MEAT CAUSE OF THREE DEATHS

STUTTGART, Germany, March 21.—(AP)—Three persons have died here among 45 cases of trchinosis which resulted from the consumption of bear meat that had not been inspected.

Trichinosis is a disease which frequently appears in the United States. It usually is ascribed to the eating of improperly cooked pork.

AMBITIOUS TO RE-UPHOLSTER BUCKINHAMG PALACE SOFAS

LONDON, March 21.—(AP)—Hear the tale of an ambitious artisan:

One of the senators in the American naval delegation received a letter from the United States this morning asking him to see King George immediately.

Thinking the letter referred to the naval conference, the senator read on to find that the writer desired him to arrange a contract for his constituent to re-upholster the sofas in Buckingham palace.

AL CAPONE WARNED TO KEEP AWAY FROM CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 21.— (AP) —Al Capone was freed by police today after he had given himself up to Captain John Stege, chief of detectives.

He was warned to get out of town, that he would be arrested every time the police found him, and Stege said Al promised to leave by Monday.

He left the detective bureau, getting in a car with two lawyers, and announcing he was going home.

CUSTODIAN CLOSED HIMSELF IN PRISON CELL

ALBANY, N. Y., March 21.—(AP)—A life-time habit of closing doors behind him caused Joseph V. Murphy, courthouse custodian here, to lock himself in a pison cell today. He entered the empty cell and by habit closed the door. Paint carelessly applied had closed the keyhole. Files, screw drivers, hammers and some hard work by fellow employes released Mr. Murphy.

N. C. Man Appointed to Supreme Court Bench

John J. Parker of Charlotte Now Serving As Judge of Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

WASHINGTON, March 21 — The nomination of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to be associate justice of the supreme court succeeding the late Edward T. Sanford, of Tennessee, was forwarded to the senate today by President Hoover.

The second appointee of Mr. Hoover to the highest tribunal is now on the bench of the federal circuit court of appeals for the fourth district, embracing Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Like his predecessor Parker is a republican.

Judge Parker is 44 years old and is the youngest man to be nominated to the supreme court in 100 years. He is the first man from these states to go to the high court in 70 years. Only two other men as young as he have served on the supreme court—John Jay, the chief justice, who was 44 years old; and Joseph Story, who was 32 when he was appointed.

Hailed with hearty endorsement by the two democratic senators from North Carolina, the Parker nomination appeared tonight to face no untoward opposition in the senate, which recently engaged in a bitter controversy over the confirmation of Chief Justice Hughes.

Chairman Norris of the judiciary committee, announced that he would refer the nomination to a subcommittee for consideration on Monday at the regular meeting. That is the usual procedure. He said the whole committee probably would be ready to make a report to the senate a week from Monday.

Senator Norris and Senator Borah, of Idaho, who led the contest against the Hughes confirmation, both said tonight they knew very little of Judge Parker's qualifications. Both added that such information as they had received was "favorable."

Senator Simmons and Overman, of North Carolina, were outspoken in their endorsement of Parker. They had recommended a democrat, Justice Stacy, of the North Carolina supreme court. They said if a republican was to be chosen that "Parker is the best man."

"We wanted a democrat," said Senator Simmons, "but we made it clear to the president that if a republican is to be appointed we wanted it to be Judge Parker. I think that is the attitude of the North Carolina delegation, of the bar, and of the people of the state.

"Judge Parker is a young man, a very fine lawyer and he has made a very fine record. He has a high character, is able and has a judicial temperament. He is as good a man as there is in the south."

Senator Overman was equally enthusiastic.

In announcing his selection, President Hoover said that although fitness was the primary requisite the original set-up of the supreme court presumably was based upon the distribution of the judges among the different circuits.

The appointment of Judge Parker, he added, met the geographical distribution a little better than heretofore. The last man on the supreme bench from the judicial district which Judge Parker will represent was Justice Daniels, 70 years ago.

Brophy Gets Life For Slaying Policeman

Aliens Pronounced Waterbury Youth Unfit to Be Tried For First Degree Murder.

HARTFORD, March 21.—(AP)—John Brophy, 20-year-old Waterbury youth, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree [illegible] the killing of Policeman James [illegible], in Bristol, on the night [illegible] 16 and was sentenced this [illegible] by Judge Newell Jen[illegible]perior court to life imprisonment. [illegible] who previously had pleaded [illegible] guilty to murder in the first degree and elected trial by three judges, was allowed to change his plea when Dr. H. A. Bancroft and Dr. F. Arthur Emmot, retained by the state to examine his mental condition, reported to State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn that Brophy was abnormal and unfit to be tried as a murderer in the first degree.

The finding of the alienists was that Brophy never had a fair chance in life. Two members of his family, Mr. Alcorn said, are proper subjects for commitment and probably will be committed. Brophy's father was an habitual drunkard and very ugly, beating Brophy and Brophy's mother frequently. According to the doctors, these beatings affected the boy's mental condition. He did not get beyond the second grade in school and showed signs of being sub-normal.

A poor heritage, a poor home, lack of proper control in his youth, these were the factors, the alienists found, that played important parts in shaping Brophy's life so that he became a criminal, first a petty thief and finally a killer.

The very atrocity of the crime, Mr. Alcorn said, done in such a cold-blooded way, was an indication that the slayer was not a normal person.

Big Kernels in Small Shells

In addition to the advertisements of the department stores, of the grocery and hardware stores, of the millinery, clothing and shoe stores, there is another kind of advertising that is being read by readers of The Bulletin. That kind of advertising is the "classied columns."

A man or woman wants a job. They read the "help wanted" columns and probably insert an advertisement of their own under "positions wanted." Employer and job seeker soon get together to the benefit of both. A man may want an auto, so he looks in the "used car" column and finds just the car at the price he can afford to pay. Then there are others who have lost or found something, those with property to sell, apartments to rent and other things for sale.

The classified columns are arranged for quick reading and enable you to locate what you are looking for. So in reading the advertisements do not overlook the classified columns of The Bulletin. They may contain a big kernel in a small shell for you.

During the past week the following news matter has appeared in the columns of The Bulletin:

ALLEGED CRUEL TREATMENT AT CONN. SCHOOL FOR BOYS

James S. Peck, Discharged Farmer, Said He Had Learned of Cruel Treatment of Boys At Hands of Some of the Supervisors—Had Not Actually Seen It—Realized That When He Told the Welfare Board of Conditions That It Probably Would Mean the Loss of His Position.

MERIDEN, March 21—(AP)—James S. Peck, who was discharged this week from his position as farmer at the Connecticut state school for boys, in talking with a reporter for the Meriden Record today, said that he does not know what his future plans will be. He said that although he felt he could easily get a place at farming, he believes [illegible] with [illegible] his time about finding a new position.

He said that while he had been engaged in farming nearly all his life, he had become interested in boys and had been [illegible] work with boys and he hoped to continue in that line. He said that he realized even before he told the state welfare board of conditions at the school, that it would probably mean the loss of his position, but he felt it his duty to the state in which he was born to try to remedy these conditions.

He said that within a few months after his arrival at the school, nearly seven years ago, he learned of cruel treatment of boys at the hands of some of the supervisors, although he had not actually seen the cruel treatment. He said he then reported to Supt. Edward S. Boyd what he had heard, and left the matter in the hands of that official. He said that Mr. Boyd asked him at that time to let him know if he learned of any more such treatment of boys, and for some time he did continue to tell the superintendent of inhuman treatment of which he learned from time to time.

Mr. Peck said that he saw no results of such reports to the superintendent, and so, after a time, he discontinued making them. He said that the boys trusted him, and when working with him about the farm, would tell him of abuse at the hands of some of the supervisors.

"At last," said Mr. Peck, "I felt it was my duty to the boys and to the state, to try other means of getting a fair deal for the boys sent to the school, and I went to see Dr. J. J. Eggleston, chairman of the board of trustees, that was about a year and a half ago.

"I had quite a talk with the doctor, and suggested to him that he arrange for a meeting with Mr. Boyd and the supervisors in question, so that I could tell what I had learned in the presence of the men interested. Dr. Eggleston thought it would be better to let him handle the matter in his own way, without such a meeting, and he assured me that he would take steps to correct the situation.

"Within a short time [illegible] to supervisors that no boys should be punished except in the presence of a witness. [illegible] the school, anyway, but apparently Dr. Eggleston was trying to stop the brutal treatment of the boys."

Mr. Peck said that the situation did not improve, and he talked with Ernest S. Fuller, of Somers, secretary of the board, and also with Edward F. King, of East Hartford, another member of the board, and at one time was called before the board, and there told his story of cruel treatment of boys.

"When all these attempts failed to make any improvement," continued Mr. Peck, "I felt that it was my duty to humanity to keep trying to better the conditions for the boys, and at last I went to the state board of welfare, and that board at once became interested, and began an investigation, with what results, you know."

Mr. Peck, as farm supervisor, had under his charge at the schol a group of boys who were assigned regularly to farm work. He also had under his direction at times groups of boys who were under other supervisors. It was these other boys who told him of inhuman treatment.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST 42 CUBAN LABOR LEADERS

HAVANA, March 21.—(AP) — Court orders for the suppression of nine labor organizations that participated in yesterday's 24-hour strike against employment conditions, and indictments against 42 Cuban labor leaders for inciting disturbances against the government, today marked the aftermath of the strike.

Judge Eduardo Potts, of the court of first instance, a court similar to American criminal courts, this afternoon ruled that the 42 men, many of them Spaniards, are guilty of sedition and of trying to incide disorder. He further ruled that the nine unions were affiliated with the Third International at Moscow.

The nine include the Federated Labor Union of Cuba, Confederated Labor of Havana, Havana Electric Local unions and lesser trade associations. The strike was conducted without public demonstrations and was free from disorders.

Jose Medina, chief of secret police, tonight said he believed the indictments would never be served against the 42 men and that the unions would continue to function. He will recommend to President Machado that the court orders be not carried out.

Conference forces are scattered far from St. James' palace and prospects of changes in the situation over the week end are slight.

But Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain waits at Chequers, ever hopeful that either the Italians or the French will present new proposals which will hurry Premier Tardieu of France back to London tomorrow night for the conference with Mr. MacDonald Sunday.

With a five-power treaty at stake, Mr. MacDonald is displaying great patience to enable France and Italy to reach some basis of agreement.

Without a record vote, a proposal of Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, for a duty of four cents a pound on short staple cotton was rejected.

A further change in the tariff on cotton blankets and blanket cloths from 25 per cent as previously approved to 30 per cent a pound was adopted on motion of Senator Hebert, republican, Rhode Island.

BELIEVES NIGHTSTICKS THE TREATMENT FOR COMMUNISTS

NEW YORK, March 21.—(AP)— The question, "How is it possible to proceed against the organized violence of communism without using force?" was posed tonight by Charles G. Wood, commissioner of conciliation of the United States department of labor, in a letter addressed to Arthur Garfield Hayes, counsel for the American Civil Liberties union.

The question, Mr. Wood said, was offered for solution to the Civil Liberties union and all other groups which recently "were reported as denouncing Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen for committing flagrant violation of civil liberties."

"At present," Mr. Wood's letter continued, "the communist movement is being met by a fusillade of Bibles thrown by the religious influences of the community and nightsticks vigorously applied by police powers wherever necessary.

"There appears to be no alternative other than these weapons."

Mr. Wood said he had personal knowledge of communists "leading workers into acts of violence and illegal demonstrations" in New York and Brooklyn, Passaic, N. J.; New Bedford, Mass.; Detroit, Mich.; Chicago, Seattle, San Francisco and Denver.

"You, perhaps, do not realize that the communist movement has outgrown the soapbox stage of oratory and has become a mass attack against the very institutions which you and your associates zealously seek to defend and maintain," he said.

WITHDRAWAL OF 650 MARINES FROM NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, March 21— (AP) — Withdrawal of approximately 650 marines from Nicaragua was ordered today by President Hoover in line with his announced policy of returning all marines from foreign soil as quickly as is compatible with safety.

At the white house nothing was added to the bare announcement. It was explained at the navy department, however, that when the presidential order is carried out a force of 85 officers and 886 marines will be left on duty in the southern republic.

Marines have been in Nicaragua since 1926. Already a considerable part of the detail has been withdrawn, since on the election day in November 1928, which placed General Moncada in the presidential chair, a force of 5,672 officers and men were stationed as guards at the ballot boxes.

POETRY

"I Accept"

I shall go out as all men go,
Spent flickers in a mighty wind,
Then I shall know, as all must know,
What lies the great gray veil behind.

There may be nothing but a deep
And timeless void without a name,
Where no sun hangs, no dead stars sleep,
And there is neither night nor flame.

There may be meadows there and hills,
Mountains and plains and winds that blow,
And flowers bending over rills
Springing from an eternal snow.

There may be oceans white with foam
And great tall ships for hungry men
Who called our little salt seas home
And burn to launch their keels again.

There may be voices I have known
And fingers that have touched my hair,
There may be hearts that were my own
Love may abide forever there.

Who knows? Who needs to understand
If there be shadow there, or more
To live as though a pleasant land
Lay just beyond an open door?

—Harold Trowbridge, in The Outlook.

As One Settles Down

There now are things I hold unseemly
That once evoked an eager glow,
And things that once I thought supremely
Important, seem no longer so.

Once I would argue, late and bitter,
Free will, free verse, free love, free trade;
Such quarrels only make me titter
Now that my habits are more staid.

This liberty that's coming faster
Than I can dodge, whate'er I do,
Seems slavery to some new master
Whose whims I'm unaccustomed to.

Old age or wisdom—ah, what matters?
Much quiet pleasure comes to me, as
I hear young fellows storm and chatter
As if these things were new ideas!

—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Why did that old gentleman jump out of your way as you passed?"

"Oh, he used to be my dancing master."—Nebelspalter, Zurich.

Small Boy—Do you really know how to steer a ship?

The Duke—My Word! Why do you ask?

Small Boy—Well, mamma said you must have come over to this country in the steerage.—Detroit News.

Goozlum—Your friend certainly is a Scotchman.

Whillikins—What makes you say that?

Goozlum—Well, I gave him a rabbit's foot for luck and he cooked it.—The Pathfinder.

"Can you keep a secret, daddy?"

"Yes, Junior, what is it?"

"Well, mamma just ran off with the chauffeur and they've taken the Cadillac."—Pointer.

"Well, Eric, how did you like your first days at school?"

"It was rather fun, but there was a very old man in front of the class and he kept spoiling the fun."—Faun, Vienna.

"But, boy, you can't live on the slender income your mother makes from selling the milk. Doesn't your father do anything?"

"Yes, he pours in the water."—Fliegende Blaetter.

"Say, guy, J'love this jane?"

"Yep, yer honor."

"This your bimbo, girlie?"

"You said a mouthful, judge."

"S'nuff. He's your'n. You're his'n. Ten bucks and take the air on the right."—Exchange.

"Dear," he whispered as they were seated together on the sofa, "I am going to ask you an important question and I want you to take your time about answering. Will you marry me?"

"But why should I hesitate, George dear?" the fair one responded leaning towards him.

"So I'll have time to shift these cigars in my pocket," he joyfully explained.—Portland Express.

DANIELSON

GRASS FIRE AT ELMVILLE ENDANGERS PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 21—A grass fire that started before 4 o'clock this afternoon on property east of the state highway north of Danielson and near Elmville got out of control and raged for over three hours this evening through brush and woodland territory while a high wind swept the flames westward into the Mashentuck district. Fire Warden A. D. Sayles of East Killingly assembled a score or more of men to fight the fire, which was endangering valuable property. It swept over many acres before it was finally reported as out, shortly after 7 o'clock tonight.

MISSING COUPLE RETURN, MAN HELD FOR SEDUCTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 21.—Eva Newton, 16, was back at the home of her father, John Newton, of Greene, R. I., today and her companion of several weeks past on an automobile trip that took them only they know where, Lawrence Hall, of Sterling, before a justice's court in his own home town to answer to a charge of enticing a minor female and with seduction.

An effort to locate the young couple, Hall is about 20, has been under way ever since they disappeared, going in Hall's car. Yesterday afternoon they were picked up by Hartford city police and held for state officers of the Danielson barracks. State Officers H. Theodore Strand and George Martin were detailed to go to Hartford for the pair, and they were brought back here late last night.

Questioning of the pair developed little as to how they have been spending their time since they went away or where they spent it. Neither was it clear today how they managed to finance themselves while absent from their home. During the continuance of his case from this afternoon Hall is held under bonds of $2,000.

FUNERAL

Samuel Harris

This afternoon at the Congregational church in Brooklyn, funeral services for Samuel Harris were conducted by Rev. C. C. Rowlison, the pastor. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn, the committal service conducted by Rev. Mr. Rowlison. The bearers were Fred Miller, Frank Spalding, Marshall J. Frink and Tully Bowen. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

A determined effort is to be made by corn growers in this territory to free it of the corn borer during the coming season, or at least come as near as possible to that desirable end. A considerable amount of work along this line already has been accomplished. Stalks from last year's cornfields will be plowed under thoroughly or burned, and likewise weeds that are likely to be attacked by the borer.

The borer appeared in widely scattered sections of this town last year, even in some small gardens where corn was being grown for home use. Most growers of corn have come to be familiar with the appearance of the borer and recognize it on sight. In these gardens, as well as in the larger fields of corn, special care will be taken this spring to rid them of every trace of last year's stalks.

It is anticipated that the quarantine crews who worked in Brooklyn for weeks last summer and into the early fall will be on hand again for duty as soon as the growing season has sufficiently advanced to make their presence required.

The Bohemian Trio, made up of Henry Madon, John F. Gardner Jr., and George Robinson, defeated the Jolly Three of Jewett City—Arremony, Liberty and Miller—in a match game of pocket billiards at the Bohemian club last night. In 100-point matches Madon defeated Arremony, 100 to 58, Liberty defeated Gardner 100 to 68, and Robinson defeated Miller 100 to 45. Highest runs were made by Robinson, with 23, and Madon, with 22. The final team scores were Bohemian Trio 268, Jolly Three 203. A return match is to be played in Jewett City next Thursday evening.

They have been about the streets here for days, and last night were picked up for questioning by Officer Laird Winchell. At 1 o'clock this morning, Chief John McFarland was interviewing them at the police station. They were permitted to go to their rooming place after tearfully agreeing to leave the state on the first bus for Rhode Island this morning. One is said to be a resident of Hopkins Mills, the other of Coventry, R. I.

Leino was the operator of the car in which Walter Leopa was a passenger early last Monday morning when it was in an accident on Hopkins hill in Plainfield. Leopa later attacked State Officer H. Theodore Strand. Mrs. Leopa, also in the group that figured in the affair, paid a fine of $10 and costs today for interfering with an officer.

Box 23, that regularly startles Danielson when it sounds, because it is in the heart of Danielson's business section, rang in this afternoon at 4:13 for a grass fire near the Frank Davis property, a mile and a half north of the central section of Danielson. It was 5 o'clock before the firemen returned to their quarters. The fire did no serious damage, but was extremely dangerous because of the high wind prevailing.

Earl Bassett had a real red letter day today in bringing in international broadcasts on his short wave receiving set. One station in Australia, four in England, two in Holland, one in Germany, one each in Mexico and Argentina were distinctly heard and their programs enjoyed, in addition to conversations between two ships somewhere out in the Atlantic and a shore station at Deal, N. J. This is the best record Mr. Bassett ever has made in a single day.

This first day of spring was typically March-like, with high and chill winds out of the southwest, but there appeared to be much satisfaction over the fact that it was officially a spring day.

The diocesan president of the organization will come here Monday evening to address the members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's parish.

Mrs. Frank J. Gorman and her guest, Mrs. Arthur Rougeau of Marlboro, Mass., have been visitors with friends in Willimantic and in Providence.

PUTNAM

HAVEN HOME THREATENED WHEN TOOL-SHED BURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 21.—A small band of well-drillers at work on the premises, saved the Haven home in Abington from destruction by fire when a tool-shed and bunk house in the rear of the institution was destroyed early this evening. The workmen, armed with fire extinguishers, were able to confine the blaze to its place of origin. The flames were fanned by a terrific north wind and carried sparks in all directions, threatening the wooden building which houses 30 aged and infirmed patients, who were prepared for removal to relief quarters.

The fire at first presented a threatening appearance and a distress call was sent to the Putnam fire department for assistance, but before firemen completed the nine-mile run the blaze had been brought under control. The pump company, under the direction of Deputy Chief A. Duman, responded to the call.

FIFTH ANNUAL CHECKER MEET SCHEDULED FOR APRIL 18TH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 21.—The royalty of checkerdom will gather again this year in this city on April 18, Good Friday, when the fifth annual meet will be held to decide the checker championship of eastern Connecticut. Announcement of the date was made this morning by William P. Warren of South Main street, chairman of the committee on arrangements. The Masonic clubhouse on South Main street will be the scene of the meet. The play will start promptly at 11 o'clock and will be conducted on the single knock-out plan (four games in each round) and continue until the championship is won. Suitable prizes will be awarded the winners. Mr. Warren stated that the committee will also put on special classes of B and C if the entrance list is sufficiently large enough.

All players who are planning on taking part in the championship match are requested to advise the committee of their intentions.

John Myers of Farrows street is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, suffering from a fracture of the pelvis, which was sustained yesterday at the estate of Mrs. T. Morris Murray in Abington, where he was working. The accident occurred in the afternoon. Mr. Myers is a labor foreman and was inspecting a submerged pipe line connection. While down in the ditch, the furrow walls caved in, pinning him beneath the debris. He was removed to the hospital where an examination disclosed the serious injury, which hospital authorities said today will disable him for many months.

Mrs. Joseph Larose, resident of West Thompson, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, suffering from a fracture of the leg. She was injured yesterday in a fall down three stairs. The leg, it was said, is fractured below the knee. Her condition is not serious.

Richard Gilpatric, son of Mrs. Irene Gilpatric of Church street, is spending the Easter recess at his home here. He is a student at Hill school, Pottstown, Pa.

The United States civil service commission will hold open and competitive examination for the positions of clerk and foot carrier in the postoffice service in Putnam soon.

Regular positions with full-time service are seldom filled by direct appointment from eligible registers. Eligibles are first appointed as substitutes and are required to be available to render service whenever needed. Vacancies in the regular force are filled by the promotion of the senior substitutes. The salaries for regular employes range from $1,700 to $2,100 per annum. These positions are permanent during good behavior. Retirement on an annuity is provided for at 65 years of age or in the case of total disability. Compensation during disability for injuries received in service is allowed and annuities are given to dependents in the case of death as a result of such injury.

Fifteen days vacation with full pay is allowed with an addition of ten days sick leave with pay.

For further information address the secretary of the board of United States civil service examiners at the local postoffice or the district secretary of the first U. S. civil service district, Boston. All applications must be filed by April 4, local postoffice authorities said today.

Miss Lauretta Baker, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, died today after a long illness. Miss Baker was 39 years of age. She was a native of Abington and a resident there. Since early life she had been a semi-invalid.

WAUREGAN

Incident to the building of the new road to Danielson, an interesting situation has arisen. The present plans of the state will necessitate the complete destruction of a new sewerage system installed by the Plainfield town school board only last fall. This system can be saved by the state using a few feet of pasture land on the west side of the road, opposite the schoolhouse. Knowing the fair-mindedness of those in charge of road construction in this state, the local authorities feel sure that this matter will be amicably adjusted.

The sermon subject at the Congregational church last Sunday was "The Value of Persecution." There was a good attendance and special music by the choir under direction of Robert Bethel.

Rev. William Williams is to supply the pulpit of Putnam Baptist church next Sunday evening, giving a helping hand to the local pastor, who is recovering from a serious case of pneumonia.

ADVERTISEMENT'S RESULTS ASTONISH SUBURBAN FARMER

A farmer living a little distance outside the borough limits put a two-line advertisement in The Bulletin for a farm hand who must be a good milker. The very next day, a considerable number of applicants were coming and going and a man was duly hired. All results were herein accomplished as far as farmer and help was concerned, but the advertisement kept right on the job. Within two days, bright and early one morning, a man drove up to the door in a shining car of late design. He alighted, unloaded a half-carload of rubber pipes, a number of cans, a gasoline engine and 2 H. P. generator, with all of which he proceeded to the barn. Mr. Farmer, with visions of lightning rod dispensers or possibly artesian well drillers, hurried out to see what it was all about, and how. The electric milking machine agent, for such he proved to be, was a man of parts. Waxing eloquent, a line of glib argument was taken up to prove to the farmer that he was not in need of a milker, it being only necessary to install the plant which he had brought along to do the job, without being bothered with shifting hired hands that only stayed a day or two, and then went hunting for evidence of the failure of the Volstead law. The farmer couldn't see it and the agent failed to get permission to demonstrate the efficiency of his machine on a fine Jersey that seemed to be listening in on the conversation with no little apprehension. Mr. F. says he expects that this fall when he advertises for help to work out his highway tax, some agent will show up with a steam shovel and road scraper.

A play was presented, entitled "His One Economy, the Wife," the characters being: Madame Thayer, Mrs. Thomas Brown; Richard Thayer, Edward Thornton, and Helen Thayer, Mrs. Edward Thornton. The grange voted to support the state master in the project of state aid for dirt roads. It was announced that the next meeting, April 3, would be Neighbors' Night, Killingly, Brooklyn and Shetucket granges furnishing the program.

HELPING HOME INDUSTRIES

When the New England council holds its quarterly meeting in Providence next week there will be considered subjects of importance to this part of the country. It is the object of the council to promote the welfare of New England and there cannot fail to be a deep interest in the consideration of what chambers of commerce may do to promote the welfare of industries already established in their communities.

It is an old saying that charity begins at home. There isn't a community but what must attach vital importance to its industries. They are important to its well-being and to its growth and prosperity. Much stress is placed upon getting new industries and there can be no doubt about the wisdom of such efforts, but there is need of giving all possible encouragement to those which are already established and doing business. It is from the small industry that the large ones are obtained. The great manufacturing plants were not established on those lines originally. They began in a small way, expanded with increasing business and possibly consolidations and gradually reached their present impressive size. It is reasonable to suppose that others can do the same, or at least can become larger. They will need increased demand for their products but they will also need encouragement at home if they are going to be kept there.

And where should a small industry expect to get encouragement if not at home? It is an old and painful story for many a city, including Norwich, when it is recalled that certain small enterprises sought to get necessary help, failed and, being picked up by other cities, have grown to concerns of national importance, employing large numbers and bringing fame and fortune to those involved.

The distressing part of such cases is that there was a failure to appreciate the possibilities of the little industries, a failure to realize what was being sacrificed from a community standpoint in permitting them to go elsewhere and a failure to grasp the importance of backing the home industries until someone else had proved it. Industrial development can be assisted in every city through giving proper and necessary aid to manufacturing plants already there, by providing plant requirements and getting back of home production. It is one of the vital needs in industrial growth and the New England council should have something valuable to offer on that subject.

BETTER ROADS

Out in the state of Michigan there is a demand for better roads. That seems to be characteristic of most states, especially if they believe that they have not been getting the attention which, in the ordinary course of events, should be given to them. These Michigan people, representing six counties, have appeared before state authorities and not only asked for better roads but sought the construction of 84 miles of concrete highway and one new bridge.

This is a part of the state which has not been getting the most of the state road money, in fact it would appear that it had been getting so little that it considered it was going to continue to receive such treatment unless it made its wants known in a manner that could be expected to produce results. It is a part of the state where there are the finest natural advantages, where farming, stock raising, dairying and fruit growing are generally practiced and there is no instance that it be given better roads in order to get their products to market. Like other parts of the state, it wants to get the benefit of good roads and it doesn't want to be ignored any longer. It wants a proper share in the highway funds of that state and it has apparently organized with the intention of getting them. Certainly it has refused to permit its light to remain under a bushel any longer and it is asking the state to do as much for it as it has for other sections. The fairness of such a plea is apparent.

The demand that is being made by these six counties of Michigan is not so different from that which is being urged in Connecticut today. Connecticut has been doing much for certain sections of the state in the way of modern highway construction for years but it hasn't gotten around to doing anything for the country roads, those sections of the state which serve and are served and yet which experience serious handicaps to transportation.

Cement roads are not being asked for the country districts in this state, but it would be unreasonable, but there is a crying need for state attention on more country roads and out of fairness it ought to be provided.

169 VARIETIES?

With the prospect that eight other towns may adopt the Stratford plan of governing the speed of autos it is not surprising that there is fear expressed that the time may come when there will be a different speed control in every town and the state will present 169 different kinds of regulations for the government of the auto driver.

This would seem to be going in the opposite direction to the much urged uniformity. It is to be realized that conditions differ with the locality, that more caution is needed in some places than others, but it is a question whether a better or a worse situation is going to result by the establishment of such regulatory measures. Establishing signs for the control of speed in communities is harking back to other days, and the picture will be complete if nine-tenths of the motorists are permitted to violate the regulations and the other tenth is prosecuted.

The idea back of these now-you-see-em and now-you-don't signs is not so different from the practice followed in certain cities of having a half dozen different kinds of traffic signals and expecting that the stranger as well as the residents of such cities are going to obey them explicitly, even though they have no idea they exist. Motorists are entitled to get their first signals up in the air over the center of the street. It is quite natural that they should continue to look for them there and while trying to be governed by them find that they have passed one on a post at the curb or a small and insignificant one in the street. Such confusion doesn't operate to put the stranger at his ease and when there are violations it doesn't necessarily mean that they are intentional and the driver is indulging in reckless speed.

Motorists for the most part intend to comply with requirements, but the idea of making and posting different restrictions in every community will contribute to better conditions about as much as if every state demanded different brakes, lights and windshield wipers, for every community has within its midst many of the time many who come from elsewhere and who would be given greater help through uniformity.

JUDGE PARKER'S NOMINATION

In the naming of John J. Parker of North Carolina to be associate justice of the United States supreme court, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Sanford, President Hoover has picked a man young in years and by no means a nationally known figure, but unquestionably one with the needed qualifications for such a post.

It is significant in connection with the expression of views upon the appointment that those who have been demanding a justice of a certain type are obliged to admit that they do not know much about Judge Parker but from all they can learn his fitness is recognized. Further than that, it means much when the two senators from North Carolina, both democrats and both advocating a democrat for the place, said that "if a republican was to be chosen Parker is the best man." When they admit that he is a very fine lawyer, has made a fine record, has a high character, is able, has a judicial temperament and is a good man as there is in the south, it is an endorsement that means much.

Many are the guesses that have been made concerning the appointment the president might make. Only casually has the name of Judge Parker been mentioned, but it was apparently the intention of President Hoover to replace the deceased justice from Tennessee with another southerner and in so doing to get a man of the high character and qualifications that the supreme court demands. The indications are that Judge Parker will be confirmed at an early date. There is apparently no reason why he should not be, and yet there is no telling what the trouble makers may do in the meantime.

The appointment means an advancement that is highly coveted and for a man of Judge Parker's years it gives promise that he will see long years of service to his country in a work in which he is much interested and for which he is well equipped.

FIREARMS AS PLAYTHINGS

Once more the old story of what happens when loaded weapons are left where children can get them and use them as playthings is told in the shooting of a New Haven youngster. Happily it doesn't promise to terminate fatally but it ought not to have occurred at all.

It was one of those cases of not taking sufficient care with a deadly weapon, for it was left in a closet when loaded by an older boy, where younger children who did not know its character could get it. There are no greater investigators than youngsters. They are prepared to try anything and in this instance it was the trigger of the gun, which was discharged, and the bullet found its mark.

The didn't know it was loaded plea is invariably made in such cases but it is apparent that there would be no occasion for explanations if deadly weapons were kept where children could not get them and if, in putting them away, care was taken to see that they were actually unloaded. It is safe to say that in that household there will be a different attitude displayed concerning firearms. Precautions—will be taken to forestall the repetition of any such performance and yet such preventive measures are only what should have been adopted long ago in anticipation of just what happened.

It would be interesting to know how many homes there are where conditions are much the same as they were in that New Haven home. The probability is that there are many where only good fortune has stood in the way of just such occurrences, and yet, in spite of the many glaring instances of gross carelessness, such needless shootings are all to frequently reported and in many instances resulting in the death of old and young whose lives should not have been thus ended.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: It will not be long now before there are demands for a new postoffice building at Little America.

It has taken months to accomplish it but if the Eighth street crossing signal is finally working as it should and remains that way, there's one more thing to remember on Thanksgiving day.

It was no more than was to be expected when President Hoover made it known that he would govern the appointments to the supreme bench. That is the basis for such appointments as the president has made thus far.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are many ways in which March seeks to offset her bad reputation for disagreeable weather. Now when this month makes an honest attempt to recover her good character she does it through the wonderful use of sunlight. Even while her surly disposition is rampant by means of chilly, boisterous winds, we can readily forgive her bad temper if there is only a clear sky. During this month the sun has a brilliancy all its own. Of course it is not as genial as it is in May and June; neither is it so softly luxuriant as in October; but it has a charming reflective power on everything it touches in March that it does not have in quite the same degree in any other month. For instance on a clear March day soon after it passes the noontide, see how wonderfully it gives vividness to the dull fields, and makes the leafless branches of the trees stand out clear cut and distinct!

The clai mhas been made that the sun's near approach to the equator at this season of the year has something to do with this brilliancy, but the claim, however, has been disputed by some scientists. A far more reasonable view is that during the preceding months when there has been more or less snowfall and deposited in the soil. As these impurities are minute particles of dust they make the landscape hazy, and hence the snowflakes assisted by high winds take nearly everything out of the atmosphere that tend to obscure the vision. In performing this work it gives Old Sol the opportunity of showing just what he can do in March, and to the keen observer of nature it is wonderfully clear and beautiful landscape that does not show up so distinctly later when the heat waves come.

Is there anything in the whole field of existence that makes a stronger and more lasting impression than a great personality? Of course this thought comes to the writer in the passing of one of America's greatest men, William Howard Taft. When we consider the manner in which he acquitted himself in the two greatest offices that our country can bestow on any man, it is not difficult to understand why America and all other civilized countries are paying such homage to his memory. Perhaps the one thing above all others that touched the heart of the world was his moral integrity. This has never been questioned. The writer used to see him often when we were students in New Haven. We were not personally acquainted because belonging to different departments of Yale university. That tall manly frame was conspicuous, but no more so than his mental and moral faculties.

One cannot fail to realize that crime in these days is on a frightful rampage. Of course it exists at all times, but at present it seems to be at full tide. There is evidently a reason for this. Is it too much to assume that idleness and possibly hunger that results from enforced inactivity is responsible for much of this? It is very easy for us well-fed fellows to scowl when we read of a safe cracked open here; a grocery store or a dry goods' department rifled there; or somebody waylaid and robbed on the highway. To be sure we must insist upon the protection of the public at large from these misdemeanors, but at the same time would it not be wise to investigate the underlying causes that urge men to commit such crimes. If a man robs because he is hungry and knows that his family is also there is some excuse if in this way he breaks the law. At any rate everything possible ought to be done to remove the cause.

Those who attended the meeting of the Council of Religious Education recently held in the Trinity M. E. church of this city will remember that the subject was teaching the young the fundamental principles of religion; a subject very fully and ably presented by the new secretary, J. Quinter Miller, a former teacher in Boston university. His presentation of the necessity of making secular and sacred instructions run along parallel lines was unanswerable. If the human mind has the same capacity to acquire the latter as the former it constitutes an argument that both are necessary to a well-balanced character. It raises the question why not use the Bible in the public schools, not, of course, to teach dogmatic theology, or to promote the various "isms", but to instil into the minds of the young the main principles of Christianity. Against this there can be no intelligent objection.

President Hoover has recently started a project quite outside the field of politics that is meeting with enthusiasm in all parts of the country. While he was taking a trip not long ago through the Shenandoah valley, "he came into personal contact with the neglected children of that region" that was settled by good old Anglo-Saxon stock more than a century ago. Although this region is within a few hours drive of the national capitol, the people of this region are living in all the primitive conditions of pioneer days. The president was particularly impressed with the unhealthy and unsanitary conditions with which these children were surrounded. He felt that they had a claim upon society to live under the conditions of our 20th century civilization. Doctors and scientists have heartily endorsed the president's call for action and he doubtless will have the hearty cooperation of the government in the matter.

The above subject came to a head when a meeting was called in Washington recently, known as the white house conference on child welfare and protection. In this work he has the able assistance of Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, who by profession is a doctor. Another is Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau. The ideal before the conference is that there shall be no child in America who is not born under proper conditions; that does not live in hygienic surroundings; that ever suffers undernourishment; that does not have prompt and efficient medical attention and inspection; that does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and good health; that has not the complete birthright of a sound mind in a sound body; that has not the encouragement to express in fullest measure the spirit within which belongs to every child of God.

Stiles T. Stanton of The Bulletin—Politician, Humorist, Gentleman

In the course of a reminiscential article appearing last Sunday in the Hartford Courant, Dr. William Lyon Phelps, Lampson professor of English literature at Yale, has this to say regarding a prominent figure in the Norwich of the Norwich of the 1870's:

"One of the most distinguished members of the state house of representatives, and the best-dressed man in the legislature, was Stiles T. Stanton of Stonington, whose name forms an alliterative phrase that runs trippingly on the tongue, and which I could not forget even if I would. I was appointed a member of a committee to secure three judges for the high school prize declamation exercises; and I decided that I would ask Mr. Stanton, though I was in awe of his distinguished presence and of the aristocratic elegance of his bearing.

"One day I followed him on the street, and caught up with him just as he was entering the United States hotel by the post office. I spoke his name with some trepidation, and, as he turned to see who had spoken to him, I should not have been surprised if he had treated me with contempt. Small boys, alas! become accustomed to both cruel rudeness and grinning condescension on the part of their elders.

"To my amazement, Mr. Stanton treated me as if I were an equal. He listened to my request, said it would be an honor to serve, made a note of the time and the place and thanked me for asking him. He was neither brusque nor patronizing. I went away, hoping that some day I might have the privilege of dying for him.

"I wonder if men and women understand the prodigious effect of common courtesy shown to small boys and girls. I can remember that momentary colloquy on the steps of that Hartford hotel as if it had happened yesterday. Most business men recognize today the commercial value of courtesy in their treatment of customers; but I wish all grown men and women realized that when they treat boys neither sharply nor superciliously, but with the natural respect due from one personality to another, such courtesy is never forgotten, but warms the heart of the recipient after 60 years."

Although, as Professor Phelps says, Stiles Trumbull Stanton had a distinguished public career, nevertheless his chief claim to remembrance is not in connection with politics, but with journalism. When city editor of The Norwich Bulletin in the 1870's, Mr. Stanton lightened his news-gathering routine by writing a long series of brilliant light paragraphs that gave him a nation-wide reputation as a humorist. By virtue of being the paper in which these paragraphs appeared, The Bulletin in those days attained a national circulation somewhat similar to that of the Danbury News, which at about the same time was publishing the humor of the "Danbury News Man."

Following are samples of the contributions made by Mr. Stanton to The Bulletin from May 23 to June 7, 1876. This two-week's period is selected at random:

It was evening and from a vine-covered piazza came a voice. It said, "Whose little birdie are you?" and another softly murmured, "Your little robin;" and then there followed a gentle, tender sound like that produced by lifting a rubber boot out of the mud. And on the streets outside a stern-looking, middle-aged man with no button on his shirt collar and a manuscript headed "Matrimony a Curse" in his hand, stopped and hung over a hitching post with the air of one who had accidentally swallowed a tooth.

It is said that paupers will not labor and that a farm can not be worked by them. It seems, however, as if they could be made to do a good deal if they could be persuaded that they were amusing themselves. If, for instance, the superintendent should get a couple of demijohns and a few bottles and half a pound of crackers together in a wagon, and thus lead them to think that they were going trouting, the feeblest would gladly dig up a four acre lot in a morning for worms. Thus the potato field would be prepared. The corn field might be arranged in a similar manner. There would probably be some difficulty about getting the latter hoed; we do not think that any man was ever fooled into hoeing corn under the impression that it was relaxation. Still there may have been. It does not seem however, as if it was really fair to expect us to furnish historical information of this kind while the press maintains its present defiant position on the subject of salaries.

Darwin says that animals have no religious sense, but he probably never observed the calm, reflective manner in which a chicken will stand on one leg and look up to heaven after squeezing through a hole in the fence into the strawberry bed next door.

It seems that in old times women wore an iron ring around their ankle when they were married, as a sign of bondage. After a newly married man has had his night key taken away from him, and become accustomed to being kicked out of bed at five o'clock every morning to let in the milkman, it pleases him to read an item of this kind.

A new coupon cutter which cuts both sides of a coupon at once has been invented. It will be of much value to professional men. It has always been our custom to devote Saturday nights to cutting off our coupons, but we have found that when using an ordinary pair of scissors unless we begin very early in the evening the work was apt to encroach upon the Sabbath. The mere saving of labor makes this instrument of untold value.

"Woman," said the fat man on the cracker barrel reflectively, "Woman is like a boil. When another man has her we laugh at him; when we have her ourself we cherish and protect her." He seemed to be a man of pure and loftly sentiment, and when he said he guessed he'd go home and give his wife a chance to do the chores, everybody respected him.

A west side man who saw a load of coal left at a house and arranged to go over and borrow a part of it after the other man was in bed, got around that night and found that it had all been put into the cellar and carefully locked up before nightfall. He remarked the next day that it was shocking to think how little trustfulness people seemed to have in human nature.

Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography, edited by James Grant Wilson and John Fiske, summarizes Mr. Stanton's career as follows:

Stanton, Stiles Trumbull, journalist, born in Stonington, Conn., 16 Dec., 1845; died in New York city, 2 Feb., 1882. He was educated at Gen. William H. Russell's collegiate and commercial institute, New Haven, Conn. In 1875-'8 he was appointed aide on the brigade staff of the national guard. During the canvass of 1880 he served as secretary of the republican state central committee, and was an alternate delegate to the republican national convention at Chicago in that year. He was executive secretary of state in Connecticut in 1879-'80, and was a member of the house of representatives in 1881-'2, and served in the state senate in 1884-'6, being president pro tempore in 1885-'6. He was defeated for secretary of state on the republican ticket in 1882, and in that year declined the post of secretary of legation in Paris. Early in life he devoted himself to journalism, and became connected with the Norwich, Conn., "Bulletin" and the Worcester, Mass., "Press," chieving a reputation as a humorist.

In 1884 Mr. Stanton married Lucy B. Babcock.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bowser Interferes

With danger present it is clear
'Tis friendship's right to interfere.
—Bowser the Hound.

Flip the Terrier was so excited that it seemed to Bowser the Hound as if Flip would turn himself inside out. You see, Flip was having a new experience. He had found over in the Green Forest a queer fellow. Anyway, it was a queer fellow to Flip. Bowser the Hound saw nothing queer. He merely saw an old acquaintance. You see, that queer fellow really was Prickly Porky the Porcupine.

However, Flip had never seen him before and hadn't even heard of him. He never had seen any one at all like Prickly Porky. You see, there is no one else who is at all like Prickly Porky. Just now Prickly Porky had his head under a log. The thousand little spears, which you know are called quills, were standing out in all directions. Flip thought these quills were simply stiff hairs. He thought them very funny hairs, but hairs just the same. Flip also thought that because Prickly Porky had his head under a log, he thought himself hidden.

Now, Flip was getting braver and braver. He could see no reason why he shouldn't jump right on the back of Prickly Porky and seize him by the back of his neck. Flip is a very courageous little dog. With Bowser looking on he wanted to show how very brave he was. He wanted to show that he wasn't afraid, even if Prickly Porky was such a big fellow. He ran back and forth from side to side, barking at Prickly Porky, but keeping a short distance from him. As Prickly Porky did not move, Flip gradually drew nearer. His courage was growing every instant. Bowser stood watching him. Flip didn't notice how closely Bowser was watching him.

At last Flip made up his mind to attack Prickly Porky. His bark changed to a snarl and he started a rush at Prickly Porky. Something happened! Something hit Flip so hard that it knocked him right over on his back at some little distance away. It was so unexpected that it frightened Flip more than it hurt him and he yelped right out. That something that had hit him was Bowser the Hound. When Flip discovered this, he lost his temper completely. "What do you mean by that?" he snarled.

"I mean," replied Bowser good-naturedly, "that you are to leave that fellow alone."

"Why?" demanded Flip. "Is he a friend of yours?"

"No," replied Bowser, "he's no friend of mine. I should say not!"

"Then what do you want to interfere for? Are you afraid of him!" demanded Flip.

"Yes," replied Bowser quite frankly. "Yes, I'm afraid of him. Would you attack Jimmy Skunk if you should meet him?"

Flip remembered the experience he had had with Jimmy Skunk. "No," he replied promptly. "When I meet Jimmy Skunk I give him the path."

"Well," replied Bowser dryly, "when you meet this fellow you'd better do the same thing. This is Prickly Porky the Porcupine. I think I would rather tackle Jimmy Skunk than Prickly Porky."

Flip's eyes opened very wide. In his surprise he quite forgot that he was angry with Bowser for interfering. "Why," said he, "I don't see anything to be afraid of in that fellow. He is the slowest moving, stupidest looking fellow I ever saw."

"Sometimes it isn't wise to judge others by their looks," replied Bowser. "You leave Prickly Porky alone, or you will be the sorriest dog that ever visited the Green Forest."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 21—Who began this business of making the front of No. 1600 Pennsylvania avenue a national forum of soap-box oratory?

Looking back over old news records you find that every resident of that historic white structure since and including Woodrow Wilson has had his troubles with paraders, demonstrators or pickets at one time or another.

And all the presidents, from Wilson to Hoover, took the same view of it. If there was no disorder, the police were to be mere spectators and avoid strong arm methods.

And it was the women who started it all, back in the days of the hectic campaign for suffrage.

Their cohorts besieged the white house for years. They carried banners of beautiful coloring and were draped with sashes of aesthetic hue.

On the eve of Mr. Wilson's second inauguration, they maintained for six weeks a cordon of "silent pickets" at his gates where the presidential eye could not fail to note 'em as the chief executive passed in or out on business or pleasure.

Noble Scorn

Once, during a bitter cold spell, Mr. Wilson sent out to ask the lady pickets to come in and get warm. They refused, with noble scorn of displaying weakness, and shivered the hours away on their beats.

There were troubles with the police at times. Some of the lady pickets or paraders got into jail over it now and then, to be hailed as heroines by their fellows.

And what it all grew out of, if the Bystander's memory serves, was the suggestion of a Washington newspaper veteran, doing publicity for the ladies. Any show staged about the white house was certain of front page news treatment over the country, he said. He agreed with the man who styled the executive mansion the "biggest publicity sounding board in the country," and proved his case.

The suffrage affair was a particularly difficult one for the police. At times it was necessary to arrest paraders in order to protect them from rollicking rough treatment by onlookers. And what outcry would have been made if a resort to night sticks or tear gas was had?

Somewhat the same situation developed in the "red" unemployment show staged at President Hoover's doors on March 6.

Press colleagues who saw it all say that orators who sought to mount the low stone wall which supports the iron fence about the white house, first climbed with spectators already perched there.

Wallops

Wallops from flying fists repelled oratorical invaders time and again. Not until one made good his footing and began to talk did the police join in.

Onlookers began to converge threateningly on the speaker, so the cops pulled down and popped a tear gas spurt to prevent a possible anti-red riot. That seems to be the cold fact about it.

YOUR HEALTH

Neglected Cold May Lead to Disaster
By Henry Albert, M. D., Des Moines, Iowa.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

One in every four cases of pneumonia dies. The changeable weather which is now with us is very conducive to colds. The common cold is often followed by pneumonia. Although sudden chilling of the body does not of itself cause a "cold," it is advisable to avoid sudden changes of temperature. To this end the temperature of houses and offices should be kept at not over 70 degrees F. and when the outside temperature is low extra clothing should be worn outdoors. Care should be taken to avoid people who are coughing or sneezing. Children who have colds should be kept at home. The act of coughing or sneezing throws a spray from the mouth or nose for several feet. Air currents may carry the particles which often contain disease germs as far as twelve feet. Many persons, especially at this season of the year, are carriers of the pneumonia germ even though they themselves are not ill.

A common cold is not a trivial affair. A person with a cold should go to bed at the first symptoms and remain quiet and warm for two or three days. This is also a prevention against such other diseases as bronchitis, influenza and pneumonia, and incidentally is a protection to your friends.

To avoid colds and lessen the liability of pneumonia observe the following suggestions:

1. Avoid persons who have coughs or colds and are sneezing.
2. Avoid use of glasses and dishes which are not properly washed.
3. Avoid visits to persons ill with colds, influenza or pneumonia.
4. Wash your hands before eating and after caring for the sick.
5. Dress warmly and avoid unnecessary exposure.
6. Do not use towels or handkerchiefs used by others.
7. Avoid starvation diet but do not over-eat.
8. Sleep with the window in your room open but be warm.
9. Keep the temperature of the house and office at not over 70 degrees.
10. Cover mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing.

"On Not Taking One's Self Too Seriously"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "What doest thou here, Elijah" (I. Kings 19:13)?

Read: I. Kings 19:9-18.

MEDITATION: Elijah was taking himself too seriously. In an hour of discouragement he had crept into the cave on the side of Mount Horeb. He was tired and blue and fearful. His nerves had given way and his sense of proportion had vanished. He seemed to feel that the entire burden of sustaining the cause of Jehovah was resting on his shoulders. But God told him otherwise. There were seven thousand that had not bowed the knee to Baal. There was not reason for Elijah to despair. The cause of the true God would go on whatever happened to the prophet. No one is equipped for the strain of serious work in this world unless he has the ability at times to laugh at himself. God lays upon no man the task of saving or of reforming the world. He only asks each to do his part. When one thinks himself indispensable, he loses his poise and judgment.

PRAYER: Out of the depths may we hear Thy voice, as a father, calling us to arise. With cords of love and hope and faith draw us out of all our weaknesses and despair, and establish our steps in the paths of strength and conquest, for our life's sake. Amen.

ANCIENT CANALS FOUND BY FLIERS IN ARIZONA

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Smithsonian institution archaeologists have discovered an ancient canal system near here by aerial photography.

The lost system is said by Dr. Neil M. Judd, head of the expedition, to rival modern diversion methods. A forgotten race of Indians is credited with building the old canals.

THE GARDEN

By REX REES

Gladiolus

In my last letter I spoke in closing of the color of gladiolus, naming choice varieties in white, lavender, salmon pink, and light pink. I wish to call your attention to pure pink. Nothing in the whole realm of the pink world exceeds Longfellow or Giant Nymph. Edith Mason is good. Rose pink offers nothing better than 1910 Rose, or E. J. Shalor. Of the two I prefer 1910 Rose. Mary Jane is good and so is Rose Glory. The Glories are all fine whether rose or white, lavender or purple.

Of all the rose gladiolus grown, American Beauty is the most appealing because of its great size and habit of opening all at once, its lasting qualities when cut and the very slight perfume it exhales. Mr. Diener never developed a finer flower. Dr. Nelson Shook is a very fine one. Many fanciers regard this as the very finest rose in existence and are willing to pay the price it commands. You will make no mistake if you include a few Crinkles. The spikes are small and the florets well ruffled. Of the purple varieties nothing exceeds Purple Glory. Its one great fault is to spot badly in rainy weather. You can avoid this by cutting the spikes as soon as the color of the flowers shows. The best low cost, and one that has been a favorite for years, is Anna Eberius. You could complete your list of purples by adding Paul Pfitzer and Troubadour.

For cream or buff grow Fern Kyle, Sulphur Frills, Kunderdii Glory, and Helen Howard. Sulphur Frills has done remarkably well in my garden lasting a long time in the garden and when cut. It is one of the newer prims. In yellow, Golden Measure is preferred by many as the best of its color, but it is heavy and stiff and has a tendency to grow crooked spikes unless well tied as the spike shoots up. For the last two years I have grown Goldilocks and have liked it better than any of the yellows I have grown or seen. Golden Dream is a wonderful flower, but the price is still high. If you are looking for a good orange buy Jack London. The price is right and the flower will be right. Among the oranges of higher price are three very fine ones, Betty Nuthall, LaPalome and the Gay Hussar. If I were going to plant a bed of scarlet gladiolus, Dr. Bennett would fill every inch of it, because there is no other scarlet that compares with it. Many however prefer Scarlet Princeps, and it is indeed a great gladiolus of a great substance and lasting qualities when cut. Pfitzer's Triumph is a great scarlet and a very graceful flower any where.

As to reds, it is doubtful if a real red exists, but of all the reds I have grown Crimson Glow suits me best. The price is reasonable and the flowers are perfect. Of the newer varieties Kunderd's Luster, Pythia, Uhland Chief, Star of the Sea.

Of the dark reds, there is only one I can recommend; Rajah, and that sometimes fails to measure up to the standard of excellence set for great gladiolus. It is rather hard to keep and sometimes when almost ready to flower succumbs to disease, but when it comes through it is simply superb.

As to violet, that illusive color in gladiolus which every great hybridizer hopes to produce by special matings or by chance, Muriel is the best low-priced one of all the violets or blue. I speak of low price. I prefer the old standby, Baron Hulot for mass growing. It calls out admiration from every novice and is beautiful and lasting in the house. It is not surpassed in color by any of the new varieties. When Geraldine Farrar was first introduced, I fell for it regardless of the price, and was greatly disappointed because it did not measure up to my expectations. But nearly all of us are wont to expect great things of the unknown. For years it had a place of honor in the garden, but it will receive only such care as a good gladiolus should and no more. Madam Konynberg is good but easily succumbs to disease. The spikes of Veilchenblau are too short to suit most fanciers. Heavenly Blue has made a great stir but the price has restricted its sale and only this season has it been placed on sale at a price within the reach of many. As for myself it is too pale and its appeal lost because the cheap Muriel is the better flower. Another pale blue very large and of fine keeping qualities is Blue Triumphator.

You will want to grow the Primulinus Grandiflorus, Los Angeles, Alice Tiplady, and Golden Frills. Too, there are many varieties I have not mentioned. If you would have a real garden, let me give a list of cheap and beautiful varieties. If I were buying bulbs of any kind I would buy them of a dealer known for his fairness. To buy bulbs promiscuously, bulbs of unnamed varieties and without treatment to prevent disease is like throwing your money away. Besides you can buy much cheaper of the regular dealer. Here is the list I would recommend if you are buying for the first time: Wilbrink, Mrs. Dr. Norton, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Byron L. Smith, Schwaben, Anna Eberius, Scarlet Princeps, Carmen Sylvia, Mrs. Leon Douglas, Purple Glory, Baron Hulot and Dr. Bennett. This list could be greatly extended.

Some growers separate the bulbs some time a foot or more. My rule is to plant as close as I can in double rows. Leave space enough between the double rows to walk comfortably between them. About two feet is ample. Cultivate often and if you have water, wet them down thoroughly when dry. They will absorb a lot of water.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Supreme Purpose of Life

The supreme purpose of life is not acquisition of knowledge or power, but ever living in the will of the Heavenly Father, in perfect confidence and harmony with the divine will. Then, what ever our condition or surroundings, safety here and heaven hereafter, with untold bliss assured. Life can not but be a triumph and success that is lived wholly for the master.

God is infinitely worthy of our supremest confidence and love. We may trust Him with unhesitating faith, under all circumstances, giving Him our deepest affection.

Life is a battle field. The conflict is inevitable, we must conquer if we are crowned, hence the apostle says, "Fight the good fight of faith," and thus, "Lay hold on eternal life." In the development of personal experience, God seeks the pure gold of tested character, the dross of self and sin must be removed. God says, "I will refine thee as silver is refined, I will try thee as gold is tried." We must ever remember that God goes with us, sustains and strengthens us, so some day we shall see, in our earth life here a kind Father's hand was leading us in ways that was best even though we could not see it at the time. And what seemed hard at the time will later shine as a blessing. Our loving Father saw the end from the beginning, as we could not, and guided our steps in infinite wisdom.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Britain to Surrender Chinese Gibraltar.

In a preliminary agreement Great Britain announces her intention to restore Weihaiwei to China, and the matter will soon be presented to parliament.

"Weihaiwei is Britain's Gibraltar of North China," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Like Gibraltar its strategic importance is great; its trade importance zero.

"Its position on the tip end of Shantung peninsula makes Weihaiwei a sentry box to the Gulf of Chihli which is the Mediterranean of North China. Across the narrow strait from Weihaiwei is Dairen where the Japanese have built a populous important city out of Russia's Port Arthur.

"All the trade of North China passes through this sea gate guarded by Weihaiwei and Dairen. Tientsin, port for Peiping (Peking) and the largest city within the Gulf of Chihli, enjoys a heavy maritime trade.

"It is really a patch of pongee land which Great Britain proposes to return to China. To most persons, no doubt, silk means a fiber spun by domesticated silk worms fed on mulberry leaves. But the silk industry is different in Weihaiwei neighborhood and other parts of Shantung. The pongee—by which name their silk is known—unbleached and in its natural color, is the product not of domestic but of 'wild' silk worms. And they do not eat mulberry leaves, but browse, so to speak, on the leaves of the scrub oak trees of the Shantung hills. Their cocoons are gathered in large quantities and so the otherwise waste hill lands are made to yield a relatively rich harvest.

"The years 1897 and 1898 saw the high watermark of territorial acquisition in China by foreign powers, and Great Britain felt impelled to take a part in the procedure, she has explained, by way of self-protection.

"Germany started the scramble in November 1897, by seizing the ill-fated Kiaochow bay (from which she was driven by Japan during the World war), and by forcing China to grant a 99-year lease on the surrounding territory. Almost immediately Russia forced from China a 25-year lease on Port Arthur, at the southern tip of Manchuria. Following this Great Britain negotiated for control of Weihaiwei, exactly midway between the German and Russian ports. She made her reasons for the move plain by setting out in the agreement that the lease was to run for 25 years or 'so long as Russia occupies Port Arthur.' The lease was therefore nominally for 25 years.

"Just as the Bay of Weihaiwei is valuable in strategic position, so it is valuable physically, for its harbor is deep and sheltered. But in the sphere of geography that lies outside naval considerations the place is of small account. Germany's and Japan's Tsingtao on Kiaochow bay has a rich hinterland behind it and has become rather a prosperous port. But the low sandy coast lands and rolling hills about Weihaiwei are not known to contain minerals, and they fall short of constituting a Garden of Eden agriculturally. The region's two bids for trade are peanuts, of which considerable quantities are produced in the valleys—and pongee silk.

"In returning the Weihaiwei leasehold to China, Great Britain will turn back a better region than she received. New plants and animals have been introduced, considerable denuded areas have been reforested, and good roads have been built. Weihaiwei has a favorable climate and during the 32 years of British occupancy has been used to a certain extent as a summer resort by Europeans from Hong Kong and the southern treaty ports."

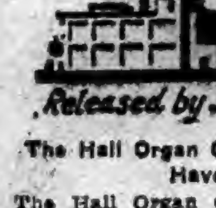
A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY



Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

The Hall Organ Company, West Haven

The Hall Organ company of West Haven, Connecticut, during the more than 3 years of its history, has become internationally known as builders of pipe organs. The company originated in 1897 when Harry Hall and Frederick Campkin formed a partnership to engage in the reconstruction, rebuilding, and general repair of pipe organs. Their small factory was located on Water street, New Haven.

George A. North, president and treasurer of the company, has administered its affairs for more than three decades. He became associated with the partnership as business manager in 1898, when the construction of new organs began. The first contract was for an organ for the Congregational church at West Medway, Mass.

In 1912, the Hall Organ company was incorporated. A new and modern factory was then built in West Haven, from Mr. North's plans. From time to time, the building has been enlarged and new equipment installed to take care of the increasing business. The structure is of three-story, mill construction, admirably suited to organ manufacturing. Its proximity to the New Haven Railroad yards facilitates handling materials, and its position half-way between New York and Boston places it within easy reach of visitors.

The business has grown during the decades, until the company now enjoys an international reputation. Organs are being furnished for every state in the Union and also the Canal Zone and the Bahama Island.

In 1916, C. B. Floyd joined the company as vice president and sales manager. In 1915, an organ was exhibited at the Panama exposition, for which the company received the gold medal award. Before the close of the exposition, this organ was purchased by a church in San Francisco, where it is still being used.

In December, 1926, Harry Hall withdrew from the company because of ill health. The officers are now: George A. North, president and treasurer; C. B. Floyd, vice president and secretary; Frederick Campkin, vice president; Edward H. North, factory manager.

HELD FIRST SERVICES IN COMMUNITY SYNAGOGUE

With its members displaying great enthusiasm the Norwich Community synagogue Friday evening celebrated its entrance into its new edifice of worship, the Community house, on Church street, by holding its regular Friday evening service there. The preacher for the service was Rabbi Lavy M. Becker of the Jewish Theological seminary of New York, who based his sermon upon the synagogue's entrance into its new building. His inspiring sermon was heard by one of the largest congregations that has ever attended a service.

About three months ago the synagogue was formed by a handful of Jewish residents, who have seen the organization grow with meteoric rapidity. The services have been held in the B'nai B'rith rooms on Shetucket street, but with the instant growth in membership the quarters became too small to provide for the large congregation. Therefore it was deemed necessary to seek larger quarters and almost immediately after the idea sprung up the Community house was purchased from the United Congregational church.

Rabbi Becker in his sermon Friday evening urged his hearers not to worship symbols as idols but to give their devotion to the idea and the ideal behind the symbol.

Unless, he continued, we bring into the new and beautiful synagogue of ours that spirit of true, meaningful worship, that spirit of real feeling for Judaism, this synagogue will be no more than dry, lifeless bits of stone and wood, yes, even we, ourselves, will be but dry lifeless forms. Thus if we take heed to make of the symbols, not idols, but merely representatives of the truths and realities for which these symbols stand, then can we expect to realize God's answer, "thus saith the Lord of Hosts my cities shall again overflow with prosperity and the Lord shall yet comfort Zion."

SHANNON BUILDING OWNERS APPEAL THEIR ASSESSMENT

Aggrieved over the assessment made on its property and which has been left unchanged by the board of relief, The Shannon Building company has filed an appeal in superior court with Clerk John Walker, in which a reduction of $50,000 is asked by the company. The appeal is returnable to the superior court the first Tuesday in April. The property in question is the Shannon building and the Shannon building annex on Main and Shetucket streets.

According to the appeal, which is the third to be filed in the superior court from the doings of the assessors and board of relief, the company complains that the assessors illegally, unfairly and unreasonably increased the valuation of the property to the amount of $307,570, and sks for a reduction of the valuation to 250,000 as returned to the board of assessors by them.

The complaint also recites that the petitioner, acting by its president, J. Henry Shannon, appealed to the board of relief and that this board failed to make any reduction in the assessment. The law firm of Shields and Shields is counsel for the company.

The other two property owners who have filed appeals in the superior court, asking for reductions in the valuation of their properties, are John D. Hall, local attorney, and Albert and Horace P. Boardman, owners of the Household on Franklin street.

A 17 room farm house, in Franklin, near the Fitchville line, was totally destroyed early Friday evening, by fire starting from a chimney. A call for help was received at central fire headquarters and was relayed to the Taftville fire department as the Yantic fire company's apparatus is out of commission. The Taftville firemen responded but were unable to save the farm house because of lack of water. By using water from nearby wells the firemen succeeded in saving two nearby barns and other buildings. The building, owned by an Italian family, was known as the old Driscoll house and was used for a hotel for vacationists during the summer months. The house and contents were burned to the ground.

READS PAPER ON JEFFERSON FOR PARK CHURCH WOMEN

The regular March meeting of the Woman's Federation of Park church was held in the parlors of the parish house at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. Mrs. William Tyler Browne, president, opened it with reading the third chapter of Colossians and repeating the Lord's prayer.

The report of the secretary, also of all committees, and the financial statement were listened to with interest, and approved.

The program for the afternoon was a charmingly interesting and informing paper by Miss Amy Cogswell, on Thomas Jefferson, drafter of the Declaration of Independence, and third president of the United States. He was of Welsh blood but a true son of Virginia, educated at William and Mary college, admitted to the bar in 1767, and enjoyed a successful practice, earning about $300 per year.

He gave 40 years service to his country, as governor of Virginia, as commissioner to England to negotiate peace, and as minister to France where he asked that a suitable residence should be provided, a request only quite recently granted, after more than 125 years.

He planned and built Monticello, an estate of 552 acres, on a small mountain 580 feet above sea level, taking 35 years in the making, overlooking Charlottsville.

Having come into serious financial embarrassment he sold it for $2,500 and later it brought $300,000, and will be preserved as a memorial to one who easily ranks among the foremost of that group of men, who, at the beginning of our national life, were instrumental in shaping the course of events and formulating our governmental system. By a coincidence, he died on July 4th, the 50th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

FRANKLIN STREET TENEMENT HAS ROOF BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire, of mysterious origin, badly damaged the roof of a three story wooden frame tenement building at Nos. 199-201 Franklin street, shortly before 10 o'clock Friday night. A Pratt street resident, on his way home, saw flames shooting from the roof of the building and turned in a bell alarm from box 225, Franklin and Willow streets, calling out the companies at the central fire station, Engine No. 5, West Main street and Engine No. 3, Joseph Perkins road.

All occupants of the tenement building escaped unhurt. In a tenement on the ground floor wer the five small children of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Auclaire. They were alone at the time, as Mrs. Auclaire had left the house less than five minutes before the fire was discovered to make a purchase at a nearby drug store. Mr. Auclaire was not at home a she is employed nights. All of the children including a small baby were helped from the house and found refuge in the store across the street, conducted by Sam Vasington. Mrs. Theodore Lotring, wife of the owner of the building, and her two children, also escaped and went to the home of a neighbor. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Houston, who occupy an apartment on the second floor, arrived home just after the fire was discovered.

The fire had a tremendous start when the box was pulled and flames were shooting 10 to 15 feet in the air when the firemen arrived. Three lines of hose were laid and the fire was fought from the south and easterly sides of the building. The blaze was under control within 15 minutes time and the recall sounded shortly afterwards.

One section of the roof was practically burned off, and the damage to the building and contents from water, smoke and fire, is estimated at $1,000.

Mr. Lotring who recently purchased the building, moved into the house a week ago Friday. He was not at home at the time as he is engaged in the tailoring business at Danielson.

The cause of the fire was not known Friday night, but it was learned that the blaze started in the attic. A large hole was burned through the roof and the fire ate its way to the floor below. It is thought that the fire had been burning several hours before it broke through the roof. A local man who drove by the house less than five minutes before the box was pulled saw no sign of fire.

DISCIPLES WERE CALLED TO BE FISHERS OF MEN

At the third in the series of Friday noon Lenten services at the local Y. M. C. A., the preacher was Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, who took for his subject, The Fisherman. Frank L. Arnold presided at the meeting, which was attended by many men, and prayer was offered by Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour," was the hymn used.

Rev. Mr. Danforth spoke in part, as follows:

"It was by the sea of Tiberias that our Lord called His disciples. Most of them were fishermen. They were not just waiting for the first of April for a chance to beat the brooks for trout. They made their living by netting the fish of the lake. All night long they fished and then sold their catch in the morning. It is still done in that way on that lake. Now a man who makes his living in that way, whether in the eastern hemisphere or in the western, finds the change to any other occupation an almost impossible wrench to every habit. He has learned one thing, different from any other calling in life. How can he change?

"See how Christ called them. It was not to stop fishing, but only to change the kind of fish they were after. Men are the biggest game after all. It takes more skill to catch them. But they are so well worth while. If they were seeking only some selfish aim they would be exploiting their kind, like the tame ducks put out to lure the wild flock down. But the aim of Christ is never selfish. It is always for the good of those He seeks. And it is so for these fishers of men. They, too, will suffer for those they seek. The fishers of men were martyrs for their Master. But they did a marvelous thing. See how they spread their faith. See the change which was wrought through their efforts in the world. We would not find the world fit to live in but by reason of their work under God.

"In the early symbols of our faith the fish is one of the signs of the Christian. Its letters in Greek are the initials of 'Jesus Christ, Son of God and Saviour.' And it is to bear a name like that in a world like this that we all are called to be fishers of men."

BOILER ROOM FIRE AT MAX GORDON BUILDING

Sparks from a backdraft are thought to have been responsible for a small blaze in the boiler room of the Max Gordon building at Washington square, early Friday evening. Prompt discovery of the fire by a passerby and quick work by the fire department prevented what might have been a serious fire. The loss was little or nothing.

At 7.39 o'clock the central fire station was notified by police headquarters that there was a fire in the building. Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan and Squad A responded. As soon as he arrived on the scene Deputy Chief Brennan called out Engine No. 5, West Main street station. An inch and a half water line squelched the blaze.

The firemen found that several boards on a coal pile near the furnace in the boiler room had caught fire, presumably from a backdraft which sent sparks shooting out of the furnace.

PLANS UNIFIED SERVICE FOR CHURCH AND SCHOOL

Rev. Charles H. Stull, Ph. D., will deliver the final in his series of "new life" messages Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. From Norwich Dr. Stull goes to the Central Baptist church in Providence of which Rev. Clarence M. Gallup, D. D., is pastor.

A great unified service for the church and Sunday school is planned for Sunday morning at the Central church. The service will begin at 10:30 o'clock, instead of the usual hour, and the school will meet at 10 o'clock as usual. At 10:30 o'clock the school will march into the church auditorium by departments. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., the pastor, will lead the service and the message will be delivered by Dr. Stull. The service will close promptly at 12 o'clock.

Christ's Call to Youth was the subject of Dr. Stull's address Friday evening. It was young peoples' night and the young people were present in good numbers. The speaker used Christ's invitation to the rich ruler as the basis of his remarks and pointed out the five verbs in which the invitation came—Go, Sell, Give, Come and Follow.

The cross draws us away from self life, toward the life and service of faith and love, said the preacher. Another principle is that of receiving by way of giving, of enrichment through impoverishment. Jacob conquered by yielding and clinging, so must all disciples; give if you would receive. The old Spanish proverb is true: "What I kept I lost; what I gave I have." The final principle lies in the truth that Christ invites men to come, not so much to doctrines or rules of living, but to a living person, one who is the light, the truth, the way. Today thousands of young people are following the great reality of faith and love and life in Christ, the speaker declared.

Two tables were in play, prizes being won by Mrs. Henry Geer, Mrs. Everett Peckham and Mrs. Harry Bjurstrom. Others present were Mrs. John Cantlin, Mrs. Carl Caswell, Mrs. Frederic H. Wyant, Mrs. Edmund Taft, with Mrs. Frank Grover a special guest, playing in the hostess' place. Mrs. Coles received from her guests a beautiful flowering agalia. From her husband she was presented a gift of money, one dollar to represent each year of her life, an annual custom of Dr. Coles. The decorations were in St. Patrick green and white. At each place during pinochle were individual dainty baskets filled with assorted nuts and candies. Later in the afternoon, Mrs. Coles, assisted by Mrs. Grover, served delicious refreshments of pineapple mousse, wafers, coffee and a large decorated birthday cake with green and white frosting.

The March meeting of Lucas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church was held Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. William Weaver. Mrs. Weaver read for the Scripture lesson part of the 23rd chapter of Proverbs. Mrs. George Manning offered prayer and Mrs. Stanton W. Brown accompanied at the organ for the hymns, Rescue the Perishing and Sweet Home of Prayer. The subject of the afternoon was Temperance. Mrs. Wellington Miner read a paper entitled My Answer. Following a brief business period when plans were discussed for the public Lenten service, Good Friday afternoon, the time was devoted to sewing on patchwork, there being two quilts in progress of completion by this society. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Maurice Edwin Gay who for two weeks has been visiting his father, Edwin C. Gay, and brother, L. Stanley Gay, of Julian terrace, left Tuesday morning to become engineer of a large power plant recently constructed just outside Asbury Park, N. J. Mr. Gay for many years with the Eastern Connecticut Power company, has for the past six months been located in a similar position at Houston, Texas. In returning to Norwich Town by motor, a distance of 2,300 miles, Mr. Gay made the trip in five days, having covered 500 miles in one day.

Willard L. Bliss of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., whose death was noted in Thursday morning's Bulletin, spent his boyhood here. Mr. Bliss who was the second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Bliss, highly esteemed residents of Washington street, was a great athlete in his younger days, being one of the original members of the old time Star baseball nine. Many years ago Will Bliss as he was called, was united in marriage with Miss Grace Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith of Norwich Town. Besides his children he is survived by a brother, Frederick Bliss, of Franklin, and a brother, Jay Harry Bliss, also a sister, Mrs. Leonard (Lottie Bliss) both of Stonington. The late Mrs. Edith Bliss LaJourne, a talented musician and singer, was also a sister. A niece, Mrs. Beckwith of Franklin and a nephew, Claude LaJourne, also survive.

A former Norwich Town resident, Miss Annie Ward of Montville, was a caller the early part of this week on Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, with whom at one time she resided for several months. Miss Ward who was a dinner guest at the home of her cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fries of Sturtevant street, was accompanied by Mrs. Fires.

The Wolf Cub pack of Scouts connected with the church will not meet Monday afternoon as the Cubmaster will be out of town. The meeting will be held Tuesday afternoon.

REUBIN LUBCHANSKY FENCE FOR STOLEN FISHERS I. METAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 21—Reubin Lubchansky, proprietor of the New England Iron & Metal company, 426 Bank street, will be arrested within a few days on a federal warrant charging him with purchasing merchandise that was stolen from the government. He is virtually in custody now for his counsel has agreed to deliver him to the authorities at any time that a demand for the presentation of Lubchansky in court is made. This is the third or fourth time that the junkman has been arrested for purchasing stolen goods. Under arrest at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island, where the government property was stolen, are Privates Benway, Personnotti and Baker.

For several weeks the army officials had detected that much brass, etc., was missing and an investigation was started in an effort to ascertain the identity of the thieves. This task was undertaken by Capt. D. R. Wolverton and Corporal James C. Conahan. The officers obtained information that March 1 Private Baker came to New London in Personnotti's automobile with 700 pounds of brass and other metal, taking the load to the junk shop where Baker was paid $40. March 11, Private Benway delivered to the junkman's agent a galvanized boiler for which the soldier was paid $1.50. March 12, Baker, Benway and Personnotti loaded 900 pounds of metal in Personnotti's car and it was driven aboard the civilian boat and brought to New London. A day or two previous to the last visit of the soldiers to the junkshop, Capt. Wolverton and Corp. Conahan had been there seeking information as to the purchase by Lubchansky of any metal from soldiers, so that when the three thieves attempted to sell the largest supply of stolen metal, Lubchansky refused to purchase it and informed the soldiers of the visit there of the army officers. Baker, Benway and Personnotti then said that they would take the metal to Norwich and endeavor to dispose of it. A check-up of the junk shops in that city was made, but no trace of it was found, and it is more than probable that the metal was purchased by Lubchansky, as subsequent investigation indicates.

With this information in their possession the army officers made complaint against Lubchansky. Last Wednesday, Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran was assigned to assist the officers and accompanied Capt. Wolverton and Corp. Conahan to the junk shop. Officer Corcoran found on a record book there that March 1, 700 pounds of metal had been purchased of three soldiers. The officer also found 18 barrels of an assortment of metal ready for shipment out of the city and emptying the contents of one of the barrels on the floor, much of the government loot was revealed, some of the brass being stamped either "U. S. Q. M. C." or "U. S. O. R. C." Capt. Wolverton and Corp. Conahan identified the brass as property of the government and a part of that missed recently at the post. Today the post plumber was sent to New London and he was accompanied by Officer Corcoran to the junk shop where the remaining 17 barrels, which had been ordered held there, were found to contain much of the stolen metal.

HOSPITAL AMBULANCE DRIVER ROBBED WHILE ASLEEP

Robert Shine, 65 Evergreen avenue, driver of the ambulance of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, made complaint to the police this morning that he had been robbed while he slept last night, for when he awoke about 3 o'clock he discovered that $23, which had been in the pocket of his trousers when he retired, was missing. Shine, who sleeps at the hospital, was positive that the money was in his clothing when he retired and decided to conduct an investigation of his own. This he did and was informed that Martin Welsh, a former employe at the hospital, who resides in Pawtucket, R. I., had endeavored to obtain change for a $20 bill from an acquaintance of the ambulance driver. One of the bills stolen from Shine was of $20 denomination and suspicion pointed to Welsh as the thief, especially as the latter was about the hospital grounds yesterday, where building work is in progress, endeavoring to obtain loans. Shine imparted this information at police headquarters and a search was made for Welsh. Three hours later Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty entered the drinking resort of "Red" Rutsko, proprietress of a North Bank street speak-easy and found Welsh there and drunk. He was arrested and when searched at police headquarters he had $16.15 in his possession. Welsh had knowledge of the conditions of the sleeping quarters of the hospital employes so that it was an easy matter for him to obtain entrance to them, provided he was not discovered in his act. Welch several months ago while intoxicated at the municipal pier, fell overboard and was rescued with difficulty. He was sent to the hospital and when he was discharged the man was given employment, to be dismissed later. He will be in the police court tomorrow.

It was discovered today that the summer home of Robert McKim, corner of Glenwood avenue and Lower Boulevard, had been entered by a thief within a day or two, but it is not known whether plunder was obtained. The discovery of the residence having been entered was made by James Butler, 205 Willetts avenue, caretaker of the house. Butler reported his discovery at police headquarters and Automobile Patrol Officer Carlos Stone found that entrance was obtained by forcing a cellar window. Once inside the house, the thief went to the upper part where he forced open drawers of dressers and closets, but whether any of the effects or furnishings were stolen it is not known. Butler has communicated with Mrs. McKim in New York.

SCHOOL OF COMMERCE SUBJECT OF CONFERENCE

The school of commerce, which is a branch of the New London school system, does not seem to have friends among the residents of this city. The city council has cut down its appropriation for the school and has virtually said that it is an unnecessary expense upon the city, in that the same work that the commerce school accomplishs might be attained at a smaller cost. The school authorities and the members of the council are to meet soon to consider plans that will harmonize conflicting ideas and bring down the cost of education in the schools of New London. The council invited the members of the school board to meet with them for this purpose and the invitation has been accepted, so that there will be a get together conference at an early date.

Miss Nellie Carver of 28 Harrison street; Mrs. Carl Helgeson, 28 Hope street; Jose Slares, U. S. lighthouse tender Amerone; Mrs. Joseph Seeley and infant son, Colchester, Leon Norine, U. S. Coast Guard, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

MRS. F. M. DUNN UNDERGOES OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Mrs. Frank M. Dunn, wife of Dr. Dunn, Broad street, was operated upon for appendicitis at Lawrence-Memorial hospital yesterday. Mrs. Dunn's condition today was reported as being comfortable and it is anticipated that she will have fully recovered her health within a week or 10 days.

Margaret Greaney has sold a building lot on Ledyard street to Adam Cronnesbury.

DEATH OF GEORGE FLYNN FROM GAS INHALATION

Flynn was a plumber and had resided in New York about 10 years. He visited with relatives here last Sunday.

STOLEN HOWARD ST. CAR DISCOVERED IN ELIZABETH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 21—Chief of Police Michael J. Mulcahey, Elizabeth, N. J., today notified the New London police that Andrew McFarren, Dallas, Texas, and Ora M. Phebus, Danville, Ill., were arrested in the former city last night charged with the theft of an automobile, which was stolen in New London 10 days ago. McFarren and the woman will be brought back to New London and tried, for already the procedure of obtaining extradition papers has been started. The automobile in which McFarren and the woman were riding when arrested is a Ford cabriolet owned by Mrs. Isabelle Murray, 75 Howard street. The auto was parked on the street and when Mrs. Murray returned for it it had been stolen. The police of New York state and departments throughout New England had been requested to be on the lookout for the stolen car.

BEEF HOUSE LOOT CARRIED OFF IN STOLEN MACHINE

The wholesale branch of the Wilson Beef company, 15 Railroad avenue, was entered last night and loot valued at $35 was stolen. The robbery was discovered this morning when the employes arrived at the branch. The police were notified of the robbery and officers discovered that the crooks gained entrance to the building by prying a lock and once inside two locks on the ice box doors were smashed. The loot taken included two turkeys, a duck and chicken, besides five pounds of butter. About 1 o'clock this morning Anthony Mugovero, 66 Jefferson avenue, reported at police headquarters that his Hudson car, carrying Connecticut registration, $892, and which had been parked in front of the beef house, had been stolen. About 10:30 this forenoon the auto was found abandoned on the Military highway but a short distance from the submarine base. It is believed that the thieves after removing their plunder from the beef house, placed it in the automobile, driving to a house where the stolen goods were left. The auto was then driven to where it was found and abandoned.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Into the starry, moon-drenched west goes America's Dancing Daughter, lovely Joan Crawford to make a picture which will bring her still greater laurels, a picture which opens for a four-days' run at the Palace theatre today, a picture that lives up in every way to the glamorous romantic possibilities of its name, "Montana Moon."

Cast with Miss Crawford in this melodious and beautiful production are John Mack Brown, Benny Rubin and numerous other famous stars of the screen. It has striking melodies, magnificent scenic background, swift exciting action, and one of the most romantic plots ever filmed. The Palace in presenting "Montana Moon" is giving the public one of the rarest of treats, a treat which is nothing less than the answer to many a longing dream.

Who has not dreamed of the vast expanses of the west, of the rude, rugged mountains, high, windy tablelands, and wide, lush valleys where the great herds graze. Who has not lived in fancy among the hard-bitten, courageous men and high-souled women who hewed their homes out in that region and carved a home for themselves in the heart of it. What songs, what jests, what magnificent stories have come out of that [illegible] and romantic land to lend glamour to our own comparatively humdrum existence!

It is this magic west of the dreams that Joan Crawford and John Mack Brown make to live again for us in song and story and picture. Here is the tale of a high-brow debutante who goes west for a vacation on her father's cattle ranch in Montana. There she meets the tall, rawboned men of the west, and falls in love with one of them. But there is a social barrier between them that seems too great to be overleaped. Then, with a surprising twist the cowboy to whom she has lost her heart, proves to her that she can be his wife and yet retain her happiness and contentment.

Not the least part of this tuneful and colorful romance is the comedy attached to it. No one who attends the picture will be able for long to resist the side-splitting tactics of that talented comedy pair, Cliff (Ukelele Ike) Edwards and Benny Rubin, the lugubrious Jewish boy. Here they are as cowboys, believe it or not, and what cowpunchers they are. Just come and see them!

Broadway Theatre.

"The fleet's in!" and how. Today at the Broadway, the whole "round-the-world" fleet steams in all its awful majesty onto the screen and unloads its thousands of land-hungry gobs—hungry for land, for some real "rest'rant cookin'," and for a sight of their home-port sweeties. Made with the fullest cooperation of the U. S. navy department, "Hit the Deck" brings to the screen for the first time a real, authentic picture of real sailors—hundreds of 'em—in their gay antics on their first shore leave in months. Jack Oakie heads the list of merrymakers with his wise-cracks, nimble feet and engaging smile. And his "sweetie," little Polly Walker is there to greet him—and keep him against all-comers. Riotous comedy, sailor fashion and shipshape, hot peppy songs and dance numbers galore, hundreds of joyous gobs and their hundreds of "steppin' sweeties," tell a fast moving and actionful story against the background of the old battle-wagon West Virginia's fourteen-inch guns, and in the gay coffee-shop of Loloo, the sweetheart of the fleet. All the songs of the orginial stage production which swamped New York with its magnitude, together with some special numbers written for the screen version, will set your feet a-tingle, and the uproarious comedy will tickle your ribs as never before. Oakie has the chance of his lifetime as "Bilge" Smith, the fun-loving gob, and he has able support with a cast of over 1,000. A feature of the film is the famous "Hallelujah" number with three-score colored sheiks and Shebas in the "bluest of the blues." Gorgeous technicolor scenes add greatly to the beauty of the production. On the same program is Lionel Barrymore's sensational dramatic sketch "The Confession," a thrilling incident of the World war, and the "Revellers," the famous National Broadcasting team of vocalists in a snappy series of songs, and the latest Paramount Sound news. A feature of the engagement of "Hit the Deck" is the long awaited appearance of the Norwich Academy band, resplendent in their new uniforms, who will appear on the stage Tuesday evening. As every ticket sold helps the band funds, it is expected that Norwich will turn out in force to welcome the Academy boys. The manager has planned a surprise finale for the boys' concert which it is expected will raise the roof. As announced in the advertising columns of the Bulletin-Record, the Broadway management has reduced the admission for children evenings.

Feature Moving Picture at Y.M.C.A.

Based on the novel by William Dudley Pelley, and directed by Frank Floyd, the six reel feature motion picture titled "Drag" will be shown on the coming Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. The principle characters are Richard Barthelmess, Lila Lee and Alice Day.

This is an interesting story of a young newspaperman who locates in a small town and in due time marries, but through the unreasonable interference of his wife's relatives trouble arises in the home, and conditions become unbearable, until the only relief for the young man is to break away from the continued unpleasantneses. Before marriage the bride made herself attractive, and exhibited only her charming side. After marriage she became careless and indifferent; she developed irritability and a lack of sympathy with her husband's ambitions. Little by little the foundation of love was corroded and disappointment and disaster followed. This picture story is an apt illustration of how the lack of team work and cooperation can absolutely break the home harmony, and suggests how the opposite attitude would develop and maintain a home life that would be a continual source of happiness for all concerned.

To this picture service, the adult public is cordially invited; and youths 16 and over will be admitted. Young children are not expected. A free will offering will be taken.

Airplane speed can be doubled, believes Louis Bleriot, first to fly the English channel 20 years ago.

WESTERLY

FIRE NEAR HOSPITAL CAUSES EXCITEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 21—About 10:30 a. m. Friday, two fire alarms were turned in for a brush and grass fire which started from burning rubbish at the rear of the Westerly hospital, off Wells street. An improvised incinerator of iron mesh used in screening stone was used and sparks from this, when left unguarded, set fire to the dry grass. The high wind quickly fanned the blaze into flame which swept through the lots toward Franklin street and East avenue but was stopped before crossing Juniper lane. From a new fire box, No. 531, near the hospital, the alarm was sounded by Miss Helen M. Blaisdel, hospital superintendent.

Fire Chief George E. Egger, with the Seagraves motor pumper, took a first position at the rear of the Nurses' home. Later the truck was moved to Franklin street and East avenue Chief Egger telephoned a second alarm from the home of Michael Brown when he thought that a number of homes were in the path of the advancing blaze and another pumper and more men would be needed to fight the fire. Before the arrival of the firemen Miss Blaisdel, assisted by all the available help from the hospital and the increasing number of volunteers, succeeded in putting out many small fires before their size became too great to combat. The many hundred occupants of arriving autos stopped the fire before it crossed the driftway leading from Juniper lane off Beach street to Franklin street. Recall was sounded at 10:50 a. m. Plans are now being made for a cement incinerator at the hospital.

The Westerly fire department was again called out Friday at about 5:30 p. m. for an alarm sent to the fire station for which the out of the Westerly Fire district, No. 33, was sounded. Headed by Chief Egger the firemen speeded up Oak street to fight a brush and grass fire which had started in the grounds to the north of the New Haven railroad, formerly known as the old Sweeney Granite works. This blaze was fought by setting head fires. The recall was sounded at 6 p. m.

CONSTIPATION IS A HEALTH THIEF

Drive It from Your System with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Constipation steals the best out of your life. Robs you of strength, vitality, health itself! And many people do not realize that perpetual fatigue, coated tongues, bad breath, are often signs that constipation is in their system.

You must move poisonous wastes out of your system and keep them moving. But there's a right way and a wrong way. Pills, drugs and ordinary cathartics give but temporary relief—and their dose must be constantly increased to be effective.

The great natural cleanser is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. A tasty cereal, which brings you iron for blood building—and, above all, corrects constipation. The abundant roughage in ALL-BRAN gently and naturally sweeps out poisonous wastes and impurities.

Physicians recommend ALL-BRAN. It's guaranteed. Two tablespoonfuls daily. Recurring cases—with every meal. Remember that Kellogg's is the original ALL-BRAN—the product that millions have proved effective.

You'll like the nut-like flavor of ALL-BRAN. Eat it in many ways. Delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Make muffins with it. At all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GIRL PINOCHLE CHAMP IS FILLING HER HOPE CHEST

Miss Josephine Shandor loves to play pinochle and would walk miles to sit into a game. She knows the cards from the nine spot clean up to the ace and can tell by the wrinkle of your eye how many trumps you hold. In her room she has a hope chest loaded with many prizes taken at different pinochle matches and will laugh out loud if she gets even a low prize. She can sit for hours and play that game. Her friends have nicknamed her "Pinochle Jo."

One time she attended the I Be Club meeting and pinochle was on for the evening. Five tables were in play. Pinochle Jo was playing with George Patterson against Rose Thorsen and Stretch Moran. A big smile came over her face. Stretch knew something was good, for he held about 6 nine-spots and a few Jacks thrown in for good luck. She rubbed off her glasses, to be sure she was not seeing things. It came to her bid and the jolly player said "1000." Whistling Patterson said, "Gee! that is some bid!" Again Pinochle Jo looked the cards over and almost fainted. Never in her life did she hold such a hand! Rosie, the girl across the table said, "Well, what is trumps?" It was hearts and the lady had 1000 aces, also 80 kings, the first time in the history of the Indian town that any one ever held 1000 aces. The rest of the members of the club were astonished to think of such a hand. Pinochle Jo and her side-kick made 2700 on that hand. Stretch wanted a new deal, because he had six 9-spots. That drew a laugh from the crowd. Gee! she held everything during the evening of fun! Anywhere from a king up to a Woolworth building. The jolly lady took home another prize, a hand-painted picture of Rogers' building on Main street, 43 years ago, painted by the steady hand of John Ashby. The members cheered her for several minutes and nicknamed her "The 1000 Aces Kid of Pearl Street." She is the champion player of the I Be club. Mrs. Lois Shandor said she will play her for the championship at the next meeting of the club. "Beware, Pinochle Jo," she said. "You are about to hustle and your 1000 aces won't be worth anything when the cards roll into me!"

A large crowd will turn out to see the championship match.

After the pinochle matches were over Steward Elsie Porter had a Traven avenue clam chowder, all done to put on the table and the radio was turned on. That chowder sure was good, and Peter Shandor said, "Gee, Miss Porter! You can make a fine corn chowder—but where are the beans?" Steward Porter's face was red as an apple, So Peter said, "Excuse me! I was only fooling? Wanted to pull a 1930-joke to give the members a good laugh."

A strawberry shortcake was put on the table, berries large as golf balls, like the kind raised by Austin Lamb in Ledyard. The steady left hand of Mickey MacGrath cut it into slices that sure were good. Many giving up coffee in Lent, the brown tea-pot was loaded and Down East tea was the drink.

A short program was then put on. Stretch Moran dressed like a poor man carrying a red lantern and a saxophone played and sang "I Am on My Way to the Poor House, if the Country Don't Find Us Men Work." He was called back several times. Miss Elsie Porter, the club steward showed how to play the piano and whistled at the same time. A one-act play was put on, "The Tin Soldier of Mouse Island." Pirate Pat Jackson was George Patterson, known as the Tin Soldier, Capt. Jerry Downs was Peter Shandor, Miss Bertha Deane was Jo Shandor, sweetheart of the Tin Soldier, who saved him from being shot to death, for falling asleep, guarding a squad of army mules. The courthouse was crowded as his sweetie said, "That was not the soldier that fell asleep with the mules!"

The judge, John Samson (John Bentley) said, "Lady, hold your temper and let your guide be your overshoes! He was not sleeping with the mules but fell asleep guarding them!" The courthouse was in an uproar over the funny remarks. The curtain went down for the evening on the play when the judge set the tin soldier free as his sweetheart went into a huddle, afraid he was going to get shot. The members clapped for several minutes to call them back and were laughing so the tears were rolling on the floor until rubbers had to be put on. It was around 2:30 a. m. as the I Be club party broke up, after an evening of fun and the next meeting will be a pinochle match between Mrs. Lois Shandor and Miss Jo Shandor. So leave your husband's socks with the holes in them until the pinochle match is over.

WINNING REAL FRIENDS BY GIVING REAL SATISFACTION

There can be little doubt of the warm friendship that Oldsmobile and Viking owners accord their cars. For Oldsmobile and Viking owners are quick to express their satisfaction . . . always ready and eager to recommend Oldsmobile and Viking to their friends and neighbors.

Assuredly it takes more than mere close acquaintance with a motor car to build such loyalty. And both Oldsmobile and Viking have that "something more" in a measure above the ordinary.

Brilliant performance—at high speeds or hard pulling—in every phase of motoring. Restful riding comfort and ease of control over every type of road. Continued economy that becomes more apparent as time goes on. Thoroughgoing dependability over the months and the miles.

These are the things that create friendship for Oldsmobile and Viking. These, plus the vitally important factor of honest value.

If you wish to learn more about the qualities of either of these two fine cars, inquire among your friends who drive them. Then come and see Oldsmobile and Viking yourself. Drive them and know what they can do. Prove to your personal satisfaction that each is a great car—a real value—at its price.

ATHLETICS FAVORED TO REPEAT BUT NOT WITHOUT HARD STRUGGLE

ATLANTA, March 21.—(AP)—Nothing has come to pass in the spring training camps of American league baseball clubs to justify unbounded enthusiasm over the chances of any one of the other seven clubs to dethrone the Athletics of Philadelphia, but ample reason exists for suggestions that the race will be close.

Conspicuous improvement has been made in the array of talent sponsored by the Detroit Tigers and Chicago White Sox, two clubs which were going nowhere throughout the last American league test.

Detroit, a powerful offensive aggregation, has added defensive strength and may have uncovered two or three pitchers who can take their turn with the club's more experienced moundsmen.

The White Sox, a discouraged, woebegone outfit last year, under the driving inspiration of wee Donie Bush have taken on new life and may be very hard to beat.

By popular consent the Yankees have been elected to make the fight against the champion A's and if the freshman manager, Bob Shawkey, gets good pitching they may do it.

Connie Mack is prepared for some pitfalls along the path. The Athletics won 17 games from Washington last year and the veteran manager says quite frankly that it is not in the cards to have this bit of baseball history repeat itself. The tall tactician expects and is prepared for war.

The Athletics naturally will stand pat on the outfit good enough to win in a walk last year. Big Roy Mahaffey may add considerable pitching strength and some bright youngsters will increase the population of the bench.

Revamped in large part from last year, the Yankees will take the field with two recruits, Ben Chapman and Allan Cooke, filling the important third base and left field posts and with Mark Koenig restored to good standing as the shortstop. In company with several other clubs in the leagues the Yankees are wondering if they will get the pitching and time only can tell.

Cleveland may start with a somewhat wobbly infield and the chances are even that Lew Fonseca, leading hitter of the American league, will have to stand aside for a youngster for at least a few days of the season. Fonseca is convalescing from an attack of scarlet fever. The Indians, however, will be as strong as last year in other departments.

St. Louis has a new manager but practically the same team Dan Howley led has been left for Bill Killefer to direct. The Browns have capable pitchers, at least one good catcher, and a strong infield, reinforced by Sam Hale from the Athletics. The club could use another hard-hitting outfielder with profit and the pitchers would welcome arrangements to score more runs.

Washington will go along with the material it had last year if Goose Goslin finally comes into the fold. Goslin, who had his worst year in 1929, carries the punch of the team and if he is not eventually satisfied the attack will be greatly weakened. Manager Walter Johnson expects a distinct improvement in his pitching staff.

Detroit, carrying a wallop in each hand, should be a factor in the race if the pitchers do their part to make the hard hitting effective. Last year the Tigers led the league in hitting but finished sixth, faulty fielding and weak pitching offsetting the terrific batting. Bill Rogell, former Red Sox, may solve the shortstop problem, a vexing situation throughout last season. Elon Hogsett, a big Indian from the International league, whose delivery is that of a left-handed Ehmke, seems certain to help bear the pitching burden.

The improvement in the Chicago White Sox is largely shown in the better spirits of the players although the infield has been noticeably strengthened by moving Bill Cissell from shortstop to second base. Ernie Smith and Irving Jeffries provide capable replacements for the vacant short field place. Big Smead Jolly's bat will add power in the drive for hits and runs.

A bright spot in the American league sky is the prospective improvement in the play of the Boston Red Sox, long a hopeless tail-ender. The Red Sox may not escape the cellar this year, probably they will, but they can not be conceded the position in the perfunctory way they have been shunted to the bottom in previous advance calculations. Not in years have the red-hosed players worked so hard to prepare themselves for a strenuous campaign and the athletes believe their efforts will show results later.

MEHLHORN TAKES LEAD IN LA GORCE OPEN

CAPTAINS OF GIRLS' TEAM AT CONNECTICUT SELECTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., March 21. — Miss Esther L. Northrup, '31, and Miss Addie L. Hansen, '31, both of New Milford, have been selected by their team mates as co-captains of the 1930-31 Connecticut Aggie varsity girls' basketball team. Only those who had made letters participated in the election of the sextette leaders. The co-captains have been prominent in co-ed athletics and other extra-curricula activities during the past three years.

Miss Northrup is secretary of the Woman's Athletic association, and is also a member of the Athletic council. She is one of the first two women ever elected to the Student senate, and was the co-ed member of the last Dad's Day committee. She has been a member of the girls' varsity basketball team for the past three years.

Miss Hansen has also played varsity basketball since her freshman year, and has also participated in class hockey, baseball and bowling. She is a member of the Junior Dramatics society.

EIGHT HOMERS MADE IN PHILLIES-ROBINS GAME

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—With home runs ringing off the bats almost as frequently as singles, the Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Philadelphia Nationals, 13 to 9, today.

Eight home runs, five by the Phillies, turned the contest into a hitting orgy. Friberg, O'Doul, Klein, Hurst and Sigman contributed the Phillies' circuit drives, three coming in the third inning, while Lee, Gilbert and Bressler did likewise for the Dodgers. Score:

Philadelphia	104 101 002—	9 13 2
Brooklyn	720 300 00x—	13 13 1

Light Work For Braves

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—The Boston Braves had another open date here today, and, following a short practice session, watched the Yankees and Cardinals go through their exhibition clash.

ACADEMY HAS ESTABLISHED FINE RECORD IN FOUR YEARS OF BASEBALL

High school wonder teams have been the talk of hill and dale for many years now but have any of them been any more wonderful than our Academy baseball representatives of the past four years? Winning the state title twice, the league championship four years and altogether taking 69 and dropping nine is all they've done.

High-pressure publicity on a big scale has boosted many of these so-called great scholastic elevens, fives, sextets or nines but the Academy has gone on, practically unnoticed outside of Eastern Connecticut, piling up victory on top of victory and, although a school of less than 1,000 students, scoring well-earned victories over schools sometimes three times its size.

Percentage of .872

In the years, 1926-1929, inclusive, when the Wildcats have gone forth to battle 78 times in their baseball uniforms and have returned on top in 69 of these games, losing a mere nine, it is a winning average of .872, good enough to win a pennant in any man's league. During this time the opposition has been outscored 688 runs to 256, about 2 1-2 Academy runs for every one by the other team.

Here are the figures on the bright N. F. A. years:

Year	W.	L.	Runs	Op. Runs
1926	17	3	157	58
1927	16	2	165	66
1928	19	1	179	56
1929	17	3	187	76
	69	9	688	256

For the many followers of the Wildcats during this time there have been thrills galore with also a light mixture of heart-aches (or shall we say, pains in the neck). Only one defeat by Bulkeley is seen in these four years, that in the first game of the series in 1926, by 1 to 0 at Bulkeley. The Red and Whitesters came right home, though, and lambasted Bulkeley in the return game, 10 to 0, and have not been beaten by the Whalers since, making seven straight triumphs to their credit at the expense of their most-hated and, at the same time, best-loved foe.

Lost Two to Westerly

In addition to the Bulkeley loss, the other defeats were doled out by the following schools: Westerly (2), Harding, 1, Hillhouse, 1, Naugatuck, 1, Stonington, 1, Chapman Tech, 1, Holy Cross Frosh, 1. To beat the Academy in baseball within the last few years has been considered a crowning event for an Eastern Connecticut school's season and, all, save Windham, of the league members, have accomplished their purpose at one time or another.

Perhaps the biggest moments during this span might be classified as follows: 1, 11-inning 11-10 victory over Bulkeley in 1928; 2, 4-3 ninth inning win over Harding for the first state title in 1927; 3, 12-inning victory, 6-5 over Walter Linder and Deep River high, 1929; 4, 9-1 victory over New Haven Hillhouse to clinch the second state title, 1928; 5, 4-3 ten-inning victory over Chapman Tech, 1929, after coming from behind in the ninth. The darkest moment, by far, was that 3-2 defeat by Stonington in Stonington that spoiled a spotless record in 1928, the only defeat in 20 games.

Going back further a year into Academy history you will discover that, in 1925, the Red and White was not so bad, either. They won the first of five league championships that season, and took 12 out of 18 games, which would raise the victories to 81 and the defeats to 15.

Credit Belongs to Brigham

This good fortune has not come to the local school by chance. There must have been a cause. It might have been the trusty left arm of Lloyd Jarvis, or his big bat, it might have been Johnny Greene's fault, Mace Goldblatt's, Pheno Tombari's, Steffy Cimikoski's or any of the stellar Academy players of this time, but most of all it has been Coach Earle E. Brigham. The coach, who has been content to let his boys take all the headlines, came to N. F. A. from a successful regime in Plainfield high in the fall of 1923, took the 1924 season to get his system organized and from then on has been steam-rollering everything in sight.

It's only a matter of days before another and bigger and better season gets underways and, imbued with the winning spirit, Capt. Chubby Gibbs and his men are hopeful of improving on the Wildcat's record for scalps. Twenty-two games are listed and 22 and 69 make 91, so who knows but what it'll be 91 and 9 by the middle of June for Our Boys.

"Spring is here." Where have we heard that wisecrack before?

Did any of you folks see anything besides the calendar that would make you think yesterday was the first day of spring? Well neither did I.

If yesterday was a springlike day then I'm a Grecian dancer. Those folks that are trying to make over the calendar better get busy and try to make spring officially start about the first of May.

Last night when I was watching a fire a girl says, "Didja know this was the first day of spring?" For a minute I thinks she's goofy but by careful calculations I found she was right. "Yeah," says I, "and maybe tomorrow will be Fourth of July."

There I was standing shivering and my teeth chattering like it was two above zero, and when my teeth chatter it sounds like a troop of cavalry going over a bridge. What happy thoughts some people have, she probably believes in fairies.

But spring must be on the way for all the shop windows are decked out in the spring trimmings which make you shiver to look at them. A window full of fur coats and red flannels would have been more appropriate.

All this hooey about peep frogs and bluebirds being signs of spring is all right for poets to rave about but they're a cold in the head to me. If bluebirds and robins wants got pneumonia that's their lookout, but I'm not going to put the old raccoon into moth balls yet.

They say a young man's fancy turns to love in the springtime but I'll bet a nickel it's love beside an open fireplace that his fancy turns to.

Spring is here but like a Scotchman's money you don't see much of it.

AL KOZIOL FLATTENS HIS OPPONENT IN THE FIRST MINUTE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PROVIDENCE, March 21—Al Koziol of Norwich, knocked out Artie Levine of Pawtucket in the first minute of the first round at a scheduled six round bout here tonight. Koziol went after Levine hard in the first few seconds of the bout and in the first exchange had Levine groggy. He put over the winning punch just after a minute of fighting.

Just before Koziol went out for his bout, Barney Keenan of Norwich, veteran trainer, told Koziol that he wanted to make the 9:08 train out of Providence. Koziol looked at Barney and says, "Don't worry Barney you'll make the train." And Barney did.

CHOCOLATE KAYOES RIDGEWAY IN 2ND ROUND; WOLGAST GETS N. Y. TITLE

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, the belt bomb-bomb of Cuba, blasted Al Ridgeway, a promising New Jersey youth from his path in spectacular fashion tonight, scoring a two round technical knockout after flooring his man four times. Ridgeway hardly made a menacing gesture and was on the carpet three times in the second round before Referee Jack Dorman stopped the one-sided struggle after 2:39 of the round.

The flashy Negro, probably the best little fellow developed by his race since the days of George Dixon and Joe Gans, wasted no time in the second round. He let Ridgeway, waging a forlorn struggle, come to him and when the opening offered flashed his right cleanly to the chin again.

Ridgeway took nine again and hardly regained his feet before Chocolate was upon him like a storm again, ripping both hands to the body. So deadly was the Negro's unerring fire that Ridgeway fell backward into the ropes and slipped to the floor again for nine. He reached his feet with a game effort, the blood once more painting his face crimson, and ran right into another right to the chin. This smash levelled with the accuracy of a rifle, knocked Ridgeway to the floor in a daze. His eyes were closed as he listened to the count and were still shut tight as he climbed half erect on wavering legs at the toll of nine. Referee Dorman caught the courageous youngster as he slumped forward to his knees and called the unequal struggle off.

Chocolate, destined for a chance at either the featherweight or the lightweight crowns in one of the big outdoor battles of the coming summer, seemed to hit harder, box cleverer and display better generalship than ever before in a New York ring. Although he weighed only 126 3-4 pounds to Ridgeway's 128, Chocolate really had an advantage in the weight, Ridgeway a natural 132 pounder, seemed drawn by his weight making.

A banner crowd of 17,656 saw the match which was preceded by a fifteen round semi-final bout involving New York state recognition of a world's flyweight champion.

Wolgast Wins

In the anti-climax Midget Wolgast, rubber-legged mite from Philadelphia outclassed Black Bill, a stablemate of Chocolate, and won the unanimous decision of the judges. Many of the ringside experts conceded Wolgast, a lightning puncher with either hand, a clear margin in at least twelve of the fifteen sessions. There were no knockdowns.

Faster on his feet and the harder puncher of the two, Wolgast gave the Cuban Negro, slight favorite in the betting, a trouncing in virtually every round.

Using a lightning fast left hook to the body and head with deadly effect, the little Philadelphian piled up such a huge margin in points in the first ten rounds that Bill's only chance for victory would have been a knockout punch. There were no knockdowns although Bill slipped to his knees in a flurry in the second round and was in bad shape on several occasions from solid left hooks to the body.

CHILL WIND PREVENTS ACADEMY FROM PRACTICE

Another day of rest for the Academy baseball squad was in order Friday when Coach Brigham decided to give his charges the afternoon off rather than run the risk of sore arms or colds coming from the strong wind that swept down from the north across the campus. However, practice will be resumed this afternoon at 1 o'clock, weather permitting, when another such session as was held on Thursday will probably be held. This would include a practice game with plenty of emphasis on a hitting drill.

In Thursday's practice the first indication of a batting order for the coming season was given when Coach Brigham sent the team that looked the most like No. 1 to the plate as follows: Arico, 1b; Gibbs, ss; Breen, 3b; Fontaine, c; Flather, lf; Crowell, rf; Carter, cf; Navick, 2b; Weisgraber, p. Of course, there will, without doubt, be changes in this set-up but as constituted in Thursday's drill, it showed Arico and Gibbs in their 1929 places with Fontaine moved up from fifth to clean-up position. Breen, in batting third was in the place of his predecessor at third base, Hal Cummings.

BENEFIT BASKETBALL GAME FOR GIRLS' TEAM

Monday night at the Y gym there will be a regular Ladies' night. Two fast games of basketball have been arranged and the entire proceeds are to be given to the girls' basketball team to finish paying for their suits, and to give them a social time in the near future.

The New London Y. W. C. A. and Norwich girls game will be for the championship of New London county. Each team has won one game, and both are out to win the play-off Monday night.

The second game on the program will be between the Saybrook Town team and the Y. M. C. A. representative team. This will be the first meeting of these two teams this year. Last year they met twice and both games were close, Saybrook winning here by two points, and Norwich winning in Saybrook in an overtime game.

The girls are planning for a large crowd, and have their ticket sellers, ticket takers, candy sellers and everything set for one of the biggest times of the year.

DAYTONA TRACK IN BAD SHAPE, NO SPEED TRIALS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Kaye Don, British racing driver, announced tonight that the beach was in such poor condition as would prevent him from making an assault upon the world speed record of 231 miles an hour before Sunday at the earliest, and possibly Monday.

Inspection of the beach was made late today by a committee of racing officials, who said afterward the sandy stretch was in poor condition and there was no possibility of making a run tomorrow morning. Since the low afternoon tide comes after dark Sunday will be the earliest possible time for the test.

Don said the Silver Bullet car now is in perfect racing condition and that no alterations will be made until he has a chance to test it out as it now is.

YALE-HARVARD RACE TO BE ROWED DOWNSTREAMS AT 6:30

NEW HAVEN, March 21.—(AP)—The Yale-Harvard varsity boat race, at New London, June 21, will be started at 6:30 p. m., and will be rowed downstream, it was decided at a meeting here today of representatives of the two universities and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

The freshman and junior varsity races will be also be rowed downstream over the upper two miles of the course provided that W. A. Meikleham, referee, gives his approval. These crews will take the water at 3:30 a. m.

F. Valentine Chappell, chairman of the regatta committee, suggested that the varsity race be held at 3 o'clock, but because of the difficulties in handling the observation trains it was decided to make the hour 6:30.

Walter P. Read, general passenger agent, announced that the railroad is constructing 35 new observation cars which will have a seating capacity of 106 as against 82 in the present cars. A total of 840 more passengers will thus be accommodated. The new train will be ready for the Derby day races, May 3, when Yale, Columbia and Penn meet on the Housatonic.

Spring Baseball News

The Fort Trumbull Stars, Kaceys, Boys' club and Ockfords will in all probability form the New London City Baseball league during the coming season, it was intimated Friday. In other years six teams competed for the title in this well-organized loop but the Socony team, champs last year and who also won the inter-city title from the Smoke Shop, winners of the local Industrial league; and the Sub Base have withdrawn, leaving the field open to the four above-mentioned clubs.

A meeting of the managers of the prospective teams will be held Monday evening.

Nothing definite has been forthcoming as yet on plans for the local Dusty league season. It is known that several teams, at least eight or nine, are making plans to seek entrance to the circuit and their practice for some of these will start in a few weeks.

Here's a little of the pre-season talk on the Dusty loop: That there will be two Polish teams—the United States Finishers, champs in 1928, will re-enter the league after a year's absence—the Smoke Shop, last year's winners, are undecided about going at it again—the Thermos is talking things over with Dan Driscoll as the probable manager—Jab Burns will catch for and captain the Kaceys—John Oney will manage one of the Polish teams.

ATHLETICS WIN EASILY FROM CINCINNATI CLUB

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 21—(AP)—Gilt edged pitching by Glenn Liebhardt and Al Mahon gave the Philadelphia Athletics their second straight victory over the Cincinnati Reds today, 5 to 2.

The Reds went scoreless until after one man had gone out in the ninth. Then Curt Walker, former Phillies player, drew a pass from Mahon and George Kelly sent a triple spinning down first base line. Cuccinello followed with a sacrifice fly to Haas in center that enabled Kelly to cross the plate.

Jimmy Foxx propelled one home run and a catch by Center Fielder Allen deprived him of what the fans thought surely would be another.

Score:

Cincinnati	000 000 002—	2	7	0
Athletics	200 201 00x—	5	8	0

JOHNSON UNABLE TO GET BOXING MATCHES

CHICAGO, March 21—(AP)—Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro light heavyweight, today discovered he was a fighter who couldn't find a fight.

The Chicago stadium arranged a 10 round battle between Johnson and Ace Hudkins, but Hudkins turned it down on the plea he couldn't get ready by March 28 when the match was to be held. Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion with light heavyweight aspirations, did likewise, and so did Maxie Rosenbloom of New York, who won a bout on a foul from Johnson at New York. When Rosenbloom, who reported an injury, turned the bout down, the stadium called it off.

PAT SIMMONS IS SENT HOME BY RED SOX

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—Manager Heinie Wagner of the Boston Red Sox today sent Pat Simmons, a rookie right-handed pitcher, back to his home in Watervliet, N. Y. Simmons was said to be dissatisfied with his berth. He came to the Sox two years ago and hurled some good relief ball, but last season he was bothered by a sore arm.

Wagner said today that he intended to carry nine pitchers, eight infielders, five outfielders and three catchers through the season.

MASSIE B. MILLER ARRIVES TO ASSUME PRO DUTIES

Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, returned to Norwich from the golfing wars of California yesterday to assume his duties at the club for the coming golf season. Massie is in fine health, after a winter spent in the sunshine of California and is anxious to get started on the plans for the local season.

In speaking of his California trip Miller said that while his game was not so brilliant he had some good rounds and that he thoroughly enjoyed the trip. Miller during the California campaign was traveling with Denny Shute, one of the sensations of the Pacific coast tournaments, and Tommy Rakiets. Shute was winner of the Los Angeles open and the Texas open.

STAFFORD SPRINGS BOY TO GET PRO TRYOUT

Friends of Bigo Calchera, catcher for the Stafford baseball team for the past six years, are pleased to learn that he is to be given a tryout by the Springfield club in the Eastern league. Arrangements with Art Shean, president of the club, were completed several weeks ago and Calchera has received instructions to report March 25 when the Springfield team will leave for Hackensack, N. J., for the spring workout. Besides being a good backstop, Calchera has shown much ability as a fielder and his batting average has always been high. He was one of the most popular players on the Stafford team.

Chapman Tech Has 27 Out

The Chapman Tech baseball squad, expected to be the Academy's most serious threat for their sixth straight league title this spring, was cut to 27 men Thursday by Coach Conway. The real problem for Tech this year will be in the field with only Second Baseman Joe Quinn remaining of the 1929 quartet. Capt. Fred Hewitt, one of the leading pitchers in the state last year is expected to carry much of the hurling burden and should give all of Tech's opponents plenty to worry about.

H. N. S. Turnout

The Holy Name society of Jewett City will hold its first outdoor practice today (Saturday) at Slater's park. All the members of last year's squad are requested to report at Slater's field at 1:30 p. m. sharp. Those who wish to have a tryout can do so by seeing Captain Pizzo on the field.

There will also be a tryout for a H. N. S. Jr. team which will be backed by the Holy Name boys.

Decline of Winter

Majestic winter's reign will soon be done,
Weary, he droops on his dismantled throne,
From which, erstwhile, his orders fierce he flung,
His minions and his artisans among.
His crystal fringes long, from which the sun
Made facets like to gems, drop, one by one,
In sorrow to the melting earth beneath,
And form in pools on faded grass and leaf.
The north wind bold, so long his willing slave,
At spring's first winsome call has ceased to rave
And now becomes a mild and frisking breeze,
Which into life the slumbering grass would tease.
The heaped-up mounds of white and glistening snow,
He fain would keep to cool his fevered brow,
But spring upon the threshold chilly stands,
And sends unheeding ear to his demands;
Full well she knows that should he have his way,
Her trailing garland blossoms he would slay.

Failure

Folks say he is a failure,
Because, though he is gray,
He is a lowly toiler
With no wealth stored away,
No gold and ghostly silver
To buy him meat and bread,
When Winter snarls around him
And mocks his stumbling tread.

Though he has walked with sorrow,
As he has climbed the years,
In spite of cruel anguish
Too deep for healing tears,
He has not grown embittered
As he has felt Fate's blows,
But he has nobly striven
To ease his brother's woes.

Folks say he is a failure,
Because their eyes are blind
To all the countless riches
That fill his heart and mind,
But God, who credits little
To what our hands possess,
Is whispering the angels
And applauding his success.

I'm Growing Old

My days pass pleasantly away,
My nights are blessed with sweet sleep;
I feel no symptoms of decay,
I have no cause to mourn or weep;
My foes are impotent and shy,
My friends are neither false nor cold,
And yet, of late, I often sigh—
I'm growing old!

My growing talk of olden times,
My growing thirst for early news,
My growing apathy to rhymes,
My growing love of easy shoes,
My growing hate of crowds and noise,
My growing fear of taking cold,
All tell me in the plainest voice—
I'm growing old!

I'm growing fonder of my staff,
I'm growing dimmer in the eyes,
I'm growing fainter in my laugh,
I'm growing deeper in my sighs,
I'm growing careless of my dress,
I'm growing frugal of my gold,
I'm growing wise, I'm growing—yes—
I'm growing old!

I feel it in my changing taste,
I see it in my changing hair;
I see it in my growing waist,
I see it in my graying hair;
I heard hints growing, then ever told,
As plain as truth was ever told,
That even in my vaunted youth,
I'm growing old!

Ah, me! my very laurels breathe
The tale in my reluctant ears;
And every boon the hours bequeath
But makes me debtor to the years!
E'en Flattery's honeyed words declare
The secret she would fain withhold,
And tells me in "How young you are!"
I'm growing old!

Spring Patchwork.

Nature's piecing patchwork everywhere today,
All winter she's been planning a colorful array.
Now that April's with us, glad brooks laugh and run;
Nature spreads her pieces. Quilting time's begun!

How many thrifty housewives hoard scraps from year to year,
Piece bags in the attic till leisure hours appear!
Nature's squares are modern, new as anything,
Quaint old-fashioned patterns woven just this spring.

In unnumbered meadows she lays soft shapes of green;
Clumps of dainty bluets she snips and tucks between.
Circles and triangles of dandelions she sets,
Easies and pine slim borders of purple violets.

Hitch on April hillsides squares of rusty brown,
Woven from pine needles, she is tacking down.
Here are ferns and mosses, dainty as can be,
Windflowers and arbutus for embroidery.

There's a magic carpet everywhere you pass,
Countless flower patterns bordered by new grass;
You'll find it on exhibit, a marvelous display,
Nature's choicest patchwork everywhere today.

Apple Pie

First you take your apples near a sunny window,
See your knife is sharpened, and your pan is bright,
Then you deftly pare them while beneath your fingers
Heap the colored ribbons—ruby-red and white.

Maybe there's a phoebe busy with her building,
Root and moss and feather on the sill hard by;
Maybe there's a bobwhite calling in the Marshes!
Such things lend a flavor to an apple pie.

Now you half and quarter, core and spice and sweeten,
Sugar from the canebrake, spices from Ceylon,
Apples from the orchard where you watched them ripen.
Now you fill your pie crust, and put the cover on.

Always when you bake it have the kettle singing near,
Just a little love song, or yet a lullaby—
Many things are needed to keep the proper balance;
Still the very pleasant—making apple pie!

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

March 27—Club No. 4 holds anniversary meeting in Methodist church vestry, Putnam.

WHEN CLUB 5 CELEBRATED

Dear Social Corner Members: Today Club 5 has celebrated its fourth anniversary with 84 in attendance. We were sorry several of our members were ill and could not be with us but we were pleased to see so many that had not met with us in a long time. We were very glad to see so many visitors from other clubs.

Princess Alice and Mayfair: Hope you both arrived home safe each going your separate ways.

Melissa: You sure gave us a surprise.

Winter Robin: Received your card. We missed your grin.

I want to thank those who helped me serve the dinner. We had an abundance of good food, everyone was very generous and I thank you one and all as that is what made the dinner a success. Just-a-Nut has a day's work and brought us an immense birthday cake, very pretty to look at and very good to taste. Sumac had charge of the program and had something extra good planned, then on Friday two were taken ill and another had to be in another place on Tuesday so that part had to be dropped and a hurry up program arranged and I think she deserves a great deal of credit for going through with it with so many things going wrong at the last minute. Tish you certainly helped out. The recitation was great and Zulieka, we all enjoyed "The Widder Green."

B. Natural: As we couldn't have you with us, your letter was the next best thing.

Topsy: Wish I could make cake like you can.

INSPIRATIONS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have finished reading the letters and poems. The poem I choose to save is "Beautiful Island of Sometime." I would so much like to hear it sung so I might learn the tune.

There is a great deal of true meaning in that song.

I am inclined a great many times to get awfully discouraged and downhearted and "through the long years of labour mid anguish and tears, yet I still look ahead through wearisome years, look for that beautiful Island of Sometime." I think all of us have an inspiration. Something to look forward to; if it wasn't for an inspiration many of us would do such terrible things, just because we became discouraged. So let us be thankful (I am sure I am) that we have something to look forward to. With some it is a home they are building, a lovely car they are anticipating or else plans for a long journey. There are so many, many things we have in view. Each of us has our own dream and "hope beckons us onward still keeping in view, that ever bright, beautiful Sometime, and in the last verse, "We still have that promise that when those that are most dear shall go over to that other side, their sweet voices we can no longer hear, isn't it a beautiful thought "that with them we shall abide, in that beautiful island of Sometime."

I usually write letters according to my mood. If I could only practice and be perfect in accord with the advice in the letter, that was sent in a couple of weeks ago entitled "Be Cheerful" Of course when I go out I go with a cheerful countenance, but who knows how we feel while we are wearing that "cheerful mask"? The public doesn't care if your heart is torn to a shred, by the unkind words some people said, so all we can do is to put on a brave front, keep our troubles to ourselves and trust that somewhere, somehow and sometime, our dreams will come true. That each of us may get the reward we are striving for is the wish of

WRITER FOR 10 YEARS.

Dear Social Corner Friends: We have had some excellent letters of late and many of them. I felt as though I must not let March go by without a letter as it's 10 years ago that my first letter appeared.

There have been many changes in that time; it must be expected. I have met so many nice people whom I never would have known existed had it not been for the good Social Corner. Long may it continue. I attended Club No. 1 at Willimantic for eight months before any was started in this city. I was at Coventry lake four times and a number of other places. Am content now to go to those near home.

Iola: I enjoy your letters very much.

HAS NEW WHITE SINK.

Dear Editor, Sisters, Brothers, etc.: I want to thank all those who helped me with the program last Tuesday. Owing to illness of either the members or some of their various families I was unable to put on the program I had planned and what we had was arranged at the last minute. Although it looked like rain in the morning the weather man decided to hold it until late in the evening. For our benefit perhaps. I think there were 84 present and E. L. M. and her helpers gave us a lovely dinner. B. Natural who was unable to come after all sent a letter of greeting. Commuter who lives in New York state is critically ill following an operation for infected hand. Her husband has been seriously ill with pneumonia, but is gaining slowly.

My white sink is perfectly lovely and is so easy to keep clean. And now I always wipe my dishes (whenever I wash them) to keep the drain board clear. Some one said they wouldn't want one because they wouldn't want to put anything greasy in it. She said she had a frying pan of grease on the stove got on fire and she threw it in her black iron sink and turned water on it, but she wouldn't dare do it with a white one. It would be a lot easier for me in those circumstances to throw it outdoors. (If it hit a hen or so it would be just too bad.) But I would hate to throw it in the sink black, white or other wise regardless. Ammonia is very good to clean a black sink with also the blackened bottoms of kettles. And do you know that kettles or pans that are blackened on the bottom take longer to heat? Milky Way has but one kettle (an iron one) that she sets next to the fire and I expect it would be an unpardonable error to put her tea kettle next to the blaze. Naturally her pots and pans last much longer. I always think I'll do that, too, when I get a new pan, but some how I soon fall from grace. But then we can't all be model housekeepers like some I know of ahem!

Bears: We missed you Tuesday both day and evening. Ask A. how about those current events. I thank you very much for my gift. I appreciate it a lot. Mr. A. was going to start right in using it when he came to lunch. You missed considerable Tuesday evening.

ARIES: I received your lovely card. It was nice of you to send it. Wish you would tell us some time how to do the vase.

Neried: Sorry you couldn't get away to come.

Necia and True Blue: Didn't see you any where. We were glad to see Interested Reader and Tatting who haven't been in a long time.

Mayfayre: I hope you reached your bus in time. We were also glad to have Pyrethum and her daughter back again.

Best wishes to all 'til next week.

SUMAC, (No. 6).

THE MIDDLE AGED WOMAN

To the Social Corner: By Jingo: — Hurrah for you—I am glad you didn't mean "every middle-aged woman" in your letter of March first. Do you know the age doesn't mean anything these days? Some of the old ones are up to mischief of all kinds as well as the young ones. "You'd be surprised." You ask what is a person to do who has lost everything and has nothing left to live for? Shucks! Such a person does not exist. No matter what we have lost we can always weave the broken threads together and live on. "I know!"

In regard to a woman's loving unwisely—how many of us love wisely? Why has the woman lost her self respect? These things are not condemned today as they were in our grandmother's time. If she has been indiscreet and foolish of course she can live it down and make a place for herself in the world. It is the woman who doesn't care and doesn't want to come back that we should pity. In most cases she is mentally ill. I think it is very simple to readjust the things of a life time and very few women have seen more trouble than I have. I am always readjusting and trying to carry on—under heavy odds, many times.

Iola: I wasn't going to answer By Jingo's letter of March first but could not resist her letter of the 15th. What is the yellow slip that you thanked the editor for? Was it a prize for letter writing in the Social Corner? You certainly are very eloquent.

I am 55 years old and you must be some where near my age. I think but I guess By Jingo is one of our young ones by the tone of her letters.

Well, we have all got to grow old. Some of us manage to do so gracefully but not me. I am rather old fashioned as I grow older but would not be if I had the wherewithall to keep up with the parade.

Jane of R. I. I varnished my kitchen linoleum but soon had it all washed off again. I have just waxed it this week and it looks very nice but all I can do to walk over it, it's so slippery.

Hiker: I am going to try your raised cake recipe soon. It sounds good.

GERTRUDE

WHEN CLUB NO. 6 MET

Dear Social Corner Members: Yesterday Club 6 observed its fourth anniversary at Mechanics hall with 84 members attendance and in the neighborhood of a dozen visitors from other clubs.

Nearly every one brought fancy work and I am sure everyone brought their appetites, as one could easily judge by the way salads, baked beans, pickles, delicious home made doughnuts, cakes and pies disappeared. I don't know who to praise for the making of the coffee, but didn't it taste good? I had two cups and as I had my company manners I was ashamed to ask for the third cup of the delicious beverage. The favors at each place were so cute. Mine happened to be pink and white, my favorite colors.

I fully realize it takes both time and thought to prepare for such dinners and interesting programs as the Social Corner gives.

Tish surely was a scream. I could listen all day about that "Vacation." It was true to life, too, and our wonderful poetess, Zulieka, is a most interesting person. She always holds the attention of her audience with her original poems.

I had a letter all ready to send but since going to the meeting I will send it next week. I do hope the weather will be fine and all roads to North Stonington (dirt roads included) will be in good condition so that the same crowd and also guests will be able to attend our next meeting in the grange hall.

What do you know. I have a chum who is as honest as the day is long and she told me my letter wasn't interesting, the one entitled "Song." She asked me why I didn't write something cute or funny. I know she was disgusted. She wants something for her money.

Opinions differ. Some like deep thoughts, some like fun.

LEAH WANTS HELP ON QUILT

Social Corner Members: It is a long time since I wrote to the Corner. Guess I better get busy or some one will ask me if my pen has got rusty or have I got any ink. I do mean to write and help fill up the Corner page.

Lonesome Fenn: I want to thank you for my birthday card, also my anniversary card which was very pretty and thoughtful. Had a letter from Canterbury Bell from Florida. She sure has had a wonderful time. She wrote everything is beautiful there. I wouldn't mind if I were there too.

I must not forget to mention the lovely time I had at Willimantic Club No. 1 certainly serve a wonderful dinner and the entertainment was equal to the dinner. I went as a guest of Chocolate and I enjoyed every minute. I wonder if any of the Corner sisters know how to arrange Tree of Paradise blocks on a quilt. I know there are a lot of good quilt makers in our Social Corner, and wondered if some one could give me some ideas.

Hello, Catnip, are you feeling good? I hope so.

LEAH.

JOINS THE CORNER

Editor of the Social Corner: I have read your page for quite a few years now, and have always been interested in the letters. Would like to know if I may join as I have some friends in the club.

Will take for my penname

CLUB NO. 2'S ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Dear Cornerites: Well, anniversary month brings out the writers and club members and visitors. It seemed good to see so many present. Our Nellie-Bly's husband, while attending the elevator, said to us that stood by him: "I counted 104, including those helpers in the kitchen." That means steady going to get everything ready and served. The dinner was fine, about everything in the shape and variety of foods and enough of it. I hope everybody was served right. Mawb presided at the piano for our dinner hymn and Rev. George W. Potter of the Bean Hill M. E. church, asked the blessing.

After dinner Dr. Charles Lamb sang two solos, also Libby gave two solos. Readings included "The Goat," by Red Rose, the members filling in the blank spaces with words. It was amusing. County Sister was present with her violin and dancing was enjoyed. After the entertainment a social time was enjoyed for the rest of the afternoon.

Aunty No. 1: Our tea wagon was rented to a ladies' order in the hall and they thought it was great to wheel their dishes to and from their private closet. It saved steps and shortened their time of handling the dishes. Guess our hostess in the future will like it. It was a great help on Corner day for Club No. 2.

Black Eye Susie: Sorry about the package Mayfair brought home. Tell Anna I'll see she has a nice one next month. Would like to hear her play "Tip Toe Through the Tulips" again. Hope she is better.

Stebellar: You see I guessed your name. Was by your house Sunday. Did you get my letter?

Wert Wishes.

CALLA LILY (Club No. 2)

THE OLD BRASS BED

Dear Social Corner: Why, how many new members! E. L. M. was there with her interesting letter. I read them all, and find them interesting, but don't know the members as well, as most of the others do.

I guess I'll send you a verse. I do not know who wrote it. I love poetry and I hope you all will like it. Before I write the verse, let me tell you a short cut to comfort. I have always had brass beds and have fixed them over, more or less. Try covering beds with two coats of flat cream paint and let it dry thoroughly between each painting. Then cover it with good walnut stain, and when dry, one coat of clear shellac. It is some improvement. Try it if you want a change.

Here is a verse that is good for the Social Corner. No name to it, and by an unknown.

It may be a mansion or wigwam,
A castle or tarred paper shack;
When my spirit is "footsore" and weary,
It yearns only just to be back,—
To sit by the fire at evening
With someone I love, in the gloam
It matters not, however humble,
I love it, because it is home.

My physical body is nothing
But only a house made of clay,
It needs just four walls to protect it
And keep it from crumbling away,
It's my spirit which always is longing
No matter how far I may roam
When the day's work is ended, it's calling
For the one place on earth, I call, home.

"JANE OF R. I."

AIRY'S SALMON CAKES

Dear Editor and Members: I imagine this letter will be too late for publication this week, but will be on time for next.

A Social Corner Member: Please accept my sincere thanks for the very pretty calendar, even though late.

Merry Dimple: Haven't seen a letter from you since you told me you were a member.

Whirlwind: Do I owe you a letter or is it the other way around? I had hoped I might have a chance to be in your home town sometime but I guess not now. The Mr. thought he would be going to Watertown but as yet that trip has not arrived.

Here is a recipe for salmon cakes that some one may like.

Salmon Cakes: 1 can salmon chopped fine, 2 well beaten eggs, 5 or 6 rolled crackers, salt, pepper, little butter, mix well, form into cakes and fry. Serve either with or without peas.

There, I guess I've said enough for this time. An airplane is just going over and it is very high.

Best wishes from AIRY

ENCOURAGES NEW WRITERS.

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: This is another beautiful Sunday and I am alone this afternoon—a good time to get my writing all caught up, although I have listened to the Dudley Carolers' Sunshine Hour of lovely music. Certainly it was great and I wonder how many of the Social Corner members heard it.

Now that so many new writers are coming in I will try and cut out some of my letters for a while and give up the space to them. I will tell the editor he can put any of my letters he has no room for in the waste basket for I am thinking that it is nearly time for me to get back home to the "Land of My Golden Dreams," where there is plenty of work to be done.

"Thoughts are things Which fly without winds."

A merchant stood morose and glum.
His angry scowl would stop a clock,
For not a customer had come
That day to purchase his stock.
His net door neighbor smiled until
His face seemed as a sunbeam bright,
For larger patrons came to fill
His store from morning until night.

"How is it," he cried the man of trade,
(Whose store seemed like a cave of gloom),
"Your place seems as a dress parade
While mine seems silent as the tomb?"
His neighbor looked him in the eye,
So down-cast and so very sad
And said, "I cannot tell a lie,
I do it with my little ad."

WINTER FLOWERS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: There are so many good things in the Social Corner that if it were not for fear of being a slacker I might not be writing this letter.

E. L. M.: Puzzles interested me and I must tell you of my flowers.

The first of December I took off some branches of forsythia and in a few weeks had some cheery yellow blossoms. At the present time I have my second bouquet of them.

During a warm spell, the last of December, I saw a clump of green in the garden. I investigated and found it to be larkspur. This was taken up and put into a pot and repaid me for my trouble by putting forth two stalks of blue flowers. Can any one beat that for winter gardening?

How many are interested in making their kitchen more convenient? Mine was fairly good but by moving a cupboard to one side of the sink many steps are saved. I had the doors taken off and a regular curtain substituted. The curtain is on a regular roller and can be rolled up or down as needed.

This curtain, also those for the two windows, is made of chintz with hunter designs in red, brown and ecru colorings.

My kettle covers seemed to have no abiding place, so after some thinking I put two long screws under the cupboard and placed the covers on them.

It seems to me By Jingo has the wrong point of view in regard to middle-aged women. Doesn't the wisdom and experience of these women have considerable to do in keeping things well balanced? Never mind what they say By Jingo, "you'll be middle-aged by and by."

If Omaha Bee will send me her address I will send her some pictures for her scrapbooks.

Best wishes for the success of the Social Corner.

V. B. A.

AMONG THE FLOWERS.

Dear Social Corner Members: I wonder if some of you can tell me whether it was customary to build the cheese rooms in the northeast corner of old houses or whether it is mere coincidence that all I know of were in that position? And can any of you tell how sage cheese was prepared?

These warm days have sent me hiking around to the greenhouses to see what they are doing. You know one can pick up quite a few gardening hints in this way and it is always interesting to find out what they are trying in the way of new flowers and plants.

Last summer's dry weather did not improve the beauty of the cyclamens but I have never seen lovelier cinerarias than I have this winter. These flowers are now giving way to pots of tulips and daffodils and other spring-like things. One local greenhouse specializes in anemones and they are a mass of color now when the sun is shining; there are so many colors and types that it is hard to choose which one is prettiest. Last week I saw a scarlet one that looked exactly like a Darwin tulip in both color and size. In another place there are numbers of beautiful petunias just coming into flower. These will make fine bedding plants for early planting. One mustn't forget the geraniums either—dozens of them to be ready for Memorial day.

Then there are the experiments—these are most interesting of all to me for I love to try things out myself. One man has secured some cuttings of a marvelous new carnation which he is trying to root. The flowers are a beautiful golden color and a mass of them must be a wonderful sight. Another man is developing a double snapdragon—had you ever heard of such a thing? Well, I hadn't either so I was thrilled to see one. It is really the lip that is double and not the flower, but even that makes the flower seem much larger.

Speaking of double things reminds me that I sent for some duplex sweet peas when I sent my regular order. Last year we had just a few among our Spencers and were so pleased with them that I thought I would try just a few in my own little garden. The seeds cost a cent or more apiece so you can guess that I did not order very many.

I ordered some wire so that my garden can be fenced this year. Last year it was not and the hens were in it so much that it is a wonder to me that I had any flowers at all. Wish some of you could tell me why calves and chickens always start for the posy bed.

Have to stop here—there is one greenhouse in town that I haven't visited yet!

PERNICKETY.

TIME TO GET STARTED

Dear Editor: Spring gentle spring! I suppose everybody has kissed her fair brow by this time. Isn't it wonderful to see her dancing around the corner chasing old winter back to the north pole. Well, get your rake and hoe and let's dig that trench for the sweet pea seed. Three foot deep, then one foot of manure, then another foot of loam; then the seeds, next another foot of loam and firm with shovel. Time to trim the apple trees and prune the shrubs. Next it will be time to spray them and it's always in order to swat that fly!

A lovely idea for a gift for an invalid or shut-in is two candle holders of any color or material desired and two candles for every month of the year. White candles for the Easter month; apple blossom pink for May; blue ones for June; green for July; gold for August; lilac for September; lemon for October; orange for November; Red and silver for December. Wrap each pair separately in tissue paper with the calendar month for each pair attached.

What next? Newest thing in lamps, I am told of a tall corn stalk having two ears of corn attached being used for an electric light. The ear was removed from the larger one and an electric bulb inserted inside the husk which served as a shade. The stalk was set in a concrete base to resemble ground. The electric wire went through the stalk and was attached to the bulb socket. The whole was given three coats of white shellac. Quite a novelty.

Hope all who can will attend meeting of Club 4, on March 27th, in Putnam M. E. church. Bring your dishes, some food for the table, some selection for the programme and your smiling selves and lets have a happy day together.

NONESOPRETTY IS BACK

Dear Editor and Friends: Well, Hello, and I hope you are all fine. Well, I am not a frozen statue on the rock nor have I blown away in these terrible gales we have had. I see there is another gone from our midst in the passing on of Velvie. She was a good friend to all in sickness or trouble and I shall certainly miss her so much and I hope she is resting in happiness and peace.

Kochia: I think you and I are in the same boat, both slackers in our letters. Well, there have been so many things to keep me from writing. My yes, I have been bad for one thing and it is not so easy to get someone to write for you. I was glad to see the dear old Corner page so full.

Butterfly: I don't think Mr. B. will have to bring down that trap. I think my skipper has got that awful rat.

1492 and Keziah Doolittle: You don't know what you missed in not coming down with those sleds. Little Rosebud came over and asked grandma to have a slide with him. Well, I would go down all right but how was I going to get up the glare ice.

Will some one please send in a recipe for old-fashioned suet pudding?

Well, God be with the sick, is my best wishes.

NONESOPRETTY, (Club No. 4).

QUICK RAISED CAKE.

Dear Social Corner: I want to tell Sister E. L. M. that I can beat them all with a quick raised cake. Although it isn't "honest to goodness" yeast cake yet it has the good old fashioned flavor.

Quick Raised Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 2 cups flour, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 2 teaspoons baking powder, grated rind and juice of one lemon, 1 cup raisins, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg.

Susanna: I wish you would try this. I have made you two recipes many times.

WHISPERING PINES.

CLUB NO. 1'S ANNIVERSARY MEETING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: As it is Theoda's request that I write up the Corner doings of March 12th, the 20th anniversary of our club, I hope my sincerity will make up for my lack of eloquence in describing an affair where members and friends numbering about 150 sat down to a most appetizing and bountiful dinner, under the able management of Theoda and her assistants. As I am informed, 20 years ago this club was organized by the editor, since deceased, of the Norwich Bulletin and a charter membership of about 20 women, each member enrolling under a penname. On Saturday of each week, a space was set apart, exclusively for the letters, recipes, descriptions of travels, advice on home problems, in fact a gathering of ideas both original and interesting. Its aim was to promote social contact, good fellowship and helpfulness and in this the club has been a perfect success. Through the unique idea of a roll call in our weekly column we found that since the year 1910, membership had mounted to nearly 1,000. The Corner needs no other recommend. Our page is comprised of interesting topics and among its members we find talent that even Hollywood need not be ashamed of. Also singers, musicians, writers and poets, and last but not least, some of the finest cooks in Connecticut. At Christmas time it is customary for each one to buy an inexpensive toy, to be distributed through the welfare bureau that the less fortunate little ones may be happier and share in the Christmas spirit. At each dinner and meeting "sunshine" boxes are made up of goodies and sent to the shut-ins, cards of cheer sent to the sick and those in affliction, also a flower fund maintained for deceased sisters. There is an air of democracy that puts everyone at their ease, and our dinners are noted for variety, abundance and service. This year Theoda was hostess, and the entertainment was under the direction of Biddy. The costumes and characters represented a classroom of the vintage 1878 and a more unruly lot of youngsters I've yet to see. It recalled the good old days and even the spit-balls were in evidence. The singing was appropriate and fine and the jokes snappy. One very pleasant feature was a gift of carnations as favors at each plate, through the courtesy of Louis Arnold, president of the chamber of commerce, where our monthly meetings are held. Mr. Arnold and a few members were dinner guests and all spoke a few words, favorable to the occasion. Much credit is due to those who worked so untiringly to make this a success, an occasion to renew acquaintances, the reuniting of old friends. We missed many of the old familiar faces, those who have passed to the Great Beyond, and who took such pride and worked unceasingly for the good of the Corner. May their memory remain undimmed to those who are "carrying on." Is it Judd Mortimer Lewis who says:

'Tis well to have lived in this earthly abode,
To have laughed and have loved and have borne well the load,
To have drifted along with the stream as it flowed,
And to rest at the end of the road.

Will now close with greetings to all Cornerites, and long may they flourish. Ever yours,

SIS HOPKINS.

THINKING OF THE MEMBERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I have been thinking of you today and wishing I could be with you at the anniversary meeting of Club No. 1. Years ago I never missed the anniversary meeting in Willimantic. There are so many of the old members passed on I am afraid I would be a stranger there now and the new ones wouldn't know me.

Oline: Don't think I have forgotten you. You know son was in the hospital for a while. Then I was quite sick, so I haven't been out much this winter. I am in hopes to see you before long. Did you go to Willimantic today?

Dorinda: Was pleased to see your letter, and knew it was time for me to get busy. Yes, I am much better than when last I wrote you.

Don't Worry: Did you find everything O. K.. I just enjoyed my visit. I am still working on bed quilts, (haven't the butterfly puzzled out yet). No callers yet, I'm not worrying.

I wish to thank the friend who so kindly remembers me each year with the pretty calendar. It is good to be remembered. I also wish to thank the Club No. 3 for cards and letters received while I was sick.

Bumble Bee: I often think of you. I hope you will soon be on your feet again. You will have to be so careful.

Wish to say to the friend who sent me a Christmas card without a name that I am no good at guessing conundrums. With best wishes for the Corner.

AUNT SARAH, (Club No. 3).

A TRAVELING HINT

Dear Editor and Corner People: When traveling and stopping over night, I have discovered an easy way to make a substitute for a dress hanger. Take part of a newspaper and roll the shortest way into a small roll. Tie securely in the middle with a string leaving a loop to slip over a hook or other projection. Suspend dress from roll and it will hang nice and straight keeping free from wrinkles.

I am sorry to be so late in sending thanks for the little calendar received. Am usually prompt but this time I had written to the Corner just before the calendar came and could not seem to write again very soon. It was appreciated as usual.

Michie: I am wondering what you are doing with yourself these days. Have you gone off on a vacation? It is a good time. I had to postpone my trip a little on account of sickness at the other place.

CORNER ANNIVERSARY DAYS.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: These are the anniversary days of our Social Corner, and some of the clubs have celebrated and others are to follow. I was pleased to attend Club No. 1 though my stay was rather limited. There was a large gathering, excellent dinner and amusing program for entertainment. Sister Biddy made a fine school marm and her scholars were typical of the average boys and girls of any school. Some were naughty and had to be corrected and others were real nice. Their various talents were exemplified in reading, spelling, arithmetic, recitations and excellent singing. Theoda and her assistants were up to the standard of their reputation as able hostesses. They wore white dresses and yellow sashes, from right shoulder to left side, on which was printed in black type, "1910 Club No. 1, 1930." Also tiny yellow paper butterflies as hair ornaments. I inquired of several if they knew whether Sister Naomi was present or not, but failed to find out. In one of her recent letters she inquired if I ever attended any meetings, if so would be pleased to meet me. Yes, Naomi, I was there March 12th, and how about you?

I have been in the Social Corner family 14 years last October, have had many pleasant times, meeting the sisters, finding out "who was who," and forming friendships which would have occurred only in this way.

Aries: I received your card. Glad you liked the prints and sorry you could not attend Club No. 1.

Riverview: Missed your handshake and greeting. Hope you are not ill.

Marigold: I thought of you as I passed through your home town, and wished you could have been with us.

I hope each year of the Social Corner work may improve on its preceding one, and good will, friendship and helpfulness ever prevail. Best wishes to all sisters in sickness and trouble. May good health return, and sunshine dispel the clouds.

JENNIE (Club No. 1)

HOUSE CLEANING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Now that the anniversary meetings are all over we must put our minds to other things, I suppose—such as house cleaning. What's that mighty roar I hear! Why I guess its the voices of thousands of Social Corner sisters raised in protest against me for reminding them of that very disagreeable duty, for no matter how clean a house is kept there has got to be more or less overhauling in the spring.

Well Tatting, I was very sorry not to have been able to attend the meeting but you know we have to take the bitter with the sweet.

Chelsea: Why worry over trifles! I guess the behavior of the majority of middle-aged women can speak for itself, and I think there are more decent, respectable middle-aged women than there are of the other kind, so why judge all by one.

And if I were the lady whose husband left her for another woman I'd say good riddance, for if he was unfaithful to one he will be to the other. Does not the ninth commandment tell us we must not covet our neighbor's wife and of course it means our neighbor's husband, too. But these are the days when a great many people are making their own commandments; God doesn't mean anything in their lives. Oh, what an awakening some day. And I really and truly think that, that is the source of all the lawlessness in the world today, that God has no place in their lives and where there is no God there cannot be anything good. Hasn't He said: "He who denies Me before man, him also will I deny before my Father who is in Heaven."

I don't know what will become of the one that breaks up another's home, for the Lord Himself has said: "What God has joined together let no man put asunder."

Well, Crimson Rambler, this seems to be the only way, I should say the last resource, to reach you. Did you receive my letters, or are you too busy to find time to write?

Was glad to see the Corner page full and often think what would Kitty Lou say if she could see it. She used to say to me: "Why don't they write?" I think of her so often, dear good, faithful soul.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

FOR THE SOCIAL CORNER

Dear Social Corner Friends: Greetings to one and all. I fully agree with Chelsea in her defense of the middle-aged. I would not care to retrace my steps back to youth again, yet there is much in youth to enjoy and I like to look back to many interesting experiences. It has always seemed to me that each stage has opened into a brighter vista of usefulness, peace and joy of living. Inventions are usually created by the middle-aged and utilized by the younger generation. Just now the airplane and radio absorb the public attention, with the automobile, and it is most interesting to watch their development. To hear a voice ten thousand miles distant engaged in ordinary conversation and to listen to an opera in Germany, as we were privileged to do last Sunday, and the convention in progress in London is certainly wonderful and we can only wonder what is comig next.

No doubt many people are questioning as to the cause of so many cases of appendicitis. Physicians say many things may cause it. Among this number I am inclined to think that uncooked raisins may be the cause sometimes as they did not treat me well until I began cooking them. In such foods as salads they have no chance of sufficient softening of the dry indigestible skins and even in cake and cookies there is not enough moisture to thoroughly soften them.

When you consider that it takes about two months of constant drying in the hot California sunshine, you can see how like leather the skins are when they are finally ready for marketing.

Those that are seeded are passed through a steaming process which softens the fruit to some extent but it dries again after the package has been opened.

As we raised the raisin grapes and dried them ourselves, I am well acquainted with the whole process. Raisins are delicious and wholesome but I would recommend that they be cooked until tender before using in anything but puddings or where there is considerable moisture to thoroughly cook them. I usually cook them in a little water from fifteen minutes to one half hour. Some will say that it destroys the flavor, but they are safer to use that way.

With best wishes to all.

DIETING

Dear Social Corner Editor: Here I am again. We read so much about people dieting. More so lately because of the new silhouette styles. In reading a magazine the other day, I came across a poem which showed that dieting does not always pay. Here it is:

"The Lucky Curve"

I reached for a lucky instead of a sweet,
And I wish I'd not reached quite so far.
For my faith in the ads, that was once so complete,
But is far from that now, very far.

Because I was thinning, my husband eloped
With a blonde full of curves and desserts;
And so the results were not all that I hoped,
But this is the angle that hurts.

The charmer though fair, I insist wasn't fair,
I've met disillusion: folks do,
I think for my luncheon I'll have an eclair—
No, on second thoughts, waiter, bring two!"

It's strange that no matter what it is that we have, we are never satisfied. Persons who have curly hair wish for straight hair and vice versa. I suppose the one important factor is the changing styles. Wouldn't it be nice if everyone adopted one mode of dressing?

Yours for more letters in the Corner.

"JOHNNIE'S MA."

VISIT TO HORTICULTURAL HALL

Dear Corner Sisters: The Worcester County Horticultural society's spring exhibition opened this week, where the first display of flowers, fruits and vegetables are on display. Among the crowds of people that attend were my cousin and myself on Friday afternoon. It was a real Marchy day. This display is on three floors and was free to all. As we entered the large platform looked as if it were far out in the distance with a little ray of light shining through which made it look very beautiful. All about us were flowers of every description. There were beds laid out in many designs. We passed onto a stairway leading to a floor above where an Italian garden was presented by Worcester Garden club. It is a very beautiful feature of this affair. It is modeled after the Villa Curonia at Florence, Italy. In another we noticed a table with a white spread on which stood a very large boquet of anemones, Iceland poppies which were much admired. My cousin called my attention to some old fashioned plants taken from the woods. Those especially had an interest for us, for who doesn't have a liking for every wild flower whose home has been in the country. One of these was jack-in-the-pulpit. That stood very stately and beside this was the pitcher plant. From here we went down stairs into the fruit and vegetable department. There were very nice vegetables considering that they were raised last fall. I think the handsomest display was of apples which were arranged on a table in diamond shape. Among this collection of apples were the Rhode Island greenings and Romes. These were grown in North Grafton. I cannot describe how beautiful these displays are. Anyone must visit it to realize the full beauty of nature.

Omaha Bee: You certainly aroused my curiosity. When I lived in Lincoln, Nebraska, there was a newspaper published by the name of your pen name. My little boy would take one of these papers under his arm and going through the house calling out, "Omaha Bee," playing he was selling papers. I was a resident of that state during that terrible blizzard. After reading your second letter I'm satisfied in my own mind who you are. Youre is a very good idea to send rays of sunshine to these little sick children and I will save small pictures and send them direct to your address. Last winter we were asked to save postals and pictures from canned goods by a lady who had a friend in Africa doing missionary work. My little grandson was so interested that he wanted to help and on stormy days he sat on the floor and cut pictures from old magazines. We had a lot so one day I took them to this lady but she had received so many she didn't want ours. I was a bit disappointed but saved them thinking I might use them some time.

Miss New Jersey: Where are you? Why don't you write to the Corner? Can't you steal a few minutes?

With best wishes to all the Corner readers I am as ever

STRANGER IN THE CITY

"SAGE CHEESE"

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: A short time ago we had a very interesting letter written by Cretia, in which she wrote of Mrs. Morely's and Mrs. Elliott's cheese making. Reading the letter brought to my mind a story told by my mother many years ago, when most farmers made butter and cheese for sale and home consumption.

A certain thrifty farmer's wife made many a cheese. Rich, full milk cheese, skim cheese and a most tasty sage cheese were products of her skilled hands.

With the selling and those used by the family, the stock in the late spring had all disappeared from the cheese room shelf with the exception of one well ripened (which appeared to be) sage cheese.

One day the parish minister called. In those good old days it was customary to serve lunch, which the good house wife did, consisting of home made bread and butter, apple pie, doughnuts and cheese. The preacher relished the lunch very much and was very profuse in his praise, particularly of the cheese, saying, "Mrs. Jones, your sage cheese was most delicious; I never ate any better."

"I am pleased to know that you enjoyed the lunch," said Mrs. Jones, "but to tell you the truth, parson, that wasn't really a sage cheese, as I will tell you.

"One day I had prepared my curd and while it was draining, I wrung the yarn out from my blue dye tub, then turned to do some other chores. The next thing I knew our old sow that was loose in the yard, came into the dairy room, the outside door being open. First, that pesky old sow stuck her nose, into the blue dye tub, then into the cheese curd. It seemed a waste to throw it away so I put it into the press and made the cheese. I thought it would do for the boys to eat."

The minister, however, was the first to sample it. This was a case of where ignorance was bliss.

This was the preacher's next Sunday's theme: "Things are not always what they seem."

QUID NUNC

DEFENDS MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN

Social Corner Members: Just what particular good did it to "By Jingo" to contribute any such letter as that? Truly, we have departed from the ways of Kittie Lou, who wrote such loving, helpful contributions. Her memory will be always with us. Might I also add a wonderfully helpful suggestion that "By Jingo" take a few doses of the never-failing old-fashioned remedy and spring tonic of sulphur and molasses and clear her system of such bilious ideas?

The dear ladies referred to need no defence, they are God's angels, always hovering near, ready to help and do for needy ones. They, many of them like you and I, are making a brave struggle for existance, after having spent more than a half a century in loving care of dear ones, now gone.

In defense of those dear souls, many of them Social Corner members, you hear of the wail of THE BANSHEE.

HAMPTON

The Book club met at Mrs. Alice Hammond's Monday afternoon.

A firemen's meeting was held at town hall Tuesday evening.

Miss Macdonald gave a very interesting talk on "Care of the Skin" to the Hampton group, Wednesday, at the Chapel.

Wednesday evening a joint session of the Missionary and Cottage Prayer meetings was held in the Chapel.

The Dramatic club gave a dance in Grange hall Friday evening.

The Grange whist is planned for this (Saturday) evening.

Not a Secret—Just Common Sense

The neighbors of Mrs. Arthur De Mulle, Grassmere, N. H., were curious to know what medicine she took that "acted like magic" in restoring her health. "No secret at all," she says, "just common sense. I saw Foley Pills diuretic advertised and began taking them. I feel fine now, after 15 years suffering from kidney trouble. I never have a tired feeling, and am active and happy." Men and women everywhere use and recommend Foley Pills diuretic. Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for them. For sale by Lee & Osgood.

BULL FORCES IN MARKET CONTENDED WITH ADVANCES IN CALL MONEY RATE

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—The bull movement on the stock market was forced to hurdle a barrier of a higher money today, but acquitted itself with fair success, after momentary shying away from it. Speculators for the advance, who have grown increasingly aggressive under the stimulating influence of cheap money this week, concluded that the higher charges today would be but temporary.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent, as compared to yesterday's 2 per cent renewal rate, the lowest in years, and advanced successively to 4 and then 4 1-2 per cent, as about $100,000,000 in loans was called. Heavy selling profit taking swept into the market around midday, and bears launched telling drives against a small group of issues. Bulls regained control of the price movement in the late afternoon, however, and closing prices were mostly higher, net gains running from 1 to nearly 8 points in the more active issues. The cross currents of bullish and bearish activity piled up total sales of 4,630,290 shares, the largest day's business since December. The index of 90 leading shares was elevated more than a point further into new high ground since October. The ticker ran 40 minutes after the close.

The tightening of purse strings in the money market was largely attributable to the withdrawal of credit through wiping out of the governments quarterly overdraft at the federal reserve, of which about $70,000,000 remained. Furthermore, banks have been finding the low rates of the last few days unprofitable and were unwilling to place funds over the week-end save at higher rates. A heavy demand for sterling in the foreign exchange market indicated that foreign lenders were also growing dissatisfied with the low rates of return in this money market and withdrawing funds.

With readjustments incident to the mid-month treasury operations completed, bankers predict that call money will settle back to comparatively cheap levels next week, although it probably will not approach the low levels seen this week.

The weekly business and mercantile reviews stressed the stiffening in commodity prices this week as the outstanding favorable development. Trade and industry generally continued to make slow and irregular recovery. Dun's said, "existing conditions point to a gradual and uneven advance rather than a rapid and general upturn."

The market activity centered in several of the old standbys, such as American Telephone and U. S. Steel, both reached new high levels for the recovery in the early trading, slipped back around midday, and rallied toward the close, U. S. Steel reaching its best level in the last hour, at 191, up more than 4 points. Oils were again brought forward in the late trading. About a dozen were sent up to new tops for the year, including Standard of N. J., which touched 69, up 2 5-8. Coca Cola, Electric Auto Lite, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Vanadium, and Warner Bros. were other strong spots, rising 3 points or more. United Carbon sold up 10, and closed up nearly 3. Coppers were generally firmer in response to better sales reports.

National Cash Register joined the group of bear favorites, selling off about 7 points to a new low for the year, to the accompaniment of reports of disappointing sales, and the early necessity of new financing to provide working capital. American Car and Foundry, American Locomotive, Gillette, and Simmons also dropped to new lows for the year or longer. Du Pont and Allied Chemical lost a couple of points in realizing.

Commodities were generally firm, although May corn sold off more than a cent on large offerings. Wheat moved higher, the July position gaining 1 3-8 cents. The movement was helped by better export sales and cold weather. Cotton closed about 30 cents to $1 a bale higher.

Foreign exchanges were generally firm, sterling cables rising 1-4 of a cent to $4.86 3-4.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—Speculators for the advance retained control of the price movement in today's curb market but there were sufficient soft spots scattered throughout the list to give the market the appearance of irregularity most of the time. As a rule, week-end profit taking sales were well absorbed, nearly 50 issues moving to new high levels for the year during the day's trading.

Despite the temporary stiffening in call money, bond prices showed further improvement. The new Royal Dutch 4s were admitted to trading, and sold at a moderate premium above the offering price. Gains of 1 to 4 points were scattered among the other high grade mortgages, with the public utilities making the best group showing.

Oil stocks developed a fresh outburst of strength which sent such issues as Humble, and Standard Oils of Kansas, Ohio and Nebraska, to new 1930 peak prices. Humble crossed 100 for a gain of nearly 6 points. The stock sold as low as 78 this year. Standard Oil of Indiana duplicated the year's high of 54 3-4. Vacuum and Gulf recorded substantial gains but Eureka Pipe Line broke 5 points to a new low. The rally took place in the face of the senate's defeat of a proposed tariff on oil.

Deere & Co. (old stock) was the spectacular individual feature, soaring 20 points to a record high for all time at 565, but losing about a third of its gain on profit taking. The new stock touched a new peak at 136 and then sagged a point. Peoples Drug jumped 10 points to a new top at 64 on a few sales. Educational Pictures preferred ran up 9 1-2 points, and Atlantic & Pacific 8 3-4, on small transactions. Singer Manufacturing broke 8 points and A. O. Smith, which soared to a new high earlier in the week, lost 4 more points on profit-taking.

Several ordinarily inactive public utilities reached new high ground. American Gas & Electric stood out with a gain of 9 points at 272 1-2. Arizona Power, Brazilian Light & Traction, Electric Power & Light optional warrants, Empire Gas & Fuel preferred, Quebec Power, and Sierra Pacific Electric also reached new high ground. Electric Bond & Share closed 1 1-4 points higher at 103 1-2 after having crossed 104, to within a small fraction of the year's top.

Fokker Aircraft advanced more than 2 points to a new high at 24 3-4, or nearly double the year's low. Most of the other airplane issues showed fractional improvement. Douglas duplicating its high of the year.

American Cyanamid attained a new peak and then ran into a heavy volume of profit taking which resulted in a net decline of 1 3-8 points. Babcock & Wilcox broke 5 points. Lehigh Coal & Navigation, New Jersey Zinc, Southwest Dairies and United Chemical prior preferred also were under selling pressure, the last-named breaking 8 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 21—(AP)—Apparent fade out of the southern hemisphere as a big source of breadstuff supplies for Europe put wheat prices on the upgrade today.

It was reported that Argentina has little or no wheat left of good millable quality. Furthermore, Argentine wheat exports this week, and Australian as well, show a huge falling-off in volume as compared with a year ago.

After rising to 3c a bushel higher today than last week's bottom level, Chicago wheat futures closed unsettled, 3-8-1 5-8c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-8-1c down, oats unchanged to 1-2c off, and provisions 5c-15c advanced.

Upturns in wheat values formed the rule here today right from the outset, but top figures reached were not maintained, as the market had to absorb a tremendous amount of selling done for holders who were in a position to realize profits. Reported exhaustion of millable stocks of wheat in Argentina, it was pointed out, were in line with advices current at harvest-time that the Argentine crop contained an unusual percentage of poor, light-weight wheat. Further emphasizing the southern hemisphere situation it was announced that Argentine wheat exports in last week total only 1,487,000 bushels against 5,131,000 bushels at this time last year, and that Australian outshipments for the week were but 1,240,000 bushels compared with 3,616,000 bushels a year ago.

Sharp advances in price today at Liverpool and Buenos Aires were also construed here as significant that countries below the Equator are rapidly passing out of the picture as serious rivals to North America in furnishing wheat to Europe during the remainder of the season. Giving further advantage to the buying side of the market today were persistent crop complaints from parts of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, together with indications of dearth of moisture in hard winter wheat states southwest. Fears were also expressed that the cold snap may prove to have been a severe shock from

THE GIRL FOR THE PART

By DONALD BAYNE HOBART

A YOUNG ACTRESS LEARNS THAT ALL PLOTS AND DRAMA ARE NOT CONFINED TO THE BOARDS BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS

THERE was a faint frown upon Gail Vincent's lovely face as she strolled down the worn steps of the cheap theatrical boarding house. She walked swiftly along 8th avenue and then turned down 47th street. Ahead she could see 7th avenue and beyond that Broadway.

It was a Monday afternoon in midsummer and the whole city sweltered under the heat wave of the last few days. As Gail drew near the corner she saw that a small crowd lingered about the stage door of the Palace theatre. The same curious throng that gathered the first of each week, eager to get a closer glimpse of the vaudeville headliners as they departed after their performance.

There was a faint bit of envy lingering in Gail's thoughts as she turned down Broadway. All about her were names of stars upon the signs in front of the theatres. Names that with the coming of night would be part of the bright glitter of electric lights which had brought to Broadway the name of the Great White Way. They did not have to walk around in casting agencies and managers' offices. At least, not day after day, as Gail Vincent had found herself doing all summer long.

GAIL suddenly realized that she was very tired. Tired of walking, hoping someone would give her a part and finding each time that there was nothing for her. She was tired of living in her stuffy hall bedroom in the theatrical boarding house. The summer season was always a poor one for an actress, particularly one who had played nothing but minor roles during the few years she had been on the stage. Gail had found this summer exceptionally bad.

Now she was on her way to see Jake Madden. He at least had always seemed friendly. Perhaps he might have a part for her today. Madden was the head of one of the biggest casting agencies in the business. As she turned into the building in which his office was located Gail grew more hopeful. Perhaps today would be different from all the rest.

As Gail entered the waiting room of the office her heart sank. The place appeared to be filled with performers. Actors and actresses of all types sat about the room, eagerly waiting to have a word with Madden.

But it was the quietly dressed, good-looking young man who casually scribbled down names whom Gail found most interesting. The girl liked the friendly way he looked at her as he heard her give her name to the stenographer. As she took an empty chair Gail found herself wondering who he might be.

The telephone on the stenographer's desk rang softly. She picked up the receiver, listened for a moment and then said: "Yes, sir." She glanced out at those in the room. Every one was watching her eagerly now, hoping that his or her name might be called.

"Mr. Madden will see you now, Mr. Dutton," the stenographer announced.

The young man whom Gail has found interesting rose and moved toward the door of Madden's private office. In a moment he had entered and closed the door behind him.

Gail thought swiftly as she heard the name. Dutton—there was something very familiar about it. Why of course—how stupid of her—he was David Dutton, the playwright. He had already had two big successes on Broadway during the last season. Gail had seen both plays, but this was the first time she had ever seen the man who had written them.

Dutton apparently had a great deal to talk over with Madden, for nearly a half an hour went by before he reappeared. As he passed her on his way out Dutton glanced again at Gail. There seemed to be something like disappointment in that quick glance.

Again the stenographer answered the phone.

"Mr. Madden will see you now, Miss Vincent," she said casually.

Gail rose and moved toward the manager's office. She was conscious of the angry glances of the other performers as she did so. She knew quite well that every one of them considered himself or herself far more important than she was and that they were greatly annoyed at Madden's seeing her before he interviewed them.

"Good morning, Jake." Madden glanced up from his desk as she entered his private office. He motioned toward a chair close by. "Sit down, sweetheart," he said. "I just been talking about you to Dutton."

"Yes?" Gail tried to keep the eagerness from her tone. "I hope you were saying nice things, Jake."

"Well," Madden stared at her across his massive flat-topped mahogany desk, "I don't know as you'd like it so much."

"What do you mean?"

"I like to help everybody all that I can, but, well, I had to tell Dutton I didn't think you would do for the part he had in mind."

"You mean that you—that there was a chance of my getting a part—and you wouldn't help me?" demanded Gail nervously.

"Yes." Madden nodded. "Dutton's got to have some one that's more experienced for the role. I told him that you wouldn't do—I was afraid."

"Oh, Jake——" Gail's voice was almost a wail. "And you know that I need a part—any sort of a part—so badly."

"Sure that's what they all tell me," Madden laughed. "But they got to be good or there ain't much doing—not at this time of the year."

"But, Jake, why didn't you think that I could handle the part?"

For a moment Madden sat gazing at her before he spoke. She had not realized until this morning that there was something a little gross about his round, flabby face. How red and stickily damp it appeared, for Madden, like the rest of the city's population, now sweltered under the oppressive heat of the torrid August day.

"The trouble with you, sweetheart," he said in his deep, guttural voice, "is you can't act—that's all!" Apparently he detected an expression of resentment upon her face, for he went on hastily: "Now, now, sweetheart, don't get me wrong! I'm just telling you for your own good." His eyes sped over her appraisingly. "You got looks and you're a swell dresser, but you gotta have more than that to get by these days."

"And that was what you told Mr. Dutton—that I couldn't act?" demanded Gail. "How do you know? I've never had a chance! All I've ever been given since I've been on the stage have been just bits—parts that no one could have got any more out of than I did. I can show you notices from the newspapers that say that I played my roles well."

"Maybe," Madden nodded. "I'm not arguing about that. But Dutton simply can't take any chance with his new show—and I told him so."

"Then there is nothing for me today, Jake?" asked Gail in a resigned tone of voice. She knew that it was useless to argue with a man of Madden's type. "Is that it?"

"Oh, I don't know," Madden said slowly. "The profession is crowded, but maybe—" he paused and looked thoughtful.

"Maybe what, Jake?" Gail asked eagerly.

"Nothing," he smiled at her. "I was just thinking—influence—that's what a girl needs to get along." He gazed at her intently. "I could do a lot for a girl who treated me right. Maybe make a star out of her, even!" He lowered his voice. "Listen, sweetheart, I'm gonna take a little trip to Atlantic City over the weekend. How'd you like to come along? Then maybe we could kinda talk things over."

AFTERWARD Gail was rather pleased to realize that she had heard him calmly. She did not even bother to let him see how insultingly offensive his suggestion was to her. She merely smiled as she rose to go.

"No thanks, Jake," she said. "You're ringing the wrong number—that's out!"

"All right, sweetheart." He had such an oily smile. "I'll let you know if anything turns up—by-by!"

As Gail once more found herself out on the street she realized that she was very weary of it all. The Jake Maddens, even though there were few of them in the profession, with their eternal "sweetheart" for every one they knew. She was tired, also of the other managers who did not even bother to see her, merely sending word that there was nothing for her.

Gail glanced about her. She felt that it would be useless to make any more efforts at finding a part today; she wanted a change from it all. She wanted to get away from the boarding house at which she dwelt. An idea struck her—it was a wild chance, but she would try it, anyway—anything would be better than the way things were going at present.

The girl was very pretty and exceptionally well dressed. These facts registered in the mind of the room clerk of the National hotel as the girl strolled up to the desk. She was followed by a pouter-breasted little bellboy who carried a shining black leather hatbox and a traveling case of the same material.

The girl registered and asked for a room with a bath in a casual softly modulated voice. As he heard her the room clerk, who flattered himself upon being an excellent judge of the fair sex, came to a conclusion. It was that she was a very pretty girl, and he was in a position to have seen many beautiful women.

When he suggested one of the best rooms in the house and mentioned the price her indifferent nod of acceptance increased his admiration. Fourteen dollars a day was pretty steep, even for a room with a bath in the National, but the young lady had not displayed the slightest concern. Apparently money was the least of her worries. With that remarkable ability which room clerks possess for reading things upside down, he glanced at the name which she had scrawled upon the register. "Miss Gail Vincent, Fairview, Fla.," he saw she had written.

"The boy will show you to your room, Miss Vincent," the clerk said, as he handed the key to the bellboy. "I hope you will find everything satisfactory."

"Thank you," Gail smiled at him sweetly, impersonally. As she turned toward the elevator she did not observe the young man who sat in an easy-chair in a corner of the lobby. But he had seen her—and as the elevator took her up to the fifth floor the young man rose and strolled casually over to the desk and talked to the room clerk.

WHEN the bellboy had gone, grinning pleasantly over the tip which he had received, Gail sat down weakly in the nearest chair. So far she had carried out her wild idea. She sighed as she gazed about her at the aloof air of comfort which the gray pastel-shaded room possessed. It was so nice and restful if only she could stay!

Slowly she opened her purse and examined its contents, although she already knew quite well just what she would find. A handkerchief, a vanity case a black-and-white cigarette holder, a smart silver cigarette case, a little over a dollar in change and a lone $5 bill was all the purse contained. Her groping fingers encountered something round and hard, and she drew it out. It was her mother's wedding ring. Ever since her mother had died, five years before, Gail had always carried it—for luck.

A wry smile passed over the girl's face as she realized that the money was every cent that she possessed. Fourteen dollars a day! The room clerk downstairs would not have been so affable had he known.

Gail decided that she did not care very much. She was weary of the old boarding house and all that went with it. Now that the step had been taken, she felt rather elated over her wild decision to spend at least one week in luxury. She realized she was taking a desperate chance, but it did not matter. She knew from the way the room clerk had acted that she had carried out her bluff. Now she was sure that she might safely remain at the hotel until her bill was due. After that she did not know just what would happen. She realized that the management might put her in jail for attempting to defraud them, but at the moment she felt rather indifferent about it. She did no intend to cross that bridge until she reached it. Now, for one short week, she meant to live, and to live well—that was all that mattered.

IT HAD grown dark now and Gail drew down the shades and switched on the lights. As she did so, she noticed that one of the end windows of her room faced out upon the fire-escape.

The heat of the exceptionally warm day still lingered. The thought of a refreshing cool bath appealed to her. She removed her hat and stood for an instant gazing at her reflection in the gray framed glass of the bureau. She saw a tall, slender, blue-eyed girl whose blond hair curled about her lovely, piquant face.

Gail smiled at her reflection. "We're going to live, old girl," she said softly.

Swiftly she placed her black traveling case upon the bed and began to unpack, humming a gay little song as she did so.

She started the water for her bath and then returned to the room and began to undress. When she had finished she flung a gayly colored silk kimono about her and headed for the tub. She found the water invigorating and refreshing. It was with reluctance that she finally left the bath and returned to the other room.

SHE barely repressed a scream as she entered. Near the door stood a wild-eyed young man. His heavy black hair was rumpled and there was a strange, tense look upon his rather handsome face. He was staring at her intently. Gail drew her kimono closer about her slender form and returned the gaze.

"Oh, go on—say it!" commanded the man impatiently.

"What are you doing here?" Gail demanded.

"I knew it! Why can't women be original? That 'what-are-you-doing-here?' line is so ancient!"

"Who are you?" asked Gail nervously.

"Paul Decker," the black-haired man laughed bitterly. "Not that it matters, but that's my name!"

"Well, Mr. Decker," said Gail coldly, "how did you get in my room?"

"Opened the door and walked in."

"Oh, I forgot to lock it."

"Evidently." Decker reached behind him and turned the key. "Now that's done!"

He glared at her as though he expected her to rush to the door and try to unlock it, but Gail did not move from where she stood.

"How dare you!" she stormed. "If you don't get out of here at once, I'll scream!"

"Go ahead," Decker sneered. "Scream your head off. I don't care. Nothing matters to me any more—nothing!" There was a desperate note of finality in his voice.

Gail looked at him in wonder as she heard his words. He was young, well dressed and seemed to be the type of man who would find everything in life that might be an interesting adventure.

"No," he repeated slowly. "Nothing matters."

"I judged that when I found you here in my room," said Gail. "You don't seem quite the type for this sort of thing."

"Meaning just what?" demanded Decker.

"The locked door and all this cheap movie-villain effect that you create in my mind now."

"Oh, is that so!"

Slowly Decker moved closer, his eyes fixed intently upon Gail. The girl moved quickly over to the phone which stood beside the bed. She picked up the instrument.

"If you don't leave this room at once I'll phone for the police!" she said, watching him tensely.

"All right, phone!" Paul Decker smiled weirdly as he produced a small automatic from his pocket. "And when they get here we'll both be dead!"

"Oh! You must be mad—insane." Gail shuddered as she slowly put the telephone down her eyes upon the weapon in Decker's hand.

"I am mad!" said Decker, edging toward her as he spoke. "Since that moment I first saw you down in the lobby I've wanted you——" he paused and stood smiling at her.

As they stood there staring at each other, neither of them heard the screen in the window which faced the fire-escape being cautiously raised.

"Scream and we both die," murmured Decker.

"I'd rather," said Gail wildly, glancing about her for some means of escape. "I—oh, don't—"

Abruptly, the black-haired man leaped forward, dropping the automatic into his pocket as he did so. He held her tight now, one arm close about her, while with the other hand he lifted her chin as he sought her lips.

Gail was limp now—and frightened. She did not struggle, for she felt that to do so would be useless. This man was stronger—far stronger than she had realized when she had first seen him.

"As I say——" murmured Decker. "Nothing matters!"

"Maybe th' dame don't like your say!" said a harsh voice from behind him.

Decker swiftly released the girl. He turned to find himself scowling into the hard eyes of a man who had just entered from the window on the fire escape. The latter was a small, stocky individual who wore a black silk handkerchief tied over the lower portion of his face and a cap pulled down over his forehead.

"A burglar, eh!" exclaimed Decker. "Is that it?"

"Ain't you th' good guesser!" came through the handkerchief. "Jumpin' snakes—what'd ya figure I was—a radio announcer?"

For a moment Decker stood scowling as he gazed at the other man. The man burglar watched him tensely, ready for any sudden move on the other's part.

Gail had moved a short distance away from the two men and she was listening nervously as she gazed from one to the other. She felt that something drastic might happen at any moment, and she did not know just what it might be.

"A burglar, eh!" repeated Decker slowly. "Well, you won't find anything here worth while!"

"Aw, I don't know about that!" The burglar glanced at Gail. "You did, mister!"

"None of your wise ones!" Decker suddenly covered the burglar with his automatic. "I ought to turn you over to the police!"

"Yea?" the masked man laughed sardonically. "I been listening outside th' window." He looked at Decker. "I know just where you fits in the picture. An' listen, Bo! Most jails has room for more than one—get me?"

"Get out!" commanded Decker, but to the watching girl he appeared nervous now, as though he realized that the burglar spoke the truth. It would not be easy to explain his presence in the room.

"Uh, huh," said the burglar. "Who jumped th' last time you pulled that one?" His tone grew hard. "Listen, I ain't handin' myself no flowers, but I'll say there ain't no one that can say Slick Hannigan ever tried to pull off any crude stuff with a dame——"

"What do you mean?" demanded Decker. He glanced at Gail. "Why——"

"He's lying!" said Gail quickly, looking scornfully at Decker. "I never saw him before in my life!"

"Sure, I know it," remarked Hannigan. "An' I'll bet you ain't gonna lose any sleep if you never sees him again." He glanced at the other man and then again at Gail. "Lady, it looks like you needs a chaperon, an' such as it is, I'm it!"

"Oh, is that so!" growled Decker, glaring at the burglar. "You're too fresh!" His tone grew ominous. "Listen, Mr. Slick Hannigan, if you don't get out of here, quick I'm going to put a bullet in your heart and say it was self-defense!"

"Don't worry, Bo!" Hannigan snarled. "You try it an' it will be! I've had you covered from my pocket all the time—I ain't taking any chances!"

For an instant Hannigan turned as Gail uttered a startled cry. As he so the automatic in Decker's hand barked. The little burglar staggered. As he dropped, the gun in his pocket roared. Decker groaned and fell face downward beside the bed.

GAIL never knew how long she stood there gazing widly at the two still forms on the floor. Finally it dawned upon her that there was some one knocking loudly and insistently upon the locked door of the room. Slowly she moved over to it and turned the key and drew the door halfway open. A big, heavy-set man stood in the hall, a black cigar in one corner of his mouth.

"Just want to warn you this is a first-class hotel," he growled. "You can't get away with that stuff here!"

"What do you mean?" asked Gail, looking at him in astonishment.

"Aw, don't pull that innocent stuff." The man's tone was impatient. "I'm the house detective, see! I seen you register an' you was alone. Little while later I'm going down th' hall, and I seen a man walk into your room. What's the answer?"

Gail hesitated an instant before she spoke. She felt sure that if she told the truth the detective would not believe her. The walls were thick and the early theatre traffic was passing in the street below. Apparently he had not heard the shots or as yet observed the two men on the floor behind her.

"We've been very foolish, my husband and I!" said Gail slowly, looking at the detective appealingly. "We were on our honeymoon. Today we quarreled over some foolish little thing. I don't evne remember what it was now, but we grew very bitte rit must have been the heat that made us so nasty. Anyway, David left me and went out for a walk. While he was gone I packed my things and moved to this hotel. I just wanted to teach him a lesson, for I do love him so. He found out where I had gone and came after me." Gail's voice broke. "And now—now he's dead!"

"Dead!" exclaimed the house detective, a startled expression upon his heavy face. "What do you mean?"

Gail drew the door open wide. The big man gasped and then entered the room quickly. He went from one to the other of the two men on the floor and examined them.

"They're still breathing," he said. "I better get the doctor right away." He glared at the girl. "And if you know what's good for you then you better tell me what happened—quick!"

"My husband found me—and then the burglar came in through the window and they fired at each other!"

"Huh! This husband stuff sounds like a lot of bunk to me!" The detective glanced at Gail's slender hands. "Where's your wedding ring?"

FOR an instant Gail appeared confused. Then she went swiftly to her handbag and produced a shining little gold band.

"Here it is," she said slipping her mother's wedding ring on her finger. "Now will you believe me! Please, please get the doctor! My—my husband may be dying!"

"All right!" The detective dashed from the room, closing the door behind him. As he did so Paul Decker got to his feet. He was smiling in a very friendly fashion.

"Well played, Miss Vincent," he remarked calmly. "I told Jake Madden that he was wrong. I was sure you'd prove an excellent actress in an emotional part if you were given the opportunity."

"Really?" Gail smiled. "And you've given my acting ability such a splendid opportunity during the last half hour or so, Mr. David Dutton!"

"What?" A look of amazement passed over the black-haired man's face. "You knew that I was a playwright all the time?"

"Yes, from the first moment you entered the room I knew you were David Dutton, who has written a number of Broadway successes!"

"You did?" Dutton smiled. "That's great, Miss Vincent—that makes it all the better to know that you've really been acting all the time. This whole thing has been a scene from my new play—and I was very anxious to see just how realistic it could be worked out. I must admit that your bit about the husband and the quarrel and all was very good. I shall write that in the script, if you don't mind. It's just the twist that I have needed."

"But why did you go to the trouble to play this little bit of drama with me?" demanded Gail.

"Because you are just the type that I want for my leading lady in the play. Some one who is very charming and lovely—and can really act. You just suited the mental picture I had of the one to play the part when I saw you in Madden's office this morning."

"And he told you that I couldn't act," said Gail bitterly.

"Yes, he did," Dutton nodded. "I was very much disappointed, though I didn't quite believe him. This evening I saw you as you registered here. It was then that I made up my mind to try you out—see just what you would do under the same circumstances as the heroine in the play."

"You certainly put it across all right," remarked the burglar as he got to his feet and removed his mask. "You're an actress, Miss Vincent—there's no doubt about that!"

"Thank you," said Gail as she glanced from Dutton to Hannigan. "But I must admit I was rather relieved when this gentleman appeared." She smiled. "You were a bit impetuous, Mr. Dutton!"

"That's handing it to you, Dave," the man who had called himself Slick Hannigan laughed. "Does she get that leading role?"

"She certainly does if she wants it," said Dutton, turning to Gail. "But what I don't understand is how you knew me."

"I saw you in Jake Madden's office this morning," Gail laughed. "And I'm so glad you saw me, too!

"Yes," she went on softly. "This seems to be my lucky day! If you will give me half an hour to dress I'll be very glad to discuss that part with you, Mr. Dutton!"

"Curtain!" said the small man, moving toward the door.

"Oh, Mr.-er, Hannigan," remarked Gail sweetly. "Your performance was splendid, but just a slight bit artificial. I don't believe that burglars off-stage or on are using 'Bo' this season," she smiled. "And the man who played the house detective was very good, too—but really don't you think it would be more true to life to have him phone down for the doctor instead of leaving the—ah—bodies?"

"Boy, these blondes!" said Hannigan, grinning. "Come on, Dave—that's our exit line!"

"Right," Dave Dutton bowed to the girl. "I'm so glad I was right, Miss Vincent," he smiled. "Say, you're a real trouper. I'll be waiting in the lobby to take you to dinner and discuss that part."

As the door closed Gail Vincent continued to smile. The game of bluff was very intriguing if one played it with her eyes open. Then she sighed softly. David Dutton was so nice that she was a bit sorry that the burglar had entered on his cue so promptly. To have been kissed just once would not have been so very distasteful. She smiled—she had been right. This was her lucky day.

LEVEL LANDS IN IOWA ATTRIBUTED TO GLACIERS

IOWA CITY, Ia. (AP)—Whatever built the state of Iowa originally, it was ice which smoothed it off finally to its present fertile levels.

Five times, in as many different glacial periods, ice came sliding over Iowa, cutting, gouging, but in the main leveling, says Dr. George F. Kay of the University of Iowa.

Wind blown dust and sand helped in the leveling process between glacial periods. All this took probably hundreds of thousands and possibily millions of years, Dr. Kay says.

BOND MARKET

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 21—(AP)—A stiffening in money rates brought a lighter demand for bonds today and prices of most of the leaders in the recent bull market eased in a day of mixed trading. Declines were rather persistent in the railroad division, where losses averaged half a point.

Call of about $100,000,000 in loans brought a 3 percent call money renewal rate. This was later raised to 4 and eventually to 4 1-2. Time funds likewise hardened about a quarter of one per cent. In view of this trend bonds offered less attraction, although there was still a fair inquiry for some of the speculative listings.

Despite the general strength in stocks, convertibles were only firm. The outstanding exception was the American Telephone issue which closed at 166 3-4, a new 1930 high, up 2 1-2 points. Early in the session the bond touched 168. Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s were firm on the day's largest turnover. International Telephone 4 1-2s lost a point in an unusually small volume of sales.

Investment rails which had been bid to peak levels in the Thursday trading were much less popular and an average loss of half a point came out in a broad list. Santa Fe general 4s sold up to 96, a new top, but then eased to 95 1-4, off 1-2.

Declines of about the same proportion developed in Canadian Pacific 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, New Haven 4 1-2s, Pere Marquette 4 1-2s, Union Pacific first 4s, St. Louis San Francisco 4 1-2s and Southern Pacific 4s. Morris & Essex 4 1-2s dropped a point and Southern Railway general 4s lost 1 1-2.

A few utilities scored fair gains, lifting the average for that group to a new high for the year. Utah Power & Light 5s, Postal Telegraph 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s and Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s gained ground, the first named rising a point. Investment industrials were quiet. Bethlehem Steel Purchase Money 5s and Wheeling Steel 5 1-2s were firm spots. Amusement company bonds turned heavy.

United States governments closed lower. The decline in the case of the Treasury 3 3-4s amounted to 21-32 of a point, while the 3 3-8s lost 1-2. Others were steadier.

Profit taking caused some irregularity in the foreigns, although some of the South Americans, notably listings of Brazil, continued strong. Australia 5s rose more than a point. Belgian bonds were firm.

The day's new issues included two oil company loans, both of which attracted oversubscriptions. The larger of the two was the $40,000,000 Royal Dutch company debenture 4 at 89 1-2. Union Oil of California sold a $15,000,000 issue of debenture 5s at 97 1-2.

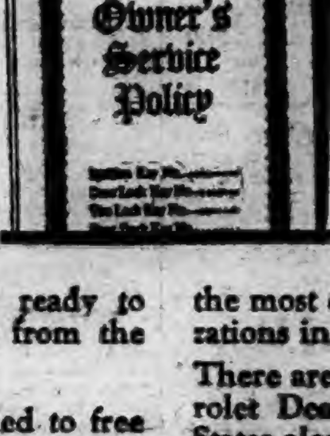
Chevrolet announces

A NEW SERVICE POLICY



The Chevrolet Motor Company and its nation-wide dealer organization are pleased to announce a new and broader service policy—one of the most liberal ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

Put into force as a written and signed agreement given to the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the car is delivered—it offers the following provisions:

1 Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted, and ready to operate with maximum efficiency from the very first mile of ownership.

2 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage.

3 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1000 miles thereafter, so long as the car is in operation.

4 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part which may prove defective in workmanship or material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty. This includes both parts and labor.

5 Provision number 4 will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. As a result, the Chevrolet owner may travel to any part of the country, with assurance that the guarantee on materials and workmanship will remain in force.

This new policy constitutes definite proof of Chevrolet's high quality—for such liberal provisions could only be made in connection with a car built of fine materials to exacting standards of workmanship.

Back of this policy, and assuring its successful operation, is one of the most complete and efficient service organizations in the world.

There are more than 10,000 Authorized Chevrolet Dealer Service Stations in the United States alone. Each employs skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet Service Schools. Each has specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. And each has on hand, at all times, an adequate stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts.

As a result, Chevrolet's flat-rate charges, including both parts and labor, are the lowest in the industry on many service operations!

In considering the purchase of a low-priced automobile, think what this service means—in terms of lasting satisfaction, as well as in increased economy.

VOLUNTOWN

Friday evening Union hall proved far too small to accommodate the crowd that assembled to greet the Rose City Dramatic club, of Norwich, on its annual visit to town to present a comedy in three acts entitled "A Hasty Adventure," for the benefit of St. Thomas' Catholic church. In the crowd were delegations from Norwich, Plainfield, Jewett City and Glasgo. This audience, of over 300, seemed to be greatly pleased with the work of the cast, and was unstinted in applause. The work of the company of players was in keeping with their usual high standard and the amusing situations kept the big audience laughing or applauding. During the evening a $70 gold watch was awarded Louis Button Jr. of Glasgo. Father John D. Carey, pastor of St. Thomas' and his parishioners were greatly pleased with the result and greatly appreciate the generous spirit shown by these players from Norwich in coming here at their own expense and putting on this splendid entertainment for the benefit of the church. They have been coming for several years and their coming is always looked forward to by the town people for they always given a good show, hence their great reception Friday evening.

TAFTVILLE

MEN'S CLUB HEAR ADDRESS BY DR. MALCOLM DANA

Dr. Malcolm Dana, professor at Yale university and the Hartford Theological seminary and representative of the Congregational church extension board was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church held Thursday evening in the church vestry. There was a very large attendance, and those present listened to a very instructive and interesting address on "Changing America" by Dr. Dana, who was introduced by Albert Airey, president of the club.

Dr. Dana stated that he was born in Norwich where his father was pastor of Park Congregational church at one time. He spoke in interesting manner about three sections of this country with which he was familiar and which he has visited in his work. He spent 20 years in Iowa and Minnesota, and told of the change the west has experienced since the war; how agricultural methods have changed because of modern machinery. He told of the great co-operative associations that the farmers have built up, there now being 12,000 such organizations with 2,000,000 members. These organizations did $2,000,000,000 worth of business last year.

In the south, he said, there is a great industrial development under way. If the mills south of the Mason-Dixon line were placed in a straight row only a mile apart, they would stretch from Atlanta to New York without a break. The southland can raise enough to keep everybody in the country clothed, fed and housed. Two thirds of the rural churches are there, and two thirds of rural America is in the south. But last year the largest group at Yale were Southern Methodists.

Dr. Dana stated that it was his opinion that in New England the job which confronts us is to remake a new New England, and it will be a hard job. He told of some of the rural churches in our own state, and not 10 miles from some of them we have slums which will equal any in New York, Chicago or Boston. The enterprising folks have moved out on to the state roads, and in some of our country districts we find a spiritual illiteracy equal to the illiteracy of the southern mountains. The speaker gave interesting figures showing the foreign population residing here, and how the American of tomorrow would be a blend of many strains, and the stock is not suffering from intermarrying, either.

Dr. Dana closed his address with a plea for a better understanding of the foreigner, many, he said, who came from lands with civilizations older than ours. Allow them to bring us what they have to bring, he asked, and give them the best that we have to give. Don't make America sectarian, but make better Methodists, Congregationalists, Catholics and Jews. We must be equal to the hour in which we live—even in a changing America.

At the close of the address, the speaker was given a rising vote of thanks. At the business meeting at which President Airey presided, a number of business items came up for consideration, and it was decided to have a supper at the April meeting. The supper committee includes Allan Bogle, Albert J. Aberg, Gustave Hedler, Robert B. Schmidt and Adam Heinrich.

After the meeting refreshments of doughnuts and coffee were served by Earl Mathewson, Howard Kloss, Forrest Heinrich, Edwin Heap, James Heap, Clayton Sharples, Curtis Hedler, Albert Edward Airey and Ralph Hunt.

Under the auspices of Peter Gallan post, No. 104, American Legion, the Rainbow minstrels of the First Evangelical Lutheran church of Norwich presented a most entertaining and tuneful show at Ponemah hall before a large audience Wednesday evening. Snappy music and clever jokes, which included many local "hits" combined to make the performance most enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Atkins, of South Second avenue, were in Mansfield early in the week to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Porter Staebner and family.

Edward T. Fenley of Providence, R. I., has been calling on friends in the village this week.

Local dealers are featuring window displays of fishing tackle in anticipation of the opening of the trout fishing season.

Mrs. William Bailey has returned to her home on Fanning avenue, Norwich, after a brief visit this week with Mrs. Joseph Wood of the Old Canterbury turnpike.

NORWICH TOWN

A special musical Lenten service was held Thursday evening at the First Congregational chapel, under the direction of Herbert L. Yerrington, chorister, assisted by members of the church choir, Misses Bernice Underwood, Louise Sterry, Eleanor Smith, Eleanor Moore and Frank E. Sterry, Clyde M. Beebe and Oscar Heinrich. This program, which opened with a violin solo by Theodore Sterry, "Goodnight," by Nevin, took the place of the regular mid-week service. There were readings by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, with responsive singing by the choir. Rev. Mr. Bailey also read a poem referring to the hymn, Jesus, Lover of My Soul. Miss Eleanor Smith read the story of When I Survey the Wondrous Cross, after which the choir responded by singing that hymn; while Miss Louise Sterry read the story of Jesus, Lover of My Soul, followed by the choir singing the hymn. Other hymns included O God, Whose Law from Age to Age, O Brother Man, Fold to Thy Heart, Draw Thou My Soul, O Christ, and Breathe on the Breath of God, besides several other familiar hymns. The choir did practically all in translating this special program, which not only involved much responsive singing; but there also were several brief prayers, as well as about 15 hymns sung. Mr. Sterry also accompanied on the violin for the hymns. There was an attendance of about 45. The closing hymn was Jesus, Lover of My Soul, after which Rev. Mr. Bailey pronounced the benediction. The service for next week is to be in charge of the Young People's C. E. society, assisted by members of the Junior C. E. society.

"The Truce of God"

Sunday night in the Methodist Episcopal church the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter is to deliver a book sermon on Mary Roberts Rinehart's story, "The Truce of God." Lloyd Thompson, a popular church singer, will be the soloist. The Junior vested choir will also sing. The service is at 7:30 and is public.

PRIEST FROM POMFRET TO BE RECTOR AT ST. MARY'S MEMORIAL CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 21—Rev. George J. Donahue, well known Catholic preacher and orator, author and journalist; one of the best known priests in Hartford diocese, and for the past five years pastor of Holy Trinity church at Pomfret and Sacred Heart mission church at West Thompson, was on Monday appointed by Bishop John J. Nilan to succeed the late Rev. William A. Keefe, as pastor of St. Mary's church, Norwich. Father Donahue made announcement of his transfer today in a statement to The Bulletin.

REV GEORGE J. DONAHUE

The appointment of Father Donahue as successor to Father Keefe, came as a complete surprise to his hosts of friends in the Hartford diocese. Parishioners of Father Donahue today extended their congratulatory messages to him, wishing him success and happiness in his new and larger field, although deeply affected by the fact that he is to leave his first pastoral charge where he has labored devotedly for nearly five years. Father Donahue said today that he will be at St. Mary's in Norwich for the celebration of his first mass there on Passion Sunday, April 6.

Father Donahue is a native of Meriden, Conn. His early education was obtained in St. Rose's parochial school and at Meriden high school. His decision to follow a life in the clergy, led him to enter the then new Catholic institution, St. Thomas seminary in Hartford in 1897. He was graduated a member of the first class in 1902. He was abroad to Issy, near Paris, France, where he made his studies in philosophy. Completing his foreign studies, Father Donahue returned to his native country broken down in health and on the verge of giving up his ecclesiastical calling. After a long struggle in which he was victorious in the fight to regain his health and strength, he at length returned to his studies, entering St. Mary's seminary in Baltimore, Maryland, where he completed his studies in theology. Upon his return to Connecticut, in company with other young American students, he was raised to the priesthood by the late Rt. Rev. Michael Tierney, bishop of the diocese, at ordination ceremonies at Hartford on December 20, 1907. His first assignment was to St. Edward's church in Stafford Springs, after which he was transferred as a curate to St. Mary's in East Hartford and later to St. Augustine's in Bridgeport, one of the largest parishes in the state.

Following the death of Rev. John J. Elty, on May 16, 1924, Father Donahue was chosen by Bishop Nilan, for his zeal and ability, to succeed the beloved country pastor at Pomfret. His assignment to Holy Trinity church in Pomfret constituted his first pastoral charge.

Since taking over the duties of pastor at the two country churches, Father Donahue with the undivided cooperation of his parishioners has effected many noteworthy improvements to the edifices and the church rectory in Pomfret.

Shortly before coming to Pomfret, Father Donahue turned his efforts to a career as an author and his pen has produced to date four lovely specimens of English literature, the best known of which are "Damien and Reform" and "Cardinal Newman," the latter having a large following in the literary world. The other works are, "Books and Their Spiritual Value" and "The Poetry of The Mass." Father Donahue is at present engaged in writing another book which he hopes to complete this year.

During his years as a curate Father Donahue found time to devote to journalism. For ten years he was a regular contributor to the Catholic Transcript, the weekly organ of the diocese. So powerful and masterly was he in his writings, that his merits were at once recognized by the leading clergyman of the diocese resulting in his being offered the editorial chair of the "Transcript," which he refused at the time because of his impaired health.

Father Donahue is well known for his brilliancy in oratory. Whether in the pulpit or on the speakers' stand, the priest is always at his best—eloquent and inspiring. His free flow of words and unusual command of English elicits the praise of large congregations and audiences wherever he is scheduled to speak. He is in constant demand as a speaker at public and private gatherings and only last Sunday evening preached an eloquent sermon at St. Patrick's church in Hartford which was crowded to its doors.

Father Donahue's paramount interests outside of his priestly duties are centered in the literary world. His beautiful library at his home in Pomfret is a haven of rest for book lovers who are able to find works of the world's greatest literary men on its shelves.

Father Donahue was highly elated when he learned of his appointment to St. Mary's in Norwich. He appeared jovial and happy at his home this afternoon and during an interview he told a Bulletin reporter, "I'm going to Norwich, not to succeed Father Keefe, but simply to follow him."

Aside from his spiritual work, which is always paramount in Father Donahue's daily routine, he finds much enjoyment in his associations with boys and is an interested observer of all sporting events. He is an ardent boxing fan and his interest in the sport is largely responsible for the success of one of Connecticut's former champions.

People of Putnam are numbered among his many friends and they together with the members of the Pomfret and West Thompson parishes realize the importance of the post he has been called upon to fill, but nevertheless will deeply regret his departure from the country parish in which he has labored so zealously for the last five years.

FOUR DIVORCES GRANTED IN SUPERIOR COURT

Mrs. Hortense Gordon Dean of Hartford was given a divorce from Irving Dean, concessionaire at Ocean Beach, by Judge Christopher L. Avery at the short calendar session of the superior court at New London, Friday morning. The decree was granted on grounds of cruelty.

They were married April 10, 1927, and have been separated since last summer. Mrs. Dean, who comes from a wealthy New York family, testified that her husband nagged her and failed to furnish a home, preferring to live in furnished apartments and with relatives. She said that as a result of his treatment she became depressed and nervous. She was also given permission to change her name to Hortense Gordon.

Was In Princess Pat Outfit

In another of the three divorces granted by Judge Avery, James C. Dunn of Waterford, a hero of the World war as one of seven survivors of the famous Princess Pat outfit of the Canadian expeditionary forces, was granted a divorce from Alberta B. Card Dunn of Little Rock, Ark., on grounds of desertion. They were married at Toronto, Can., just before Dunn left for France in 1914, and desertion was alleged since Dec. 4, 1924. Mr. Dunn, who is on a disability pension, has made his home in Waterford for the past eight years.

Divorce For Taftville Woman

Amelia Gregory Rivest of Taftville was given her freedom from Dezil Rivest of Preston on grounds of desertion. She was also given the custody of two minor children. They were married Jan. 7, 1909.

Two other uncontested divorce cases went off the list. In one Rollin E. Rathbun of Noank seeks annulment of his marriage to Elsie Judd Rathburn of Groton on March 22, 1921, claiming that the defendant was married and undivorced at the time he married her.

In the other, Julianna Ruszenas of Griswold seeks her freedom from John Ruszenas of Griswold on grounds of cruelty.

In connection with this paper beautiful photographs of many foreign and American gardens were shown.

A question box added to the interest, and garden problems were discussed informally.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A half century ago this week, the City Brass Band, well remembered by many of the older residents of the city, was planning its second concert and ball which was held at Breed hall. The same week announcement was made that through the efforts of the chief engineer of the, then, volunteer fire department, the Firemen's Benefit society had been organized. Interesting extracts from the files of The Bulletin of March, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, March 15, 1880—Mr. Buckingham, who is to lecture under the auspices of the Prisoner's Union, next Friday evening, was an inmate of Andersonville and Libby prisons. He is to give an account of his capture and escape together with a history of the sufferings of himself and his associates. Tickets can be had at Noyes' and Davis'.

The neighborhood of Ward street was alarmed Saturday night by the wild behaviour and murderous threats of a young man infuriated by liquor. A repetition of te performance will insure his arrest.

Miss Katie Tabor, who has a contralto voice of extraordinary volume and sweetness is singing very acceptably in the choir of the East Main street M. E. church, where she will continue until April 1st.

The City Brass band are to give their second concert and ball next Monday evening at Breed hall.

The new coal elevator at the railroad wharf was operated for the first time Saturday, in unloading a barge. It worked like a charm.

Tuesday, March 16, 1880 — The changeable spring weather is very trying to the veterans of the interstate rebellion. Several of them are suffering with the ague, who have not been before attacked by it for years.

The flag was unfurled to the breeze on Lincoln avenue in honor of the advent of a young agriculturist to that rural locality. Probably the parents look upon it as an Easter offering.

Readings, recitations and sketches from different authors, with music, is the attraction this evening, at the rooms of the literary society, over The Boston store. The entertainments of this society are of a kind which commend themselves to all.

Three young men who engaged in a shooting affray on Thames street, Saturday evening, were arrested yesterday.

Mr. Manuel J. Field, the janitor at City hall, and the cultivator and guardian of the splendid beds of flowers in the court yard during the summer season, has used for several years the room beneath the skylight at City hall as a conservatory for forcing his plants in the spring.

Wednesday, March 17, 1880—There will be a performance of Uncle Tom's Cabin by the Hyers Sisters' Combination, tomorrow evening at Breed hall. This famous play has a new interest in its present mode of presentation, the colored characters being sustained by actors and actresses with black faces. Secure tickets at Noyes' and Davis'.

The new clock in the Park church tower hammers out the hours vigorously. The strokes are often heard and counted on Main street. It also has a rather intrusive way of striking 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sundays, when the parson is in the middle of his long prayer.

Through the efforts of Chief Engineer Carrier the Firemen's Benefit society of Norwich has become a legal organization, with power to have and to hold certain sums of money for the aid of injured firemen, and firemen's widows and orphans and is a tangible, sueable, business corporation established for a benevolent object. It promises to be very popular with the firemen, and will start off with vigorous support.

Thursday, March 18, 1880—A bivalve was thrown through the west face of the mammoth watch suspended as a sign in front of the business place of Mr. Valentin Konsalik, on Main street, sometime during the day yesterday, destroying the glass which cost some seven dollars. The time piece has been a great public convenience, and it seems a pity that through the carelessness or malice of some person, the public should be deprived of it. It is to be hoped that the offender will be discovered and properly punished for the offense.

Capt. E. Kemton Abbott, who died in East Greenwich, R. I., on Tuesday was the second son of the late E. O. Abbot of this city. He was a brother of the late Mr. Wm. G. Abbot of this city, treasurer of the Dime Savings bank.

The wandering sons of Italy are about with their hand organs and harps, scattering spring airs.

St. Patrick's day passed off as quietly as if it were the fourth of July.

Early vegetables from the Bermudas are sold daily in this market.

Norwich Hose company will give another of their enjoyable socials tomorrow evening.

Friday March 19, 1880—C. F. Thayer arrived home on Tuesday after four weeks of stenographic labor in the Bucholz trial at Bridgeport. Three stenographers took over 400,000 words during the trial.

Among the arrivals in the city yesterday were shad from Delaware. They are always welcome in Connecticut.

The Mount Calvary Baptist church will discontinue holding services in Rockwell's hall on and after the 28th inst. Thereafter they will hold their meetings on the West Side.

At the annual conclave of the grand commandery of Knights Templar of the state of Connecticut, held Tuesday, Past Commander Joseph J. Wait of this city was appointed grand warder of the state. An honor correctly conferred.

Saturday, March 20, 1880—Mr. Norman Day and family returned home, yesterday, after an absence of about three months, during which time they have made an extended trip through the south and a visit to Havana.

The union fast day services of the Broadway, Park and Second Congregational churches will be held at the Broadway church, and the annual service will be preached by the Rev. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, D. D., of the Park church.

In the Second Congregational church, tomorrow afternoon, the funeral services of Mrs. Whiting and Miss Williams will take place at the usual afternoon service.

The school children spent one session in school yesterday and one in the streets.

Police Officer Sullivan and Mr. C. E. Rogers of the Blackstone Hose Co., have a joint interest in a new fire extinguisher, a description of which would be unpardonable while an application for a patent is pending. They recently tried it on a Chestnut street fire which they extinguished without raising an alarm.

STATISTICS ON THE STATE OF TRADE AND COMMERCE

Detailed Figures of Production and Distribution of Commodities Given By Julius H. Barnes, Chairman of President Hoover's Business Survey Conference — Report Says That Some Retarding Factors Have Been Gradually Overcome — General Outlook May Be Considered Favorable.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—An estimate of the state of American business, nation-wide in scope and expressed in detailed figures of production and distribution of commodities, was made public today by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of President Hoover's business survey conference.

Expressly submitted without conclusions, the statement nevertheless said that "some early retarding factors, partly psychological, appear to have been gradually overcome," and sketched a state of trade and commerce with both good and bad points.

"January and February bond issues," the report says, were 83 per cent larger than the same period last year. Bond prices formerly tending downward have turned upward in these last few weeks. Interest rates on standard issues continue lower than a year ago with indications of further softening. The general outlook in the investment field is favorable, although bankers continue warnings against artificial stimulation.

Financial

"Customers' rates at banks have shown a declining tendency. In addition, acceptance rates, call rates and time money rates have all declined and are now substantially lower than last year, some at lowest for several years. Total bank loans are increasing, showing funds going into use.

"New York savings banks deposits since the first of the year show steady net increase, substantially greater than last year's corresponding months. Elsewhere some districts show moderate increases over last year and others slight losses.

"New February life insurance business at $1,003,000,000 exceeded February, 1929, by three per cent.

"In most sections a marked increase in receipts of building and loan associations in comparison with closing months of 1929 is seen.

"Farm loans report slight increase with marked decrease in delinquencies and foreclosures as compared with last year and the previous year. Funds for good farm loans seem reasonably available. City mortgages show smaller volume than last year and year before with a slight increase in delinquencies and foreclosures. Adequate funds are reported available for conservative new loans.

"Reports indicate installment sales approximately equal to last year with no marked increase in delinquencies.

Construction

"For equipment and new construction utilities contemplate expenditures this year of $3,250,000,000, as against $2,863,000,000 last year.

"Other private construction it now seems probable will reach at least as large as last year.

"In the construction industries there are continued signs of improvement, except in residential building, which still drags. Contracts awarded in the week ending March 14 totaled $105,000,000, the highest weekly figure in eight weeks. February permits for additions, alterations and repairs in 279 cities show a decided increase in numbers over January, but a smaller total value.

"Awards for concrete pavements for January and February and for state and county roads exceed last year by 85 per cent and are 40 per cent above 1928. Shipments of Portland cement this February were the largest of any February in the last four years.

"The crushed stone industry, usually dormant until mid-April, expects this year's business to prove 10 per cent above normal and above last year. Shipments of stone, sand and gravel are increasing slowly.

"Common brick has had a very dull three months.

"Lime for construction purposes indicates 40 per cent below normal, while for agricultural and chemical use it is 10 to 15 per cent over last year.

"Window glass is 10 to 20 per cent below last year.

Railways and Shipping

"Electric railways capital expenditures of $147,000,000 are contemplated in 1930, against $103,000,000 last year and reports indicate this program is well forward.

"Shipping trades report falling off in tonnage carried.

"Ship building yards this February were employing 28 per cent more men than in February a year ago. They were employing 10 per cent more than in November when a survey showed the yards had contracts for $95,000,000 in merchant vessels and $32,000,000 in naval vessels.

"Telephone construction expenditures in January were 25 per cent in excess of corresponding expenditures in January, 1929. There has been a good start on the capital expenditure program of $700,000,000, comparing with $633,000,000 total for 1929. New installations of telephones in January and February were below expectations, but preliminary reports for March indicate improvements in volume. Long distance telephone business, although below expectations, shows an increase of three per cent in January, four per cent in February and five per cent so far in March.

"Lumber manufacture shows a decline of 13 per cent for the first ten weeks of the year, compared with last year, and shipments are 12 per cent below last year.

"The railroads, on March 1, had on order 35,400 new cars, as against 37,820 last year and 21,700 two years ago, and locomotives on order were 450, against 291 last year and 171 two years ago. Steel rails ordered since Jan. 1 were 188,000 tons, against 189,000 tons last year and 125,000 two years ago. The program contemplating total expenditures in 1930 for equipment and improvements of $1,050,000,000 is obviously well under way. This means $140,000,000 more in the first six months of 1930 than for the first six months last year. Total employes Jan. 15 in class one railroads were 1,561,300 against 1,594,000 last year and 1,614,000 two years ago. The payroll total for February, 1930, was higher than for February last year and 4 per cent larger than February two years ago. Carloadings, so far this year, are about six per cent off as compared with last year, but the loadings of package freight—so-called less-than-carload freight—representing merchandise moving into consumption, show about only 3 per cent under last year.

"Radio tube sales were 12 per cent less in January and February as compared with last year. New set sales for January and February were 12 per cent more than in November and December and compare favorbaly with one year ago.

Light and Power Utilities

"The electric light and power utilities plan for 1930 total capital expenditures of $865,000,000, an increase of $65,000,000 over last year. The first quarter contracts indicate good progress in carrying this out. Electricity produced the first half of March exceeds the same period last year by about two per cent. The gas companies construction program of $400,000,000 is proceeding and with the portion allocated to the first quarter likely to be exceeded will equal or exceed 1929. Sales of manufactured gas in January were two per cent under last January and in February under three per cent under last February.

Steel Industry

"The iron and steel industry for the third week in March operated at 75 per cent against 94 per cent in last year's high activity. Indications are for an increase in production. Structural steel orders are about 4 per cent under 1929. Rail mills are operating at capacity. Tinplate mills at 85 per cent. Steel industry still feels a smaller automobile production.

Automobiles

Manufacturing of clothing and men's furnishings show payroll totals for February of one per cent over January and 10 per cent less than February, 1929.

"The farm implement industry reports some curtailment.

"Sales of machinery are normal. Inquiries in good volume, but there is some hesitancy about placing new orders. Machine tool orders continue lower and payroll indices in this field showing 16 per cent below last year's good figure. Appeal From Soviet Religious Policy

Sent Russian Government by American Committee On Religious Rights.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)— The American committee on religious rights and minorities today made pub[illegible] lic a report of a sub-committee wh[illegible] said that soviet religious activities [illegible] attributable not to any "object[illegible] any particular form of relig[illegible] to hostility to any religion [illegible] and to a determination to [illegible] it for the coming generation [illegible]any and every form."

The committee voiced an appeal to Russian authorities "to adopt a more liberal policy in dealing with the conscious beliefs of their people."

The committee said it was not influenced in making the appeal by any political, social or economic structure of the soviet system, but by a belief that it is "the imperative duty of all right-thinking men and women to voice their protest against grievous injustice wherever it exists."

In voicing its opinions, the committee said, it did "not overlook the fact that intolerance and antagonism to religious liberty have sometimes disgraced other countries, including our own."

The committee added that history has shown that persecution of religion by the state has never achieved its purpose, as "the sacred beliefs of mankind cannot be stamped out that way."

Arthur J. Brown was chairman of the sub-committee on whose report the committee's statement was founded.

SOVIET COMMITTEE MODERATES EDICTS

MOSCOW, March 23.—(AP) —Much satisfaction was expressed in all quarters today over the decree issued by the central executive committee of the soviet union last night ordering immediate correction of the practice of disfranchising certain categories of citizens, evicting them from their homes, and even exiling them.

The decree was interpreted by many as meaning that Russia's communist rulers have definitely embarked upon a policy of moderation toward those who heretofore were regarded irreconcilable class enemies. The committee's decree not only threatens with severe punishment any official found guilty of such practice in the future, but orders immediate rectification in all cases where citizens were unjustly treated.

Coming on the heels of the government's recent modification of its programs for agricultural collectivization, religion, private trade, the new order was expected to improve the condition of thousands against whom the edicts had been rigidly enforced. The decree also provided that children of disfranchised parents must be given the franchise if they became of age after 1925 and are employed in socially "useful" work.

75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF SEC'Y MELLON

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The dean of the Hoover cabinet—Andrew Mellon—celebrates tomorrow his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary.

Two weeks ago he observed his ninth anniversary as secretary of the treasury, the only man except one to hold the portfolio so long.

Yet, at an age when most men are content to sit by the fireside, the secretary whom his friends describe as "the greatest since Alexander Hamilton" carries the financial burdens of the world's richest nation quietly, implacidly—almost lightly.

Day by day, backward and forward between his Massachusetts avenue apartment and his office often three times daily, Washington sees the slender little man with the iron gray mustache walking briskly along the streets.

For nine years the political swirls have surged about him almost savagely at times. But to all appearances the Andrew Mellon who came unostentatiously from Pittsburgh nine years ago to take a portfolio in the Harding cabinet has not changed.

Public speaking irks him, leaves him a little embarrassed, and as a result his appearances on the rostrum have been infrequent. Society affairs on a large scale appeal to him little more, and he is not often seen at the larger capital parties. He does, however, enjoy a quiet dinner party, either at his own apartment, where he lives alone, or with congenial friends.

WOUNDED AT FAREWELL PARTY FOR TEXAS GUINAN

CHICAGO, March 23.—(AP)—Leon Sweitzer was shot and seriously wounded early today in the office of the Green Mill night club while Texas Guinan delivered her valedictory at her farewell party an the floor below.

Sweitzer, his chest and left leg and arm punctured by slugs, told police from his hospital cot that the shots had been fired by Harry A. Voiler, proprietor of the Green Mill, Arthur Reed, his floor manager, and an unidentified assailant following an argument over the club lease.

The patrons, about 800 persons in all, friends of Miss Guinan, stage folk and contemporary entertainers gathered for the most part to bid her good luck in her forthcoming New York appearance, did not hear the shots.

Texas was concluding her parting address with "good-bye folks, you can always reach me through a New York police court," when Sweitzer was carried across the floor by club attendants and rushed to a hospital.

Voiler and Reed, accompanied by their attorneys, appeared voluntarily at the Summerdale police station and denied they had participated in the shooting. They were held on open charges.

Miss Guinan also went to the station to protest her innocense of connection with the affair. She was not held, although she remained at headquarters for five hours.

NEW HAVEN, March 23.—(AP)—Clouds of smoke rising over dead fields and garden patches of southwestern Connecticut, show the progress of the official cleanup to destroy the European corn borer.

FOUR MEN WERE KILLED IN STOLEN AUTOS IN BUFFALO

Two Encounters Between Police Auto Squads and Fleeing Auto Thieves—In Both Cases the Men In the Stolen Cars Had Opened Fire On the Police—One Wounded Thief Escaped From Operating Room In Hospital While the Surgeons Were Temporarily Absent.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 23.—(AP)—Four men were killed and one wounded early today in two encounters between the police automobile squad and men riding in stolen cars.

The wounded man escaped from the operating room at City hospital while the surgeons about to operate on him for two bullet wounds were temporarily absent. The man climbed down a fire escape from the third floor leaving a trail of blood behind him.

In both clashes with the police the men in the stolen cars opened fire on the police auto squad machine, Lieutenant Arthur D. Britt, in command, said.

Eight automobiles were reported stolen within a short time before midnight Saturday and Lieutenant Britt and three of his men began a crise of the East Side in search of the missing machines.

In Sycamore street near Walnut, about 1.30 a. m., one of the missing automobiles was spotted. Driving alongside, Britt ordered the driver to pull in to the curb. Instead of complying the occupant of the car speeded away, and, according to Britt, fired at the police car.

The police returned the fire and after the first volley the stolen car swerved into the curb and knocked off a water hydrant. The occupant, identified as Walter Krajewski, was thrown through the front of the car. He died almost instantly. His head and neck were so badly cut by broken glass that cursory examination did not disclose whether he had been hit by the police bullets.

After reporting to police headquarters, Lieut. Britt and his crew returned to the East Side. In Genesee street, they met another stolen car.

The police car and the stolen machine were going in opposite directions and before the officers' car made a turn the other automobile, a roadster, with four men in the seat was speeding away. Their effort to shake off the pursuing police car was unsuccessful, however, and according to Lieut. Britt, all except the man at the wheel opened fire on the auto squad.

The battle continued for several blocks, until a charge of shot from a police riot gun struck the man at the wheel and the car swerved into a pole.

The man at the wheel, Henry Piotrowski, was killed and the three others were wounded. The injured men were taken to the City hospital. Two of them, later identified as John Drazdzynski and Edward Dombkiewicz, died on the operating table. The other man, apparently badly wounded, made his escape from the emergency operating room while the surgeons were attending to the others.

Edward Dombkiefics, one of the dead men, is a brother of Peter Dombwiewicz, recently sentenced to life as a member of the blond bandit gang. Peter caused a sensation during his trial by stabbing one of the complainants while they were before the court.

Krajewski, the first man killed, is declared by the police to be the man wanted for the slaying of Policeman Wunderlich during the holdup of a chain store two months ago.

The fascist secretaries in all districts read a message from Premier Mussolini in which the duce declared that during 11 years fascism had prevailed over a thousand difficulties of every kind, but that that many more that were no less grave awaited it.

All the cities of Italy were beflagged throughout the day, and special illuminations were turned on tonight. Floodlights bathed the public monuments.

Fascist leaders everywhere paid tribute to the memory of Michele Bianchi, one of the "Quadrumvirs" of the famous march on Rome in October, 1922. Bianchi died on February 3, this year, while minister of public works. He was the first of the duce's four chief aides in the historic march to die.

WALES HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM ANGRY ELEPHANT

RHINO CAMP, Uganda, March 23—(AP)—It was announced today that the Prince of Wales had a narrow escape from an angry bull elephant while taking motion pictures March 16. The prince was so intent on his picture that he failed to realize his danger, and the animal was shot by his companions, crashing to the ground barely 20 yards from the camera.

The incident occurred while the prince was on a two-day hunting expedition. The elephant, apparently enraged by the invasion of his retreat, charged down a hill toward the spot where the camera had been set up. Other hunters shouted a warning to the prince, but he ignored them. The picture was still being ground out when the great beast fell.

Besides the elephant pictures, the prince got some good films of the black rhinoceros, but has not yet sighted a white rhino, of which he wants a photograph for his collection.

PASSAGE OF TARIFF BILL TODAY BY SENATE PROBABLE

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—A final bias of oratory on the merits and demerits of the tariff bill and a move to return it to committee to limit the revision in the interest of agriculture are the only obstacles standing in the way of senate passage of the long-pending Hawley-Smoot measure.

Passage is virtually assured some time tomorrow after seven or eight speeches from factional leaders. The measure providing increased protection on nearly every farm product in the tariff list and a general revision up and down of the industrial rate schedules, was completed by the senate last night after nearly seven months of sharp debate.

At variance in hundreds of particulars with the measure passed by the house last May, the bill upon passage will be returned to the house which in turn will ask a conference with the senate to adjust the differences.

WILLIMANTIC, March 23—The police today were looking for an alleged hit-and-run driver who smashed into the parked car of Harry Reade of Jamaica Plains, Mass., formerly of this city, on Windham road Saturday evening, causing damage estimated at $150. Mr. Reade, who is spending the week end with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Reade at 217 Windham road had parked his car to one side of the road. There was no one in the machine when it was hit and the car causing the damage sped on. The accident occurred as Chartier was turning from Natchaug into Ash street. The throttle became caught and before Chartier could throw the machine out of gear and apply his brakes it had crashed into the cable. The front left fender, hood and radiator of the car were damaged. Officer Leo Piche investigated.

William Desrosiers of 52 Broad street and Anthony Chasse of 70 Meadow street, were taken to the Willimantic General hospital about 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon after the motorcycle on which they were riding figured in a collision with a sedan driven by George Heether of 5 Brown avenue, The Ridges. Desrosiers sustained possible compound fracture of the right ankle and numerous bruises and lacerations. Chasse sustained a wrenched right leg and fracture of one toe. The investigation by Officer William Hurley disclosed that the motorcycle driven by Desrosiers, was trailing Heether's sedan. The latter made a left turn off West Main street to enter Brown avenue and the motorcycle struck the left front fender, throwing the two occupants, riding tandem-fashion to the ground.

With the expressed purpose of learning more of the town's business, especially its financial affairs, the Taxpayers' Protective association of Windham will hold a public meeting at the town hall Monday night (tonight) at 8 o'clock, Dr. George E. Wilcox, president of the organization said that every present and prospective member of the association should make an endeavor to attend the meeting as matters of vital importance are to be taken up. The association, which is widely hailed as a movement along the right direction for future years by establishing more definite contact between town business and town taxpayers, has a membership of over 700 at present and the drive is on to bring the enrollment to 1,500. It is probably that larger and more interested audiences at all future town and city meetings will be pointed to as one of the most worthwhile objectives of the association.

Three cars were involved in a fender-smashing accident in front of the W. T. Grant company building on Main street shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon. Charles F. Larrow of North Windham was driving his Pontiac sedan away from the curb in front of Lombardo's fruit store as Eugene Cote of 98 Maple avenue, this city, was approaching in a westerly direction in a coupe. The machines collided, damaging both left fenders and the running board of Larrow's machine and the right front fender of the Cote car. In backing away from the point of the accident the North Windham man's machine grazed the left front fender of a Hudson sedan owned by Frank P. Lombardo and which was parked in front of the Grant store. The operators notified Officer Leo Piche that they would settle the damages between themselves.

COLCHESTER

GOLDEN WEDDING SURPRISE GIVEN MR. AND MRS. T. S. RATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, March 23.—A largely attended informal reception was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Swan Rathbun, on South Main street, noting the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, also in recognition of Mrs. Rathbun's birthday. Throughout the afternoon, a stream of local and out of town friends and relatives called to offer congratulations. The reception was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun's daughter, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins of Sachem terrace, Norwich, and was a complete surprise to the couple, who returned from attending the morning church services to find the rooms elaborately decorated with monster bouquets of pink carnations, daffodils, and flowering plants. Among those present during the afternoon were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Robbins of Hartford, their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Higgins of Norwich, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Rathbun of West Hartford, and nine grandchildren. Friends and relatives came from East Haddam, Lebanon, Norwich, Salem, Storrs, Danbury, Hartford, West Hartford and other towns. A number of handsome gifts were presented them during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun are two of the town's best known residents. Mr. Rathbun was born in East Haddam in 1853, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Rathbun. In 1880, he came to Colchester and March 23, 1880, was united in marriage with Della Brown, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoxie Brown and a native of Lebanon, Conn. They were married at the Old Hoxie Brown homestead, a few miles south of Colchester Center, now the home of Allan H. Brown. For a long period of years they lived in the West road section of the town where Mr. Rathbun conducted a large farm, he being known throughout this vicinity as a farmer of unusual fine business judgment. In 1907, Mr. Rathbun retired from the farm and moved with his wife into the village.

During past years, Mr. Rathbun has served as Colchester town selectman for five terms, as health officer of the town for fours years, and at different times as a member of the borough board of assessors and the town board of relief.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun are charter members of Colchester grange, No. 78, P. of H., having joined at the time it was organized Nov. 14, 1888, at the building on Bulkley hill. Mr. Rathbun has been prominently identified with Colchester republican party activities for many years. He is a man of rare, honest business dealings, whose frank, cheery, cordial manner has endeared him to the people of the town. Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun are active in church work and take a particular interest in any activities or projects for the betterment of the community.

It is interesting to note that Mrs. Rathbun's brother, Edwin L. Brown, still a well known farmer of the Bulkley hill section and Miss Addie Fox were united in marriage March 22, 1880, the day before the Rathbun-Brown ceremony. Mrs. Edwin L. Brown died a number of years ago. Both couples went on their wedding trip together, to New York state.

After Missouri Coon Hound

Dog Warden Harold Brown expects to secure a new coon hound from a farmer in Missouri, some time during the coming weeks. John W. Goodrich still has his pedigreed hound, one of the fastest runners in this section. The next fall hunting season promises to fill the woods hereabouts with the baying of coon dogs and as usual many will be the stirring tales told by returning hunters.

John Nelkin received a young pure-bred coon hound the past week from a dog fancier in Sayesville, Ohio. Mr. Nelkin expects to put the animal through a course of training and in the fall of 1931 he expects to test coons enough to exceed all past records for this section. Last November, Charles Standish of Bulkley hill section, with his prize coon hound, treed three big coons in one evening. The Standish dog was later found with one leg caught in a steel trap and had to be killed. Mr. Nelkin feels confident that his new dog will develop into one of the best coon hounds in this vicinity. As his last season's hunts proved so unsuccessful, he has presented his old coon hound to John H. Conrad, another local hunter who has visions of a nice, juicy coon or two for his friends during the next season.

DANIELSON

CONN. MILLS CO. REPORT SHOWS $1,000,000 DEFICIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 23.—The annual report of the Connecticut Mills company, as of Jan. 4, 1930, and reaching stockholders here today, shows a deficit of $1,332,326.40. This concern started business in Danielson nearly a score of years ago, developed from a small industry to one that employed hundreds of people at high wages during the World war, but ran into a decline when a nation-wide slump in business occurred in 1920. Some two years ago it ceased operations here and relocated in Decatur, Alabama, where a new factory was built for the concern. Only the treasurer's office now remains in Danielson, where the president of the company, Obadiah Butler, continues to make his home.

In a statement to the stockholders President Butler says: Operations of the company for the year (1929) showed a profit before depreciation of $44,775.06, as compared with a loss of $323,707, for the year ending January 5, 1929. This result was arrived at as follows: Net profits of the manufacturing plant of the company at Decatur, Ala., amounted to $77,631.71. The cost of carrying the idle plants in the north was $32,856.71. The difference between these figures represents the profit for the year.

"Business and profits for the first three-quarters of the year were satisfactory, but during the last quarter of the year, owing to conditions prevailing throughout the industry, the mill was unable to secure sufficient orders and consequently ran only 20 per cent. of capacity, and this condition still continues."

"During the year the company continued its policy of disposing of machinery and real estate in the north not needed for the conduct of its business. It received from such sales during the year $193,904.26. The difference between prices received and book values account for the increase in the deficit from last year. The sales of real estate will reduce the cost of carrying idle plants for the coming year. During the year the working capital increased $125,540.55."

"We are now approaching the season of the year when tire companies ordinarily increase the scale of their operations. They are reducing inventories rapidly. It is, therefore, reasonable to expect that within the next few months increasing orders will permit of a much fuller operation of the mill."

A consolidated balance sheet as of January 4, 1930, which is included in the annual report to stockholders shows that there are unpaid dividends up to the first of this year of [illegible] on the first preferred stock, and unpaid additional dividends of [illegible] on the second preferred stock.

In default of $100 bail, Alexander Heino of Gregge, R. I., was held at the state police barracks on North Main street today. Though both cars were quite badly damaged, their occupants escaped without any serious injury. Heino is charged with reckless driving.

There is to be a farm management school at Grange hall in South Killingly next Thursday, the session opening at 10:30 a. m. In an announcement sent out by County Agent Raymond E. Wing of Putnam it is given out that all farmers in the South Killingly have expressed their desire to have a farm management school of one day's duration for the purpose of studying individual farms and farms as a group, to see what can be done to make these farms produce a better living or, in other words, a larger net income.

Professor A. W. Manchester, assistant director of the extension service and in charge of the farm management department at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, will be in attendance, and also P. L. Putnam, assistant farm management demonstrator. These men have had large experience in farm management, and will be able to make suggestions to the many that are expected to attend. Everyone is invited by County Agent Wing to attend this meeting and study his or her farm problems either individually or as a group.

This afternoon state officers of the Danielson barracks were operating opposite their headquarters on North Main street, stopping operators of motor cars for checking as to the drivers having proper operating licenses and registrations. This work is done from time to time by state officers here, as in other parts of the state.

The trout fishing enthusiasts have the days all figured up that intervene between the present and the official opening of the season on Tuesday, April 15. Roughly, these sportsmen have just three more weeks to await before they may legally go afishing for the speckled beauties, now disporting themselves in streams throughout this territory. The coming fishing season promises to be a good one. The state fish and game commission has been liberal with eastern Connecticut in trout releases since the last fishing season closed on June 30, 1929. Much restocking was done after that date last summer, more in the fall and still more during the latter part of the winter just ended. This year Blackwell's brook, running through Pomfret, Brooklyn and Canterbury, will be a state-leased stream and will afford equally as good angling conditions and prospects as Snake Meadow brook, the first of the state-leased streams in this region. It is small wonder that the fishermen are anxious for the opening of the season.

Though no progress of moment has been made as yet on the work of eliminating French's crossing in the town of Plainfield, huge drain pipes have been assembled there, as well as other materials to be used in the early work to be done. Incident to the building of the bridge over the New Haven tracks at this point a section of concrete highway will be put in, and when it is completed there will be an unbroken stretch of this sort of highway from Central Village to Bishop's crossing, in the southern section of the town of Plainfield.

Thursday evening next the mid-week Lenten service under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches is to be held at the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church will be the preacher.

Little change was reported today in the condition of Howard Woodson, who was badly injured the past week when a carbide gas tank exploded while working about it at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCoy in Brooklyn. Up to this morning it had not been determined whether or not the young man has a fracture of the skull, and this cannot be determined until his condition permits of taking X-ray pictures.

There is an apparently quite wide-spread demand for some arrangement under which citizens calling by telephone for the services of the fire department may have a definitely designated place to call. There is no telephone at the central fire station, and firemen are not regularly on duty there. Some recent calls for the department have been delayed through the difficulty of reaching someone in authority. This, of course, applies to situations arising in sections where no fire alarm box is conveniently located.

Both Snake Meadow and Blackwell's brook will be under patrol during the coming fishing season, and daily checks will be made on fishermen for licenses and as to whether they have an excessive number of fish or fish under legal length. Regulations, too, will be enforced pertaining to fishing such leased streams. All fishermen must keep within ten feet of the borders of the brook, and in crossing walls or fences must use the step-overs erected by the state fish and game commission.

This afternoon at the home of his grandfather, Almon Butler, in Brooklyn, funeral services for Lawrence Kilpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kilpatrick, were conducted by Rev. C. C. Rowlinson, pastor of the Brooklyn Congregational church. During the service a quartet from Danielson made up of Rev. Albert Abbott, Henry A. McEwen, A. P. Burns and David King sang Safe In The Arms of Jesus, Sometime We'll Understand and Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn, Rev. Mr. Howlinson conducting the committal service. The bearers were Theodore Milliban, Byron Parker, Charles Neilson, William House, Donald House and Peter Giambatista. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. James' church, Rev. Francis Baldwin, M. S., conducted a service for Arthur Desjardins, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Noe Desjardins, who died at the week end. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. L. E. Kennedy had charge of the arrangements.

Numbers of automobiles owned in Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly that have been unregistered since the close of last year will be back in service within the next week, owners of them benefiting as to lower registration costs and other incidental expense on and after April 1.

It is not in evidence that there will be any great excitement in Danielson over the annual borough meeting on the second Monday in April. In accordance with Danielson's custom, only one ticket, a non-partisan one, is in the field. All of the candidates for borough offices have had previous experience in the official life of the borough and have done good work.

For the third successive morning the temperature was below the freezing point at sunrise today, but there was the compensation that the high March winds, which had been drying out the roads, several days had died down.

Turning to the newspapers to register their complaints, numbers of citizens here insist that engineers of trains on the New Haven road seem to be using locomotive whistles overly much in sounding signals for grade crossings here, and the answer of railroad men to this is that they are anxious to avoid grade crossing accidents, and are doing their best to give warning of the approach of trains.

The brush and wood fire that was thought to have been put out Friday night after sweeping over a large area between the Danielson-Elmville road and the Mashentuck district broke out later and gave fire-fighters another battle before it was finally subdued.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Foster Burgess, of Norwich, was a business visitor here Friday.

A delightful programme of entertainment was held and this was preceded by a full course turkey supper deliciously prepared by the grill committee of the lodge.

Herbert A. Johnson was toastmaster. During the evening he called upon the following lodge members, all of whom are past noble grands: Lucius H. Fuller, A. D. McIntyre, Charles E. Richardson, Eric H. Johnson, T. Byron Morse, Henry J. Thayer, Silas M. Wheelock, C. Dwight Sharpe. Each past official spoke briefly commending the members on the high standing the lodge has attained, Judge Fuller is the dean of Odd Fellows in Putnam. He is one of the charter members of the lodge and was the first noble grand.

Other speakers were Rev. W. D. Hethington, a member of Uncas lodge of Norwich. Rev. Mr. Hethington asked grace at the opening of the dinner. Wesley Keller, a member of the local lodge and a resident at the Odd Fellows home in Groton, spoke briefly on the work of the organization being done at the institution where he resides. E. L. Kelley, a member of the Lawrence, Mass., lodge, was called upon to speak because of his seniority in Odd Fellowship. Mr. Kelley has been an Odd Fellow for 46 years.

During the dinner hour, a concert was given by a four-piece orchestra under the direction of Dr. Harry Sharpe.

The committee in charge of the anniversary dinner consisted of Carl E. Weeks, Marvin Thatcher, Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Mrs. Alexander Maitland, Mrs. Robert T. Chadwick and Lewis Elliott. The women who waited on tables were Mrs. Edward H. Burt, Mrs. I. H. Miron, Mrs. Eben Holden, Mrs. Robert Allard, Mrs. Bernard J. McGarry, Misses Hazel Gifford, Cristobel Gifford, Alice Divine and Mildred Torrey.

The program of entertainment carefully prepared, delighted the large audience. Miss Marie Strombelis, violinist, rendered several selections, accompanied at the piano by Miss Doris Johnson. Both are talented local young women. A novelty number that brought much applause was the dance of the Scottish Highland Fling, done by Miss Betty Maitland of Thompson, who was becoming in kilts.

Selections sung by Miss Pauline Rawley and Miss Dorothy Mansfield, who were accompanied by Miss Johnson, pianist, and Miss Strombelis, violinist, were especially delightful.

Wally Aldrich, a local old time fiddler, was joined by Irving H. "Pop" Tourtellotte, the entertainers managed to keep the audience in an uproar. Mr. Tourtellotte is a base singer. Their selections recalled fond memories.

The evening was brought to a close with a novelty dance by Miss Maitland, who was given a rising vote of thanks at the close of her number.

Donahue, to succeed the late Rev. William A. The new rector of St. Mary's Memorial, in his sermon today, described vividly the scenes of his new field of labor and placed particular emphasis on the fact that St. Mary's parochial school, a part of the Norwich parish, will afford him many pleasant hours of work among the students there. Father Donahue mentioned that his first appearance as a priest was made in Norwich a few years ago on Passion Sunday, when he preached at special services at St. Patrick's church. Miss Mathilda Ouimette of Brooklyn, who is 68 years of age and a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, has only one request to be made of the hospital officials and that is to be back at her home where she might care for the needs of her mother, who is 91 years of age. The daughter of the aged Brooklyn resident is making a satisfactory recovery from her recent appendicitis operation, and she is making a determined, but nevertheless fruitless effort to be discharged in order to go to her elderly mother, who she says needs her attentions. Miss Nellie Bloxham, superintendent of the hospital, said today that hospital authorities are finding it difficult to convince Miss Ouimette that she must remain patient and quiet and that friends and relatives are ably caring for her mother.

It was reported today that the condition of Howard Woodson of Brooklyn, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, is slightly improved. Mr. Woodson was seriously injured in an accident which occurred last week in Brooklyn.

It was the fourth time that Windham county team beat the Tolous in the state tournament. The Windha mcounty team beat the Tolland county entrant in the semi-finals and nosed out South Church, representing Hartford county, in the finals to cop the championship.

With official opening of the 1930 fishing season less than a month away, local anglers are beginning to display their annual restlessness that strikes a follower of the rod and reel each year at this time. Devotees of the sport are finding enjoyment in spending their long pre-season evenings oiling up rods, mending nets and hooks, preparing tangled lines for the first cast and exchanging secrets of "where the big 'uns lie." The season for fishing trout in Windham county does not open until the 15th of April. The streams are being stocked, but most of the brooks contain hundreds of fish placed out last season, which are eagerly awaiting the appearance of the first fly or dangling worm.

JEWETT CITY

BRUSH FIRE IN LISBON SWEEPS OVER 100 ACRES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, March 23.—High winds at this vicinity handicapped the firemen Saturday afternoon, in their determined efforts to save a large part of an orchard, in the town of Lisbon. Threatening several parts of the residential section on the Newent road and opposite St. Mary's cemetery on the River road, the fire burned over more than 100 acres. The firemen responded to the call for aid with engine No. 1, and 1,000 feet of hose. No water being available near the blaze, the firemen were obliged to render aid except with the 60 gallon booster tanks. After using one tank full [illegible] their residences, the smoke eaters (and that is what they were at this fire) made a half-mile run back to the first South Main street hydrant. A score of men carrying water in pails, and working with wet brooms, did their bit with a will.

Finn's, tonight. Last chance to see the all-talking and singing sensation, Sally.—adv.

QUINEBAUG CONTINUES ON ITS GOOD BEHAVIOUR

The first pier for the railroad over head at the big bridge was poured Saturday, with but two remaining to complete. Each day as many people visit the different sections of this big contract, they are learning about the wonderful good fortune in reference to high water, that has attended without exception, all the operations of the contractor. Not only has he been handed an even break, but much more than that. A dozen men who know the Quinebaug river, have declared that not since the great flood of '36, has the late winter and spring water levels in the river been as low as are registered on the pier gauge at present. Sunday afternoon the water was less than four feet deep in mid-stream During the first week in March, 1925, the big river was over the walk above the old bridge, and ran up to the trunks of L. G. Buckingham's big oaks. The Pachaug river, all of which the Fisk Rubber Co., is now carrying through its lower wheel, five years ago at this date, had backed up to from three to six feet deep where today carpenter's and blacksmith's shops are in operation.

A large number of cases of chicken pox are reported, the latest patient being "Bob" Geist, who is renewing his youth in this respect, to his great dissatisfaction.

Needless Pain!

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain.

Lots of suffering is, indeed, quite needless.

Headaches, for example. They come without warning, but one can always be prepared. Bayer Aspirin tablets bring immediate relief. Keep a bottle at the office. Carry the small tin in your pocket. Then you won't have to hunt a drugstore, or wait till you get home.

And don't think Bayer Aspirin is only good for headaches, sore throats, and colds! Read the proven directions for relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic, and other aches and pains. Remembering, of course, that the quick comfort from these tablets is not a cure; for any continued pain, see a doctor.

Bayer Aspirin is genuine. Protect yourself by looking for that name. Always the same. Always safe. Never hurts the heart.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

They left there by motor March 12 and arrived here March 20. In the early part of January, they left Mystic and motored to their winter home in St. Petersburg, Fla. Staying there but about a month, instead of the customary time, they went on to California by the southern route. They visited friends in Tucson and other friends who were former residents of Mystic. Mr. Main and family had no accidents, the most trouble being a few flat tires.

New streets are being laid out on Mason's Island and George Tift is carting gravel for the grading purposes. One new house is being erected for a Hartford resident, to be used as a summer home.

As was voted at the recent town meeting of the taxpayers of the town of Groton, bills are being sent out to collect back taxes. They are causing a great deal of surprise and consternation. One party, for example, having purchased his home nine years ago, and being told that the taxes were paid for that year and receiving clear title, was considerably upset to receive a bill Friday for taxes for the year he purchased the property, with interest added, up to April 1, 1930.

Mrs. Joseph Desley and Mrs. Clifford Desley were in North Stonington Saturday afternoon and attended the funeral of Mrs. Betsy Rathbun in the Third Baptist church. Miss Mary A. Scholfield was in New York Friday.

Entertainers From Norwich

There was a very good attendance at the entertainment given by the Junior Guild of the United Congregational church of Norwich, in Grange hall Friday evening, under the auspices of the local grange. Two plays were given, "Our Aunt from California" and "Boosting Bridget." The proceeds were divided evenly between the two societies. Following the entertainment there was dancing.

Following business, an entertaining program was given by members of Williams Woman's Relief corps, two humorous readings by Mrs. Ellery Burdick; a comedy sketch, "Henpecked Holler Gossip club," with the following characters: Mrs. Sherman Hammond, Mrs. George Barden, Mrs. Harold Thorpe, Mrs. Albert Neff, Sr., Miss Barbara Neff, Mrs. Samuel Higbee, Sr., Mrs. Samuel Grimes, Mrs. John Lucy and Mrs. Burdick; piano selections by Miss Katherine Lamb. Ice cream and assorted wafers were served by the committee.

BOY OF SEVEN STARTS FIRE WHICH SPREADS AT ROCK

There was a lull Sunday in brush and grass fires in and about Westerly, but on Saturday the Westerly firemen were "run ragged." One of the fires threatened to do serious damage when between 40 and 50 acres of land south of the village of White Rock were burned over before 40 fire fighters had it under control. The second fire Saturday started when firemen were called to the woodland back of the quarry of the Smith Granite company on Granite street. Three trucks and about 40 men responded to combat these flames which were halted before they had spread over a large area.

The fire at White Rock for which an alarm was sounded for a call out of the district, started a little after 11 o'clock Saturday morning. Investigation showed, firemen claimed, that the fire was started by a seven-year-old boy who had been reprimanded by his mother for some reason about his building a fire in the kitchen stove, and determined to have his way, is said to have gone out and started a fire of his own.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

If a lot of the young men who frequent the clubs and corners of the city are missing today, it's nothing to be alarmed at, they've probaoly gone to the sub-base to enlist in the Navy after seeing the crackajack naval spectacle "Hit the Deck," at the Broadway, which delighted capacity audiences at the Saturday and Sunday showings. This triumph of Radio pictures is the snappiest, peppiest liveliest show that has struck town in many a moon, and is "different" because it tells a connected story of sailors' life and sailors' love in a naval base-town. Looloo, played by Polly Walker, diminutive but devastating blonde, is the dainty proprietor of a "java-and-sinker" shop catering exclusively to the gobs. Polly is a winner in looks, ability and personality. Jack Oakie, that human with the big grin and "hot-feet," is rough-housed into the navy by a gay liberty party, and being initiated into the mysteries of "Looloo's", loses his heart to the little girl and gives her the first big thrill of her life. Their romance is at once hectic and checkered and forms a lively and interesting story with the round-the-world fleet as a background.

The surrounding program includes "Confession," a dramatic sketch of an incident in the World war, familiar to every real veteran, when an unpopular "shave-tail" got his in the back, and with a doughboy facing the firing squad for the murder, the identity of the real slayer is revealed in an extremely tense scene. The popular N. B. C. broadcasting songsters "The Revellers", are heard in snappy numbers, and the latest Paramount Sound News carries shots of the "Silver Bulet" race trials at Daytona last Thursday, the floating of "Old Ironsides," and many other headline features. "Hit the Deck" closes tomorrow with "Benefit Night" for the Norwich Academy band, when on the stage the boys will blossom out for their first public appearance and concert in uniform.

Palace Theater

Out into the west where men are men and women know it, out into the boundless open west goes Joan Crawford, America's dancing daughter, to bring theater patrons a glorious new production, "Montana Moon." It is her greatest triumph, better than anything she has done yet, and everybody knows how good she has been in the past. No one should miss coming to the Palace theater where this classic is now playing. Come and see this high strung society colt tamed by the western cowboys.

Joan in this picture, is supported by handsome John Mack Brown, who, a few years ago, set the south on fire with his flashing speed on the gridiron. She takes the part of a high-born girl of the east who goes west to pass her vacation on her father's cattle ranch in Montana. What did she find in the west? Well, what would any girl find in the west? Men, big men, big of stature and of heart, not so graceful and witty and talented as the men of the east but true and steel-hearted. That was the west that this girl found.

She found also the great scenic beauty of the region; with its high windy, table lands, its rugged cliffs and mountains, its rich valleys, filled with grazing cattle. She found more. She saw the matchless loveliness of the Montana dawns and sunsets. She saw the land lie beautiful under the warm afternoon sun, and best of all, she found love and delight under the mellow Montana moon.

It is a glorious picture, as refreshing as the breezes that sweep the great prairies, as clean as the high mountain spring water of that land. It has power and dash and pathos, it has color and melody and drama; it has everything a great picture should have, and it is all brought faithfully into one of the most romantic plots ever conceived for the screen. To deny oneself the pleasure of seeing this picture would be nothing short of shameful.

Wednesday brings to the Palace another change of bill. The attractions which start on that day are "The Woman Racket," starring Tom Moore and Blanch Sweet, and "Blaze o' Glory," with Eddie Dowling and Betty Compson.

REVISING THE TARIFF

There seems to be a possibility that the senate will complete its work on the tariff by tonight. That is the plan, but there's no telling what the senate will do. It goes by contraries, in its present makeup, as often as it follows expectations for it has a way of knocking away the best laid plans.

After long and weary months the time has been reached when the senate has about finished making over the tariff bill as submitted by the house. It has started a tremendous amount of valuable time, it has backed and filled and even now there are those with plans up their sleeves for upsetting all that has been done through amendments. The senate should have finished its labors on the tariff long ago and tackled the raft of other business waiting its attention, but it has instead been giving the country an exhibition in tariff making that has been the constant cause of criticism, and the end is not yet.

With the senate taking final action on the tariff bill it will be necessary to return it to the house and then will come the reference of the bill to a conference committee, and there the task of reconciling the differences will have to be undertaken.

Much is hoped from this conference committee. It is expected to bring about such modifications of the rates in the house measure as are considered too high, to upset the work of the senate where it has failed to meet the requirements of the country and in so doing put the rates on a basis that will be in accordance with the demands of the various manufacturing and agricultural interests for proper protection.

Further than that it is to be expected that this conference committee will restore the flexible feature to the tariff so that the president will have authority to make readjustments within a certain limit as conditions justify them, and at the same time remove other evidences of senate action which were taken for the purpose of embarrassing the administration. Preparing the conference report will not be the easiest job imaginable and there can be expected to be plenty of opposition displayed when it is presented but it will be necessary to adopt it if there is going to be any tariff revision at this time.

THE DOHENY CASE

Less than six months ago Albert B. Fall was charged, tried and convicted of accepting $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny as a bribe in connection with a lease of the naval oil reserve at Elk Hills to Mr. Doheny's company.

Tried on the charge of bribing Albert B. Fall by giving him $100,000 after an arrangement had been made between Messrs. Fall and Doheny concerning the oil lease, Mr. Doheny has been declared not guilty and discharged.

As the result of these trials it would appear that the transaction between the men concerning the $100,000 took place but according to the verdict of the jury in the first case it was bribery while the second jury found it was only a loan. One of the men has been sentenced to a year in jail and fined $100,000, the other has been given his freedom. Somehow it would seem as if something was wrong.

Following his conviction, Mr. Fall took an appeal. It is still pending and when it comes before the appellate court what is going to be the effect upon it of the outcome in the Doheny case? It is customarily figured that in a case of bribery there are two persons at least involved, but according to the decisions in these separate trials the person who furnished the money is not guilty while the person who received it is.

Whether the result in the Doheny case furnishes a basis for greater encouragement for a favorable outcome of the Fall appeal will be awaited with interest. The Doheny jury has found the accused not guilty after the Fall case had been tried. Whether the Fall jury would have reached its same conclusion had the case against Doheny been tried first and the acquittal verdict rendered no one can say. It cannot be felt that the Fall verdict influenced the Doheny case, but it is a bit difficult for the lay mind to reconcile the fact that there was guilt at the receiving end of the transaction and no guilt at the giving end, inasmuch as the jury must have accepted the claim of the giver that the money turned over to Fall was a gift or a loan. The Fall case has been before the courts for a long time but apparently the end is not yet.

HAITI'S PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT

Through the course that has been adopted in Haiti the present indications are that a troublesome situation is to be overcome. When the commission that was named to investigate conditions in Haiti was named by President Hoover and got to the island it failed to get an enthusiastic reception. The disposition was to place all possible obstacles in its way. The attitude soon changed. The commission gained the confidence of the people and, upon learning that serious difficulty was faced at the expiration of President Borno's term if something wasn't done, immediately undertook a solution.

After ascertaining the facts and finding that they were correct, the commission proposed the course that is being followed. It obtained an agreement among the leaders and including the president sanctioning the election of Eugene Roy, a banker in whom the islanders have confidence, as provisional president following the expiration of the term of President Borno. This was accomplished by an assembly of delegates named by the people and when the council of state meets next month it will ratify that election and he will take office in May. The term of the new president will run until his successor has been named by the national legislature which will be chosen by the people in a national election in the fall.

The choice of Mr. Roy promises to do much for the island republic. While he is reported to be a man in whom everyone has confidence it doesn't necessarily follow that he will find his presidency a path of roses upon taking office. There are problems in Haiti that must be met and met right. In doing that the difficulty of suiting everyone will arise and decisions will have to be made. Nevertheless, with a man of such outstanding qualifications selected for the responsible post the first move has been made in the right direction and if he can continue to command a large share of the confidence he now holds it seems not improbable that he will be the choice for permanent president.

While his inclinations have not been in that direction, and he is an elderly man, it is not improbable that he will be willing to make the necessary sacrifices for the people of that republic in which he is so much interested and where there is such confidence in his judgment and ability. Such a man is needed for the solution of Haiti's troubles.

JOIN THE BORER FIGHT

If there is going to be an elimination of a distressing pest much work must be done. It must be done by the many instead of the few in order to thoroughly cover the territory involved, and nothing is more gratifying than a general response to such appeals as have been made for destroying the corn borer.

The attitude that is being displayed in the infested part of southwestern Connecticut is the right one. There are those who are employed by the state and federal government for the purpose of doing valuable preventive work, but there is a limit to what they can do and the territory they can cover. What is needed is the general participation of all those on whose property there is a chance that the larvae of the borer are hiding. Inasmuch as the hiding place may be old corn stalks, stubble and rubbish, the need is for burning all such material, or plowing it under. This is the season when it must be completed and burning is the easier process.

It is convenient if state or government workers can attend to all this destruction, but it is a mistake to put off doing it in the hopes that they will find a chance to cover the whole territory. Without a doubt there will be much material burned which does not harbor the larvae but in the interest of protection it is well to be thorough. Better burn too much of the valueless material than neglect to do any of that preventive work and thereby encourage the spreading of the pest through increased areas this year.

The corn borer plays no favorites. It increases in number and destroys relentlessly, and the best way of dealing with it is to show it no quarter and make certain that the fight is effective while it can be waged the easiest.

RESTS WITH PEOPLE

New York is much interested at the present time as to when Police Commissioner Whalen is going to throw down the reins and vacate his office. Commissioner Whalen hasn't been regarded as a fixture there. He was drafted for the service at the time the resignation of Commissioner Warren was forced. He was put in the office to get the department back on its feet and to clear up some of the murder mysteries.

Since taking office at a large sacrifice in salary, since he was relieved for a year from a job that paid him ten times as much as the commissionership, he has given close attention to his duties, made many changes in the department, built up a better morale, tackled some of the traffic problems and established a better feeling in the department, but he hasn't been able to clear up the murder mysteries of old or place much of a check upon the new ones.

Even Brooklyn was pointing last week to the fact that it had had nine murders in eight days and considering it too much. The prevention of murders does not rest solely with the police force. It should have its influence and it should be expected to run down those who do the killing. Without a doubt more freedom is displayed by gangsters and those using firearms, if there is a laxity in the police department. But back of the police department and the work it does must be public sentiment. Until the public steps in and declares itself in no uncertain terms, it can be expected that there will be all kinds of advantages taken of its tolerance. If there is a demand for greater efficiency in meeting crime conditions that means something; New York will experience different conditions. The people of any community are largely to blame for what it gets and doesn't get. If they are ready to accept anything they will continue to get poor service.

It will not be long now before the taking of the census will help to reduce the unemployment.

You cannot neglect that fishing tackle much longer and be ready to get out on the brooks when the law goes off.

When the church people regain control in Russia there ought to be enough reconstruction activity to end all unemployment.

The escaped Connecticut murderers have jumped from one frying pan into another, where it promises to be hotter and possibly less satisfactory.

BELLS

Jingle, jingle.

Bells . . . Where were they, anyway? Funny sound they had, when everything else was so still. Just like sleighbells in the snow. "Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the day." Yes, it was a sleigh! And such a jolly red-faced old boy driving it. "Whoa, Dasher," he called; "whoa, Dancer!" It couldn't be—but yes, it was Santa Claus in person.

"Hop in," said Santa Claus. "There's a smidgin of space between the Sleeping Doll and the Tin Soldier. And smile! Don't you know it's Christmas?"

Jill could hop all right, but smile—how could she after quarreling with Jack the night before? A quarrel on Christmas eve! And what was it all about? She couldn't even remember the beginning of it. And Jack would never, never speak to her again. He'd said so as he flounced—did men flounce? Well, that was what he'd done, anyway, flounced away through the snow.

Jingle, jingle.

Jill bumped against the Tin Soldier as the reindeer threw themselves into their collars. "Merry Christmas," said the Tin Soldier, saluting stiffly.

"Don't wake Olga," he warned; "the doll, you know. She has a long spell ahead of her, upside down in a little girl's stocking, and Olga can't sleep a wink unless she's laid flat on her back. But she won't mind," he added, "it's Christmas."

"Oh," said Jill and then suddenly, "Who's that, sitting on the funny cushion on the snowbank?"

"The girl on the tuffet? That," rimed the Tin Soldier, "is Miss Muffet."

"I must jump out and chase away that big spider," said Jill.

"Merry Christmas," greeted Miss Muffet, "have some curds and whey?"

"Merry Christmas," said the spider.

"But-er," said Jill, "aren't you-er—afraid of the spider?"

"Oh, no," said Miss Muffet in a tone of surprise. "Didn't you know it's Christmas? Everybody loves everybody at Christmas."

"I'm spinning Miss Muffet a pair of cobweb stockings," volunteered the spider, "silvery ones to go with her gray frock. It's Christmas, you know."

"That'll be lovely," said Jill, popping back beside the Tin Soldier.

Jingle jingle, jingle.

"What about traffic cops?" asked Jill, as the reindeer fairly flew.

"Nothing in Santa's life," answered the Tin Soldier. "He'll invisible, and so are we."

"And so am I," sadly thought Jill, "as far as Jack's concerned. Look," she called a moment later, as Santa Claus slowed down beside a plump lad in a corner, "it's Jack Horner! And he's pulled out a plum! But, look, he's given it to Tiny Tim."

"Of course," said Scrooge, wiping a tear of joy from his eye as he materialized out of the snow, "it's Christmas. And at Christmas everybody loves everybody."

"So it is Christmas so it is," exclaimed Mr. Pickwick, slyly approached Jill with a bunch of mistletoe. "And at Christmas, my dear, everybody loves everybody. And bless me," he cried, "look at that cow jumping over the moon to amuse the little dog. There's the Christmas spirit for you!"

At this Jill leaned so far back to look at the moon that she tumbled out with a soft bump as the reindeer pranced off.

Jingle, jingle, jingle, jingle.

Bells . . . not sleigh bells. Where was she? On the floor beside her bed. The morning sun sparkled on the frosted window. . . Jingle—the telephone!

"Did I wake you, darling?" It was Jack. "I love you. Merry Christmas."

"M-merry Christmas," gasped Jill.

"Is that all?" said Jack. "Don't you love me?"

"Of course I do, you silly," said Jill. "At Christmas everybody loves everybody."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 22—Stroll by the capitol any of these fine, bracing March mornings along about 9 a. m. and you are apt to see a sturdy, upright man in his late sixties come striding briskly up the hill and disappear into the supreme court area of the vast building.

He wears, you will note a neatly trimmed beard, now turned almost white, and sweeps along in vigorous fashion at a round pace, as though he had business in hand.

Then you may say to yourself, "Well, I have seen a sight. There goes Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, getting on the job early."

For his new distinction has not altered the Hughes habit of work.

As secretary of state he usually beat most of his assistant secretaries to the office every morning. And now and then he called that to their attention in pointed fashion.

Almost always, save in most inclement weather, he walked to work. He still does both things as chief justice, although he probably does not "bawl out" his associates on the bench if they are a little late. That is not being done.

"Squatter Rights"

The new chief justice makes his office in the conference room of the supreme court. He gets there at 9.30 a. m. or before every day.

Only two of the associate justices maintain chambers at the capitol, Sanford and Sutherland. The others do their work at home as did Chief Justice Taft.

And as there are no more office rooms available, senate and house having long ago defeated the court's effort to extend its quarters in the capitol in that way, Chief Justice Hughes has "squatted" in the conference room.

Another Hughes habit remains unchanged. He has taken over the personnel attached to the former chief justice, secretary, law clerk and messenger. He did that when he became secretary of state and has never, so far as the Bystander has ever heard, felt dependent on any particular man as an assistant.

It was different with Chief Justice Taft. When he became war secretary nearly a quarter of a century ago, he selected W. W. Mischler as his personal secretary.

Mischler remained with him through all that followed, from white house, to a professorship at Yale, then to the chief justiceship. And he is now secretary to Chief Justice Hughes.

Swift Eye

But it's a new and fast moving personality the trio of former Taft retainers have to deal with now, a man quick on his feet and amazingly swift in his scanning of a long brief.

Mr. Hughes has an uncanny knack of lighting on salient paragraphs at his first dip into ponderous legal tomes.

And he's at it by 9.30 a. m. and again at 4.30 p. m. after court sessions, every day. He is, physically and individually, speeding things up. Even the solemn processional to the bench from the robing room moves faster when Hughes sets the pace.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Flip Isn't Satisfied

Some people always want to see
Before they'll believe a thing can be.
—Bowser the Hound.

Flip was upset. Yes, sir, Flip the Terrier was very much upset. I might say that he was doubly upset. Bowser the Hound had knocked him right over onto his back. He had done it just as Flip was about to show that he wasn't afraid of Prickly Porky the Porcupine. So he was upset bodily and also he was upset in his feelings. Probably there was never a more surprised dog than was Flip when Bowser interfered.

Bowser had frankly confessed that he himself was afraid of Prickly Porky and had explained why. At first this had been sufficient for Flip. He was satisfied to sit down and watch Prickly Porky climb a tree. When Prickly Porky was safely out of reach, Flip and Bowser trotted on to see what more they could find. All the time, however, Flip kept thinking about Prickly Porky. The more he thought about him, and the more he thought about the way Bowser had interfered, the less satisfied he became with having left Prickly Porky alone.

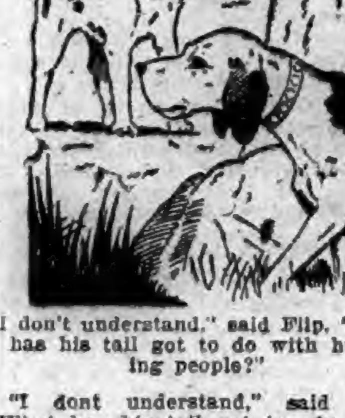
"Bowser probably meant all right," thought Flip. "I'll give him that much credit. I guess Bowser isn't much of a fighter. Prickly Porky didn't look to me as if he could do much fighting. He moves too slowly to be a fighter. I should like to ask Bowser why he is afraid of Prickly Porky, but he might not like it if I did."

At last curiosity got the best of Flip and he ventured to say to Bowser: "Why are you afraid of Prickly Porky? Does he throw a bad-smelling scent that smarts when it gets in your eyes, and chokes you, the way Jimmy Skunk does?

"No," replied Bowser promptly. "He hasn't any bad-smelling scent."

"He's very slow moving," said Flip. "He doesn't look as if he could fight."

Bowser grinned. "He is slow moving," he agreed. "He is slow moving with the exception of his tail. He can flip that tail around fast enough. It is a good thing that that tail isn't any longer than it is. Yes, sir, it is a good thing that Prickly Porky's tail isn't long like the tail of his cousin who lives way down in a place called the Tropics. I've heard Scrapper the Kingbird, who spends his winters down there, say that Prickly Porky has a cousin down there with a very long tail, only his tail is bare. If Prickly Porky had a longer tail, more people would get hurt than do get hurt now."



"I don't understand," said Flip. "What has his tail got to do with hurting people?"

"I dont understand," said Flip "What has his tail got to do with hurting people?"

"Everything," replied Bowser very promptly. "You see, that tail is covered with little spears, and if he should happen to hit you with that tail he would leave a lot of those little spears sticking in you and they hurt. I know, for I have felt them. And it hurts still more to have them pulled out. So you keep away from Prickly Porky. He's covered all over with those little spears excepting underneath."

"I didn't see any little spears," replied Flip. "I saw a lot of queer looking stiff hairs."

"No, you didn't," replied Bowser. "What you call 'stiff hairs' are the little spears I have been telling you about. Prickly Porky is one of the people whom you want to leave absolutely alone. Keep away from him. As I told you once before, if you do not keep away from him, you'll be the sorriest dog that ever lived."

Flip said nothing more, but he wasn't satisfied. He couldn't imagine how it was possible for Prickly Porky to really be so dangerous. You see, he knew nothing about those little spears and he wanted to know more. So the first chance he got he slipped away and went back to where he had seen Prickly Porky.

YOUR HEALTH

Personal Hygiene Of Industrial Workers

By Frederick L. Flynn, M. D., N. Y.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Personal hygiene, shop sanitation and accident prevention are of utmost importance to the industrial worker. Shop sanitation, consisting of proper ventilation, including good air and removal of obnoxious dust and fumes; correct illumination, approved toilet and drinking facilities, and good housekeeping are included in the responsibilities of the employer. Accident prevention is a mutual obligation. Personal hygiene is the responsibility of each individual worker.

Employees should realize the importance of keeping themselves in good physical condition in order that they may lengthen their productive life and bring a continued income to their families. It is not the sensational disease caused by some industrial exposure that is the greatest danger to the workman. It is the insidious ones, the so-called silent ones that creep up on him that are the most dangerous. One of the best ways to combat these diseases is to detect them at the very beginning. Every man should insist on his right to a thorough examination at least once a year. The company or family doctor will detect infected tonsils and teeth, sinus trouble, or other toxic conditions which would in time result in heart and kidney diseases. The workman should consider such an examination as the annual audit or stock taking of his investment in industry, for only by keeping himself "fit"—his personal investment in the business,—can he expect to draw his dividends from labor.

Constipation is one of the most common conditions found in American people. It is the result of bad habits and improper food can easily be remedied by following competent medical advice. A proper bowel movement each day will do much to cut down incidence of industrial intoxication from dust. Cut out cathartics except when ordered by a doctor. The common history is to hear of an employe taking a cathartic at night, getting up late, eating a hurried breakfast and rushing off to work without the benefit of the medicine. This results in demands for increasing doses until the man becomes a slave to the habit.

Food should never be eaten in the workroom, especially where poisonous material such as lead is being used. Get out for a few minutes of sunshine. The mere change in position brings into action a new set of muscles and does much to relieve the feeling of fatigue. Get in the habit of drinking at least eight glasses of water a day.

If respirators or goggles are provided, use them. Remember that respiratory diseases account for 41.7 per cent of all industrial loss of time. While all dusts are not equally dangerous, they all irritate the mucous membrane and predisposes toward respiratory illnesses.

"Reverence for Personality"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "They who are accounted to rule over the Gentiles lord it over them . . . but it shall not be so among you" (Mark 10:43).

Read: Mark 10:35-45.

MEDITATION: There are two kinds of power—power over people and power with people. The man who aspires to have power with people will not seek to lord it over them. He will have too much reverence for their personalities, too much regard for their rights. He will not use them as means to his ends. The domineering person may compel obedience but he will not gain a following. No man has any superior claim to success and happiness. This is our Father's world—"everybody's world." And God is "everybody's God." The mental attitude of one who has assimilated the Christian spirit is: Every person has as much right to life, victory and happiness as I have. This attitude gives us power with people.

PRAYER: O Thou who hast set us among our fellow men, persuade us of the might of the gentle and humble spirit; teach us the grace of patience; help us this day to put our trust not in might, nor in power, but in Thy gracious spirit. Amen.

His death recalls the verse written as a fling at the assumed superiority of Boston and Harvard:

CHILD TRAINING

"I'm Sorry"
Mary Starck Kerr

"Junior does a good many things he ought not to do," said his aunt, "but he is always very sorry afterwards. One evening not long ago, for instance, he wanted me to play a game with him. I told him Auntie was too tired, but he teased, and I finally yielded, but with the strict understanding that I would play it just twice, and he must not ask for more.

"He kept his word not to ask for any more, and I left the room. He seemed to have been thinking seriously, for in a few minutes he followed me, and said, 'I'm sorry I asked you to play when you were so tired.'"

"That didn't do much good," said a second aunt, "since the harm to you was already done. It is better to not do things, than to do them and then say, 'I'm sorry'!"

"Of course," said a grandaunt, "yet, in learning to say, 'I'm sorry,' Junior is learning one of the most valuable lessons in the world. The fact that he thinks of what he has done, and judges whether it was right or wrong, shows that he is considering others as well as himself. And apologizing when necessary is going to help him to do better another time.

"We ought to be very glad that Junior has begun to practice this habit, because it will help him all through his life. See how much unhappiness and friction in families might be smoothed away if each learned to say, 'I'm sorry,' as Junior does. They are two small words, but we all know that sometimes they are the hardest words in the world to say. But don't you think those who learn to say them in childhood find it easier to say them when they are older? Every one makes mistakes, but don't you notice that those who have learned to acknowledge their mistakes overcome them more easily than those who try to justify themselves?"

"It does help," said the second aunt, "and I think you are right about its making Junior more considerate."

"Do you know," said his grandaunt, with a twinkle, "I shouldn't wonder if he has learned this good habit from some of the older persons around him. Both aunties may have had something to do with his learning that lesson, and perhaps Granpa and Grandma and Mother and Daddy have had a hand in it, too. His grandaunt can't be suspected, since she has not been near enough for habit-contagion, but it certainly is true that if the children see the older members of the family acknowledging their faults, and hear them apologizing for inconsiderate acts, they will soon be doing the same. I am quite sure that an ounce of example is worth a pound of precept.'"

France's Flood-Swept Southland

France's worst flood in a century or more, which drowned scores of people, swept away villages and bridges many hundreds of years old, destroyed vineyards, and put hundreds of square miles of farming land under water, has been centered in the Gascony, Midi and Languedoc regions just north of the eastern Pyrenees Mountains in southern France.

This country and its life under ordinary conditions is described in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society based on a communication to the society from Melville Chater who traveled across the region of the recent floods, through the Lateral and Midi canals, in a canoe.

Mr. Chater writes thus of Moissac where a breaking dam caused the death of 150 persons and destroyed a large part of the town.

"We came to Moissac through a pretty countryside of hay-making scenes and red-roofed farmhouses. Here the sinuous canal hardly permitted even a canoe to squeeze between the monster barges pyramided with wine tuns of Bordeaux, the western Midi's wine center.

"Surely it was by a sheer prodigality of the religious art impulse that Moissac, a mere rustic townlet, became dowered with twelfth-century cloisters which rival any in France! Their column capitals, graven with many a scene in which popes and cardinals figure, constitute a veritable church history in stone.

"Long before we gained the Canal du Midi at Toulouse we had learned how vividly the French for 'midday' describes Pyrenean France. One's abiding recollections of the Midi are of the midday—withering heat, whitish, fast-shuttered houses, whitish roads, dust-blanched fields and foliage—all under a cloudless, turquoise sky whose fires light the peasant's bedtime hour.

"At Toulouse we left the Lateral canal and entered the much older Canal du Midi. The Canal du Midi is not only an important commerce carrier; it is among the most beautiful of French waterways. Immediately beyond Toulouse we found ourselves floating through a series of woodland vistas, a ceaseless interplay of lights, shadows, and reflections, that changed with each turn of this endlessly twisting stream. It is small wonder that these same vistas once intrigued Henry James into the cautious remark that a taste in canals was 'justifiable.'

"The Midi canal's picturesque character is due to the magnificent trees which line its banks for more than 100 miles. Here are venerable oak glades, there alleys of plane trees, and yonder spear-straight pines or somber walls of cypress. Often, indeed, ranks of these different species parallel each other in a multiplied depth of sylvan shelter."

That there could also be sudden storms in the peaceful Midi, Mr. Chater and his companion soon learned.

"You had better sleep ashore," a barge skipper called to them one evening. "There'll be a storm tonight.

"We agreed," writes Mr. Chater, "that, with the prevalent 'settled dry' weather, the old fellow's prophecy was absurd. Nevertheless, we had hardly fallen asleep in the canoe when we were roused by a true Midi storm. It was a terrific offensive of the elements, and ceased with an extraordinary abruptness, whereby one half of the heavens was already starry while the other half was still shot with lightning. The storm smashed branches, burned out fuses and damaged small craft, but fortunately our canoe escaped injury.

"By now we had left Gascony behind and were well into Languedoc. In the neat, measured-out countryside through which we were passing, the day's work began at gray 5 o'clock. Then the first barge locks through, old crones marshal regiments of geese, and snow-white oxen drink at the canal side. At sweltering noon the clatter of the American baling machine ceases, men put cabbage leaves in their hats, and the oxen stand flank-deep in the backwater. Such a mild-eyed dignity as theirs was worthy of Greek garlands and festal processions.

"Field work and locking through continue until 8 o'clock. Then there is an hour of mandolin tinkling and beer drinking in the canal-side cafe whose placard begs 'the amiable clientele to wish well to regulate the consommations before departing.' And so to bed. Such is life in the back-doors country.

"Beyond Carcassonne lay the canal's loveliest stretch, with the Black Mountain's peaks rising higher and nearer, day by day, as we approached the foothills of the Pyrenees. Apparently barren, save for occasional vineyards, their outflung line, as seen at sunrise and sunset, glowed like some barbaric necklace of mother-of-pearl and gold.

"From Carcassonne to Beziers the scene resembled one continuous vineyard 60 miles long. For us, thus far, it had remained unpeopled. But promptly at 5 a. m., on September 15, we were awakened by the laughter of peasants bearing reaping hooks and buckets, as they filed along the towpath.

"Ahead marched monsieur the proprietor, leading a village's entire population into the fields. And they laughed and joked, these youths and maidens, these old folks and their little grandchildren, because la vendage, the long-awaited, all important grape harvest had begun.

"From now onward hayfields, cattle, and even the 'canal patrol' of geese vanished from a scene which, for a month of unbroken working days, sometimes 17 hours long, was exclusively one of grape gathering. Shopkeepers and even fishermen dropped their occupations for the harvest, and our line of supplies became threatened by this big reaping-hook offensive. One man thus met our supplication for some vegetables: 'Oh, there's nothing of that sort around here. One can't afford to raise anything but grapes, to the last square meter.'

"Finally our trip came to an end at Cette on the Mediterranean where hotel-fringed quays and busy ship basins lent a Venetian air to the scene. It was evening and we watched the sun sink over the Midi.

"The Midi! It is France's sunburned southland whose fires coursed in the veins of Bernard de Panassac, highwayman and troubadour; of daredevil d'Artagnan; of Cyrano de Bergerac, duelist-poet supreme; of dashing Richard Plantagenet, the most meridional of England's kings. It is France's music-loving, bullfighting southland, heady as its own wines, whose ragged revolutionaries marching into Paris first popularized the 'Marseillaise.'

"Quick loves, quick hates, quick laughter—of such is the Midi, the Land of the Midday Sun."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Eastern Malleable Iron Company, Naugatuck

The founders of this business were B. B. Tuttle and J. H. Whittemore of Naugatuck, Mr. Whittemore being office and financial man and Mr. Tuttle looking after the practical and manufacturing end. At the start, over 60 years ago, Mr. Whittemore was able to borrow $1,000 on a five year note without endorsement from J. E. English, who later became governor of Connecticut. In the early days if they could get an order for a barrel of castings at a time, they felt they were doing big business, while today orders are given in carload lots.

The concern was called The Tuttle & Whittemore company, later changed to The Naugatuck Malleable Iron company and, as the business grew rapidly, factories were bought or started at Bridgeport, New Britain, Troy, N. Y., and Wilmington, Del. About 17 years ago all these plants were combined and the name changed to The Eastern Malleable Iron company. Today this company is known as the largest manufacturer of malleable iron castings in the east and has the highest reputation for quality and service. They also manufacture gray iron and aluminum castings.

For a number of years the business was owned and controlled by the Tuttle, Whittemore, Hopkins and Warner families. But, as it grew larger and the older people passed on, younger men became active, the ownership enlarged and the stock is now more widely held, although the families of the original owners still have controlling and directing interests in the business, their sons and grandsons being on the board of directors. The executive offices are at Naugatuck and the present officers are: H. B. Tuttle (son of B. B. Tuttle), chairman of the board; C. L. Berger, president; E. Mannweiler, vice president; John E. Walker, vice president; Geo. B. Woolson, secretary and treasurer.

Hope that the Tidewater Paperboard company mill in the Thamesville section, on the banks of the Thames river, is to be restored to active occupancy, was revived in the past week by the visit here of J.
